on a contract of indemnity before he has paid the money is premature. 50 I.C. 611=15 N.L.R. 78. "To indemnify" does not merely mean to reimburse in respect of moneys paid but to save from loss in respect of the liability against which indemnity has been given. Where a person contracts to indemnify another in respect of any liability which the latter may have undertaken on his behalf, such other person may compel the contracting party, before actual damage is done, to place him in a position to meet the liability that may hereafter be cast upon him. The words "may be compelled to pay" in Cl. (1) of S. 125 of the Contract Act cannot be construed as signifying that indemnity cannot be claimed unless and until damages have already been paid. There is no justification for putting such a narrow construction upon the words. 22 Pat. 655=213 I.C. 385=10 B.R. 606=A. I.R. 1944 Pat. 185. When the injury becomes imminent, the indemnity-holder can come to Court and ask that he be protected, and the Court must decide whether or not the claim of the third party against the indemnity-holder is well-founded; if it so decides, it must grant relief to him and not postpone the indemnity-holder until a decree has been passed against him. He may sue quia timet. S. 125 is not exhaustive and does not set out all the relief which an indemnity-holder who has been sued may get. It leaves untouched certain equitable reliefs which he may get. I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 318. See also 1942 Bom. 302. "Payment" means payment in money or its equivalent and not by the execution of a fresh bond. Indemnity is not necessarily given by repayment after payment. Indemnity requires that the party to be indemnified should never be called upon to pay. Where property subject to a charge is sold in execution and the purchaser neglects to satisfy the charge, the owner of the property is entitled to have his right of indemnity declared and enforced, if necessary, by the sale of the properties and adjustment of the equities even though he has not actually paid off the charge himself. 761, infra. Where a purchaser of property agrees to release the property from an existing mortgage and further agrees to indemnify the vendor, a suit by the vendor when he has not paid anything to the mortgagee is not in the nature of a suit to enforce a trust and is premature. 60 C. 761=146 I.C. 863=1933 C. 641. Where, on a sale of land, a portion of the purchase-money is left with the vendee to pay certain debts of the vendor and the vendee also agrees to compensate the vendor in case of his default in paying the amounts, the vendor can sue the vendee on a breach of the covenant without proof of actual loss sustained by him (vendor) by such breach. 35 M.L.J. 692=49 I.C. 313. suretyship there should be concurrence of the principal debtor, the creditor and the surety. But this does not mean that there must be evidence showing that the surety undertook his obligation at the express request of the principal debtor. An implied request will be quite sufficient to satisfy this requirement. 12 Luck. 484=1937 O. 19. As to continuation of contract of guarantee See (1937) 1 M.L.J. 143; (1939) 1 M.L.J. 897; 1940 Bom. 315. See also I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 698. In the case of a surety bond executed in favour of a Court for the benefit of a creditor, the Court cannot be brought within the definition of a creditor in S. 126. 46 P.L.R. 240=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 428. Where A tells B that he may safely do business with C, as he was helping them with finance and taking goods from him, that falls far short of a guarantee. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 282=1939 Mad. 520=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 509. See also 1937 Sind 50. Mere recommendation does not constitute guarantee. 1927 M. 620; 24 M.L.J. 249. A contract of guarantee need not necessarily be in writing; it may be expressed by word of mouth or it may be tacit or implied and may be inferred from the course of conduct of the parties concerned. Chapter VIII of the Act is not exhaustive on the subject. 1930 A.L.J. 1217=1930 A. 848; 42 A. 70=52 I.C. 684; 188 I.C. 222=1938 Sind 50. A contract of guarantee as specified in S. 126 presupposes the existence of a 'principal debtor' and no such contract can be made before a sale has taken place, when there is no principal debtor in existence in respect of whose default the guarantee can be given. 30 N.L.R. 205=1934 N. 163. In construing a guarantee, the principle is that a guarantee will only extend to a liability precisely answering the description contained in the guarantee. Therefore creditor must satisfy that the conditions of the bond are fulfilled and that he is seeking the very liability which has been undertaken by the guarantor under the bond. 47 L.W. 84=1938 Mad. 422. Contracts of guarantee have to be interpreted having due regard to the relative position of the contracting parties and to the circumstances surrounding the contract. It is important that a condition contained in general terms is subject to retrictions which follow from the nature and character of the principal's engagement. The extent of the condition of an indemnity bond might be restrained by the recitals. 1930 A.L.J. 1217. See also 45 L.W. 605=1937 Mad. 360=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 143; 1937 Sind 50. Where a person promises to pay an extra rate of interest in consideration of the creditor giving more time to the debtor without any liability on the part of the debtor towards the creditor for such an extra rate, the position of that person with regard to the payment of this excess of interest is not that of surety, but he makes himself personally liable for the amount. 1930 A.L.J. 1181=1930 A. 543. Where, without any contract of suretyship, there is a primary and secondary liability of two persons for one and the same debt, the debt being as between the two that of one of those persons only, and not equally of both, the other, if he should be compelled to discharge the liability due to the creditor, though not a surety strictly so called, has nevertheless been in equity allowed to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor. But if the debt was borrowed by two persons jointly and severally bound as principals and shared by them—so that the debt was one equally of both—one of them is not, on payment even of the entire debt, entitled to the benefit of the security held by the creditor, in the absence of a contract with the creditor. 55 M. 949=139 I.C. 562=63 M.L.J. 615. The Court in granting relief to a person in the position of a surety is not confined to contracts of guarantee within the meaning of S. 126, and is free to apply the principles of equity unless the position is governed by some positive provision of law. Where in a mortgage deed executed by a Hindu father over his separate properties in respect of amounts borrowed by him for his own purposes, his son is made a party at the request of the mortgagee, and is made liable for the repayment of the debt, though not as a mortgagor, and the son after the death of his father pays off the mortgage out of his own moneys, he falls within the category of cases in which without any contract of suretyship there is a primary and a secondary liability of two persons for one and the same debt, the debt being, as between the two, that of one of those persons only, and not equally of both, so that the other, if he should be compelled to pay it, would be entitled to reimbursement from the person by whom (as between the two) it ought to have been paid. The son therefore would be entitled to the benefit of the security held by the mortgagee whom he has paid off, although he cannot be regarded as a surety within the meaning of S. 126 of the Contract Act. I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 851=55 L.W. 417=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 628=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 406. As to enforcement of surety bond, see 57 M. 688=1934 186=66 M.L.J. 248. LIABILITY OF SURETY UNDER C.P. CODE, S. 145.—S. 145, C.P. Code, must be read with S. 128, Contract Act, which makes the liability of the security co-extensive with that of the principal debtor. After the judgment-debtor fails to pay the decretal amount the decree-holder is entitled to proceed against the surety as if he was his judgment-debtor. 1933 N. 287. See also 57 M. 688=66 M.L.J. 248=1934 M. 186. Under S. 128 the liability of a surety is co-extensive with that of the principal debtor only when it is not otherwise provided for in the contract. Where the vendee executed a security bond for the due discharge of a decree debt but failed to act accordingly and the vendor sued to recover the amount as well as interest thereon as agreed in the security bond. Held, that the vendee was liable for interest alone. 1934 A.L.J. 682=148 I.C. 639=1934 A. 525. Where a surety undertakes to pay the creditor the amount which may become due to him under the letter of guarantee "after attempts have been made by the creditor to realise the same from the principal debtor," there is a special contract between the creditor and the guarantor that the creditor should not be entitled to recover from the guarantor until he has first attempted and failed to obtain satisfaction by proceedings against the principal debtor. The creditor's right to recover from the guarantor does not accrue until the creditor has taken steps to recover the debt by proceeding against the principal debtor. It is not enough for the creditor to merely demand payment from the principal debtor, as that would not amount to an attempt to realise the debt from the assets of the principal debtor. 1937 A.L.J. 1265.

Afterwards B supplies C with tea to the value of £200. C fails to pay. The guarantee given by A was a continuing guarantee, and he is accordingly liable to B to the extent of £100.

(c) A guarantees payment to B of the price of five sacks of flour to be delivered by B to C and to be paid for in a month. B delivers five sacks to C. C pays for them. Afterwards B delivers four sacks to C, which C does not pay for. The guarantee given by A was not a continuing guarantee, and accordingly he is not liable for the price of the four sacks.

130. A continuing guarantee may at any time be revoked by the surety, as to future transactions, by notice to the creditor.

(a) A, in consideration of B's discounting, at A's request, bills of exchange for C, guarantees to B, for twelve months, the due payment of all such bills to the extent of 5,000 rupees. B discounts bills for C to the extent of 2,000 rupees. Afterwards, at the end of three months, A revokes the guarantee. This revocation discharges A from all liability to B for any subsequent discount. But A is liable to B for the 2,000 rupees, on default of C.

(b) A guarantees to B, to the extent of 10,000 rupees, that C shall pay all the bills that B shall draw upon him. B draws upon C. C accepts the bill. A gives notice of revocation. C dishonours the bill at maturity. A is liable upon his guarantee.

revocable under S. 130. Still in such a case of fidelity guarantee, once exact information reaches the surety that the person for whom he has remained surety has been guilty of misconduct, the surety is entitled to recall the guarantee as against the creditor or the obligee in the bond. But this is an equitable relief and such a relief must be very strictly administered. The misconduct must be clearly proved at the time of revocation. 1930 R. 173. A person who becomes a surety under S. 55 (4) of the C.P. Code cannot claim to be released from his obligation at his pleasure. There is no analogy between a security bond executed under S. 55 (4), C.P. Code, and a continuing guarantee under S. 129 and S. 130 of the Contract Act and its principle cannot apply to a surety under S. 55 (4), C.P. Code. The surety under S. 55 (4) cannot be discharged from his obligation at any stage before he has fully carried out his undertaking to the Court. 1941 M.W.N. 793= (1941) 2 M.L.J. 650. A surety for the production of a judgment-debtor in Court can revoke the guarantee even on the day prior to the date fixed for appearance. It is not necessary that there should be a special reservation as to the right to revoke. 52 A. 1014=1931 A. 243. Where a surety for the appearance of the judgment-debtor who was arrested in execution of a decree, produces the judgment-debtor in Court and requests to be absolved from further liability under the surety bond, the Court should not refuse to grant the prayer. It is open to the decree-holder to apply to the Court for the arrest of the judgment-debtor until he furnishes a fresh security. 151 I.C. 154=1934 Lah. 962. Revocation of continuing guarantee by surety's death.

131. The death of the surety operates, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, as revocation of a continuing guarantee, so far as regards future transactions.

Liability of two persons, primarily liable, not affected by arrangement between them that one shall be surety on other's default.

132. Where two persons contract with a third person to undertake a certain liability, and also contract with each other that one of them, shall be liable only on the default of the other, the third person not being a party to such contract, the liability of each of such two persons to the third person under the first contract is not affected by the existence of the second contract, although such third person may have been aware of its existence.

Secos. 133 to 141.—Applicability—Surety bonds in favour of Court. Although Ss. 133 to 141 are not in terms applicable to surety bonds executed in favour of courts under C.P. Code, the principles upon which they are based are applicable to them. Consequently the liability of a surety who has executed a bond in favour of a Court comes to an end if the creditor for whose benefit the bond was given is found without the surety's knowledge to have entered into a contract with the debtor which would be hit by the provisions contained in Ss. 133 to 141 of the Contract Act. 46 P.L.R. 240= A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 428.

Seco. 133: DISCHARGE OF SURETY—PRINCIPLES.—The principle of the law on the discharge of sureties is that the surety, like any other contracting party, cannot be held bound to something for which he has not contracted. If the original parties have expressly agreed to vary the terms of the original contract no further question arises. The original contract has gone, and unless the surety has assented to the new terms, there is nothing to which he can be bound, for the final obligation of the principal debtor will be something different from the obligation which the surety guaranteed. Presumably he is discharged forthwith on the contract being altered without his consent, for the parties have made it impossible for the guaranteed performance to take place. S. 133 cannot operate to alter the primary law of the contract of guarantee that the promisee must show performance before he can hold the promisor to his promise and while by S. 128 the liability of the surety is co-extensive with that of the principal debtor, it only extends to this liability on the contract guaranteed and not on something different. Accordingly where the guaranteed transaction is an advance of a certain amount on the security of four properties but the transaction carried out is an advance of a less amount on security of three properties, the sureties cannot be held liable in respect of this performance which is not what they contracted to guarantee. 153 I.C. 700=1935 P.O. 21=68 M. See also 152 I.C. 874=1934 S. 152. It is well-established that a guarantor is prima facie entitled to have the debt proved against him. The fact that the principal debtor has admitted the debt, or that a judgment or award has been given against him for the debt, does not bind the guarantor, unless he was a party to the proceedings in which the judgment or award was given, or was party to the admission of the principal debtor. The liability of a guarantor must depend on the true construction of the guarantee which he has given. If the guarantor merely guarantees payment of the debt of the principal debtor, he is entitled to require the debt to be proved as against him. If, on the other hand, the principal debtor has agreed that as against him the debt shall be proved in a particular way, and the guarantor has guaranteed the debt so to be proved, then the guarantor would be bound by the particular method of proof agreed to by the principal debtor and accepted by himself. S. 133 of the Act cannot, in any view, operate to alter the primary law of the contract of guarantee that the promisee must show performance before he can hold the promisor liable. If the contract with the principal debtor is varied without the consent of the surety, the latter who is not a consenting party to the variation is discharged from liability, although the principal debtor who is entitled to cancel and does cancel the contract, subsequently withdraws the cancellation and submits to the claim of the creditor. If the consideration for the original contract with the principal debtor fails, the latter is relieved of all liability, and necessarily the surety also ceases to be liable as surety. But there is no reason why the principles underlying those sections should not be applied mutatis mutandis, though the question whether a surety is discharged from the undertaking he has given to the Court depends on the construction of the surety bond. When once a decree is passed both against the principal debtor and the surety, the surety becomes a judgment-debtor. His debt becomes a debt of record. The original contract has merged in the decree. SURETY BOND EXECUTED IN FAVOUR OF COURT.—S. 134 presupposes the existence of a contract of guarantee, to which the creditor and the surety, if not also the debtor are parties. The liability of the surety arises from an undertaking given by him to the creditor in consideration of something done by the latter. Hence where there are no contracts between the sureties and creditor and security bonds are executed by the sureties at the instance of the debtor and in pursuance of the orders of the Court granting stay, the creditors are not a party to the contract of guarantee though empowered under the security bond to enforce and hence S. 134 does not apply to this case. 1936 A.L.J. 860=1936 A. 549.

SECS. 134 AND 137: CONSTRUCTION.—The mere fact that an execution against the principal judgment-debtor has been allowed to be barred by lapse of time is no ground for the release of discharge of the surety. 40 C.W.N. 465. A surety is discharged when at the date of the suit against him the creditor's remedy against the principal debtor has become barred by time. 1939 A. M.L.J. 66. A creditor does not lose his remedy against the surety by reason of the fact that he did not prefer his claim within time against the principal debtor. 1941 O. W.N. 473=193 I.C. 344; 41 C. W. N. 1361. Mere entering into a compromise decree by the parties would not necessarily discharge the surety. But where a complicated arrangement is entered into which could not have been within the contemplation of the surety and new terms are imported quite outside the reasonable requirements of a settlement by consent, the surety will be discharged. 1937 Rang. 499.

SECS. 134, 137 AND 139.—See 154 I.C. 814=1935 O. 260=1935 O.W.N. 274. A surety is discharged if the creditor, without his consent, either releases the principal debtor or enters into a binding arrangement with him to give him time. In each case the ground of the discharge is that the surety's right to pay the debt at any time and after paying it, to sue the principal in the name of the creditor, is interfered with. Ss. 134 and 139 of the Contract Act are merely declaratory of what the law of England was and is. S. 139 only applies where the eventual remedy of the surety against the principal debtor is impaired. Under S. 134 the surety is discharged if, and only if, a contract has been entered into by which the debtor is released or if there has been any act or omission on the part of the creditor the legal consequence of which has been to discharge the principal debtor. 66 I.A. 198=43 C.W.N. 641=1939 P.C. 110=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 253 (P.C.). A creditor while enforcing his contract may elect to have recourse to the surety rather than to the principal debtor; but he must not in so doing release the latter in such a way as to render the contract unenforceable against him and therefore void. If he does this, the surety can have no recourse to the principal debtor for repayment and both by virtue of Ss 134 and 139 the surety is discharged. (1920 Mad. 216, Diss.) Thus if the creditor chooses to have recourse to the surety the principal debtor remains liable to the latter, but if the creditor after having instituted a suit against both the principal debtor and his surety, extinguishes his remedy against the principal debtor by withdrawing a suit against him without the permission of the Court under O. 23, R. 1 (3), C.P. Code, then his act discharges both the principal debtor and by virtue of Ss. 134 and 139, Contract Act, the surety in addition. (1 L.B.R. 150, Foll.) The test is not whether the creditor has for the time being confined his attention to the surety rather than to the principal debtor, but whether he has irrevocably abandoned his rights against the principal debtor by releasing or discharging him from the contract or has impaired the remedy of the surety against the principal debtor. 171 I.C. 291=1937 Bang. 302.

SECS. 134 AND 139: DISCHARGE OF SURETY.

—The mere filing beyond time by the creditor of an application for restoration of his suit against the principal debtor which had been dismissed for default, will not be legally sufficient to absolve the surety from liability either under S. 134 or S. 139 of the Contract Act. 1935 L. 729=37 P.L.R. 92. The position of the surety is twofold: on the one hand he is liable to pay the debt, on the other hand when he pays the debt, he stands in the shoes of the creditor. If the liability of the surety is so co-extensive with that of the principal debtor, his right is not less co-extensive with that of the creditor after he satisfied his debt. To enable the surety to enforce his right against the principal debtor, there are two essential conditions (i) that the debt itself must subsist, (ii) that his remedy against the principal must remain unimpaired. The creditor will be entitled to compel the surety to perform his promise only if the debt subsists and the surety's remedy is unimpaired. 176 I.C. 686=1938 Nag. 413. Creditor excluding debt guaranteed by surety from settlement by the Debt Conciliation Board—Surety discharged. 176 I.C. 686=1938 Nag. 413.

SECS. 134 AND 145.—The effect of the creditor waiving his claim against the principal debtor in a suit brought against the principal debtor and the surety is the barring of the remedy by suit against the debtor, and is not the extinction of the debt. The remedy of the surety under S. 145 of the Contract Act against the debtor remains open and unimpaired to the surety, and therefore the surety is not discharged. 14

SEC. 135.—[See also notes under S. 133.] As to the principal of this section, see 4 C. 132; 14 M.L.T. 249. S. 135 has no application to the case of a surety under O. 38, R. 3, C.P. Code. 37 M.L.J. 435=53 I.C. 367. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 1. A person cannot take advantage of the provisions of S. 135 and cannot plead that he is a surety, unless he comes under the definition of the word in S. 126 of the Act and must be a party to a contract of guarantee. 55 L.W. 664=1942 M.W.N. 623=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 532=1943 Mad. 216. The effect of a compromise on the liability of the surety is a question of fact in each case. Where surety undertook liability for the restoration of the property and payment of mesne profits in case the decree of the trial Court was reversed on appeal and his liability was not in terms excluded in case of a compromise, the surety is bound by the terms of a compromise between the parties although entered into without his knowledge. But if the compromise provides for postponed payment or for the amount being paid in instalments, the surety is discharged from his obligations. 56 M. 625=1933 M. 309=64 M.L.J. 386. The appellant was the surety for the judgment-debtor. He undertook to 'fulfil the terms of the decree or order that may be passed in the suit by the trial or the appellate Court.' The suit was bona fide compromised. It was held that on the terms of the bond, the surety's liability was not discharged by the compromise. 55 B. 97=32 Bom.L.R. 1394=1931

If a creditor agrees to discharge the principal debtor but reserves his rights against the surety, the agreement though entered into behind the back of surety only operates as a covenant not to sue between the creditor and the debtor and does not discharge the surety, as the surety's right of recourse against the debtor is not extinguished. 1933 M. 309=64 M.L.J. 386=56 M. 625. The opening of a second account in favour of the principal debtor does not discharge the guarantee. 23 C.L.J. 256=20 C.W.N. 562. See also 3 O. 177; 119 I.C. 749=1929 R. 187.

"GIVES TIME"—MEANING OF—ACCEPTANCE AS ADDITIONAL SECURITY.—By giving time is meant not merely forbearance to sue but entering into a binding agreement by which the creditor precludes himself from suing within a certain time. The third defendant had given a guarantee to the plaintiff in respect of advances to the first defendant for trade purposes. The plaintiff who had accordingly advanced about Rs. 13,000 demanded payment. The first defendant asked for time and gave the plaintiff bills payable at a future date as security. The bills were presented in due course for payment and dishonoured. In a suit by the plaintiff, held, that by taking bills payable at a future date, the plaintiff had put it out of his power to sue for the amounts till the date of maturity and the surety was therefore discharged. 65 M.L.J. 458. The calculation of interest on the amounts due up to the date of maturity and the acceptance of interest in advance would amount to giving of time. 146 I.C. 608=1933 M. 756=65 M.L.J. 458. In view of 55 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.), it is doubtful whether the rule laid down in 22 A. 351, that a mere gratuitous agreement by a creditor to give time to the principal debtor will not discharge the surety, and that in order to have such effect, an agreement to give time to the principal debtor must amount, to a contract, that is, there must be consideration, therefore, is good law. 1933 S. 311. Where in an execution case, the auction-purchaser who had deposited the sale price in Court was allowed to withdraw it on furnishing security to re-deposit when asked to do so, and on so being asked he wanted a month's time to deposit the amount which was granted by the Court and was not objected to by the counsel for the decree-holder, but on subsequent date the Court being aware of the surety bond ordered the surety to deposit the amount and modified the previous orders. Held, that the surety was not absolved under S. 135. The bond was in favour of the Court and the Court had discretion to order the auction-purchaser to deposit the amount at any date it liked and the consent of the counsel for the decree-holder was immaterial. 40 P.L.R. 755=1938 Lah. 472. Under S. 135 a surety who undertakes to pay the decretal amount due if the judgment-debtor does not satisfy the decree by a certain date is not discharged from his liability by the executing Court granting further time to the judgment-debtor for making the payment. 1944 N.L.J. 271=A.I. The words "mere forbearance" in S. 137 mean forbearance of the creditor from suing the debtor within the period of limitation. The simple reason for this interpretation is that a person can only forbear to do a thing as long as he has got a right to do it. Directly the suit of the creditor becomes time-barred he loses his power to enforce his claim. (24 A. 504 foll.) 160 I.C. 1005=1936 Pesh. 30. See also 40 C.W.N. 465. SECS. 140 AND 141: SCOPE OF.—When a surety has paid all the debts he was liable for, on the language of S. 140, he is entitled to demand all the securities held by the creditor at the time of payment whether they had been received simultaneously with the loan advanced or subsequently. S. 141, only means that a surety cannot complain if, before payment, the creditor loses or parts with a security obtained by him after the contract of surety was entered into. S. 141 does not enable the creditor to withhold from the surety any security actually held by him at the time when the debt is paid or in any other way to detract from the rights of the creditor as declared by S. 140. S. 141 only gives him liberty of action in respect of securities not held by him at the time of the contract of suretyship provided he exercises it before payment. But Ss. 140 and 141, prima facie have reference to the simple case of a surety for a single debt for which the creditor holds a security or securities. 1943 M.W.N. 684=I.L.B. As to rights of a transferee of surety's estate paying a debt due by his transferor as surety for another, see 1932 A.L.J. 868=1932 A. 610. Under S. 140 as also under the English law, the surety's right to the benefit of the security held by the creditor vests in him the moment he pays the guaranteed amount. The creditor cannot afterwards make an appropriation to the prejudice of the rights of the surety which have accrued to him. Indeed he cannot do so even before as the surety is entitled to the benefit of every security held by the creditor at the time when the contract of suretyship was entered into. The security held by the creditor as cover for a debt attaches to every rupee of the debt and if he chooses to accept the guarantee with respect to part only of the debt the surety on payment of that part, is by force of law entitled to a proportionate part of the security. A surety for a part only of a debt is, on payment of that part, entitled pro tanto to the security held by the creditor as cover for the debt as a whole. S. 92, T.P. Act, under

I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 757=1940 Mad. 437=(1940) 1 M. L. J. 424. See also 1930 Mad. 874, infra. Where a person stands surety for another as regards an advance to be made by a Bank, the Bank is under no obligation to disclose any past indebtedness existing at the date of the contract of suretyship. There is difference in this respect, between fiduciary guarantees, e.g., guarantees for the fidelity of servants, assurances upon ships and lives, etc., and guarantees by persons in favour of Banks. In the latter case, the surety is not entitled to receive without inquiry from the party to whom he is about to bind himself, a full disclosure of all circumstances of the dealings between the principal and the party. ing the claim of a surety against principal debtor to cases where the surety has already paid the amount the Court would be at liberty to apply the principle of the English decisions which hold that as soon as the obligation to pay becomes absolute, a surety has a right in equity to be exonerated by his principal. 32 Bom.L.R. 207=1930 B. 331. Execution of mortgage by a surety is payment and suit would lie to recover it from the debtor. 58 I.C. 123. The payment which gives the surety a right of action against the principal debtor must be a payment of money or money's worth. Where the surety has not paid the amount due by the principal debtor to the creditor but merely executes a bond for its future payment, a suit by the surety for recovery of the amount due by the principal debtor to the creditor is premature and he has no cause of action until he pays the amount due under the bond. 14 R. 511=163 I.C. 668=1936 R. 235. CHAPTER IX.

OF BAILMENT.

148. * A "bailment" is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose, upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them. The person delivering the goods is called the "bailor." The person to whom they are delivered is called the "bailee."

Explanation.—If a person already in possession of the goods of another contracts to hold them as a bailee, he thereby becomes the bailee, and the owner becomes the bailor, of such goods although they may not have been delivered by way of bailment.

149. The delivery to the bailee may be made by doing anything which has the effect of putting the goods in the possession of the intended bailee or of any person authorized to hold them on his behalf.

Delivery to bailee how made.

SEC. 148.—"For some purposes", meaning of. See 18 N.L.J. 97. Use of property bailed by bailee not necessary to constitute bailment. 18 N.L.J. 97. It is the pawnor and not an assignee from him that can give directions to the pawnee as regards the delivery or disposal of the pledged property. The directions must be definite and reasonable in order to be binding on the pledgee. 65 I.C. 65=1922 N. 127. Where A lent some ornaments to B to be used by the latter in a religious procession the transaction is a bailment. In such a case there is an implied contract for return of the articles in a reasonable time. 126 I.C. 682=1930 O. 395. Liability of goldsmith. 15 I.C. 431=5 Bur. L.T. 106. In case of deposit of money there is no bailment. 13 B. 338; 32 M. 68. The relationship is that of borrower and lender. (Ibid.) On this section, see also 1939 Cal. 746.

BAILMENT.—Meaning of. 23 S.L.R. 13. As to essentials of bailment, see 16 Mys.L. J. 368. Bailment distinguished from sale or exchange. See 2 A. 756. Delivery of goods for safe custody creates bailment not agency. See 1937 All. 255, cited under S. 237, infra.

SEC. 148, EXPL.—A bailment is made when one person delivers goods to another for some purpose under an agreement that they shall be returned after the purpose is accomplished. A seller of goods cannot be regarded as a bailee of the goods sold, unless there is a contract to that effect for the buyer does not deliver the goods to the seller for some purpose under an agreement for their return. So also under the Explanation to S. 148, the seller can become a bailee only if he contracts to hold them as bailee. 11 O.W.N. 958=1934 O. 380. After the Court had passed a re-delivery order the relation of bailor and bailee is established between the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder by virtue of explanation to S. 148. 1929 L. 386.

SECS. 148 AND 149: BAILMENT OF GOODS—ESSENTIALS.—It is an essential element of Ss. 148 and 149 that there must be the putting into possession of the bailee or his agent of the goods in question. Where all that was done was that the bank received a document of title to the goods and the bank received the document in order that the document might be handed to the consignee by the bank and the consignee would pay a sum of money to the bank. Held, that there was no bailment of goods. 148 I.C. 644=1934 A. 568. See also 1937 M.W.N. 1042.

SECS. 148 AND 151.—See 18 Lah. 380=39 P.L.R. 845=1937 Lah. 572 (Stolen property recovered from the accused and kept with a person in charge of Court records and property—Such person embezzling such property—Secretary of State not liable.) Where silver entrusted to another is not to be returned in specie but has to be returned in the shape of a finished article, the intention of the parties is that the same silver would be used for the purpose, and the transaction is one of bailment. The bailee is absolved from liability for the loss of such silver by theft, if he is not guilty of carelessness or negligence. 1936 O.W.N. 334=1936 O. 264.

SEC. 149.—By law the duty of a Railway Company is that of a common carrier and the Railway Company cannot refuse carriage of goods. Liability of railway is that of bailee. Rules restricting liability imposed by Railways Act are invalid. 20 A.L.J. 31=44 A. 218. The mere fact that the loading clerk of a railway filled up what is called the serial number in the forwarding note without doing anything further would not amount to the delivery of goods to the railway by the consignor. 45 A. 235=21 A.L.J. 474.

150. The bailor is bound to disclose to the bailee faults in the goods bailed, of which the bailor is aware, and which materially interfere with the use of them, or expose the bailee to extraordinary risks; and, if he does not make such disclosure, he is responsible for damage arising to the bailee directly from such faults.

If the goods are bailed for hire, the bailor is responsible for such damage, whether he was or was not aware of the existence of such faults in the goods bailed.

Illustrations.

(a) A lends a horse, which he knows to be vicious, to B. He does not disclose the fact that the horse is vicious. The horse runs away. B is thrown and injured. A is responsible to B for damage sustained.

(b) A hires a carriage of B. The carriage is unsafe, though B is not aware of it, and A is injured. B is responsible to A for the injury.

151. In all cases of bailment the bailee is bound to take as much care of the goods bailed to him as a man of ordinary prudence would, under similar circumstances, take of his own goods of the same bulk, quality and value as the goods bailed.

Care to be taken by bailee.

SEC. 151: LIABILITY OF BAILER—EXTENT.—S. 151 makes no reference to the distinction recognised in English Law between a gratuitous bailee and a bailee for hire and omitting all reference to skill lays down for both one standard, viz., as much care as a man of ordinary prudence would take of his own goods in similar circumstances. Bailees are liable for negligence on the part of their agents or servants committed in the course of their employment about the use and custody of the thing bailed but not on account of an unauthorised act done outside the course of their employment. 1934 C. 151 = 37 C.W.N. 1109. Where a bank merely takes possession of a document of title the responsibility of the bank is for the safe custody of the document of title and not for the safe custody of the goods. The deposit of such a document with the bank will give the bank certain rights in regard to that document but it does not produce the legal effect that the bank becomes in possession of the immovable property. 148 I.C. 644 = 1934 A. 568. The liability of a hotel-keeper to his guests is governed by S. 151 and his liability is that of a bailee. 20 A.L.J. 728 = 44 A. 735. The English Common Law does not regulate the liability of hotel-keepers in this country. 44 A. 735. As to the standard of care required of a bailee under Ss. 151 and 152, see 1933 A. 158. Pressure of work or unavoidable accident cannot help to avoid liability. 85 I.C. 786 = 1925 C. 737. Whether it can be inferred from the facts found that ordinary prudence has been exercised, is a question of law and justifies an interference in second appeal. 25 I.C. 939. The position of a Railway Company is that of a bailee and is governed by S. 151. 38 I.C. 143. Where four hens put in a crate were consigned to a Railway Company and were put in a closed van by the Railway Company on account of which they died. Held, Railway Company was liable. 38 I.C. 143. A consignee is liable for demurrage charges and has no right to the price of the goods if he unjustifiably refuses to take delivery of goods. But demurrage cannot be charged for the period subsequent to a notice to the consignee that the goods will be sold away at auction in case he fails to remove them. 41 I.C. 387 = 22 O.W.N. 310. A carrier by a sea cannot contract out of liability for the negligence of himself or of his servants. The English Common Law is applicable: the law as it stood before the Carriers Act, 1830, must be applied. 52 I.C. 296 = 12 Bur.L.T. 173. Bill of lading—Liability for loss of goods contracted out—Legality. See 29 Bom.L.R. 1551. Licensee of a ferry is a common carrier. The responsibility of a common carrier is not within the Contract Act but he is regulated by the Carriers Act and the English Law. 50 I.C. 562; 133 I.C. 77 = 1931 S. 124. As to liability of common carriers, see 34 A. 656; 18 C. 620; 38 C. 28; 28 M. 700; 6 C. 227. The liability of a Railway Company for loss of goods consigned for carriage is governed by the test laid in the sections. rated from liability for loss by means of a special risk-note relieving him from such liability. 2 P. 442. A bailee is responsible for proper care of goods entrusted to him. The burden of proof lies on him to show that such care as a man of ordinary prudence would have exercised, was duly exercised by him. 74 I.C. 18=1923 B. 74 (2). Money deposited for safe custody in Bank—Failure of Bank—Liability of depositors. 36 I.C. 31. Bailment—Suit against bailee for damages—Negligence, proof of—Onus on plaintiff—Duty of defendant. 20 Bom.L.R. 735=27 C.L.J. 615 (P.C.). The obligation of a bailee includes not only the duty of taking all reasonable precautions to obviate these risks but also the duty of taking all proper measures for the protection of the goods when such risks had already occurred. 14 Bom.L.R. 165=14 I.C. 793 (2)=37 B. 1. Degree of care varies with the quality of goods. 27 C.W.N. 1017=80 I.C. 279=1924 C. 92. In a case of highly perishable articles he should take special precautions. 9 I.C. 470=4 Bur.L.T. 26.

LIMITATION.—The defendant borrowed from the plaintiff his car for private use and while it was in his use it met with an accident which resulted in considerable damage to the car. The plaintiff sued to recover the repair charges and interest by way of damages. Held, that the case was one of bailment and that the claim for damages was governed by Art. 115 and not Art. 36, Limitation Act. 145 I.C. 1001=1933 O. 512.

SECS. 151 AND 152: BAILLEE—STANDARD OF CARE.—The standard of diligence required of a bailee under Ss. 151 and 152, is that of the average prudent man; where the bailor has taken the same care of the property entrusted to him as a reasonably careful man may be expected to take of his own goods of the same bulk, quality and volume as the goods bailed, he is not responsible for the loss, destruction or deterioration to the thing bailed. No cast-iron standard can be laid down for the measure of the care due from him. Where there is an unprecedented flood in the town, as a result of which part of the goods bailed is deteriorated, other things being equal, the bailee is not responsible for such loss. 142 I.C. 691=1933 A. 158. It is open to a bailee to contract himself out of the obligations imposed by S. 151 of the Contract Act. The Act does not prohibit contracting out of S. 151. There is no reason why a man should not be at liberty to agree to keep property belonging to another on the terms that such property is to be entirely at the risk of the owner. The only liability of a bailee is for negligence under S. 151, and therefore any words absolving him from risk must cover the consequences of negligence. But where the contract is that the bailee is to keep or hold the property for a reasonable time as an ordinary bailee, it is not open to the latter to alter that contract until a reasonable period has expired and to add a new term to the contract by providing that he is not to be under the ordinary liability attaching to a bailee and that the property is kept at the owner's risk. 41 Bom.L.R. 6=1939 Bom. 101. On these sections, see also 159 I.C. 591=1935 S. 218; 1937 Sind 207; 1937 A.M.L.J. 56.

Sec. 152.—A bailee for hire is bound to return the article hired at the end of the period for which it is hired. But there is an implied warranty that the thing is fit for the purpose for which it is hired and if there is a breach of this warranty, the bailee is not bound to pay the hire and return the articles but can give notice of the same to the bailor. 45 B. 1017=61 I.C. 570. Where a pawnbroker issued a pawn ticket on certain jewellery being deposited with him, and the pawn ticket contained a clause exempting the pawnbroker from all liability in case of destruction of property under certain circumstances, on a suit being brought by the owner for the recovery of price, held, that a bailee can contract himself out of liability. It is not clearly deductible from the terms of S. 152 that a bailee may only make a special contract increasing his responsibility and that he cannot make a special contract reducing it. 7 B. 339=1929 R. 145. 'Loss'—Meaning of. See 10 L. 460=112 I.C. 736. The owner of a lighter carrying goods is liable for the loss of and damage to goods as bailee under S. 152 if in using the lighter he did not take the amount of care prescribed in S. 151. 42 I.C. 636. A lets to B, for hire, a horse for his own riding. B drives the horse in his carriage. This is, at the option of A, a termination of the bailment.

154. If the bailee makes any use of the goods bailed, which is not according to the conditions of the bailment, he is liable to make compensation to the bailor for any damage arising to the goods from or during such use of them.

Illustrations.

(a) A lends a horse to B for his own riding only. B allows C, a member of his family, to ride the horse. C rides with care, but the horse accidentally falls and is injured. B is liable to make compensation to A for the injury done to the horse.

(b) A hires a horse in Calcutta from B expressly to march to Benares. A rides with due care, but marches to Cuttack instead. The horse accidentally falls and is injured. A is liable to make compensation to B for the injury to the horse.

Effect of mixture, with bailor's consent, of his goods with bailee's.

155. If the bailee, with the consent of the bailor, mixes the goods of the bailor with his own goods, the bailor and the bailee shall have an interest, in proportion to their respective shares, in the mixture thus produced.

156. If the bailee, without the consent of the bailor, mixes the goods of the bailor with his own goods, and the goods can be separated or divided, the property in the goods remains in the parties respectively; but the bailee is bound to bear the expense of separation or division, and any damage arising from the mixture.

Illustration.

A bails 100 bales of cotton marked with a particular mark to B. B, without A's consent, mixes the 100 bales with other bales of his own, bearing a different mark: A is entitled to have his 100 bales returned, and B is bound to bear all the expense incurred in the separation of the bales, and any other incidental damage.

157. If the bailee, without the consent of the bailor, mixes the goods of the bailor with his own goods, in such a manner that it is impossible to separate the goods bailed from the other goods and deliver them back, the bailor is entitled to be compensated by the bailee for the loss of the goods.

Illustration.

A bails a barrel of Cape flour worth Rs. 45 to B. B, without A's consent, mixes the flour with country flour of his own, worth only Rs. 25 a barrel. B must compensate A for the loss of his flour.

158. Where, by the conditions of the bailment, the goods are to be kept or to be carried, or to have work done upon them by the bailee for the bailor and the bailee is to receive no remuneration, the bailor shall repay to the bailee the necessary expenses incurred by him for the purpose of the bailment.

159. The lender of a thing for use may at any time require its return, if the loan was gratuitous even though he lent it for a specified time or purpose. But if, on the faith of such loan made for a specified time or purpose, the borrower has acted in such manner that the return of the thing lent before the time agreed upon would cause him loss exceeding the benefit actually derived by him from the loan, the lender must, if he compels the return, indemnify the borrower for the amount in which the loss so occasioned exceeds the benefit so derived.

SEC. 154: CAR ENTRUSTED FOR SAFE CUSTODY—BAILEES LIABILITY FOR UNAUTHORISED USE.—Where a car entrusted for safe custody is used by the bailee for his private purposes in contravention of the agreement, the bailee is liable for the damage arising from such use under S. 154. 35 P.L.R. 705.

BAILEE—RIGHT TO SUE THIRD PARTY FOR DAMAGES FOR NEGLIGENCE.—A bailee is not the agent of the bailor and can sue to recover full damages from a third party who does not claim under the bailor for loss due to negligence of the person. 35 Bom.L.R. 1007 =1933 B. 465. On this section, see also 5 Luck. 220.

160. It is the duty of the bailee to return, or deliver according to the bailor's directions, the goods bailed, without demand, as soon as the time for which they were bailed has expired, or the purpose for which they were bailed has been accomplished.

Return of goods bailed on expiration of time or accomplishment of purpose.

161. If, by the default of the bailee, the goods are not returned, delivered or tendered at the proper time, he is responsible to the bailor for any loss, destruction or deterioration of the goods from that time.

Bailee's responsibility when goods are not duly returned.

Termination of gratuitous bailment by death.

162. A gratuitous bailment is terminated by the death either of the bailor or of the bailee.

SEC. 160.—A bailee who has given up possession of goods bailed with the consent of the bailor cannot thereafter maintain a suit for recovery of the goods bailed. 19 Cr.L.J. 220=43 I.C. 796. Under S. 160 it is the duty of the Railway Company to deliver the goods in accordance with the directions of the consignor, provided those directions are reasonable. When the consignor enters on the railway receipt that another person is to be the consignee, this section will be applicable to directions for delivery given by the consignee. 27 A.L.J. 1169=1929 A. 960=52 A. 126. SECS. 160 AND 148.—When a Government Promissory note is deposited with the Collector of Excise by a company to secure duty in respect of dutiable liquors imported by them, the Government becomes the bailee of the note within the meaning of S. 148. Under S. 160, the Government are under a duty to return it without demand on the cancellation of the company's excise licence, although the note had not been endorsed to the company at the time of the deposit. The Government being bailees, are not at liberty to refuse to return it pleading the interest of the person in whose name the endorsement stands. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 52=1939 Cal. 746.

SECS. 160 AND 161: BAILLEE'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR WRONGFUL DETENTION.—Where a car is entrusted for safe custody, it is the duty of the bailee under S. 160 to return or deliver the car according to the bailor's directions without demand as soon as the time for which it is bailed expires. Where the bailee creates obstacles, based on flimsy grounds to deprive the bailor of the use of the car, wrongful detention is proved and under S. 161, the bailee is responsible for any loss or deterioration of the car from the time he does not return or deliver it when demanded. 35 P.L.R. 705.

SEC. 161.—[See also notes under S. 160.] The responsibility of a railway administration in India is no less than it would be in England, and as regards delivery, the liability of a Railway Company is expressly governed by S. 161. Refusal to grant delivery except upon an unjust or unreasonable condition amounts to a default within the meaning of that section, and the Railway Company would be liable. 1931 N. 29. The moment the default of the bailee is established and the responsibility falls to be determined under S. 161, the burden shifts to him to prove that the loss, occurred prior to the commencement of default on his part. When the goods are solely under the control of the bailee the fact as to when loss, destruction or deterioration occurred is a matter specially within his knowledge and the burden of proving that the loss occurred at a particular time must be on him. 1932 A.L.J. 788=1932 A. 584. In the absence of evidence as to the execution of risk-note Form A, the railway is liable for delay in delivery. 65 I. C. 471=20 A.L.J. 114. Contract Act is not a complete Code with reference to the law of bailments. Bailments are of two kinds voluntary and involuntary. Where a depository dies and the subject of the deposit passes into the hands of his heir, the latter becomes an involuntary bailee. A depository is a bailee within Chapter IX of the Act. 69 I.C. 900=26 C.W.N. 772. SEC. 162.—The liability does not come to an end with the death of the bailee and can be enforced against his estate. The provisions of the Contract Act embodied in Chapter IX relating to bailment are not exhaustive; and the object of S. 162 is

163. In the absence of any contract to the contrary, the bailee is bound to deliver to the bailor, or according to his directions, any goods bailed. Bailor entitled to increase or profit from goods bailed. increase or profit which may have accrued from the goods bailed.

Illustration.

A leaves a cow in the custody of B to be taken care of. The cow has a calf. B is bound to deliver the calf as well as the cow to A.

164. The bailor is responsible to the bailee for any loss which the bailee may sustain by reason that the bailor was not entitled to make the bailment, or to receive back the goods or to give directions respecting them. Bailor's responsibility to bailee.

165. If several joint owners of goods bail them the bailee may deliver them back to, or according to the directions of, one joint owner without the consent of all, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary. Bailment by several joint owners.

166. If the bailor has no title to the goods, and the bailee, in good faith, delivers them back to, or according to the directions of, the bailor, the bailee is not responsible to the owner in respect of such delivery. Bailee not responsible on re-delivery to bailor without title.

167. If a person, other than the bailor, claims goods bailed, he may apply to the Court to stop the delivery of the goods to the bailor, and to decide the title to the goods. Right of third person claiming goods bailed.

168. The finder of goods has no right to sue the owner for compensation for trouble and expense voluntarily incurred by him to preserve the goods and to find out the owner; but he may retain the goods against the owner until he receives such compensation; and, where the owner has offered a specific reward for the return of goods lost, the finder may sue for such reward, and may retain the goods until he receives it. Right of finder of goods; may sue for specific reward offered.

169. When a thing which is commonly the subject of sale is lost, if the owner cannot with reasonable diligence be found, or if he refuses, upon demand, to pay the lawful charges of the finder, the finder may sell it—

(1) when the thing is in danger of perishing or of losing the greater part of its value, or, simply to bring out the general principle of law that the heir of a bailee, when the bailment is gratuitous, does not occupy on the death of such bailee the character of a bailee. The section does not do away with the principle of law that such an heir occupies the character of a constructive trustee in regard to the subject-matter of the bailment. 5 L. 220.

(2) when the lawful charges of the finder in respect of the thing found, amount to two-thirds of its value.

SEC. 167.—The remedy of a bailee, from whom the goods bailed are demanded by rival claimants, is to file an inter-pleader suit against the claimants and protect himself. But if he fails to do that and retains the goods for the bailor or delivers it to him, he must stand or fall by the bailor's title. Where paddy was sent to a mill for milling and the mill owner was informed that the rice had been sold to a third person but later on the bailor sent a notice to the bailee asking him not to deliver the rice to the third person and the bailee delivers the rice belonging to the third person to the bailor, it is clearly a conversion and the bailee is responsible to the third person for damages. 1940 Rang.L.R. 361=1940 Rang. 249. As to wrong delivery in good faith, see 24 Bom.L.R. 513=67 I.C. 761=1923 Bom. 155.

171. Bankers, factors, wharfingers, attorneys of a High Court and policy-brokers may, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, retain, as a security for a general balance of account, any goods bailed to them; but no other persons have a right to retain as a security for such balance, goods bailed to them, unless there is an express contract to that effect.

SEC. 170: APPLICABILITY.—S. 170 only applies to cases in which goods have been given to a bailee for some purpose in relation to which the bailee has to use special skill. The case of a seller of goods who keeps the things sold because the price has not been paid does not come within the purview of S. 170. 151 I.C. 117 = 11 O.W.N. 958 = 1934 O. 380. Though according to S. 170, the bailee has a right to retain goods until he receives due remuneration for the services he has rendered in respect of them, there is nothing in the section which enables him to sell the goods and recover his dues. Hence a person entrusted with cattle for grazing cannot sell them for the recovery of the grazing charges due. 1940 N.L.J. 412 = 1940 Nag. 273. On this section, see 6 A. 139; 8 C. 312; 13 B. 314.

SEC. 171.—Distinction between the General Lien of a Bailee (Banker, etc.) and the Rights of a Creditor, who advances money to accommodate his customers to buy goods and deposit them with him on what is called the godown system is that one is a mere right of retention and in the other special property in the chattel is created. 8 L. 373 = 1927 L. 408. When moneys are held in one account, and the payer in respect of those moneys owes debts to the banks on another account, the banker's lien gives the bank a charge on all the moneys their hands belonging to this particular customer so that they can be transferred into whatever account they choose to set off or liquidate the debt which is in existence. But money in a trustee account at a bank cannot be used to set off debts on a private account in the trustee's name. 151 I.C. 1018 = 1934 Rang. 66. Factor, who is. See 1 Luck. 133 = 92 I.C. 744 = 1926 O. 202; 1945 N.L.J. 468.

ATTORNEYS' LIEN—KINDS OF PASSIVE LIEN.—The rights of an attorney in India are the same as the rights of a solicitor in England, except in so far as the latter have been diminished or increased by statute. A solicitor in England is entitled to three kinds of lien to protect his right to recover his costs from his client, namely: (i) a passive or retaining lien; (ii) a common law lien on property recovered or preserved by his efforts; (iii) a statutory lien enforceable by a charging order. Indian statutory law contains no provision for the last mentioned lien but the other two kinds of lien are available in India. The lien on property recovered or preserved by the efforts of the solicitor is a particular lien and not a general lien and it is not available for the general balance of account between the attorney and his client but extends only to the costs of recovering or preserving the property in suit. The passive or retaining lien is not affected or curtailed by S. 171. This lien enures in favour of the solicitor in respect of all deeds papers or other personal chattels which come into his possession in the course of his professional employment. This is a general lien but with reference to moneys recovered by the solicitor for his client, he has no such general lien. Whether he obtains possession of the money which is the fruit of his exertion or whether it is still in deposit in Court, in either case, his lien or right to be paid out of those funds is confined to the costs incurred in respect of those funds, subject only to this, that he has the ordinary rights of set off which one RIGHT OF SALE.—A bailee has no right to sell the goods bailed, unless such right is conferred upon him by agreement of the parties or by any special statute; on the other hand, a sale of the goods bailed to him in the exercise of his right of lien over the goods causes the loss of the lien. 122 I.C. 388=1930 S. 36.

Sec. 172.—The method provided by S. 172 of the Contract Act for the hypothecation of chattels is not the only method for creating security thereon. They may be hypothecated without transferring their possession. In such cases the only question that arises is whether there was an intention to create a security and if there was intention to create security, equity gives effect to it. 44 I.C. 211=22 C.W.N. 758. See also 59 C. 667; 10 Mys.L.J. 16. A hypothecation not merely of movables existing on the premises at the time but also in respect of movables which might be subsequently acquired and brought there is valid, though it is not governed by the T. P. Act or by the Contract Act. 59 C. 1372. An oral or written hypothecation is permitted under the law in India. 9 R. 182 =1931 R. 201. In a pledge the property should be actually or constructively delivered to the pawnee. Title deeds of property are not goods that may be pledged within the meaning of S. 172. 33 I.C. 891=22 C.W.N. 297. The delivery which is necessary for a pledge need not be simultaneous with the lending of the money. It may be actual or manual, symbolical or constructive, simultaneous or subsequent. 59 C. 667=36 C.W.N. 263. As to pledge of shares or negotiable securities, see 12 Bom.L.R. 800. SECS. 172 AND 176.—The rights of a creditor who accommodates his customers by storing goods for the purchase of which he has advanced money are higher than those of an ordinary bailee who has a general lien under S. 171 of the Act in so far that in the former case there is an implication that the security shall if necessary be made effectual to discharge the obligation. The position of the creditor is analogous to that of a pledgee. (8 L. 373, Ref.) 31 P.L.R. 365=1930 L. 576.

SECS. 172 AND 178.—A deposit of share certificates would be enough to create a valid pledge. But if no deed of transfer is taken at the time of the pledge, pledgee cannot enforce his security except through the Court. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 419=1941 Mad. 394 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 178.

then lying on the premises and the mortgagor undertook to keep on the premises stock to the extent of the debt replacing sold goods by new goods, it is not a mere licence but an equitable mortgage of the substituted goods and there is complete assignment of after-acquired property. It is not necessary that an equitable assignment should be enforced by a suit for specific performance. 17 I.C. 31=6 S.L.R. 97. The only condition is that the goods on coming into existence should be capable of identification as to things assigned. (Ibid.)

Sect. 176.—Conditions necessary for exercise of pawnee's right of sale. See 8 L. 373=101 I.C. 725=1927 L. 408. As to rights of pawnee, see 104 I.C. 641. Though S. 176 defines what may be described as the personal rights of the pledgee of goods arising out of his special property in them conferred by the pledge it cannot be said that it implies that the Act, by defining his personal rights, cuts down in any way any remedy he may have through Courts. The proper view to take is that the Court always has an inherent jurisdiction to administer, by sale or otherwise, the property of which it has seizing in any suit which is in effect an administration suit and a suit on a mortgage or pledge is in its essence only a kind of administration suit. I.L.R. (1945) All. 373=1945 A.L.J. 144=A.I.R. 1945 All. 299. Notice of sale—Reasonableness of. 40 A. 522=45 I.C. 462=16 A.L.J. 390. See also 59 C. 667=36 C.W.N. 263. The rights of a pledgee under this section either to sue on the debt or sell the property pledged are concurrent rights. 33 I.C. 891=22 C.W.N. 297. See also 32 C. 27; 27 M. 528; 22 C. 21. In the case of a pledge the creditor has two rights which are concurrent, the right to proceed against the property not being merely accessory to the right to proceed against the debtor personally. 31 Bom.L.R. 983=1929 B. 471. A pledgee is not entitled to sell the goods before the amount of the loan becomes due and before effecting a sale he must give reasonable notice to the pledgor.

39 I.C. 169 (6 W.R. 81 Ref.). See also 114 I.C. 820; 1929 M.W.N. 167; 1944 Pat. 135. A notice to be valid under S. 176 must be a reasonable notice, and it must refer to the debt for which the goods were pledged and for recovering which the pledged goods are to be sold. Otherwise it will not be a proper notice. 38 Bom.L.R. 982. When there is an improper or wrongful sale by the pawnee, without a proper notice of sale as required by S. 176 the pawnee becomes liable in damages for conversion to the pawnor, but the sale is not avoided thereby or liable to be set aside. The correct measure of the damages to which the pawnor is entitled in such cases is the loss which he has actually sustained, taking into account the pawnee's interests in the goods sold at the time of the conversion. Account sales are prima facie evidence of the amount realised by the sale of the goods in foreign markets, in the absence of proof that the account sales are incorrect. A mere objection that they are not correct is not enough. Mere offers to purchase the goods made by others are also not conclusive as to the rates of prices. 38 Bom.L.R. 982. Certain jewels were deposited as collateral security with the creditor for two promissory notes. The promisee sold the jewels without proper notice to the debtor and filed a suit on the promissory notes. Held, that as the sale was without justification, the debtor was entitled to claim deduction from the amount due on the promissory notes of a reasonable value of the jewels deposited, which should be taken to be the value at the date of suit. 146 I.C. 422=1933 R. 76. If pledgee sells through Court, he can purchase at Court-sale. 19 C. 322. After the expiry of the period fixed for redemption a sale by a pledgee to himself of securities pledged is void; but it does not put an end to the pledge, so as to entitle the pledgor to recover them without payment of the amount thereby secured; nor does it entitle him to damages. Further the pledgor is bound by re-sales duly effected by the pledgee to third

If the proceeds of such sale are less than the amount due in respect of the debt or promise, the pawnor is still liable to pay the balance. If the proceeds of the sale are greater than the amount so due, the pawnee shall pay over the surplus to the pawnor.

177. If a time is stipulated for the payment of the debt, or performance of the promise, for which the pledge is made, and the pawnor makes default in payment of the debt or performance of the promise at the stipulated time, he may redeem the goods pledged at any subsequent time before the actual sale of them; but he must, in that case, pay in addition, any expenses which have arisen from his default.

persons after such abortive sales to himself; but where the pledgee has erroneously represented to the pledgor before such re-sales that the securities have been sold, they can no longer be regarded as pledged, and he becomes on such re-sales liable for the value thereof as for a conversion and the liability is only of a civil nature. 45 Cr.L.J. 633 = A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 135. This section requires a notice only when the pawnee wishes to exercise his opinion of selling the pledged goods. If he chooses to bring a suit upon the debts no notice is apparently required by that section. 48 I.C. 970; 146 I.C. 194=1933 L. 536. When no period is fixed for the redemption of the articles pawned the debtor is not in default until notice is given by the creditor that he requires payment on a certain day and that day is past. The debtor is then in default in the same way as where a day for repayment is fixed in the original contract. When the date fixed in the notice for payment has passed without the pawned articles being redeemed, then under S. 176, Contract Act, the pawnee is entitled to sell the ornaments pledged by giving a reasonable notice of the sale to the pawnor. 45 Cr.L.J. 633 = A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 135. Rights of pledgor enumerated. 30 L.W. 898=122 I.C. 37=1930 M. 364. If a pledgor brings a suit for redemption without first tendering the money to the pledgee and it turns out that the suit was unnecessary because the pledgee was always ready and willing to deliver up the property pledged without suit if the debt had been paid the plaintiff will no doubt be made to pay the costs of the defendant, but his suit cannot be dismissed. But if it turns out that in the circumstances which preceded the suit it would have been perfectly useless to tender the money to the pledgee as for instance where the pledgee declares in advance his inability to return the pledged property if the pledgee was at fault in putting it beyond his power to return the goods, the pledgor cannot be defeated on account of his not going through a useless ceremony of tender. 1930 M. 364.

SEC. 178.—Scope and application of section. See 40 M. 678=34 I.C. 751=30 M. L.J. 587; 30 Bom.L.R. 470=1928 B. 225; 159 I.C. 662=1935 C. 769. S. 178 contemplates documents which have a lawful owner other than the pledgor. 56 C. 367=119 L. C. 23=1929 C. 497. S. 178 has been enacted in order to protect those persons who in good faith deal with persons whom they know to be mercantile agents, but of the details of whose agency they are not aware. It is relied upon only in cases where the pledgee is aware that the pledgor is a mercantile agent. The agent referred to is an agent such as the pledgee might well suppose had power to pledge, but if the pledgee did not know him to be an agent at all he cannot have any reason to suppose that he had power to pledge. If he takes goods from a person of whom he knows nothing whatsoever and if it turns out that the person's pledging of the goods with him was a criminal offence and that the pledgor was a mercantile agent, then he can have no claim to retain the property. 176 I.C. 703=1938 Rang. 243. The words 'good faith' in S. 178, Contract Act, before its amendment bear the same meaning as is given in sub-S. (20) of S. 3 of General Clauses Act, though in terms that sub-section may not apply to any Act earlier in date than the General Clauses Act. The general rule of English law is also to the same effect. 182 I.C. 25=1938 Mad. 545. A Railway receipt for goods consigned is a document of title to goods. 40 B. 630=31 M.L.J. 541=43 I.A. 164 (P.C.). See also 30 I.C. 950=38 M. 664; 56 M. 177=143 I.C. 641=1933 M. 207=64 M.L.J. 320. Under S. 178, a pledgee may get a better title to the goods or documents pledged than the pledgor had himself provided the circumstances set out in the section are satisfied. The burden of proving the existence of those circumstances is upon the party setting up the pledge. 67 C. L.J. 276. In interpreting S. 178 the Courts always drew a distinction between juridical possession and mere custody. In the new S. 178 the pledgee is only protected when the pledge is made by a mercantile agent. 1937 A.M.L.J. 73. If a person has authority to sell goods owned by another, he is a mercantile agent of that other and once it is proved that he has the consent of the owner to sell the goods, it is immaterial whether he has obtained that consent by fraud or not, and if he pledges the goods to a third party, the pledge under S. 178 is valid, and the right of the pledgee to hold the goods pledged to him is secure even though the mercantile agent is convicted under S. 420, Penal Code, for cheating. 1937 R. 146. A pledge of the documents, e.g., railway receipts, amounts to a pledge of the goods. The pledge is not affected by the handing over of the railway receipts by the pledgee to the pledgor for the limited purpose of obtaining delivery of the goods. It is only for that purpose that the pledgor has the temporary possession, or rather custody, of the railway receipts, and the goods are in the possession, order and disposition of the pledgee. 152 I.C. 730=1934 P.C. 246=68 M.L.J. 260 (P.C.). The railway receipts are documents of title within S. 178 of the Act and the pledging of the railway receipts has the same effect as a pledging of the goods represented by them. Even if the documents of title (railway receipts) are regarded as merely tokens of an authority to receive possession, their transfer for value by way of security for advances must at least raise an equity as between transferor and transferee entitling the latter to an order restraining the former from himself claiming delivery of the relative goods without producing the receipts. 1934 P.C. 246=58 M. 181=68 M.L.J. 260 (P.C.). A pledge of the railway receipt operates as a pledge of the goods, though by the general law a pledge of documents is not prima facie deemed to be a pledge of the goods. The pledgee does not lose his right of property as pledge by parting with the custody of the railway receipts or by entrusting them to the pledgor or his agents or mandatories for the special purpose of convenient dealing with the goods by collecting them from the Port Trust and putting them into the pledgee's godowns. Such a procedure is the usual course of business and is either necessary or at least convenient for the conduct of the business. 65 I.A. 75=I.L.B. There is no valid reason for giving the word “goods” in S. 178 a different meaning from that which it has in the Sale of Goods Act. “Goods” would include shares in a joint stock company and there can be a valid pledge of the shares. When a person delivers a share certificate to another to be held by him as security, there is under the law of India a pledge which he can enforce, but unless the pledgee at the time of the deposit secures a deed of transfer which he can use in case of necessity or obtains one from his debtor at a later stage, he must have recourse to the Court when he wishes to enforce his security. There is nothing to prevent the pledgee suing on the debt and asking the Court to sell the goods for him. If the goods happen to be shares, the Court can confer a full title on the buyer by following the procedure laid down in O. 21, R. 80, C.P. Code. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 74=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 120=I.L.R. The unqualified words "a person who is in possession of any goods or of any bill of lading, etc." are wide enough to cover the owner as well as any mercantile agent. 58 M. 181=68 M.L.J. 260=1934 P.C. 246 (P.C.). The words "a person who is in possession" as used in S. 178, before its amendment includes an owner as well as a mercantile agent and are not limited either to the latter or to persons other than the actual owner of the goods. 67 C.L.J. 276 (Case before amending Act of 1930). A pledgee of goods who without notice of the title of the real owner delivers goods to or to the order of depositor is not guilty of a conversion. 37 B. 122=40 I.A. 1=24 M.L.J. 176 (P.C.). The word 'possession' as used in this section does not include the possession by a gratuitous bailee and so a pledge by him of the thing is invalid. The pledgee must return the thing so pledged, to the original depositor. 61 I.C. 305; 14 S. L.R. 175. What is contemplated in S. 178 is juridical possession as distinguished from bare custody. A gratuitous bailee who merely took the jewel from the owner merely for inspection and return, cannot be deemed to have been in possession of it within the meaning of S. 178 to enable him to make a valid pledge of it. Where therefore the jewel is obtained from the lawful owner by means of the offence of cheating, and the subsequent consent of the lawful owner to the pledgor's retention of the jewel as per the contract of sale on credit is also obtained by means of fraud amounting to cheating, the condition mentioned in proviso 2 to S. 178 not being satisfied, the pledge in favour of the pledgee is invalid. 1934 M. 132=66 M.L.J. 361. It is impossible even if it were permissible or desirable, to limit or restrict the natural meaning of the word 'possession' in Ss. 178 and 108 in any way which would be consistent with other sections of the Act, or could be based upon any clear, consistent and comprehensive principles. The extent of the sections should be limited only by giving to the word 'possession' its fullest and widest meaning, both natural or ordinary and technical or artificial, and including both actual possession and possession in law, subject to the provisos therein contained. Where there was a contract of sale of ready ascertained goods upon credit, and both the property in the goods and the right to possession passed to the buyers at the date of the contract but the goods, part of which were paid for, remained in the possession of the sellers who pledged some of them to a third party, the pledgee having no notice of the buyer's interest in the goods. Held, that the pledge and even if there was a sale, the sale came within the scope of Ss. 178 and 108 respectively and as such passed a good title to the third party. 56 C. 367=1929 C. 497. In a suit on the mortgage deed by the assignee thereof the creditor of the mortgagee (assignor) who was also impleaded as a party to the suit pleaded that he was a pledgee of the deed and that the plaintiff should first redeem his pledge before he could recover anything on the mortgage deed. Held, that the deposit of the mortgage deed with the creditor gave him no rights at all and he could not therefore claim a right to be redeemed by the plaintiff before he could sue to enforce it. 49 Mys.H.C.R. 160=22 Mys.L.J. 13.

SECS. 178 AND 178-A.—The reason for the insertion of these new sections has been explained as follows in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:—"The object of this Bill is to give effect to the recommendation of the Special Committee, appointed by the Government of India to examine and draft the Indian Sale of Goods Bill, that S. 178 should be amended so as to make it consistent with the amendment proposed by the Committee in S. 108. Both the sections are cognate and are based on the same principle; and there has been considerable conflict of decisions regarding their scope. The Special Committee has proposed to remove this conflict in S. 108 by restricting its provisions to sales by persons who are in possession of the subject-matter of the sale as mercantile agents only, and the present Bill amends S. 178 on the same lines."—(Statement of Objects and Reasons.) The following is the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill:—This Bill is supplementary to the Indian Sale of Goods Bill. On the lines of the amendment made in Cl. 27 of that Bill we have substituted the words "a mercantile agent" for the words "where an agent . . . to security of goods". We have also substituted the words "documents of title to goods" for the words "bill of lading, dock order . . . thereby represented". As the expressions "mercantile agent" and "documents of title" are not defined in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, in which this section will remain, we have added an Explanation stating that those expressions will have the meanings assigned to them in the Indian Sale of Goods Act, 1930. We have also inserted a new section as S. 178-A to provide for the case of a pledge by a person in possession under a voidable contract."

The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of certain articles or their value, Rs. 90 on the ground that they belonged to her (plaintiff) and that the first defendant got possession of the articles by stealth. It was found that they had been pledged with the first defendant by the second defendant, plaintiff's husband, but that the articles belonged to the plaintiffs. It was not shown that the second defendant had any authority from his wife, the plaintiff, to pledge the articles. Nor was he a mercantile agent. Held, that the first defendant could not claim to recover the amount due on the pledge from the plaintiff on the ground that she was a bona fide pledgee, and the pledge did not confer any right on her, and the plaintiff was therefore entitled to a decree. 45 Mys.H.C.R. 342=18 Mys.L.J. 457.

AGENCY.

Appointment and Authority of Agents.

person for whom such act is done, or who is so represented, is called the "principal."

SEC. 180.—Under S. 180 either a bailor or bailee of a chattel may maintain an action in respect of it against a wrongdoer, the latter by virtue of possession, the former by virtue of his property. 43 C. 733=21 C.W.N. 632.

SEC. 182.—The Contract Act does not draw fine distinction between different classes of agents, but the Act is not exhaustive and so far as the law relating to agency is concerned it merely lays down general principles. 176 I.C. 675=1938 Nag. 254. Principal and agent—Relationship of. 63 I.C. 521=13 L. W. 537 (P.C.). Agency need not be created expressly by any written document and can be inferred from the circumstances and the conduct of the parties. 132 I.C. 43=1931 A.L.J. 225=1931 A. 372. The definition of an agent in S. 182 of the Contract Act does not limit the employment of an agent to one by the principal only. It will include an employment by any authority authorised by law to make the employment. 73 C.L.J. 356=1941 Cal. 643. Definition of agent given in S. 182 is very wide and embraces a servant pure and simple. All the agents therefore cannot be placed in the same category. 176 I.C. 675=1938 Nag. 254. Relationship of principal and agent distinguished from that of sub-contractor. 130 I.C. 54=1930 L. 1062.

'PERSON'—INCLUDES JOINT HINDU FAMILY.—There is no doubt that the word 'person' used in S. 182 and other cognate sections of the Contract Act includes a joint Hindu family and therefore an agent can be employed on behalf of such family. 150 I.C. 151=1934 A.L.J. 453=1934 A. 553.

TESTS OF AGENCY.—See 12 C.W.N. 28. No consideration is required to support agency. 3 C. 300. Benamidar is not agent. 5 B.L.R. 237; nor committee of lunatic. 20 B. 61; nor guardian of minor. 20 B. 61; nor manager of joint Hindu family. 22 A. 307; 26 M. 544. Minor may be agent. 3 Bom.L.R. 624. Every act of an agent in the course of his employment on behalf of his principal and within the apparent scope of his authority, binds the principal unless the agent in fact is unauthorized to do that act and the person dealing with him has notice of the same. 24 I.C. 209. See also 43 C. 833=34 I.C. 807.

The use of the word 'agent' in a general way, loosely without specifying the purpose of the agency does not help to determine whether a person is an agent. 21 I.C. 322=14 M.L.T. 249. Commission agents are agents within S. 182, but are not agents pure and simple. Where a person receives goods from another as a commission agent and then sells them for him, he is an agent up to a certain point that is up to the date of the sale. Thereafter whether he still continues as an agent or the relationship is that of a debtor and creditor depends on whether the commission agent when he sells has authority to sell in his own name and whether he has authority in his own right to pass a valid title. If he has authority to sell and also authority to pass a valid title in his own right he is acting as a principal vis à vis the purchasers and not merely as an agent and therefore from that point on, he is debtor of the erstwhile principal and not merely an agent. Whether this is so or not must depend on facts in each particular case. 176 I.C. 675=1938 Nag. 254. Unless authority to act is conferred and accepted, mere settlement of the terms of remuneration does not constitute a contract of agency. A commission agent is not in law, the agent of all persons and firms, whose business he occasionally transacts. 50 I.C. 146; 12 S.L.R. 93. The agency is only with reference to specific sales or purchases made under the directions of the principal. (Ibid.) In order to entitle a broker to his commission, he must prove either that the transaction has been completed or that, if it is not, the non-completion was due to default on the part of the principal. See 24 Bom.L.R. 847

The shop is managed by B, and he is in the habit of ordering goods from C in the name of A for the purposes of the shop, and of paying for them out of A's funds, with A's knowledge. B has an implied authority from A to order goods from C in the name of A for the purposes of the shop.

Where it is not expressed, the question whether the agent had or had not authority to act in a particular matter on behalf of the principal has to be decided according to the circumstances of each case. 11 O.W.N. 880. If an agent, endowed with very wide powers and authorized to buy and sell property, to deal with Government and to pay revenue, contracts a loan on behalf of his principal, which the latter did not repudiate when it came to his knowledge, the principal is bound by the debt and must pay it. 39 I.C. 225=1 Pat.L.W. 346. The binding character of a contract entered into by an agent depends on the measure of the authority that may be implied by the facts and circumstances of the case. It is not enough to show that the agent was generally permitted to carry on the management of the debutter properties on behalf of his mother, the shebait, who never interfered with the acts of her son in whom she had full confidence. Where the question is if a contract to lease debutter properties is binding, it must be shown that the contract is one of a class of acts delegated to the agent or that the particular contract in question was authorized either expressly or impliedly by the shebait. 36 C.W.N. 1108. A toll contractor of a Municipality though he is referred to as a "lessee" of tolls under the Municipal Regulation, collects the tolls for and on behalf of the Municipality under the express authority vested in him by the Municipality and he is an agent of the Municipality within the meaning of S. 182 of the Contract Act. The Municipality can therefore be sued by a person from whom tolls have been wrongfully and unauthorisedly levied and recovered through the contractor. It cannot be contended in such a case that there is no privity of contract between the Municipality and the person from whom the tolls are levied. 15 Mys.L.J. 489. In a suit for the price of goods supplied on credit to the defendant through his servants, the plaintiff must show in the absence of express written authority a course of dealing by which it was a practice for goods to be supplied to him through his servants in the course of their employment. If he shows such a practice, it will be no answer for the defendant to say that particular items of goods did not reach him. 1937 P. W.N. 36=1937 Pat. 526. SECS. 187 AND 188.—Where the agent's authority is defined in writing, it is doubtful if S. 187 of the Contract Act can be relied upon for where an act purporting to be done under a power of attorney is challenged as being in excess of the authority it is necessary to show that on a fair construction of the whole instrument the authority in question is to be found within the four corners of the instrument, either in express terms or by necessary implication. The limits of necessary implication are indicated by S. 188 of the Contract Act. Where there is no justification for the borrowing by the agent on the ground of necessity or with reference to the usual course of business the principal cannot be held liable on the footing that in borrowing the agent has acted within the limits of his authority. But there is a well-established rule of equity based on the theory of unjust enrichment, namely, where by any wrongful or unauthorized act of the agent the money or property of a third person comes to the hands of the principal or is applied for his benefit, the principal is liable jointly and severally with the agent to restore the amount or the value of the property. The absence of other funds in the hands of the agent at the time of the borrowing is not a necessary condition of the creditor's right to relief against the principal. One of the Articles of Association of a Company provided that the Board of Directors could not delegate their power to borrow. Another Article gave extensive powers to the managing agent to conduct and manage the business and affairs of the Company and enter into contracts and do things necessary or desirable in the management of the affairs of the Company. The agent effected a mortgage in order to meet the urgent requirements of the Company. Subsequently the reports of the Directors showed the loan as a secured debt. Held, (1) that the articles should be read together and that the power of entering into contracts did not include a power to contract loan, (2) that the managing Agent, had, however, under the general law, the power to contract the loan in question being faced with an emergency, and (3) that the Directors had ratified the loan by means of their report and that the Company could not escape liability on the ground that their managing Agent had no authority to raise the loan. 134 I.C. 244=1931 A.L.J. 1038. 1038. An agent not authorized to compromise cannot bind his principal by any compromise effected by him. 96 P.R. 1914=24 I. C. 630. An agent authorised by a power-of-attorney only to collect debts has no authority to realize their value, or any part of it by selling them. 35 M.L.J. 581=41 M. 923. If the power-of-attorney does not authorize the agent to carry on a business except with limitations, any act done by him in excess of such power will not bind the principal. 41 I. C. 224=6 L.W. 417. The plaintiff from whom money was borrowed by the defendant's agent without authority, is entitled to receive his amount to the extent of the benefit received by the principal. 32 I.C. 763=1915 M.W.N. 761. An agreement by an agent to pay reasonable interest for goods purchased on credit is binding on principal. 26 I.C. 365. (1 C.L.J. 199, Foll.) An agent who has power to sign for the principal does not necessarily have powers necessary for a disposition of property. 10 M.L.T. 304=12 I.C. 393. Power to enter into forward contracts. See 10 I.C. 895. On appeal, 13 I.C. 705=39 C. 568.

POWER OF ATTORNEY.—A power of attorney given to an agent to collect outstandings includes also a power to collect debts due under decrees before the date of the power. 15 M.L.T. 337=23 I.C. 99. Power-of-attorney should be construed strictly. 23 M. L.J. 595=17 I.C. 139. A power enabling an agent to carry on the business of a firm does not entitle him to sue for dissolution of the firm. A suit so instituted should not be dismissed but should be allowed to be amended by requiring the principal himself to sign the plaint. 25 I.C. 140=7 Bur.L.T. 202.

CONNECTED ACTS.—An agent authorized to receive money for the principal may be presumed to be also authorized to do every lawful and necessary thing connected with it. 37 I.C. 442=3 O.L.J. 623 [43 C. 527 (P.C.) Sub-Agents.

190. An agent cannot lawfully employ another to perform acts which he has expressly or impliedly undertaken to perform personally, unless by the ordinary custom of trade a sub-agent may, or, from the nature of the agency, a sub-agent must, be employed.

"Sub-agent" defined.

191. A "sub-agent" is a person employed by, and acting under the control of, the original agent in the business of the agency.

192. Where a sub-agent is properly appointed the principal is, so far as regards third persons, represented by the sub-agent, and is bound by and responsible for his acts as if he were an agent originally appointed by the principal.

self responsible for loss or damage to goods belonging to his principal. He may be an insurer of goods consigned to his care provided that there is consideration for that insurance outside the terms of the employment at the ordinary rate. 1930 R. 332 (2).

LANDLORD AND AGENT.—Where the agent of a landlord has no authority to create pecuniary liability on his behalf, no personal decree could be passed against the landlord. 16 I. C. 990. The question of the authority of an agent to bind his landlord has to be decided on the facts of each case. 35 I.C. 81.

POST OFFICE.—Where the person entitled to payment, requests the payment by means of a money order, the Post Office is the agent of that person and not of the sender. (Cf.). Postal rules which allow the sender of a money order or other article to recall it before actual delivery. 33 I.C. 723—14 A.L.J. 236.

ILLEGAL OR VOID CONTRACT.—Agent receiving money on principle's behalf under illegal or void contract is liable to account to the principal; also an agent making a profit without making full disclosure to his principal is liable to account to him for the same. 19 I.C. 161—15 O.W.N. 408.

the agent, if for the purposes of safeguarding the interests of his principal, the agent does certain acts without any express instructions from the principal. In such a case the agent is exempted from all liability, if his acts are the acts of a man of ordinary prudence and are performed at the time of an emergency. If the goods are perishable or perishing, the agent is entitled to deviate from his instructions as to the time or price at which they are to be sold. If the principal thereafter sues the agent for damages as a result of his selling the goods without the principal's instructions, the agent is protected under Sec. 189 of the Act. 42 P.L.R. 393—1940 Lah. 412.

SEC. 194.—Generally an agent cannot without authority from his principal devolve upon another obligations to the principal which he has himself undertaken to fulfil. But in special circumstances it is permissible for the agent to appoint a substitute who would be responsible to the principal in the same way as the agent himself. Where a banking concern is appointed an agent with very wide powers in the matter of letting out certain buildings in the city, it can well be inferred that the concern had authority to appoint another to act for the principal and the person so appointed is accountable to the principal. 1939 A.L.J. 37= 1939 All. 188. In spite of the existence of sec. 194 of the Contaret Act, branch banks do not recognise nor carry out instructions given by clients of other branches unless they have been definitely instructed to do so; as an act of courtesy, one branch may try to oblige the client of another branch by making enquiries, etc. For practical purposes and so far as their obligations are concerned the branches do not recognise any liability whatsoever to carry out instructions from the clients of other branches unless these be properly conveyed through the branch bank with which the client deals. This is a universal practice and the Court should take cognisance of it. 102 I.O. 788 = 1927 L. 562 (2). On this section, see also 120 I.O. 284=1929 L. 536; 121 I.O. 636= 1930 C. 10; 14 P. 560.

SECS. 194 AND 195.—Appointment of sub-agent—Principal nominating person and having control—Liability of agent when no discretion is given to him in nominating sub-agent. 1930 C. 10=56 O. 686.

SEC. 195.—Sec. 195 implies the power of revocation in an agent in the case of a substituted agent. It cannot be said that because the agent is responsible to the principal for negligence in the selection of a substituted agent his hands would be tied as soon as he made the nomination and that the principal alone can revoke the nomination. 45 Bom.L.R. 1075=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 76.

Ratification.

Right of person as to acts done for him without his authority. Effect of ratification.

Ratification may be expressed or implied.

196. Where acts are done by one person on behalf of another, but without his knowledge or authority, he may elect to ratify or to disown such acts. If he ratify them, the same effects will follow as if they had been performed by his authority.

197. Ratification may be expressed or may be implied in the conduct of the person on whose behalf the acts are done.

SEC. 196.—Effective ratification necessarily involves knowledge of all the material facts on the part of him who ratifies. 1930 P.C. 278 (P.C.). Sec. 196 refers to contracts which have been entered into by persons on behalf of others without their knowledge or authority but not to contracts which have been expressly forbidden by law. An option of ratification under the section can be held to be capable of being exercised within a reasonable time of the act purported to be ratified and not after the expiry of the period for which the option was open or long after the expiry of the period, if any, for which the contract was to relate. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 928=50 L.W. 440=1939 Mad. 957. The right of a principal to ratify an unauthorized act of his agent under sec. 196 is confined to cases where the agent purports to act on the principal's behalf and not where the agent acts on his own behalf without authority, or contrary to principal's directions and on behalf of the principal. 30 M.L.J. 497=34 I.C. 760. See also 68 I.C. 787=1923 L. 100; 33 P.B. 1913=16 I.C. 950; 28 I.C. 135=28 M.L.J. 199 [35 M. 177; (1910) A.C. 230, Foll.] See also 6 B. 463; 35 I.A. 48; 3 A. 832; 7 M.I.A. 476; 48 I.C. 959. To constitute a binding adoption of acts a priori unauthorized, these conditions must exist; (1) the acts must have been done for and in the name of the supposed principal and (2) there must be a full knowledge of what those acts were, or such an unqualified adoption that the inference may properly be drawn that the principal intended to take upon himself the responsibility for such acts, whatever they were. Ratification relates back to the time of inception of the transaction and has a complete retroactive efficacy. 63 C.L.J. 86=1936 C. 87. A mortgage executed by a general agent holding a power-of-attorney, which did not authorise to execute mortgages is operative if acted upon, and ratified by the principal and cannot be treated as being void ab initio. 19 A.L.J. 827=44 A. 77. Contracts made by agents of corporations how far binding—Doctrine of part-performance when applies. 23 C.L.J. 26=20 C.W.N. 370=43 C. 790. A principal cannot ratify a transaction in art and repudiate it in part. Before a principal is bound by ratification it must be proved he had knowledge of all essential facts of the transaction. 25 I.C. 274=19 C.W.N. 56. The question of the gumastha's power to bind his landlord is one which must be decided on the particular facts of each case. 10 I.C. 456=15 C.W.N. 953. Assignment of decree by agent without authority—Ratification by decree-holder—Validity of assignment. See 47 C.W.N. 616 (P.C.). Where the unauthorized act of the agent is ratified by the principal the ratification takes effect retrospectively so as to validate the transaction originally entered into. 8 Mys.L.J. 240.

SEC. 197.—Ratification implies an intention to ratify on the part of the principal; and any act of his can be relied upon as amounting to ratification, only if done after he had full knowledge of the material facts ratified. Thus what the principal says under a mistaken impression cannot amount to ratification. 103 I.C. 561=1927 M. 478; 1930 P.C. 278=60 M.L.J. 149 (P.C.). See also 155 I.C. 180=1935 O.W.N. 490=1935 O. 305. Ratification cannot be inferred from a mere omission to repudiate in terms an unauthorized transaction. 52 I.C. 414=10 L. W. 33. See also 24 C. 469. As to where principal's ratification may be presumed where the agent exceeds his authority and embarks on unauthorized transactions, see 9 L.W. 251=19 I.C. 758. Where an agent contrary to instructions makes advances against security the principal may realize the security and hold the agent liable for the balance and such intermeddling does not amount to ratification. 9 L.W. 251. The application of the principles governing the relationship of English agents to their principals should not be extended to Chetty's agents in India whose position approximates to that of a trustee. 49 I.C. 758=25 M.L. T. 286=1919 M.W.N. 72. Ratification of an act in excess of authority on the agent's part by principal may be inferred from his mere silence or acquiescence. 31 I.C. 216=29 M.L.J. 55; 28 M.L.J. 199. Ratification of an unauthorized act of an agent is complete only when the fact is communicated to the other party to the contract. Till then the principal has an option to withdraw. 38 M. 997=14 M.L.T. 454. Acts relied on inconsistent with denial of liability may give rise to inference of ratification. 43 I.C. 959. Knowledge requisite for valid ratification.

198. No valid ratification can be made by a person whose knowledge of the facts of the case is materially defective.

Effect of ratifying unauthorised act forming part of a transaction.

Revocation of Authority.

201. An agency is terminated by the principal revoking his authority; or by the agent renouncing the business of the agency; or by the business of the agency being completed; or by either the principal or agency dying or becoming of unsound mind; or by the principal being adjudicated an insolvent under the provisions of any Act for the time being in force for the relief of insolvent debtors.

SEC. 200.—The provisions of the Contract Act relating to agency are not meant to be exhaustive. Neither sec. 200 nor the other provisions of the Act relating to ratification affect the principle that the general rule as to ratification would not apply when it would affect the rights of other parties. A ratification does not relate back when persons other than the contracting party have acquired interests prior to ratification. 1941 Mad. 6=51 L.W. 453=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 726. A notice to quit given by one of two joint receivers on behalf of both without the authority of the other is not valid and cannot be rendered so by subsequent ratification by the other Receiver. 34 I.C. 221=23 C.L.J. 453. SEC. 201.—An agency, unless it is for a fixed term, obviously continues and may be terminated at the pleasure of the principal.

By its very nature, it is personal, neither transferable nor assignable and depends entirely on the agreement made with the principal. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 49=A.I.R.1943 Sind 197. In the case of an employment of an under-broker by broker for a fixed term, if the services of broker are dispensed with in the interval, the dependent contract of under-brokerage is also dissolved and the under-broker is not entitled to sue the broker for damages for wrongful dismissal unless the broker had brought about the termination of the head agency purposely. 47 C. 290=46 I.A. 314=24 C.W.N. 577 (P.C.). In the absence of any reference in the correspondence between the parties as to the duration of an agency of a Life Insurance Company, the agency is one terminable on notice. A notice of 3½ months given by the company is inadequate to determine an agency which had lasted for nearly 50 years, under which a very large business had been built up, and great expenses incurred by the agents. 50 C.W.N. 73=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 496 (P.C.).

SEC. 202: AGENCY COUPLED WITH INTEREST—WHAT IS—WHEN IRREVOCABLE.—Sec. 202 is wide in its terms; but it makes no departure from the English Law; under sec. 202, as under the English Law, some specific connection must be shown between the authority and the interest, and there must also be an agreement, express or implied whereby the authority is given to secure some benefit which the donee is to obtain by reason of the authority. 45 Bom.L.R. 1075=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 76.

“INTEREST”—MEANING.—An agent who is entrusted with goods for sale and entitled to keep for himself as remuneration an excess of the purchase-money over specified rates has not got such an interest as is contemplated by sec. 202. 136 I.C. 878=1932 N. 84. The agent is always bound to act with reasonable diligence, and to use such skill as he possesses; and to make compensation to his principal in respect of the direct consequences of his own neglect, want of skill or misconduct, but not in respect of loss or damage which are indirectly or remotely caused by such neglect, want of skill or misconduct.

(a) A, a merchant in Calcutta, has an agent, B, in London to whom a sum of money is paid on A's account, with orders to remit. B retains the money for a considerable time. A, in consequence of not receiving the money, becomes insolvent. B is liable for the money and interest from the day on which it ought to have been paid, according to the usual rate, and for any further direct loss as e.g., by variation of rate of exchange—but not further.

(b) A, an agent for the sale of goods, having authority to sell on credit, sells to B, on credit, without making the proper and usual enquiries as to the solvency of B. B at the time of such sale, is insolvent. A must make compensation to his principal in respect of any loss thereby sustained.

(c) A, an insurance-broker, employed by B to effect an insurance on a ship, omits to see that the usual clauses are inserted in the policy. The ship is afterwards lost. In consequence of the omission of the clauses nothing can be recovered from the underwriters. A is bound to make good the loss to B.

(d) A, a merchant in England, directs B, his agent at Bombay, who accepts the agency, to send him 100 bales of cotton by a certain ship. B having it in his power to send the cotton, omits to do so. The ship arrives safely in England. Soon after her arrival the price of cotton rises. B is bound to make good to A the profit which he might have made by the 100 bales of cotton at the time the ship arrived, but not any profit he might have made by the subsequent rise.

UNDISCLOSED PRINCIPAL.—RIGHT TO PROCEED AGAINST AGENT FOR DAMAGES.—Although sec. 231 gives to an undisclosed principal an option to proceed for damages against the party contracting with the agent, there is nothing in that section which can be said to debar him from seeking his remedy against the agent under sec. 211, if he can bring his case within the purview of that section. 61 O. 504=152 I.C. 33=1934 C. 721. Where in the case of a contract entered into by an agent for an undisclosed principal, the other contracting party refuses to perform the contract for the reason that the agent has failed to carry out the conditions of a separate contract made with him, sec. 211 is not applicable, and the proper section under which the principal can proceed is under sec. 231 for damages against the other contracting party. 61 O. 504.

SUB-AGENT.—If an agent appoints a sub-agent he is bound to exercise the same amount of discretion as an ordinary prudent man would exercise. 129 I.C. 287.

Sec. 212.—See 18 O. 573; 13 C.W.N. 59; 1925 M. 46=47 M.L.J. 312; 43 O.L.J. 479=97 I.C. 200=1926 C. 988. Agent guilty of negligence must make compensation to principal for direct consequences of neglect. 120 I.C. 529=1929 L. 280. A commission agent who was authorized to realise amounts on behalf of his principal collected as much as he could from a merchant who had dealings with his principal and gave credit for the balance. The merchant became an insolvent subsequently. Held, that under the circumstances the agent was not negligent but that he had acted as prudently and wisely on his principal's behalf as he would have done in his own case. 1933 L. 841=149 I.C. 688.

Sec. 213.—A principal is entitled to a final account between himself and the agent on the termination of the agency and the agent can rely upon casual account settled between themselves as being prima facie correct. 13 I.C. 642; 1925 L. 100. Agent must support his accounts by proper vouchers. 6 C. 754; 43 C. 248; 52 C. 766=90 I.C. 944. Agent's duty is analogous to that of trustee. 7 C. 627. Where a person employs an agent to do acts for him at a particular place, the legitimate inference is that the contract is to be performed at that place. Sec. 213 of the Contract Act cannot be read as laying down that the agent should render accounts at the principal's place. The principal has to demand accounts at the agent's place of business. A suit by a principal against his agent for accounts should therefore be instituted at a Court having jurisdiction over the place of business of the agent. 1940 Mad. 588=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 558. The mere fact Agent's duty to communicate with principal.

214. It is the duty of an agent, in cases of difficulty, to use all reasonable diligence in communicating with his principal, and in seeking to obtain his instructions.

215. If an agent deals on his own account in the business of the agency, that the principal wrote the word 'seen' on the account book does not imply that the agent had rendered account and the principal had satisfied himself of the correctness of the entries. 1934 A.L.J. 453=1934 A. 553. There is no corresponding obligation to account on the part of the principal. 7 C. 654; 1925 L. 100. While the principal is under no statutory obligation to render accounts to his agent, he does become an accounting party in special circumstances or under trade usage or a definite contract. The right to claim a statement of accounts is an unusual form of relief only granted in certain specific cases and is only to be claimed when the relationship between the parties is such that this is the only relief which will enable the claimant to satisfactorily assert his legal rights. (60 P.R. 1899; 1925 L. 100 and 1927 L. 701, Ref.). Where the plaintiffs, insurance agents, were to be remunerated by a commission calculated on the premia paid on all policies effected or introduced through them. Held, as the plaintiff's cannot know which of these policies have lapsed, matured or been forfeited they are entitled to call on the defendants for rendition of accounts as this is the only relief which will enable the plaintiffs to satisfactorily assert their rights. 144 I.C. 505=1933 L. 483. Accounts, suit for—Legal representative of agent—Liability to account—Onus. 47 I.C. 371=28 C.L.J. 492. The death of an agent during the pendency of a suit against him for accounts does not exonerate his legal representative from all liability to the principal. 49 I.C. 371. Rendering an account of his agency and account for money received by him, is not confined merely by rendering of accounts of what has been done with the money, but includes also the payment of any balance which might be found due upon taking accounts. 31 C.W.N. 591=40 I.C. 359=25 C.L.J. 335. The obligation of an agent towards his principal does not terminate merely in submission of account paper. 43 C. 248=19 C.W.N. 1070=15 C.W.N. 930=11 I.C. 161. He is bound to explain those papers and if on accounts taken it is found that he has in his hands money which belongs to his principal, he is bound to pay that sum. (Ibid.) The liability to render an account cannot be enforced against the legal representatives of an agent. The liability is personal, and the legal representatives need not render account in the same sense in which the agent himself might have been called upon to do. 17 C.W.N. 5=16 I.C. 742=16 C.L.J. 282. See also 47 I.C. 371=28 C.L.J. 492. An agent by retaining money due to the principal cannot be held to have committed a fraud. 33 M.L.J. 468. A secretary of a fraud is only an agent and not a trustee though he himself is a director and recovers amounts due to the fund. 33 M.L.J. 468. Where the defendant has been let into possession of property as agent of the plaintiff, it is not open to the defendant in a suit for accounts against him to challenge the title of the plaintiff (his principal) to receive the moneys which have been realised by the defendant who was appointed as the agent for this purpose by the plaintiff. The mere fact that the defendant is under a suspicion and is working under the supervision of other agents deputed by the principal would not relieve him from liability to account. An agent under suspicion or under supervision is still an agent and must be held liable to account on proof that prima facie he has made realisations himself even in the period of suspicion or while subject to supervision. 196 I.C. 641=1941 P.W.N. 565=1942 Pat. 108.

AGENT OF SEVERAL PRINCIPALS—LIABILITY TO ACCOUNT.—When an agent is appointed by more than one principal he is liable to them jointly. without first obtaining the consent of his principal and acquainting him with all material circumstances which have come to his own knowledge on the subject, the principal may repudiate the transaction, if the case shows either that any material fact has been dishonestly

(b) A directs B to sell A's estate. B, on looking over the estate before selling it, finds a mine on the estate which is unknown to A. B informs A that he wishes to buy the estate for himself, but conceals the discovery of the mine. A allows B to buy, in ignorance of the existence of the mine. A on discovering that B knew of the mine at the time he bought the estate, may either repudiate or adopt the sale at his option.

Principal's right to benefit gained by agent dealing on his own account in business of agency.

216. If an agent, without the knowledge of principal deals in the business of the agency on his own account instead of on account of his principal, the principal is entitled to claim from the agent any benefit which may have resulted to him from the transaction.

AGENT DEALING AS PRINCIPAL.—An agent who, while acting as an agent, himself deals as a principal without the knowledge of the other party is acting contrary to the spirit of secs. 211 and 214. If there be a question upon whom the burden of proof must lie, that burden ought to be laid upon the party who has to justify an apparent deviation from the ordinary rule by which he ought to be guided. Therefore the burden of proving that the transaction is not disadvantageous to the principal lies upon the agent. A transaction which necessarily puts the agent's duty in conflict with the interest of his principal must be presumed to be disadvantageous to a principal who is not informed of the fact. 1935 S. 38.

SEC. 216: SCOPE.—Sec. 216 in effect imposes a penalty upon an agent, who acts improperly by converting himself into a principal, without making the disclosure, and the operation of the section does not depend upon the principal having suffered any loss. This liability of the agent to account for the profits is not limited to the case where the agent acquires the goods after the date of the agency. The agent is liable even if he acquired the goods in question before the date of the agency. Where the goods dealt with by the agent are goods having a ready value in the market, the profit which the agent makes out of the transaction must be the difference between the price at which he sells the goods to the principal, and the market value at that date. The true principle is that the profit made by the agent is the difference between the price at which he supplies the principal, and the true value of the goods at that date; and where goods have a market value, that market value must be taken as the true value. Where goods had no market value, the price at which the agent had himself brought shortly before the date of the transaction could be taken to represent the value. But the difference between the price at which the agent bought and the price at which he sold to the principal is not the measure of the profit which he makes by selling his own goods since he may have made a legitimate profit on his original purchase

SEC. 219: BROKERAGE—WHEN BECOMES DUE.—The broker's duty is simply to bring the parties together, to arrange a transaction and to get the contract completed. The performance of the contract is a matter between the promisor and promisee. The due fulfilment of conditions is not the sine qua non for the earning of the commission. 1935 Pesh. 56=156 I.C. 131. See also 24 Bom.L.R. 847=1922 R. 433. In the absence of a contract, the ordinary rule is broker's commission in respect of a sale of land is payable only on the completion of a deed of conveyance; the broker's duty is to introduce a person willing and able to complete the purchase. Brokerage is not payable immediately; a mere contract of sale is brought about by the broker. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 42=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 168. Where a contract of agency between an Insurance Company and an insurance agent says that the agent is to place with the Insurance Company "completed business" of specified amounts in order to be entitled to commission, the expression "completed business" being explained in the contract itself as meaning such business as is accepted by the company and on which the first year's premium has been received in full, "completed business" excludes business that might come to nothing from the point of view of the company, and the requirement that the agent is to place with the company "completed business" does not preclude commission in those cases in which such business is substantially due to the work of the agent, though its technical completion such as the signing of the policy and so on may be actually brought by another person and not by the agent. If it be found that the policy was the result of sound canvassing done by the agent, he would be entitled to commission on it, although he may not have brought about the signing, etc., of the policy himself. 201 I.C. 289=23 Pat.L.T. 318. SEC. 220.—There is no warrant for holding that an agent's claim to remuneration is not affected by his misconduct unless it is also shown that the principal has incurred loss thereby. Nor is it correct to hold that even where loss had been caused to the principal it would be sufficient if the agent is directed to make good the loss; the fact that the agent makes good the loss would not entitle him to his full remuneration. To so hold would be to ignore the provisions of sec. 220 of the Contract Act. Payment of damages caused by the misconduct of the agent is in addition to the forfeiture of commission or remuneration and the forfeiture of commission is the result of misconduct and not of loss arising from misconduct. A principal is entitled to have an honest agent and it is only the honest agent who is entitled to any commission. If the agent does not perform his appropriate duties, or if he is guilty of gross negligence or gross misconduct, or gross unskillfulness in the business of his agency, he would not only become liable to his principal for any damages which he may sustain thereby, but also forfeit all his commissions. 1940 Mad. 299=1939 M.W.N. 1046. It is misconduct on an agent's part to deal on his own account in the business of the agency without obtaining the consent of his principal and acquainting him with all material circumstances. An agent is, therefore, not entitled under sec. 220 to any remuneration in respect of a contract of sale in which he himself is the undisclosed principal although purporting to act as agent. The fact that the principal did not repudiate the contract although he knew before performance that the agent was in fact the buyer is immaterial, as the principal cannot thereby be held to have acknowledged the claims of the agent both as an agent and purchaser. Sec. 63 is inapplicable to such a case as owing to the limitations imposed by sec. 215 on the principal's right to repudiate, there could be no question of his electing to accept a satisfaction from the agent other than the performance of the contract according to its terms. 41 C.W.N. 460=I.L.R. See 31 M. 123; 89 I.O. 409.

SEC. 222.—Sec. 222 is based on the principle that every agent has a right against his principal founded upon an implied contract to be indemnified against all losses and liabilities and to reimburse all expenses incurred by him in the exercise of his authority. Where an agent by contracting renders himself liable for the price of goods bought on behalf of his principal, the property in the goods as between the principal and agent vests in the agent and does not pass to the principal until he pays for the goods and the agent has the same rights with regard to the disposal of the goods and with regard to stopping them in transit as he would have had if the relation between him and his principal had been that of seller and buyer. If therefore the principal refuses to pay, the agent is entitled to re-sell the goods and hold the principal liable for any deficiency, which would be the measure of the loss sustained by the agent in the transaction, in respect of which he is entitled to be indemnified and reimbursed. 140 I.O. 624=34 Bom.L.R. 1268=1932 B. 593. An agent can recover moneys paid out by him on behalf of his principal even on wagering contracts and a set-off or adjustment in accounts of third parties should be treated on the same footing as cash payments. The execution of sargat by the agent in favour of the other party is as good as a cash payment to him. 31 N.L.R. Evidence of custom or usage incidental to contract. 35 I.C. 3=20 C.W.N. 365. An agent can perform acts on behalf of his principal either disclosing or concealing the fact that he is an agent. There is nothing in sec. 92, Evidence Act, to prevent an agent in a suit for compensation from his principal from proving that contracts entered into by him were on the principal's behalf. The equitable right of the agent to be indemnified cannot however be so exercised as to make a profit out of the indemnity. 26 S.L.R. 85. An agent is not personally bound by a contract entered into by him on behalf of his principal in the absence of any contract to that effect. 73 I.C. 885=1923 L. 296. The presumption in sec. 230 (1) is rebuttable. 67 I.C. 157. The mere fact that the principal is abroad does not absolve the personal liability of the agent if the other contracting party looked to him alone for performance. 67 I.C. 157. See also 65 I.C. 473; 32 Bom.L.R. 1336. To make an agent personally liable under a contract it must be clearly established that the agent had not disclosed the name of his principal. 65 I.C. 473. An agent who describes himself as such, may still be contracting in his personal capacity but failure to specify his capacity, as an agent in signing a contract does not raise any such presumption when the terms of the contract itself are clearly to the contrary. 65 I.C. 468=2 L.L.J. 374. On a contract signed by the agent without disclosing his principal the agent is personally liable. Though an agent has authority to borrow money for the business of the firm, yet if the power-of-attorney expressly prohibits the agent from borrowing money, the principal is not liable. The fact that the money borrowed was applied for the purposes of the firm may give rise to a cause of action between the principal and the agent inter se but would not enable the third party to sue the principal on that account because as between them there is no privity of contract. L.L.J. 374=65 I.C. 468; 39 C. 802=18 C. W.N. 263. Where the plaintiff merely discloses a contract between the plaintiffs and the agent of a disclosed principal, the agent cannot be sued. If there is a matter of doubt as to the liability of the agent or the principal in a contract the usual course is to sue both defendants alleging that the principal was the principal and in the alternative suing the agent for breach of the warranty of authority. 150 I.C. 671=1934 P. 269. On this section, see also 30 L.W. 1028=1929 P.C. 254=57 M. L. J. 628 (P. C.). Under sec. 230 of Contract Act, if an agent acts on behalf of his principal, the principal being disclosed, a creditor who lends money to the agent is entitled to sue the principal. But the law under the Negotiable Instruments Act, is an exception to that rule. Sec. 28 of the Negotiable Instruments Act requires that to make the principal liable it must be clearly indicated on the face of the instrument that the agent is acting on behalf of such principal. Where a promissory note is executed by the agent alone, and there is no suggestion of any indication on the face of the note that the principal is the real debtor, the creditor, in order to bind the principal and make him liable, must sue on the loan and not on the instrument. But when the suit is based on the note, and the agent neither alleges nor proves any facts which would entitle him to take advantage of the exception under sec. 28 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, e.g., inducement by the plaintiff to sign the bill on the footing that he (the agent) would not be liable, the agent cannot escape liability. 18 Pat.L. T. 337=1937 P.W.N. 344=1937 Pat. 428, on this section, see also 1939 Lah. 825. Where an agent enters into a contract as such, if he has an interest in the contract, he may sue in his own name, the agent being in such a case virtually a principal to the extent of his interest in the contract. 1938 Lah. 673. Where a judgment-debtor against whom the decree-holder had obtained six decrees paid some money to the decree-holder's pleader in part payment of the decrees and had the execution stayed for a certain period, but on failure of the judgment-debtor to pay the decretal dues, in full within that period writs of attachment were executed against him resulting in payment of five of the decrees in full, and the pleader thereafter certified in Court the money paid to him as having satisfied the sixth decree in which the judgment-debtor was only one of two judgment-debtors, in a suit by the judgment-debtor against the pleader for the recovery of the amount paid to him. Held, (i) that the money having been paid to the pleader as agent on behalf of the principal, viz., decree-holder, the suit was not maintainable against the pleader alone; (ii) that the money having been paid in part payment of the decrees, the pleader did not act wrongly in appropriating it to the unsatisfied decree. 42 C.W.N. 1263. Where an organising agent of a company is allowed to appoint selling agents and receive deposits from them and appropriate those deposits against the deposits made by him with the company, when he receives such a deposit from a selling agent, he acts as agent of the company and when he informs the company that he has retained this amount as he was entitled to and asks the company to send a receipt for that amount and the company agrees to do so, that is equivalent to an acceptance by the company of the deposit. On the insolvency of the company, the selling agent cannot sue the organising agent for the recovery of the deposit made. 1942 N.L.J. 515. Where the kamdar of an Istimrardar under disability borrowed money on behalf of his principal, it was held that under the Ajmer Taluqdar's Loan Regulation there was no bar to a suit where the object for the advancement of the loan was nowhere mentioned. It was held further that sec. 230 must be held to apply to the time when the liability was incurred and not to the time when the suit was instituted. 1941 A.M.L.J. 126.

SEC. 230 (3): APPLICABILITY—UNREGISTERED UNION.—Where a member of an unregistered union of the employees of a firm signs an agreement for and on behalf of the union, as its agent the union cannot be sued on such agreement or contract, and therefore the member who signs the contract can be proceeded against by virtue of sec. 230 (3). The other members of the union cannot be sued and the procedure under O. 1, r. 8, is not applicable to the case. 56 L.W. 325=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 530=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 426.

SEC. 231.—Under sec. 231 a principal can, as against the agent claim the full benefit of the contract entered by the agent in his own name, and as against the party contracting with the agent, the principal is bound by the equities arising between the agent and the contracting party. 26 I.C. 822=27 M.L.J. 501 (3 I.C. 801, Ref. to). agent had been principal.

If the principal discloses himself before the contract is completed, the other contracting party may refuse to fulfil the contract, if he can show that, if he had known who was the principal in the contract, or if he had known that the agent was not a principal, he would not have entered into the contract.

232. Where one man makes a contract with another, neither knowing nor having reasonable ground to suspect that the other is an agent, the principal, if he requires the performance of the contract, can only obtain such performance subject to the rights and obligations subsisting between the agent and the other party to the contract.

Illustration.

A, who owes 500 rupees to B, sells 1,000 rupees' worth of rice to B. A is acting as agent for C in the transaction, but B has no knowledge nor reasonable ground of suspicion that such is the case. C cannot compel B to take the rice without allowing him to set-off A's debt.

233. In cases where the agent is personally liable a person dealing with him may hold either him or his principal, or both of them liable.

Illustration.

A enters into a contract with B to sell him 100 bales of cotton, and afterwards discovers that B was acting as agent for C. A may sue either B or C, or both, for the price of the cotton.

234. Although sec. 231 of the Contract Act gives to an undisclosed principal an option to proceed for damages against the party contracting with the agent, there is nothing to debar him from seeking his remedy against the agent under sec. 211, if he can bring his case within the purview of that section. 61 C. 504=152 I.C. 33=1934 C. 721. Sec. 233.—Section gives the party who is dealing with an agent who is personally liable a double form of election. He can sue both the principal and agent jointly or sue one of them. If he sues one, a suit against the other will be barred. 40 I.C. 194=19 Bom.L.R. 370. The liability of a principal and agent is not joint but alternative. A person dealing with a principal through his agent may at his election sue either, or he may sue both of them alternatively in a case where he is not sure against whom his remedy lies but he cannot get judgment against both of them jointly, as that would turn a liability which is mutually exclusive into a joint liability. SEC. 236: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Sec. 236 is not restricted to cases where the agent purports to act for a named principal. If a person purports to act an agent for an undisclosed principal and there is no undisclosed principal in fact, sec. 236 applies and he cannot sue on the contract. (34 C. 623, Bel. on.) 1933 S. 207. Sec. 236 does not enact that the contract in circumstances mentioned in that section is void; it provides that the alleged agent cannot require its performance. It follows that it is a voidable contract. So where B signed an indent in favour of A whom he knew to be only an agent and the indent contained a clause providing reference of disputes to arbitration, in pursuance of which a reference was subsequently made, and an arbitrator was appointed, held, that though the contract was voidable at the option of B, having treated it as valid and taken the chance of an award in his favour, he was estopped from avoiding the contract and objecting to the reference. 1933 S. 207. A person with whom a contract is made as an agent when he is not so, cannot sue under sec. 236. 39 C. 802=18 C.W.N. 263. See also 34 C. 628.

SEC. 237.—See 18 Bom.L.R. 317; 6 O.W.N. 229. Sec. 237 has no application unless the relationship of principal and agent is proved to exist between the parties. If illus. (b) to that section should come into operation, the person handling over the negotiable instrument must be a principal and the person who receives it must be an agent. Where a wife hands over certain shares to her husband for safe custody, the husband can in no sense be said to be the agent of the wife, and if the husband pledges them with a bank, without having any authority to do so, sec. 237 cannot avail the bank in order to entitle the bank to enforce its charge against the shares. Sec. 7.—For order appointing the Sub-Judge of the Nilgiris to be permanent Commissioner for the purposes of taking the acknowledgment of deeds by married women resident in the Nilgiri District, see Mad. List of Loc. E. & O., Vol. 1, 12. Nothing in this Act contained shall abridge, extend or affect the powers of alienation or disposition which any married woman might have exercised over any property or rights, otherwise than by levying a fine or suffering a recovery, or by joining in one of such assurances before the passing of this Act.

13. In any deed or will executed after this Act comes into operation, and disposing of immovable property situate in [British India]¹ wherein contingent estates are limited without the appointment of any trustees to preserve such contingent estates the same shall be, to all intents and purposes, as effectually protected by the law as if such trustees had been duly appointed.

14. Any estate or interest in immovable property, situate within the said territories, whether in possession, remainder or reversion, may, in addition to any other mode of conveyance or release which is now valid, be conveyed, passed or released by a simple deed, whether such deed operate under the Statute of Uses or not.

15. No conveyance of any kind shall operate to destroy, impair or affect any estate or interest which the conveying party has no right to destroy, impair or affect or beyond the extent to which he may impair or affect the same.

16. It shall not be necessary in any deed relating to immovable property situate within the said territories, to be executed after the passing of this Act, to add words of limitation to heirs, when the intention is to give the absolute interest to a person and his heirs general; but a gift, grant or other conveyance of immovable property to, or in favour of, any person shall be taken to give him the entire and absolute interest in the nature of an estate in fee-simple, unless such construction is rendered inadmissible by the other contents of the deed; and when in any deed or will executed after the passing of this Act any property is given to a person for life or for other freehold interest, and afterwards in the same deed, or will, is limited to his heirs or her special, the estates shall not unite, but the limitation to the heirs shall be a limitation of an estate to be taken by the heirs by purchase.

17. When any property is sold, the proceeds of which are subject to any trust, the bona fide purchaser of the property shall not in any case be bound to see to the application of the purchase money to the purposes of the trust.

18. Nothing in this Act contained shall extend to any case to which the English law is not applicable.

[1st March, 1912.]

An Act to amend the Law relating to Co-operative Societies.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to facilitate the formation of Co-operative Societies for the promotion of thrift and self-help among agriculturists, artisans and persons of limited means, and for that purpose to amend the law relating to Co-operative Societies; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title and extent. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT, 1912; and

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Definitions. 2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) “by-laws” means registered by-laws for the time being in force, and includes a registered amendment of the by-laws:

(b) “committee” means the governing body of a registered society to whom the management of its affairs is entrusted:

(c) “member” includes a person joining in the application for the registration of a society and a person admitted to membership after registration in accordance with the by-laws and any rules:

LEG. REF.

1 For Statement of Objects and Reasons, see Gazette of India, 1911, Pt. V., p. 95; for Report of Select Committee, see ibid., 1912, Pt. V, p. 7; and for Proceedings in Council, see ibid., 1911, Pt. VI, pp. 186, 679 and ibid. 1912, Pt. VI, pp. 3, 31 and 256.

It has been declared in force under S. 3 of the British Baluchistan Laws Regulation (II of 1913) in British Baluchistan, see Bal. Code.

SEC. 1.—Policy of the Act is to save persons from protracted expensive and sometimes ruinous litigation in Civil Courts. 1935 L. 631; 15 A.L.J. 653=42 I.C. 968=40 A. 89. Act should be strictly construed. 1935 L. 631. The right of the subject to have recourse to ordinary Courts of justice should not be unduly surrounded by restrictions. 1935 L. 631.

Bank registered under this Act—40 per cent. of total liability of, required by Government notification issued under S. 60 of Income-tax Act to be kept in fluid form—Investment of, in Government securities—Interest on—“Income” or “profits” under Ss. 8 and 10 (1) of Income-tax Act—Liability to income-tax. 56 M.L.J. 481 (F.B.). Effect of Government notification exempting profits of co-operative society from income-tax. (Ibid.) An award against the representative of a deceased debtor of a society affects only the estate of the deceased in his hands but cannot affect him personally. 146 I.C. 565=1933 L. 376.

SEC. 2 (c).—The term “member” is elastic enough to embrace a joint family within its ambit and the fact that some of the members thereof were minors does not invalidate the award passed by the Registrar against the joint family. 142 I.C. 487=1933 N. 211. A joint Hindu family can be a member of a Co-operative Society. 48 L.W. 285=1938 Mad. 809=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 186; I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 677=1945 N.L.J. 482. The fact that the bye-laws of a co-operative society established under the Co-operative Societies Act do not expressly state that the membership of the society is open to a Hindu joint family is no justification for holding that a joint family can in no event become a member of the society, when there is no provision in the by-laws. It is no doubt desirable to have an express provision in the bye-laws stating that a Hindu joint family may join a society through one of its members chosen by all the other adult members of the family and that loans to such a family would be granted only on proof that the money is required for some legal necessity of the family. Where it is clearly proved that a member of a joint family joined the society in a representative capacity with the consent of all the adult members of the family, though he may not have been the karta of the family and that the debts incurred by him were for the purpose of the family, it must be held that the money was borrowed for the necessity and benefit of the entire joint family, because the member represents the entire joint family in his dealings with the society. In such a case the society can proceed against joint family properties including the properties purchased out of the money borrowed, although that member is not described in the registers of the company as representing his family. 19 Pat.L.T. 328=1938 Pat. 315 (S.B.).

(d) "officer" includes a chairman, secretary, treasurer, member of committee, or other person empowered under the rules or the by-laws to give directions in regard to the business of the society:

(e) "registered society" means a society registered or deemed to be registered under this Act:

(f) "Registrar" means a person appointed to perform the duties of a Registrar of Co-operative Societies under this Act: and

(g) "rules" means rules made under this Act.

Registration.

3. The Provincial Government may appoint a person to be Registrar of

The Registrar. Co-operative Societies for the Province or any portion of it, and may appoint persons to assist such Registrar, and may, by general or special order, confer on any such persons all or any of the powers of a Registrar under this Act.

4. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, a society which has as Societies which may be its object the promotion of the economic interests of its members in accordance with co-operative principles, or a society established with the object of facilitating the operations of such a society, may be registered under this Act with or without limited liability:

Provided that unless the Provincial Government by general or special order otherwise directs—

(1) the liability of a society of which a member is a registered society shall be limited;

(2) the liability of a society of which the object is the creation of funds to be lent to its members, and of which the majority of the members are agriculturists, and of which no member is a registered society, shall be unlimited.

Restrictions on interest of member of Society with limited liability and a share capital.

5. Where the liability of the members of a society is limited by shares, no member other than a registered society shall—

(a) hold more than such portion of the share capital of the society, subject to a maximum of one-fifth, as may be prescribed by the rules; or

(b) have or claim any interest in the shares of the society exceeding one thousand rupees.

6. (1) No society, other than a society of which a member is a registered

Conditions of registration. society, shall be registered under this Act which does not consist of at least ten persons above the age of eighteen years and, where the object of the society is the creation of funds to be lent to its members, unless such persons—

(a) reside in the same town or village or in the same group of villages; or

(b) save where the Registrar otherwise directs, are members of the same tribe, class, caste or occupation.

(2) The word "limited" shall be the last word in the name of every society with limited liability registered under this Act.

7. When any question arises whether for the purposes of this Act a person cular tribe, class, caste or occupation, the question shall be decided by the Registrar, whose decision shall be final.

Application for registration. 8. (1) For purposes of registration an application to register shall be made to the Registrar.

(2) The application shall be signed—

(a) in the case of a society of which no member is a registered society, by at least ten persons qualified in accordance with the requirements of section 6, sub-section (1); and

(b) in the case of a society of which a member is a registered society, by a duly authorized person on behalf of every such registered society, and where all the members of the society are not registered societies, by ten other members, or, when there are less than ten other members, by all of them.

(3) The application shall be accompanied by a copy of the proposed by-laws of the society, and the persons by whom or on whose behalf such application is made shall furnish such information in regard to the society as the Registrar may require.

9. If the Registrar is satisfied that a society has complied with the provisions of this Act and the rules and that its proposed by-laws are not contrary to the Act or to the rules, he may, if he thinks fit, register the society and its by-laws.

10. A certificate of registration signed by the Registrar shall be conclusive evidence that the society therein mentioned is duly registered unless it is proved that the registration of the society has been cancelled.

11. (1) No amendment of the by-laws of a registered society shall be valid until the same has been registered under this Act, for which purpose a copy of the amendment shall be forwarded to the Registrar.

(2) If the Registrar is satisfied that any amendment of the by-laws is not contrary to this Act or to the rules, he may, if he thinks fit, register the amendment.

(3) When the registrar registers an amendment of the by-laws of a registered society, he shall issue to the society a copy of the amendment certified by him, which shall be conclusive evidence that the same is duly registered.

Rights and liabilities of members.

12. No member of a registered society shall exercise the rights of a mem-

SECS. 8 (3) AND 43 (5).—There is no rule of law that when there is a conflict between the rule and the bye-law, the bye-law should be preferred. Ordinarily the rule, which is as effective as a section of the Act, must be followed in a preference to a bye-law, if there is a conflict between the two. 171 I. C. 395=1938 Lah. 8. Where a bye-law of a Co-operative Society provides that the profits should be divided, and that a fourth of it should be paid as honorarium to the Secretary, the Secretary is entitled to recover the same without a vote of the general body. Although it is open to the latter to alter the bye-law, it is not open to them to withhold payment of the honorarium. But where the law provides for the payment of an annual lump sum, it is not open to the Secretary to claim the proportionate amount for a part of the year. The payment contemplated is contingent on the Secretary serving as such for the entire period of a year. 45 L.W. 297=1937 Mad. 379=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 511. Where a bye-law framed by a society provides that one of the objects of the society is to build residential houses and other buildings for private and public use and convenience of the members, the society undertook to construct a house for a member and after the house had been constructed, there was some dispute between the parties as to the amount claimable on account of it by the society. Held, the transaction does not amount to the granting of a loan by the society to one of its members. 1938 L. 8=171 I.C. 395.

SEC. 12.—The disputed liability of a member to repay money due to the Society is a dispute "touching the business of the society" within the meaning of R. 12 of the Rules framed under the Co-operative Societies

Member not to exercise rights till due payment made. ber unless or until he has made such payment to the society in respect of membership or acquired such interest in the society, as may be prescribed by the rules or by-laws.

13. (1) Where the liability of the members of a registered society is not limited by shares, each member shall, notwithstanding the amount of his interest in the capital, have one vote only as a member in the affairs of the society.

(2) Where the liability of the members of a registered society is limited by shares, each member shall have as many votes as may be prescribed by the by-laws.

(3) A registered society which has invested any part of its funds in the shares of any other registered society may appoint as its proxy, for the purpose of voting in the affairs of such other registered society, any one of its members.

14. (1) The transfer or charge of the share or interest of a member in the capital of a registered society shall be subject to such conditions as to maximum holding as may be prescribed by this Act or by the rules.

(2) In cases of a society registered with unlimited liability a member shall not transfer any share held by him or his interest in the capital of the society or any part thereof unless—

(a) he has held such share or interest for not less than one year; and

(b) the transfer or charge is made to the society or to a member of the society.

Duties of registered societies.

15. Every registered society shall have an address, registered in accordance with the rules, to which all notices and communications may be sent, and shall send to the Registrar notice of every change thereof.

16. Every registered society shall keep a copy of this Act and of the rules governing such society, and of its by-laws, open to inspection free of charge at all reasonable times at the registered address of the society.

17. (1) The Registrar shall audit or cause to be audited by some person authorized by him by general or special order in writing in this behalf the accounts of every registered society once at least in every year.

(2) The audit under sub-section (1) shall include an examination of over-due debts, if any, and a valuation of the assets and liabilities of the society.

(3) The Registrar, the Collector or any person authorized by general or special order in writing in this behalf by the Registrar shall at all times have access to all the books, accounts, papers and securities of a society, and every officer of the society shall furnish such information in regard to the transactions and working of the society as the person making such inspection may require.

Act; and being a dispute between one member and the other members, it is covered by Cl. (1) of the rule. A Society borrowed money from a Bank and lent it to the appellant who was a member of the Society. An award was obtained by the Bank against the Society, and the latter then made a reference to the Registrar who duly made an award against the appellants and in favour of the society for the amount of the loan. Held, the Registrar had jurisdiction to make the award against the appellant, 14 P. 292.

Privileges of registered Societies.

18. The registration of a society shall render it a body corporate by the name under which it is registered, with perpetual succession and a common seal, and with power to hold property, to enter into contracts, to institute and defend suits and other legal proceedings and to do all things necessary for the purposes of its constitution.

19. Subject to any prior claim of the ¹[Crown] in respect of land-revenue or any money recoverable as land revenue or of a landlord in respect of rent or any money recoverable as rent, a registered society shall be entitled in priority to other creditors to enforce any outstanding demand due to the society from a member or past member—

(a) in respect of the supply of seed or manure or of the loan of money for the purchase of seed or manure—upon the crops or other agricultural produce of such member or person at any time within eighteen months from the date of such supply or loan;

(b) in respect of the supply of cattle, fodder for cattle, agricultural or industrial implements or machinery, or raw materials for manufacture, or of the loan of money for the purchase of any of the foregoing things— upon any such things so, supplied, or purchased in whole or in part from any such loan, or on any articles manufactured from raw materials so supplied or purchased.

20. A registered society shall have a charge upon the share or interest in the capital and on the deposits of a member or past member and upon any dividend, bonus or profits payable to a member or past member in respect of any debt due from such member or past member to

LEG. REF.

¹ Substituted for "Government" by Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937.

Sec. 18.—A Co-operative Society is a statutory corporation and a legal person, and its debts are distinct from the liability of its members; and the members can only be reached by the creditors of the society in winding up proceedings. An award against the society, which has the force of a decree, cannot be executed against the members. An award ordering that a Co-operative Society "consisting of its members or past members all of whom are jointly and severally liable for the debts of the society pay at once, etc." cannot be construed to be one making the members and past members also liable for the debt; the award cannot be executed against the members. 20 N.L.J. 6. The effect of registering a society is to render it a body corporate, a separate legal entity. Neither under the Companies Act, nor under this Act is there any statutory provision which entitles the creditor of a registered society to proceed against a member for the debts of the society whether the society is of limited or unlimited liability. Not until there is a winding up can the creditor come face to face with the individual members. The remedy for the creditor is indicated in Ss. 36 and 39 and the exceptional right of the Government under S. 44 to have direct recourse against the members demonstrates the general rule to the contrary. (40 C.L.J. 254, Ref.) 134 I.C. 421 =1931 P. 321 (F.B.).

Sec. 19.—The Chairman of a Co-operative Credit Society has no right to sue a member of a society in his own name. The suit should be brought by the society itself under S. 6 (2) of the Co-operative Credit Societies Act. 10 I.C. 570.

Musical instruments are not industrial implements or machinery and do not come within any other part of the class of articles referred to in the section. See 38 I.C. 414 = (1916) 2 U.B.R. 133. See also cases referred to therein.

Secs. 19 AND 20.—Under S. 73 of the C.P. Code the claim of a Co-operative Society cannot be enforced under S. 19 of the Co-operative Societies Act unless they have a decree or charge under S. 20 of the latter Act. 42 C. 377=18 O.W.N. 1140.

Sec. 19 (b).—Fat intended to be purchased and sold at a profit and not for the purpose of manufacturing some other commodity is not "raw material" within S. 19 (b) of the Act. 3 P.W.R. 1917=39 I.C. 378.

Sec. 20.—Share of a member in Co-operative Society is not liable to attachment and sale under S. 20 of the Act. 42 P.L.R. 225=1939 Lah. 305.

the society, and may set-off any sum credited or payable to a member or past member in or towards payment of any such debt.

21. Subject to the provisions of section 20, the share or interest of a member in the capital of a registered society shall not be liable to attachment or sale under any decree or order of a Court of Justice in respect of any debt or liability incurred by such member, and neither the Official Assignee under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, nor a Receiver under the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, shall be entitled to or have any claim on such share or interest.

22. (1) On the death of a member a registered society may transfer the share or interest of the deceased member to the person nominated in accordance with the rules made in this behalf, or, if there is no person so nominated, to such person as may appear to the committee to be the heir or legal representative of the deceased member, or pay to such nominee, heir or legal representative, as the case may be, a sum representing the value of such member's share or interest, as ascertained in accordance with the rules or by-laws:

Provided that—

(i) in the case of a society with unlimited liability, such nominee, heir or legal representative, as the case may be, may require payment by the society of the value of the share or interest of the deceased member ascertained as aforesaid.

(ii) in the case of a society with limited liability, the society shall transfer the share or interest of the deceased member to such nominee, heir or legal representative, as the case may be, being qualified in accordance with the rules and by-laws for membership of the society, or on his application within one month of the death of the deceased member to any person specified in the application who is so qualified.

(2) A registered society may pay all other moneys due to the deceased member from the society to such nominee, heir or legal representative, as the case may be.

(3) All transfers and payments made by a registered society in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be valid and effectual against any demand made upon the society by any other person.

23. The liability of a past member for the debts of a registered society as they existed at the time when he ceased to be a member shall continue for a period of two years from the date of his ceasing to be a member.

Sec. 22 (1), Pro. (ii).—S. 22 of the Act provides that on the death of a member, the share or interest of the deceased member shall be transferred to his nominee or to his legal representative who may be qualified in accordance with the rule or bye-laws of the society. R. 6 of the bye-laws or the appellant bank provided that "the following are eligible for membership:—(a) persons above 18 years residing or holding property in Bakarganj." R. 17 (b) of the bye-laws provided that "in the case of the death of a preference shareholder his shares may be transferred to his heir or nominee if he is eligible for membership and is duly elected as such." Held, that R. 17 (b), in so far as it made election as a condition to membership was in excess of the provisions of S. 22 proviso (ii) and ultra vires and was not validated by

R. 7 of the bye-laws which referred to election, because the qualifications of members were contained in R. 6 and not R. 7. 151 L. C. 165=38 C.W.N. 459=1934 C. 537.

SEC. 23.—"Debts of a registered society" in S. 23 refer only to those debts which the society owes and not to those which are owed to the society. 18 Lah. 649=1937 Lah. 931. S. 23 governs S. 42 (2) (b). See 1937 Lah. 912. See also 1935 Lah. 330; 1935 Lah. 947. As to the extent of liability of past member for debt due to society, see 1935 L. 947. Inasmuch as no member can be called upon to contribute to the debts of the Society until liquidation. S. 23 of the Act applies only to members who cease to be members before liquidation. 1946 N.L.J. 252.

25. Any register or list of members or shares kept by any registered society shall be prima facie evidence of any of the following particulars entered therein:—

Register of members.

(a) the date at which the name of any person was entered in such register or list as a member;

(b) the date at which any such person ceased to be a member.

26. A copy of any entry in a book of a registered society regularly kept in the course of business, shall, if certified in such manner as may be prescribed by the rules, be received, in any suit or legal proceeding, as prima facie evidence of the existence of such entry, and shall be admitted as evidence of the matters, transactions and accounts therein recorded in every case where, and to the same extent as, the original entry itself is admissible.

Proof of entries in societies' books.

ciety as they existed at the time when he ceased to be a member' occurring in S. 23 clearly refer to the debts due from the society to third persons and it is with regard to these debts that the liability of a past member has been confined in the section to a period of two years from the date of his ceasing to be a member and no further. The debts referred to in the section have no bearing whatever on the debts of the outgoing members due to the society itself. 16 Luck. 658=1941 O.W.N. 404=1941 Oudh 315. The period of two years mentioned in S. 23 is to run backwards not from the date on which the award of the liquidator is made but from the date of the dissolution of the Society, that is the date on which its registration was cancelled. SECS. 23 AND 24.—Award against estate of past or deceased member—Jurisdiction of liquidator and of Civil Court. A liquidator has no jurisdiction to award anything against the estate of a past or a deceased member, because of the limitation provided under Ss. 23 and 24. The Civil Court has jurisdiction to go into the question whether the liquidator had jurisdiction to make the award. 41 P.L.R. 269.

SECS. 23 AND 42 (2).—A suit by a past member for a declaration that he is not liable to pay certain amounts as contribution due from him on the ground that his liability ceased under S. 23 on the expiration of two years after removal of his name, is not maintainable in a Civil Court, because it has no jurisdiction to go into the matter. Under S. 42 (2), the liquidator has jurisdiction to decide the matter. 1935 L. 330. See also 1935 L. 497; 1937 Lah. 912.

SEC. 24.—The section cannot be called to aid except in liquidation proceedings under S. 42. See 84 I.C. 999=1925 O. 203.

Under S. 24, the estate of a deceased member which devolves by inheritance on his widow under the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act, is liable to the same extent as it would have been had he been alive. 1946 N.L.J. 252. It does not matter whether a member dies before or after liquidation. His estate is liable for a year after his death, but only for the debts as they existed at the date of his death. 1946 N. L.J. 252. Limitation—Starting point. Under S. 24, the limitation of one year for a suit by the liquidator against the heirs of a deceased member in possession of his estate for contribution due from him, starts from the date of death of the member and not from the date of liquidation. 1946 N.L.J. 252.

SEC. 26: SCOPE AND EFFECT.—Under S. 26, the mere filing of copies of the accounts is not enough. The section does not abrogate S. 34 of the Evidence Act. It merely obviates production of the original books of accounts. Books of accounts which are not regularly kept in the course of business would not come within the purview of S. 26 of the Co-operative Societies Act any more than it would under S. 34 of the Evidence Act. Therefore it is essential to produce evidence abundant to prove that the books are regularly kept in the course of business. If this is done the entries become evidence, but like all entries in books of account they are not substantive evidence except as regards admissions against the interests of the maker. They can only be used for corroboration. 1946 N.L.J. 252.

(1) Any instrument relating to shares in a registered society, notwithstanding that the assets of such society consist in whole or in part of immovable property; or

(2) any debenture issued by any such society and not creating, declaring, assigning, limiting or extinguishing any right, title or interest to or in immovable property except in so far as it entitles the holder to the security afforded by a registered instrument whereby the society has mortgaged, conveyed or otherwise transferred the whole or part of its immovable property or any interest therein to trustees upon trust for the benefit of the holders of such debentures; or

(3) any endorsement upon or transfer of any debenture issued by any such society.

Property and funds of registered societies.

Restrictions on loans.

29. (1) A registered society shall not make a loan to any person other than a member:

Provided that, with the general or special sanction of the registrar, a registered society may make loans to another registered society.

(2) Save with the sanction of the Registrar, a society with unlimited liability shall not lend money on the security of movable property.

(3) The Provincial Government may, by general or special order, prohibit or restrict the lending of money on mortgage of immovable property by any registered society or class of registered societies.

SEC. 29.—A bye-law of a Co-operative Society to the effect that the society shall not sell goods on credit to a non-member cannot have the force of law. It cannot be pleaded in defence by vendee outsider in a suit brought against him for recovery of balance standing against him. 96 I.O. 351 (2)=1926 N. 463. See also 116 I.O. 552 infra. The law lays down that a Co-operative Credit Society shall not lend to non-members and consequently a contract for that purpose is undoubtedly illegal and a suit cannot lie to enforce it. Held, however, that the amount advanced could be recovered on the basis of the implied promise to repay. 116 I.O. 552=1929 L. 380. See also 96 I.O. 351=1926 N. 463.

30. A registered society shall receive deposits and loans from persons who are not members only to such extent and under such conditions as may be prescribed by the rules or by-laws.

Restrictions on borrowing.

31. Save as provided in sections 29 and 30, the transactions of a registered society with persons other than members shall be subject to such prohibitions, and restrictions, if any, as the Provincial Government may, by rules, prescribe.

Restrictions on other transactions with non-members.

32. (1) A registered society may invest or deposit its funds—

Investment of funds.

(a) in the Government Savings Bank, or

(b) in any of the securities specified in section 20 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, or

(c) in the shares or on the security of any other registered society, or

(d) with any bank or person carrying on the business of banking approved for this purpose by the Registrar, or

(e) in any other mode permitted by the rules.

(2) Any investments or deposits made before the commencement of this Act which would have been valid if this Act had been in force are hereby ratified and confirmed.

33. No part of the funds of a registered society shall be divided by way of bonus or dividend or otherwise among its members:

Funds not to be divided by way of profit.

Provided that after at least one-fourth of the net profits in any year have been carried to a reserve fund, payments from the remainder of such profits and from any profits of past years available for distribution may be made among the members to such extent and under such conditions as may be prescribed by the rules or by-laws:

Provided also that in the case of a society with unlimited liability no distribution of profits shall be made without the general or special order of the Provincial Government on this behalf.

34. Any registered society may, with the sanction of the Registrar, after one-fourth of the net profits in any year has been carried to a reserve fund, contribute an amount not exceeding ten per cent. of the remaining net profits to any charitable purpose, as defined in section 2 of the Charitable Endowments Act, 1890.

Contribution to charitable purpose.

Inspection of affairs.

35. (1) The Registrar may of his own motion, and shall on the request of the Collector, or on the application of a majority of the committee, or of not less than one-third of the members, hold an inquiry or direct some person authorized by him by order in writing in this behalf to hold an inquiry into the constitution, working and financial condition of a registered society.

Inquiry by Registrar.

(2) All officers and members of the society shall furnish such information in regard to the affairs of the society as the Registrar or the person authorized by the Registrar may require.

Sec. 33.—A resolution passed at an annual general meeting of the shareholders sanctioning the payment of dividend is not in any way illegal or ultra vires so long as it does not contravene any of the provisions of the Co-operative Societies Act or any of its bye-laws, although a considerable portion of the profits out of which the dividend could be paid are unrealised interest income. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 144=42 C.W.N. 461=1938 Cal. 394.

36. (1) The Registrar shall, on the application of a creditor of a registered society, inspect or direct some person authorized by him by order in writing in this behalf to inspect the books of the society:

Inspection of books of indebted society.

Provided that—

(a) the applicant satisfies the Registrar that the debt is a sum then due, and that he has demanded payment thereof and has not received satisfaction within a reasonable time; and

(b) the applicant deposits with the Registrar such sum as security for the costs of the proposed inspection as the Registrar may require.

(2) The Registrar shall communicate the results of any such inspection to the creditor.

37. Where an inquiry is held under section 35, or an inspection is made under section 36, the Registrar may apportion the costs, or such part of the costs as he may think right, between the society, the members or creditor demanding an inquiry or inspection, and the officers or former officers of the society.

38. Any sum awarded by way of costs under section 37 may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the place where the person from whom the money is claimable actually and voluntarily resides or carries on business, by the distress and sale of any movable property within the limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate belonging to such person.

Dissolution of society.

39. (1) If the Registrar, after an inquiry has been held under section

Dissolution.

35 or after an inspection has been made under section 36 or on receipt of an application made by three-fourths of the members of a registered society, is of opinion that the society ought to be dissolved, he may cancel the registration of the society.

(2) Any member of a society may, within two months from the date of an order made under sub-section (1), appeal from such order.

(3) Where no appeal is presented within two months from the making of an order cancelling the registration of a society, the order shall take effect on the expiry of that period.

(4) Where an appeal is presented within two months, the order shall not take effect until it is confirmed by the appellate authority.

(5) The authority to which appeals under this section shall lie shall be the Provincial Government:

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by notification¹ in the Official Gazette, direct that appeals shall lie to such Revenue-authority as may be specified in the notification.

40. Where it is a condition of the registration of a society that it should consist of at least ten members, the Registrar may, by order in writing, cancel the registration of the society if at any time it is proved to his satisfaction that the number of the members has been reduced to less than ten.

Effect of cancellation of registration.

41. Where the registration of a society is cancelled, the society shall cease to exist as a corporate body—

LEG. REF.

¹ For notification by Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, that appeals shall lie to the Financial Commissioner, see Central Provinces Gazette, 1912, Pt. 1, p. 347. For notification in Madras that appeals shall lie to the Board of Revenue, see Fort St. George Gazette, 1923, Pt. 1, p. 1651.

(a) in the case of cancellation in accordance with the provisions of section 39, from the date the order of cancellation takes effect;

(b) in the case of cancellation in accordance with the provisions of section 40, from the date of the order.

42. (1) Where the registration of a society is cancelled under section 39 or section 40, the Registrar may appoint a competent person to be liquidator of the society.

(2) A liquidator appointed under sub-section (1) shall have power—

(a) to institute and defend suits and other legal proceedings on behalf of the society by his name of office;

(b) to determine the contribution to be made by the members and past members of the society respectively to the assets of the society;

Sec. 42.—[See 1935 L. 330 and Notes under S. 23.] The Civil Court cannot interfere with an order passed by a liquidator of a registered Co-operative Society, under S. 42 of the Act, 1912, in order to collect the assets of the Society from persons who, he thinks, are responsible to account him for the assets. Suit against an auction-purchaser questioning the validity of the sale is not a matter connected with the dissolution of a registered society and does not fall within S. 42. 23 N.L.R. 66 = 103 I.C. 131 = 1927 N. 217. The members of a Co-operative Credit Society are subject to a statutory liability to contribute to the debts of the society; but that liability can only be enforced by the procedure of winding up contained in the Act and not directly by suit of a creditor even after the cancellation of registration. 35 Bom.L.R. 282 = 1933 B. 191 = 57 B. 319. An order of the liquidator under S. 42 of the Co-operative Societies Act is final and a Court executing the order cannot go behind it and investigate its legality. The rules framed under the Act do not provide for any appeal or revision. Where the order of the liquidator was passed after due enquiry and notice but the rules prescribed in the Civil Procedure Code were not literally followed, held, that assuming the Court had jurisdiction to interfere with such an order there was merely an irregularity. 7 B. 533. Proceedings taken before the liquidator under S. 42 (b) and (d) are to some extent in the nature of quasi-judicial proceedings. Under R. 29 (e) of the Bengal Government Rules the liquidator may issue summonses to persons whose attendance is required either to give evidence or to produce documents. He may compel the attendance of any person to whom a summons has been issued and for that purpose issue a warrant for his arrest. Where there is no compliance with the necessary procedure the Court may dismiss the application for execution of the order. 37 C.W.N. 177 = 145 I.C. 834 = 1933 C. 631. Liquidation—Members of executive committee asked to pay—Suit by them against ordinary members to recoup themselves—Decree passed without any objection to jurisdiction—No appeal—Objection raised in execution proceedings—Maintainability. See 31 C.W.N. 739; 22 Bom.L.R. 732 = 44 B. 482.

CL. (2).—A Civil Court can examine the question whether a liquidator appointed under the Co-operative Societies Act has acted within his powers when he makes a contributory order. The relevant rule limits the power of the liquidator to make a contributory order to a time posterior to the determination of the assets. He cannot make such an order until he has ascertained the assets. He cannot be regarded in law as having ascertained the assets where he is in the course of realising the assets of the individual debtors and until the amount that can be obtained on such realisation is determined. Until then any contributory order made is ultra vires. These contributory orders are exceedingly oppressive and should in fairness to the contributories and in the interests of the co-operative society movement generally, only be made as a last resort. 1941 N. L. J. 412. Where the decretal amount due to a Co-operative Society was realised by the Collector as an arrear of land revenue according to the Co-operative Societies Act, no suit, etc., in the Civil Court in respect of such a claim. 1937 O. W. N. 298 = 1937 O. 249. The jurisdiction of Civil Court is ousted only in those cases where the acts of the liquidator are well within the four corners of S. 42. But in cases where his acts are ultra vires Civil Courts could go into the question, in order to determine the legality of the order. 18 Lah. 649 = 1937 Lah. 931. A Civil Court cannot entertain a suit for a declaration that an order of the liquidator under S. 42 (2) of the Act is ultra vires and thus cannot be executed. 44 I.C. 353 = 4 O.L.J. 583. But see 18 Lah. 649 = 1937 Lah. 931.

Sec. 42 (2) (b).—The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit against a Co-operative Society which has gone into liquidation for the recovery of Provident Fund money in its hands, in a case governed

(c) to investigate all claims against the society and, subject to the provisions of this Act, to decide questions of priority arising between claimants;

(d) to determine by what persons and in what proportions the costs of the liquidation are to be borne; and by the provisions of the Co-operative Societies Act. 49 C.W.N. 164. S. 42 (2) (b) of the Co-operative Societies Act is limited to "members" and "past members". It has no application to claim for contribution against the heirs of a deceased member. In such a case, the liquidator's only remedy is by way of a Civil Suit. 1946 N.L.J. 252. The term "past member" is not defined in the Act but it cannot mean a "deceased member". Therefore it must mean a person who is alive at all material times but who has ceased to be a member of the Society otherwise than by death. 1946 N. L. J. 252. Where a Co-operative Society is dissolved and certain members are adjudicated as insolvents their liability as members is not provable under the terms of S. 34 (2), Provincial Insolvency Act, if no liquidator was appointed until after the insolvents had been discharged. Under S. 42, it is the liquidator alone who can ascertain and fix the liabilities of the members. Therefore until a liquidator is appointed, it cannot be said that there was any debt or liability certain or contingent which can affect the members. Hence the liquidator is not debarred under the provisions of the Provincial Insolvency Act from fixing the liability as members. 42 P.L.R. 260=1939 Lah. 275. The provisions of the Act provide stringent safeguards to prevent the society from having dealings with strangers. The admission of a member to a society cannot be unilateral on the part of the society. Where a joint family as such has not been mentioned with its various members as having been brought on the list on the membership of the society, no order of contribution can be passed against the members of the joint family who are not members of the society. 130 I.C. 820=1931 N. 48. Merely because a person was once a member of a Co-operative Society, it cannot be said that he has no right to ask the Civil Court to decide whether he is under any liability to contribute at all. There is no clear indication in the Co-operative Societies Act that the liquidator can under S. 42 of the Act determine the question of liability to contribute in such a way that his determination will not be subject to be set aside by the Civil Courts. A person who disputes his liability to contribute on the ground that he ceased to be a member five years prior to the dissolution of the Society, but is held liable, is entitled, after payment of the contribution, to sue in the Civil Court for a refund of the amount paid on the ground that he is not liable. S. 42 (6) is no bar to the suit. 59 M. 895=1936 M. 574=70 M.

L.J. 604. S. 42 (2) (b) is governed by S. 23 of the same Act and the words 'past member' in S. 42 (2) (b) mean a past member liable for debts under S. 23 of the Act. A person who does not claim to be a past member liable under S. 23 of the Act has a right to have his claim investigated by a Civil Court. 1937 Lah. 912. 'Member' obviously means member at the date of the dissolution of the society in S. 42 (b). 1939 Lah. 275=42 P.L.R. 260. Usually the word contribution means and has reference only to the amount payable by a member as such and does not include debts payable to the society. It is in other words the unpaid portion of the liability of a member. 18 Lah. 649=1937 Lah. 931. A Court called upon to execute an award on the ground that the member against whom the award had been entered an award on the ground that the member against whom the award has been made had prior to the award been declared an insolvent and therefore discharged under S. 44 of the Provincial Insolvency Act from the liability to pay any debt, as the matter is not one of lack of inherent jurisdiction on the part of the liquidator but only a question of illegal exercise of jurisdiction. 42 P. L.R. 126=1940 Lah. 280. Where an award obtained by a Bank against a Co-operative Society shows that it was an award against the members of the society, then the Bank could sell the property mortgaged to the society by the members. 1938 N.L.J. 166=1938 N. 308. See also 1937 Rang. 98. Order by liquidator under the section—Nature of—If "decree for money"—Suit to declare null and void—Court-fee. (1937) 1 M.L.J. 640.

SECS. 42 (2) (b) AND 24: CLAIM FOR CONTRIBUTION—WHEN ARISES.—No claim can be made for contribution either against a member, a past member or the estate of a deceased member until the assets and liabilities of the Society are determined. It is only when all the assets and liabilities are known and a proper balance struck between the two that it is possible to determine whether the Society is in debt at all and if so to what extent. If it can pay off its debts from existing assets no claim for contribution can be made. That is only a last resort when all else fails. 1946 N.L.J. 252.

(e) to give such directions in regard to the collection and distribution of the assets of the society, as may appear to him to be necessary for winding up the affairs of the society.

(3) Subject to any rules, a liquidator appointed under this section shall, in so far as such powers are necessary for carrying out the purposes of this section, have power to summon and enforce the attendance of witness and to compel the production of documents by the same means and (so far as may be) in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.¹

(4) Where an appeal from any order made by a liquidator under this section is provided for by the rules, it shall lie to the Court of the District Judge.

(5) Orders made under this section shall, on application, be enforced as follows:—

(a) when made by a liquidator, by any Civil Court having local jurisdiction in the same manner as a decree of such Court;

(b) when made by the Court of the District Judge on appeal, in the same manner as a decree of such Court made in any suit pending therein.

(6) Save in so far as is hereinbefore expressly provided, no Civil Court shall have any jurisdiction in respect of any matter connected with the dissolution of a registered society under this Act.

LEG. REF.

¹ In its application to British Baluchistan this sub-section shall be read as if the words "or the British Baluchistan Civil Justice Regulation, 1896, as the case may be" were added. See Schedule I of Regulation II of 1913, Bal. Code.

CL. (2) (e): DEBT DUE TO SOCIETY.—POWER OF LIQUIDATOR TO MAKE ORDER HAVING FORCE OF DECREE.—S. 42 (2) (e) does not give a liquidator power to make an order having the force of a decree in respect of a debt due to a Co-operative Society in liquidation. 196 I.C. 688=1941 Lah. 355.

SEC. 42 (3).—The power to enforce attendance of witnesses and production of documents is subject to the rules framed under the Act. R. 26 (e) of the Rules framed by the Punjab Government restricts the powers of the liquidators to those given in the sub-rule. A liquidator has, therefore, no power to ask a debtor of the society under liquidation summoned by him to furnish security for his appearance or to impose a sentence of imprisonment or fine for his failure to do so. I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 192=1939 Lah. 357.

CL. (4).—An amount realised by the Collector on a requisition to him by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies is realised by the Collector as arrears of land revenue; and under S. 233 (m) of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, a suit in the Civil Court in respect of such amount is barred. 11 O. W.N. 1060=151 I.C. 414=1934 O. 431.

CL. (5).—The liquidator cannot order that the debtors are jointly and severally liable for each other's mortgage but may determine the contribution to be made by several debtors to meet the debt. Order passed by liquidator under S. 42 must be enforced by Civil Courts; no appeal lies from the Civil Courts, order under this section. 40 A. 89=15 A.L.J. 863. Where the award is against a society, the liquidation of that society cannot make any difference, so far as the executability of the award against the members is concerned. The liquidator is the only person competent to collect the assets of the society from its members and distribute them rateably among the creditors. So he cannot be proceeded against in execution of an award against the society. I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 604=1938 Nag. 434.

CL. (6).—See 84 I.C. 964=1925 R. 38. See also 84 I.C. 999=1925 C. 203 cited under S. 24. S. 42 (6), affords no immunity in respect of action taken by a Liquidator without jurisdiction. The forum for raising the objection is not executing Court unless there are exceptional circumstances patent on the face of the decree or closely allied to it circumstances which do not necessitate an enquiry into facts. Where in a case there is nothing whatever from which it might be assumed that the action of the liquidator was without jurisdiction, the remedy of a person having a genuine grievance lies by way of a suit for a declaration and not by an objection in execution proceedings. 1946 N. L. J. 28. The liquidator is given the power to determine the contribution to be made by a member; but he is not given power to determine whether a particular person is a member or not. And if any one disputes his membership, the dispute can be decided by a Civil Court. (1931 N. 48, Rel.

Rules.

43. (1) The Provincial Government may, for the whole or any part of the province and for any registered society or class of such societies, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

on.) 144 I.C. 264=34 P.L.R. 717=1933 L. 442. There is nothing in S. 42 (6) to prevent the Court from entertaining the application of one of the debtors of a co-operative society which is in liquidation for being declared insolvent. In deciding whether such a debtor should or should not be adjudicated insolvent the Court is not dealing with any matter connected with the dissolution of the society nor will the dissolution be necessarily interfered with by reason of adjudicating such a debtor to be an insolvent. 149 I.C. 96 (1)=1934 P. 290. A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to question the legality of the acts of a liquidator in the matter connected with the dissolution of a registered society. A suit in the Civil Court by a person from whom the amount of contribution determined by the liquidator is realised, on the ground that such person is the heir of the members indebted to the society, is barred by reason of S. 42 (6). 151 I.C. 414=11 O.W.N. 1060=1934 O. 43. The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit for a declaration that an order of contribution made by a liquidator of a Co-operative Society under S. 42 (2) (b) is null and void on the ground that the liquidator did not hold a proper enquiry as required by the rules, when it is not contended that the society in question had not been validly dissolved. 47 O. W. N. 384=1944 Cal. 245=I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 186. Where on a registered Co-operative Society being dissolved, the liquidator issues a warrant of attachment, Civil Courts have no jurisdiction to question the same. 94 I.C. 40=1926 N. 379=24 N.L.R. 5. If a liquidator's act or order is shown to be ultra vires, that is, outside the powers conferred on him by law as a liquidator, the Civil Court can then intervene. A liquidator of a society has no power to proceed against anybody and everybody irrespective of the fact that he had even been a member of the society and S. 42 (6) cannot be so construed as to oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in cases where the liquidator passes an order against a person who is not a member of the society. 130 I.C. 820=1931 N. 48. As to jurisdiction of Civil Courts, see also 39 Bom. L.R. 249=1937 Bom. 231 (Suit to set aside arbitrator's award on ground of fraud and undue influence); 1937 Rang. 98 (Suit questioning validity of a transfer of property by liquidator); 1940 Rang. 157 (Suit to set aside award of arbitrator given contrary to law of limitation, see also 1937 Rang. 363). As to difference between bar of Civil Courts jurisdiction in respect of acts of Registrar, arbitrator and liquidator in Burma, see 1937 Rang. 373.

RULES—APPLICABILITY.—There is no procedure for setting aside an ex parte decree in the rules. If the Sub-Deputy Registrar thinks it necessary to give an opportunity to the president or other members of the society to show that the decree was in any respect obviously erroneous on the face of it, he can do so. 1932 M.W. N. 18. The Act and the rules made thereunder are intended to provide a speedy remedy for the settlement of disputes and it is for that purpose that such cases have been removed from the jurisdiction of the ordinary Civil Courts. The enforcement of a mortgage under the Act is not subject to but is independent of O. 34 of the C.P. Code. The fact that the procedure of O. 34 was not adopted or that the mortgagor was not allowed a period of six months in accordance with O. 34 does not invalidate the decision of the Registrar which is in effect and substance a final decree for the sale of the mortgaged property. 142 I.C. 487=1933 N. 211.

JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURT.—By S. 42 (6), Co-operative Societies Act, the liquidator is entitled to determine the contribution to be made by the members and past members of the society. But if a party denies that he is a member, he is entitled to have that question determined by the Court and the Court has jurisdiction to try the suit. 1937 Cal. 643.

SEC. 43.—Where the defendant dies before institution of proceedings relating to an award under Co-operative Societies Act, the award passed against him is a nullity and cannot be executed. 39 P.L.R. 139=1937 L. 63. An award granted under Co-operative Societies Act is to be executed in the same manner as a decree of Civil Court. 39 P.L.R. 139=1937 L. 63. On a reference made to the Registrar for an award under the Co-operative Societies Act, the Registrar acts as a Court and he has jurisdiction to decide whether a dispute before him is time barred or not. Once he has decided that rightly or wrongly, it cannot be said that he acted without jurisdiction. 181 I.C. 512=1939 Pat. 500. But see 1940 Rang. 157. Where an award made under the Co-operative Societies Act is alleged to have been made without jurisdiction and not according to the terms of the Act, it is open to the person aggrieved to bring a suit to that effect but such objections cannot be taken in the execution proceedings started in pursuance of the award, the objector's remedy being an appeal to the Registrar. 180 I.C. 242=1939 Lah. 40. See also 1940 Sind 147.

CL. (1).—Under R. 13 (7) of the Rules framed by the Government of Assam under S. 43 of the Act, an order of a Registrar or of the Chief Commissioner in appeal is, as between the parties to the dispute, not liable to be called into question in any Civil Court or Revenue Court and is final. This presupposes however that the order in question is in accordance with the Act and the rules. Where, therefore, the plaintiff calls into question the reference to the Registrar and alleges that there was no compliance by him with the procedure in the rules and pleads that the rules themselves are ultra vires in so far as they oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Court, the Civil Court has jurisdiction to entertain his suit. 41 C.W.N. 670.

RULES—MADRAS RULES—R. 14—POWERS OF REGISTRAR—QUAERE.—If the Registrar of Co-operative Societies acting under R. 14 is competent to pass a mortgage decree and not merely a money decree, i.e., a mortgage decree which can straight away be enforced apart from the procedure contained in O. 34, R. 14, C.P. Code. 1933 M.W.N. 1938=38 L.W. 880. Statutory Rules under R. 14 (5) (b)—Award under Act—Application to Civil Court to enforce—Limitation. 71 M.L.J. 759. See also I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 460.

BENGAL RULES.—The limits within which the rule-making powers of the Local Government could be exercised are contained in sub-S. (1) of S. 43. Sub-S. (2) simply sets out by way of illustration certain matters, on which rules are considered desirable. It does not in any way limit the powers given by sub-S. (1) and the terms mentioned therein do not exhaust the list of matters on which rules might be framed by the Local Government. Accordingly R. 28 (3) of the Rules framed by the Local Government which relates to distribution of profits in case of societies with limited liability and which is framed to carry out the purpose in S. 33 is not ultra vires, although there is no specific item mentioned in S. 43 (2) relating to distribution of profits in case of Societies with limited liability. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 144=42 C.W.N. 461=1938 Cal. 394. See also 1938 Cal. 327. Where the plaintiff sues a Co-operative Society for recovery of a certain sum alleged to be due to him as dividend on certain preference shares held by him, on a declaration that the constitution of the Board of management was illegal, that it had no authority to call an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders, and that the resolution passed at the meeting thus convened refusing dividend was illegal and ultra vires, the matter is not one which is withdrawn from the Courts by R. 22 of the Rules framed by the Local Government under S. 43 of the Act, and a suit is maintainable in a Civil Court. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 144=42 C.W.N. 461=1938 Cal. 394. The different clauses of sub-S. (2) of S. 43 are only illustrative and do not restrict the general rule-making power to implement the avowed objects of the Act conferred by sub-S. (1). Sub-Rr. (2), (5) and (6) of R. 22 framed by the Local Government under the powers conferred by S. 43 of the Act are not ultra vires. I. L. R. (1938) 2 Cal. 103=42 C.W.N. 391=1938 Cal. 327. An award relating to a mortgage in favour of a Co-operative Society made by the Registrar under the Rules made by the Local Government under the provisions of S. 43 (1) can in no sense be a mortgage decree. The Registrar has no power to decide disputed claims of priority or to make a decision which in any way affects the rights of other persons interested either in the mortgage security or in the equity of redemption. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 551=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 290. Rule 22—Award—Execution—Limitation—Starting point, See I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 460. Where a dispute between the committee and a member is referred to arbitration under R. 22, Sub-r. (1) of the Rules framed by the Government of Bengal, the proceedings before the arbitrator are not ab initio void for want of jurisdiction merely because a non-member is also a party to the suit. If the non-member submits to the jurisdiction of the arbitrator, he brings himself within the scope of R. 22, and under sub-R. (6) of that rule the award is not liable to be called into question by him in any Civil or Revenue Court and would be final. 41 C.W.N. 667=65 C.L.J. 206. Rule 22 (6) of the Rules framed under S. 43 of the Co-operative Societies Act is not ultra vires of the Local Government. But if the award is without jurisdiction, the Civil Court can certainly declare it a nullity. Even if the arbitrator is validly appointed, the award can still be a nullity if there is violation of the rules regulating the arbitration in matters of substance. Not only a proper appointment of the arbitrator in accordance with the rules is essential for creating jurisdiction in the arbitrator but the fundamental rules attaching restraint to the exercise of authority by the arbitrator are equally mandatory and a violation of them would nullify the award. But the fact that the arbitrator has ignored the law of limitation is not a ground which would entitle the Civil Court to interfere. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 82=188 I.C. 213=1940 Cal. 193. But see 1940 Rang. 157; 1937 Rang. 363. Before R. 22 (1) of the rules framed under S. 43 (2) (1) can apply, two conditions must co-exist: (1) the dispute must touch the business of the registered Society and (2) the dispute must be one between members or past members of the Society, or persons claiming through a member or past member inter se or the dispute must be one between a member or past member, or persons so claiming on the one hand and the committee or any officer of the Society on the other. Where a Co-operative Society assigns to the plaintiff who is a non-member a loan advanced by it to the defendant, a suit by the plaintiff for the recovery of the loan from the defendant is not excluded from the jurisdiction of the Civil Court by the provisions of R. 22 (1), as neither of the conditions mentioned above are fulfilled. 50 C. W. N. 7. R. 25 of the Rules framed by the Local Government which requires the Co-operative Societies to inform the Registrar appointed under the Co-operative Societies Act whenever a loan exceeding Rs. 1,000 is granted, is a sort of departmental rule the breach of which would be a matter between the particular Co-operative Society and the Registrar but would not make the loan given an invalid one nor a loan not given by a Co-operative Society. 49 C.W.N. 377=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 350.

C. P. RULES.—The Co-operative Societies Act nowhere gives any power to the Commissioner or any other Revenue Officer to examine or revise the proceedings of the Registrar or other officer of the department. A Revenue Court has no jurisdiction to question and disregard an award given by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies and the certificate issued to the Revenue Courts for recovery of the amount under the award, in pursuance of R. 33 of the rules framed under S. 43 of the Act. 1939 N.L.J. 405. Where an award under the rules framed under S. 43 (1) was in these terms: 'I therefore in this my award order that the J. Co-operative Society consisting of the following members or past members all of whom are jointly and severally liable, for the debts of the Society, pay at once' and proceeded to give a list of members, the decree on the face of it is only an award against the J. Society alone and not against its members. Moreover it is not legally possible for a Registrar to make an award against the member personally for a debt of the Society. I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 604=1938 Nag. 434. A "dispute" within the meaning of R. 26 of the Rules arises, when a demand made for payment of a debt is not immediately complied with and cannot be recovered without recourse to law. The expression "the business of a Co-operative Society" in R. 26 is not restricted to the dealings with the members of the Society only but it includes business which the Co-operative Society is empowered to transact. Where a joint Hindu family is in its corporate capacity a member of a Co-operative Society and also its treasurer, it cannot exonerate itself from the liability arising in its capacity as treasurer by discarding its character as member. As member of the Society it is bound to fulfil the obligation which it has undertaken as treasurer of the Society and in that sense a dispute relating thereto can well be treated as a domestic dispute between the member on the one side and the Society on the other. The Registrar of the Co-operative Societies has, therefore, jurisdiction to decide that dispute. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 677=1945 N.L.J. 482. Under R. 33 of the Rules framed under S. 43 of the Deputy Commissioner cannot sell any property specified in the award by force of the award, as a Civil Court can. All that he can do under that rule is that he can recover "any sum falling due under the award" as an arrear of land revenue. Accordingly he is not empowered to deal with the property covered by the award except under the powers conferred on him under S. 128 of the C.P. Land Revenue Act. Under this section, if the award does not create a charge on the property, he can only sell it if he first attaches it; and one who purchases it before such attachment is protected. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 651=1945 N. L.J. 510=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 281. A co-operative Bank has no power to suspend an accountant of the Bank. An accountant has no power to give any direction in regard to the business of the Bank and he is, thus, not an officer within the meaning of S. 2 (d); he is merely a servant of the Bank. There is no statutory provision in the Act empowering the Bank to appoint, suspend or dismiss its servants. Nor has any rule been framed by the Provincial Government empowering the Bank to do so. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 457=1945 N.L.J. 221=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 183.

PESHAWAR RULES.—No procedure is provided in R. 18 for the conducting of the inquiry either by the Registrar or by the arbitrator. It would therefore be unsafe to rely on the appointment of a guardian by a Registrar in the summary proceeding and to extend it to the execution in a Civil Court, which should by its very nature be governed by the Civil Procedure Code. As a matter of general policy, therefore, it would be just that whenever an executing Court is approached to carry out the order of the Registrar and there are minors in the case, the execution Judge should act under O. 32, C.P. Code, and appoint a proper person to protect the interests of the minors concerned. Failure of the execution Judge to do so renders the execution proceedings void. A.I.R. 1945 Pesh. 39.

PUNJAB RULES.—Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit between a Society and its members, etc., by virtue of R. 18 framed by the Punjab Government under S. 43 (1). 1937 Lah. 268.

U. P. RULES.—Jurisdiction has been specially given to the Registrar of Co-operative Societies to decide certain matters under R. 115 of the rules framed by the U. P. Government under S. 43 (2) (i) or to refer those matters for decision by an arbitrator. As this jurisdiction is contrary to the ordinary

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) subject to the provisions of section 5, prescribe the maximum number of shares or portion of the capital of a society which may be held by a member;

(b) prescribe the forms to be used and the conditions to be complied with in the making of applications for the registration of a society and the procedure in the matter of such applications;

(c) prescribe the matters in respect of which a society may or shall make by-laws and for the procedure to be followed in making, altering and abrogating by-laws, and the conditions to be satisfied prior to such making, alteration or abrogation;

(d) prescribe the conditions to be complied with by persons applying for admission or admitted as members, and provide for the election and admission of members, and the payment to be made and the interest to be acquired before the exercise of the right of membership;

(e) regulate the manner in which funds may be raised by means of shares or debentures or otherwise;

(f) provide for general meetings of the members and for the procedure at such meetings and the powers to be exercised by such meetings;

(g) provide for the appointment, suspension and removal of the members of the committee and other officers, and for the procedure at meetings of the committee, and for the powers to be exercised and the duties to be performed by the committee and other officers;

(h) prescribe the accounts and books to be kept by a society and provide for the audit of such accounts and the charges, if any, to be made for such audit, and for the periodical publication of a balance-sheet showing the assets and liabilities of a society;

(i) prescribe the returns to be submitted by a society to the Registrar and provide for the persons by whom and the form in which such returns shall be submitted;

(j) provide for the persons by whom and the form in which copies of entries in books of societies may be certified;

(k) provide for the formation and maintenance of a Register of members and, where the liability of the members is limited by shares, of a register of shares;

(l) provide that any dispute touching the business of a society between members or past members of the society or persons claiming through a member jurisdiction of Civil Courts, it must be construed strictly. The passing of a personal decree against an alleged representative of a past deceased member (who denies that he is such a representative) is clearly outside the sub-section or the rule. Both the rule and sub-section give jurisdiction to the Registrar or the arbitrator merely to decide matters concerning the estate of a deceased member. The passing of a personal decree cannot come under this jurisdiction. As such a Civil Court can set aside such a decree. 1940 A.L.J. 58=1940 All. 482. All that R. 137

(1) lays down is that the Collector can adopt the same methods for the realisation of the money as he can adopt for the recovery of an arrear of revenue. It does not invest a debt due to Co-operative Society with the character of land revenue due to the Crown. It merely provides a summary procedure for the realisation of the money and does not confer a substantive right of priority over other debts. I.L.R. (1940) All. 181=1940 A.L.J. 45=1940 All. 188.

SEC. 43 (2) (l).—The words “touching the business of a society” in S. 43 (2) (l) are not confined to disputes in connection with the internal management of the affairs of a society or dispute in regard to principles which would regulate the conduct of the business thereof. 28 C.W.N. 131=1924 C. 467. See also 47 A. 374=23 A.L.J. 129=1925 A. 356; 14 P. 292 (Dispute between member and society in respect of loan by society). The words “concerning the business of a Society” occurring in S. 43 (2), Cl. (l) and in R. 22 (1) framed by the Local Government, cannot be limited to disputes concerning the internal management of the Society. The principal business of a Society being to finance its members, a dispute concerning the financial obligations of its members to the Society would be a dispute concerning the business of the Society. The use of the word "committee" in S. 43 (2), Cl. (1) and R. 22 (1) is sufficient to indicate a dispute with the Society itself and enable proceedings to be initiated and carried on before the authority referred to therein in the name of the Society. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 103=42 C.W.N. 391=1938 Cal. 327. There would be a dispute so long as a claim is asserted by one party and denied by the other, be the claim a false or a true one. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 103=42 C.W.N. 391=1938 Cal. 327. A claim by one co-operative society against another for a sum of money as being due is enough to constitute a dispute within the meaning of R. 14. 1932 M. W. N. 18. R. 14 (4) only requires that the parties should be heard only when they are present, and it is impossible for the Registrar to hear a party who is absent. (Ibid.) A dispute between a member who happens to be an officer of a co-operative society and the society in regard to sums of money entrusted to the former for purchase of certain articles is within S. 43 (2) (i) of the Act. 44 M.L.J. 382=72 I.C. 838=1923 M. 481. Where a Co-operative Society has considered its treasurer to be responsible for embezzlement of money deposited with it by a person and the treasurer has contended that he was not concerned with the alleged embezzlement there is clearly a dispute between the treasurer and the society regarding question of embezzlement of money and hence the dispute can be referred to arbitration. 42 P.L.R. 273=1939 Lah. 301. It is only members and persons claiming through members against whom the Registrar can pronounce a decision which can be executed as a Civil Court decree. The society must enforce in the regular course any claim which it may have against outsiders. The decision of the registrar, so far as it affects a stranger is a nullity as being made without jurisdiction. 148 I.C. 730=15 P.L.T. 111=1934 P. 145. Sub-r. (1) of R. 22 does not confine the dispute to such as may be referable to membership only. A dispute between the society and the members in their capacity as brokers can be the subject of reference. 36 C.W.N. 121=55 C.L.J. 89. R. 22 (b) is not meant to take away the jurisdiction of an executing Court to enquire into the competency of the award on the ground of jurisdiction. 36 C.W.N. 121. A dispute between a member who happens to be an officer of a co-operative society on the one hand and the committee or an officer thereof on the other falls within the words of the section. 36 C.W.N. 121. An award given by the Inspector of Co-operative Societies appointed as arbitrator by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies under R. 22 of the Bengal Government Rules is not an award of an arbitrator in the ordinary sense and it need not be filed in Court before it can be enforced. 60 C. 906=37 C.W.N. 649=1933 C. 695. See also 60 C.L.J. 572; 36 C.W.N. 121; I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 551. In order that an award based on an arbitration under the Act may be binding the Society must prove that he was a member of the Society at the time when the reference to arbitration was made. Although ordinarily a Co-operative Society lends money only to its members, a Court cannot hold merely on the basis of an alleged loan taken by a person that he must have been a member on the date on which he took the loan, when the affairs of the Society do not appear to have been carried on in regular manner and it is found by the Court that the register produced by the Society is a fabricated one. 42 P.L.R. 112=1940 Lah. 193. Where a dispute between the committee and a member is referred to arbitration under R. 22, sub-R. (1) of the Rules framed by the Government of Bengal under S. 43 of the Act, the proceedings before the arbitrator are not ab initio void for want of jurisdiction merely because a non-member is also a party to the dispute. If the non-member submits to the jurisdiction of the arbitrator, he brings himself within the scope of R. 22, and under sub-r. (6) of that rule the award is not liable to be called into question by him in any Civil or Revenue Court and would be in all respects, final and conclusive. 41 C.W.N. 667=65 C.L.J. 206. See also 39 C.W.N. 1301. An award under the Act which is not appealed against within one month, becomes final, and cannot interfered with by the executing Court, even though the award may be anomalous and erroneous, 164 I.C. 802=40 C.W.N. 89; 1935 C. 418. When an Inspector was appointed arbitrator to decide a dispute between two societies and after he gave his award one of the societies sued to declare the reference and award invalid. Held, that the suit was maintainable in the Civil Court. Quere, whether R. 22 (6) framed by the Bengal Government under S. 43 was ultra vires. 60 C. 1207=37 C.W.N. 843. Where it is sought to entertain or continue proceedings against the legal representatives of a deceased debtor, the arbitrators are competent to decide who are the legal representatives. If a wrong conclusion is arrived at with regard to a particular person that person has got a remedy under the Act of filing an appeal to the registrar. The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to interfere. 28 Bom.L.R. 598=1926 B. 352. The execution of an award settling the dispute between the Society and its member was held by the executing Court as time barred and the Society again referred the same dispute to arbitration and obtained an award. Held, that the dispute between the Society and its member was determined by the first award and the subsequent dispute referred by the Society to arbitration was one which under the rules made under S. 43 could only or past member or between a member or past member or persons so claiming and the committee or any officer shall be referred to the Registrar for decision or, if he so directs, to arbitration, and prescribe the mode of appointing an arbitrator or arbitrators and the procedure to be followed in proceedings before the Registrar or such arbitrator or arbitrators, and the enforcement of the decisions of the Registrar or the awards of arbitrators;

be decided by the executing Court for it related wholly to the discharge of the award. The proceedings of the executing Court were subject to the ordinary laws and if the society neglected to execute the award within time, its right, to have the award enforced, was lost, and that was an end of the dispute which left nothing to be referred to arbitration. Hence the second award was one which could not be passed within the scope of the Act and the rules made under it and a suit could lie to have it declared void. 38 P.L.R. 113=1936 L. 901. A dispute between A, B and C who were all members of Society related to a transaction which took place between A and the Society. The books of the Society showed that certain money had been borrowed by A from the Society, but in reality it had been misappropriated by B and C, the Secretary. Held, that the dispute was concerning the business of the Society between three of its members and revision could lie from an order of the executing Court refusing to execute an award on the dispute as it failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law. 165 I.C. 511=1936 L. 786. See also 1935 L. 947; 1935 L. 631. Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit between a Society and its members, etc., by virtue of R. 18 framed by the Punjab Government under S. 43 (1). 1937 L. 268. After the death of a Secretary of a Co-operative Society the Union accepted liability for the members' deposits which had been embezzled by the late Secretary. The dispute between the Union and the heirs of the deceased was referred to arbitration but the heirs refused to join in the reference. Held, that the submission and the award were not within the scope of the rules under the Act and the award could not be enforced against the heirs of the deceased. 133 I.C. 888=32 P.L.R. 780. Rr. 31 and 34 framed under S. 43, provide that awards shall be enforceable as decrees of a Court having local jurisdiction if application is made to it to enforce it. 47 B. 92=65 I.C. 212; 97 I.C. 288 (2)=1926 L. 547. Where the rules provide for reference of disputes to Registrar, Civil Courts have no jurisdiction. 23 A.L.J. 129=47 A. 374=1925 A. 356; 71 I.C. 722=1924 L. 418. But see also 6 P.L.T. 452=88 I.C. 671=1925 P. 575; 59 I.C. 1165=36 C.W.N. 414=1932 C. 317; 60 C.L.J. 572; 42 C.W.N. 391=1938 Cal. 857. The ground that a minor was not properly represented before the arbitrator, is not sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Civil Court to entertain the suit for a declaration that the award was not binding on the minor. 146 I.C. 565=1933 L. 376. The question whether certain persons are the legal representatives of a deceased member entitled to have shares in the bank and to be registered as shareholders in the bank in the place of the deceased is a question which does not relate to the "business" or the management of the society and the decision of the Registrar on such a question being referred to him is not final but is subject to a right of suit in the Civil Court. (36 C.W.N. 414, Foll.) 151 I.C. 165=38 C.W.N. 459=1934 C. 537. A Court having power to execute an award can transfer it for execution. 24 Bom.L.R. 909=47 B. 92. An award was made at Poona under rules framed under S. 43 and the Judge of the Small Cause Court, Poona, was requested to transfer the decree under S. 39, C. P. Code, but he refused. Held, that he was empowered to transfer the decree and he could refuse to retransfer it. 46 B. 128=23 Bom.L.R. 909. An ex parte decree was passed, in a suit in a Civil Court instituted by a Co-operative Society, for money lent on a bond executed by a member of the society. Subsequently there was an agreement, recorded in Court, under which the member agreed to pay the decretal amount in instalments of Rs. 10 per month. Default having been committed, execution proceedings were started, and the objection was raised that the decree was void and without jurisdiction, regard being had to S. 43 of the Act and R. 22 framed thereunder by the Bengal Government. Held, that the agreement was valid and could be enforced in execution and that it was not open to the defendant to go back on the same or to contend that the decree was void and unenforceable. 61 C.L.J. 24=39 C.W.N. 363.

SEC. 43 (2) (1) AND (s).—An award made by a person incompetent to be arbitrator is null and void and the Civil Court has jurisdiction to declare it void. But where it is made by a person validly appointed as arbitrator, it is not a nullity although the procedure adopted by the arbitrator is materially irregular and he is guilty of misconduct. Such an award has to be set aside only by proceedings provided for by the rules under S. 43 and the jurisdiction of the Civil Court

(n) provide for the mode in which the value of a deceased member's interest shall be ascertained, and for the nomination of a person to whom such interest may be paid or transferred;

(o) prescribe the payments to be made and the conditions to be complied with by members applying for loans, the period for which loans may be made, and the amount which may be lent, to an individual member;

(p) provide for the formation and maintenance of reserve funds, and the objects to which such funds may be applied, and for the investment of any funds under the control of the society;

(q) prescribe the extent to which a society may limit the number of its members;

(r) prescribe the conditions under which profits may be distributed to the members of a society with unlimited liability and the maximum rate of dividend which may be paid by societies;

(s) subject to the provisions of section 39, determine in what cases an appeal shall lie from the orders of the Registrar, and prescribe the procedure to be followed in presenting and disposing of such appeals; and

(t) prescribe the procedure to be followed by a liquidator appointed under section 42, and the cases in which an appeal shall lie from the order of such liquidator.

(3) The Provincial Government may delegate, subject to such conditions, if any, as it thinks fit, all or any of its powers to make rules under this section to any authority specified in the order of delegation.

(4) The power to make rules conferred by this section is subject to the condition of the rules being made after previous publication.

REPEAL OF ENACTMENTS.

[24th February, 1914.]

An Act to modify and add to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911.

WHEREAS it is expedient to modify and add to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911, in its application to British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN COPYRIGHT ACT, 1914.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan, the District of Angul and the Sonthal Parganas.

Sec. 1.—Distinction between 'copyright' and 'patent', 1938 A.L.J. 390. In a case relating to infringement of copyright, it is not only proper but essential that the case should be tried with the help of experts who might be appointed commissioners to investigate and report similarities. (Ibid.) The compiler of a work in which absolute originality is by the very nature of the work excluded is entitled, without exposing himself to a charge of piracy, to make use of preceding works upon the subject, where he bestows such mental labour upon what he has taken, and subjects it to such revision and correction as to produce an original result. But no one is entitled to convey the same information, merely with some additions. (Ibid.)

ASSIGNMENT OF COPYRIGHT.—Where direct words are not used to convey a right and the matter is one of inference by implication from the phrases used, the evidence of the parties, if they are not interested one way or the other in the matter, is the surest of all guides as to the meaning of the phrases used. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 433.

ASSIGNMENT—FUTURE WORK.—There cannot possibly be a transfer of copyright or assignment of copyright in a non-existing work. Where there is no proof that the work was substantially completed at the time when document transferring copyright was drawn up and on the face of it the document refers to a future work, copy right cannot be transferred by it. 41 P.L.R. 879=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 433. Assignment—Registration not necessary. I.L.R. (1939) A. 275=A.I.R. 1939 All. 305=1939 A.L.J. 71.

INFRINGEMENT—BURDEN OF PROOF.—In an action for infringement of a copyright, it is not for the defendant to prove that there has been no infringement. It is for the plaintiff, on whom the onus lies, to prove that in fact there has been an infringement. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 295=41 Bom.L.R. 530=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 347. Author agreeing to grant to publishers sole and exclusive licence to print, publish and sell his work—Agreement is merely a publishing arrangement and does not amount to an assignment of copyright. See I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 84=40 P.L.R. 622=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 173. Where a person produces and publishes a picture of an idol with several variations and points of difference and embellishments which are the result of his own imagination, he acquires a copyright in the reproduction, as it is an original work containing skill and artistic merit. If another person brings out a picture of the same idol with the same variations and points of difference and embellishments, he infringes the copyright of the former in the picture. The test and the best way of detecting the piracy in an alleged infringing work is to make a careful examina-

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

(1) "the Copyright Act" means the Act of Parliament entitled the Copyright Act, 1911; and

(2) words and expressions defined in the Copyright Act have the same meanings as in that Act.

CONSTRUCTION AND MODIFICATION OF THE COPYRIGHT ACT.

3. In the application to British India of the Copyright Act (a copy of which Act, except such of the provisions thereof as are expressly restricted to the United Kingdom, is set out in the First Schedule), the following modifications shall be made, namely:—

(1) the powers of the Board of Trade under section 3 shall, in the case of works first published in British India, be exercised by the Governor-General in Council;

(2) the powers of the Board of Trade under section 19 shall, as regards records, perforated rolls and other contrivances, the original plate of which was made in British India, be exercised by the Central Government; and the confirmation of Parliament shall not be necessary to the exercise of any of these powers;

(3) the references in section 19, sub-section (4) and in section 24, sub-section (1), to arbitration shall be read as references to arbitration in accordance with the law for the time being in force in that part of British India in which the dispute occurs;

(4) as regards works the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the works resident in British India, and as regards works first published in British India, the reference in section 22 to the Patents and Designs Act, 1907, shall be construed as a reference to the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, and the reference in the said section to section 86 of the Patents and Designs Act, 1907, shall be construed as a reference to section 77 of the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911;

(5) as regards works first published in British India, the reference in section 24, sub-section (1), proviso (a), to the London Gazette and two London newspapers shall be construed as a reference to the Gazette of India and two newspapers published in British India; and the reference in proviso (b) of the same sub-section of the same section to the 26th day of July, 1910, shall, as regards works the authors whereof were at the time of making of the works resident in British India, and as regards works first published in British India, be construed as a reference to the 30th day of October, 1912.

4. (1) In the case of works first published in British India, copyright shall be subject to this limitation that the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform or publish a translation of works first published in British India. shall subsist only for a period of ten years from the date of the first publication of the work:

tion of it to see whether any of the deviations and mistakes which artistic licence permits in the original have been reproduced in the alleged infringing copy. 46 Bom.L.R. 679.

SEC. 5.—There cannot be an infringement of performing right in a musical composition (assuming it to exist) unless there has been a public performance of the musical composition by the defendant. A musical composition is performed by audible reproduction, by the voice or by musical instruments or by mechanical methods of reproduction. Where not a word of a song is repeated in any form in a talkie film except that the title of the song is thrown on the film at the outset this does not constitute infringement of performing right in musical composition. 187 I.C. 449=21 P.L.T. 355 =A.I.B. 1940 P.C. 55 (P.C.).

Provided that if within the said period the author, or any person to whom he has granted permission so to do, publishes a translation of any such work in any language, copyright in such work as regards the sole right to produce, re-produce, perform or publish a translation in that language shall not be subject to the limitation prescribed in this sub-section.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) the expression "author" includes the legal representative of a deceased author.

5. In the application of the Copyright Act musical works the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the works resident in British India, or to musical works first published in British India, the term "musical work" shall, save as otherwise expressly provided by the Copyright Act, mean 'any combination of melody and harmony, or either of them, which has been reduced to writing.'

6. (1) Copies made out of British India of any work in which copyright subsists, which if made in British India would infringe copyright, and as to which the owner of the copyright gives notice in writing by himself or his agent to the Chief Customs officer, as defined in the Sea Customs Act, 1878, that he is desirous that such copies should not be imported into British India, shall not be so imported, and shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be deemed to be prohibited, imports within the meaning of section 18 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878.

(2) Before detaining any such copies, or taking any further proceedings with a view to the confiscation thereof, such Chief Customs officer, or any other officer appointed by ¹[the Chief Customs authority] in this behalf, may require the regulations under this section, whether as to information, security, conditions or other matters, to be complied with, and may satisfy himself, in accordance with these regulations, that the copies are such as are prohibited by this section to be imported.

(3) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette make regulations, either general or special, respecting the detention and confiscation of copies the importation of which is prohibited by this section, and the conditions, if any, to be fulfilled before such detention and confiscation; and may, by such regulations, determine the information, notices and security to be given, and the evidence requisite for any of the purposes of this section, and the mode of verification of such evidence.

(4) Such regulations may apply to copies of all works the importation of copies of which is prohibited by this section, or different regulations may be made respecting different classes of such works.

(5) The regulations may provide for the informant reimbursing the ²[Central Government] all expenses and damages incurred in respect of any detention made on his information, and of any proceedings consequent on such detention, and may provide that notices given under the Copyright Act to the Commissioners of Customs and Excise of the United Kingdom, and communicated by that authority to any authority in British India, shall be deemed to have been given by the owner to the said Chief Customs officer.

(6) This section shall have effect as the necessary modification of section 14 of the Copyright Act.

7. If any person knowingly—

(a) makes for sale or hire any infringing copy of a work in which copyright subsists; or

(b) sells or lets for hire, or by way of trade exposes or offers for sale or hire, any infringing copy of any such work; or

(c) distributes infringing copies of any such work, either for the purposes of trade or to such an extent as to affect prejudicially the owner of the copyright; or

(d) by way of trade exhibits in public any infringing copy of any such work; or

(e) imports for sale or hire into British India any infringing copy of any such work;

he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty rupees for every copy dealt with in contravention of this section, but not exceeding five hundred rupees in respect of the same transaction.

8. If any person knowingly makes, or has in his possession, any plate for the purpose of making infringing copies of any work in which copyright subsists, or knowingly and for his private profit causes any such work to be performed in public without the consent of the owner of the copyright, he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

9. If any person, after having been previously convicted of an offence punishable under section 7 or section 8, is subsequently convicted of an offence punishable under either of these sections, he shall be punishable with

SEC. 7.—The mere failure of an author to make the payment prescribed by sec. 5 of Act XX of 1847 does not deprive him of his copyright in his book. On the other hand, the proviso to sec. 14 of the Act definitely states the contrary. It is only the right to sue under that Act that is prohibited if the registration fee has not been paid. 53 M.L.J. 529=105 I.C. 669=1927 M. 981. The procedure about payment of fees prescribed by Act XX of 1847 has no place in the present Act III of 1914, and therefore a complaint under sec. 7 of the new Act cannot be thrown out on the ground of non-payment of fees. (Ibid.). An acquittal will be set aside in revision in a case where the Court below has proceeded on a wrong view of the law, and where the matter is of great importance to the complainant in his position as author of a book, which, if the acquittal stands, will be pirated by the accused who will secure for himself the gains that ought legitimately to go to the complainant. (Ibid.) Under the old Act "copyright" did not include the exclusive right of translation but the author of a book who made a translation of it was entitled to a copyright in it as if it were an original work. 13 A.L.J. 636=16 Cr. L.J. 656=30 I.C. 480; offence where complete. 28 P.B. 1916 (Cr.). On this section, see also 51 M. 180.

Colourable Imitation—Question of Fact.—The question whether there has been an infringement of copyright depends on whether a colourable imitation has been made. Whether a work is a colourable imitation of another is a question of fact. Similarity is a great point to be considered but mere similarity is not enough. A conglomeration of similarities which cannot be mere coincidence is evidence of infringement. 126 I.C. 197=51 C.L.J. 243=34 C.W.N. 540. But see also 142 I.C. 815=1933 P.C. 26=64 M.L.J. 193 (P.C.). Infringement of copyright of pictures—Offending pictures must be copies of substantial portions of copyright pictures. 112 I.C. 784=30 Cr.L.J. 16=33 C.W.N. 172. As to infringement of right in a musical composition, see 32 L.W. 10=1940 P.C. 55 (P.C.). In a criminal proceeding started for infringement of copyright of books the order was "summon the accused under sec. 7, Act III of 1914". From the order it did not appear under which clause of sec. 7 the accused was being summoned nor was it clear from the order sheet that the accused knew under what clause of sec. 7 he was going to be tried. Held, that the accused had not had a fair trial. 152 I.C. 248=1934 P. 522.

up to the owner of the copyright, or otherwise dealt with as the Court may think fit.

(2) Any person affected by an order under sub-section (1) may, within thirty days of the date of such order, appeal to the Court to which appeals from the Court making the order ordinarily lie; and such appellate Court may direct that execution of the order be stayed pending consideration of the appeal.

Cognizance of offences.

11. No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence against this Act.

Saving in case of infringement by construction of building.

12. The provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to any case to which section 9 of the Copyright Act, regarding the restrictions on remedies in the case of a work of architecture applies.

SCHEDULES.

[16th December, 1911.]

An Act to amend and consolidate the law relating to copyright.

Be it enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

PART I.IMPERIAL COPYRIGHT.Rights.*

1. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, copyright shall subsist throughout the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends for the term hereinafter mentioned in every original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic work, if—

SECS. 1 AND 2, GEO. V., c. 46—LAW BEFORE—EXTENT OF COPYRIGHT.—Even under the Copyright Act, XX of 1847, copyright is infringed not merely by printing and publication but also by performance of the works. 38 C.W.N. 611=1934 C. 671. The Imperial Copyright Act of 1911 is applicable to India under the Indian Copyright Act except in so far as it has been modified by the latter Act. The sole right to offer for sale the copyright in certain dramas belongs to the owner of the copyright and hence an advertisement by another claiming that he had the right to sell the same, clearly comes under the definition of the word "Infringement" of "copyright". The language of sec. 2 of the Imperial Copyright Act, is wide enough to include not only a sale of the copyright by a person not entitled to sell the same but also an attempted sale, and the owner can in such a case claim a declaration and if necessary an injunction. Wherever the advertisements circulated, there is a cause of action for the plaintiff and jurisdiction for the Courts. 1944 A.L.J. 496XI.L.R. (1945) All. 20=1945 All. 55.

CONSTRUCTION OF ACT.—All laws which put a restraint upon human activity and enterprise must be construed in a reasonable and generous spirit. Under the guise of a copyright a plaintiff cannot ask the Court to close all the avenues of research and scholarship and all frontiers of human knowledge. 1934 L. 777.

SEC. 1 (1).—"Original" does not relate to ideas. 46 M.L.J. 637=51 I.A. 109=48 B.

(a) in the case of a published work, the work was first published within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid; and

(b) in the case of an unpublished work, the author was at the date of the making of the work a British subject or resident within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid;

308=28 C.W.N. 613=1938 A.L.J. 390. The laws of copyright do not protect ideas. Its protection falls within the patent laws. While a patentee has the sole right to use his invention within certain limits and if anybody uses the patent, though on independent investigations, there is infringement of the patent, in the case of an infringement of copyright, it must be shown that the defendant has derived his work from the plaintiff. I.L.R. (1938) All. 370=1938 A. L. J. 390=A.I.R. 1938 All. 266. The compiler of a work in which absolute originality is by the very nature of the work excluded is entitled, without exposing himself to a charge of piracy, to make use of preceding works upon the subject, where he bestows such mental labour upon what he has taken, and subjects it to such revision and correction as to produce an original result. But no one is entitled to convey the same information, merely with some additions. I.L.R. 1938 All. 370=1938 A.L.J. 390=1938 All. 266. Where certain tables (for instances list of dates and abridgement from post office guide) inserted in the plaintiff's diary are original in the sense that the tables were arranged by somebody, and are not to be found elsewhere, copyright may well subsist in them. The collection of such tables is a compilation which is entitled to copyright. (1943) 1 All. E.R. 322 (C.A.).

ORIGINAL WORKS include photographs taken from paintings, drawings or other photographs, or from engravings from pictures. (1868) L.R. 3 Q.B. 387; 37 L.J.Q.B. 161; (1869) L.R. 4 Q.B. 715; 39 L.J.Q.B. 31. If current traditional poems embodying the main incidents of legend are given a literary form demanding considerable powers of adaptation and polishing, the result is an original literary work within the meaning of sec. 1. 42 C.W.N. 541=1938 Cal. 594. A man who gets another to sing or recite traditional poems for the express purpose of recording the words and then publishes the record, is entitled to a copyright. 178 I.O. 106=42 C.W.N. 541=1938 Cal. 594.

"ARTISTIC WORK".—Means not merely the suggestion of the subject of a painting as executed by another. (1890) 25 Q.B.D. 99; or the employer of a photographer, (1883) 11 Q.B.D. 627; 52 L.J.Q.B. 767; distinguished in (1895) 2 Ch. 531; 65 L.J. Ch. 41. In Kewrick v. Lawrence, (1890) 25 Q.B.D. 99, cards with a hand holding a pencil in the act of completing a cross in a ballot paper were held unprotected. It would appear that the work must be something—apart from work specifically included in the definitions in sec. 35—that is capable of being printed and published. See (1908) 1 K.B. 821; 77 L.J.K.B. 577; (1921) 1 Ch. 503; 90 L.J. Ch. 318.

ARCHITECT'S COPYRIGHT.—In or about 1912 H & Sons employed the firm S & B as architects in connection with buildings which shortly afterwards were erected on part of the premises of H & Sons. In 1935 H & Sons employed M as their architect in connection with an extension of the original building. The claim in the action was made by the sequels in title of S & B, who alleged that the buildings put up in accordance with M's plans, and the plans themselves, infringed the copyright vested in the plaintiffs both in the artistic design of the buildings for which S & B were responsible and in the relative plans. The main defence was that it was implicit in the transaction between H & Sons and S & B that H & Sons and any architect employed by them should stand authorised to do what in fact had been done.

Held, that (i) no such term can be implied in the original transaction on the facts of this case. (ii) An architectural plan finds its meaning and purpose in the use to which it is put and the copyright vests in the architect in regard to the building as well as the plans. The builder is only part of the machinery employed in the production of the structure which embodies the design and ideas of the architect. For copyright purposes, the author of the architectural work of art is the author of the plans and not the builder. (iii) Though the damages are presumably at large to a certain extent, the Court should proceed in fixing the same on the basis of considering what sum might fairly have been charged for a licence to use the copyright for the purpose for which it was used and one is entitled to take into account all the surrounding circumstances in exactly the same way as one is entitled to do in the case of the invasion of a common law right of property. (1941) 3 All. E.R. 144 (Ch.D.).

SEC. 1 (1) (b).—The Act does not define "the date of the making." It is submitted that such date does not mean the completion of the work, but it must be in so advanced a state that some more or less permanent record of it exists. Thus a mere idea or artistic conception cannot claim copyright. See (1887) 19 Q.B.D. 629, 636; 56 L.J. Q.B. 533; and as to proving the commencement of writing a play, see (1893) 2 Q.B. 308.

TITLE OF A WORK.—In general a title is not by itself a proper subject-matter of copyright. As a rule a title does not involve but in no other works, except so far as the protection conferred by this Act is extended by Orders in Council thereunder relating to self-governing dominions to which this Act does not extend and to foreign countries.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, "copyright" means the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever, to perform, or in the case of a lecture to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof; and shall include the sole right—

(a) to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish any translation of the work;

(b) in the case of a dramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work;

(c) in the case of a novel or other non-dramatic work, or of an artistic work, to convert it into a novel or other work, to convert it into a dramatic work, by way of performance in public or otherwise; literary composition and is not sufficiently substantial to justify a claim to protection. That statement does not mean that in particular cases a title may not be on so extensive a scale and of so important a character as to be a proper subject of protection against being copied. Where the theme of a film is different from that of a song the use for the film of a title of the song is too unsubstantial to constitute infringement of literary copyright. 187 I.C. 449=21 P.L.T. 355=52 L.W. 10=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 55 (P.C.). Musical composition, see 52 L.W. 10=1940 P.C. 55 (P.C.).

(d) in the case of a literary, dramatic, or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film, or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered;

BROADCAST OF PERFORMANCE OF MUSICAL WORK—INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT—LIABILITY OF BROADCASTERS.—The acoustic representation of a musical work by means of wireless so that the musical work is heard many miles away from the transmitting studio or place of actual performance, is a performance (public or private) of the work within the meaning of sec. 19 of the Copyright Act. The sole right of the owner of the musical work is to perform it in public, and any one may perform the work in private. The original performance in the studio may be, and generally will be, a performance in private. In such a case the broadcasted performance at the receiving end, if in public and unlicensed, will be an infringement of copyright at that place. If there is merely a broadcast from the studio where the piece is performed in studio, there is no performance in public at all. A broadcast per se is not an acoustic representation of the work. If the broadcast is picked up only by listeners in private it might be difficult to establish that there is a public performance; for each performance would be separate and each would be private. But a broadcast to all and sundry listeners will include hotels and other places of entertainment or refreshment who, if not forbidden, will perform the piece to a number of members of the public, and such a performance will be a public performance within the meaning of the Act by the owners or occupiers of those places; for their actions in connection with the receivers which they control have caused the public performances to take place. Whether the studio performance is public or private, if the persons who are responsible for that performance are also responsible for the broadcasting of the piece, there is no doubt that they have facilitated the performance of the work in public by any listener who is in a position to use a loud-speaker and thus to perform the piece in public. The question as to the position of the broadcasters in such a case, so far as regards infringement, is answered by the language of sec. 1 (2) of the Act. It is sufficient to show that they have "authorised" the performance in public of the works; and this will generally be established by proving that listeners with a licence were entitled to tune in their receivers and thus to perform the musical works in question in public as well as in private. 188 I.C. 237=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 111 (P.C.). The principal object of the Copyright Act, 1911 is to safeguard the property of authors or their transferees in their copyright and if employers of labour were entitled to cause compositions to be performed before their employees merely by buying a piece of music or gramophone record or paying for the ordinary licence for a broadcasting set, an author would very soon have his public seriously diminished and the protection of the Act would be to a great extent illusory. Accordingly the diffusion of music by broadcast and gramophone records with loud-speakers in a factory to the workmen amounts to a performance in public and an infringement and to authorise any such acts as aforesaid.

(3) For the purposes of this Act, publication, in relation to any work, means the issue of copies of the work to the public, and does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art, but for the purposes of this provision, the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art shall not be deemed to be publication of such works.

2. (1) Copyright in a work shall be deemed to be infringed by any person

Infringement of copy-

who, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, does anything the sole right to do which is by this Act conferred on the owner of the copyright:

Provided that the following acts shall not constitute an infringement of

of copyright. [(1943) 1 All.E.R. 288, affirmed.] (1943) Ch. 167=112 L.J. (Ch.) 148 = (1943) 1 All.E.R. 413 (C.A.).

SEC. 1 (2): "SOME SUBSTANTIAL PART".—Means some material and substantial part. (1878) 3 A.C. 483; 47 L.J.C.P. 545.

LECTURE.—A reporter of a speech may have copyright in the report. (1900) A.C. 539; 69 L.J. Ch. 699.

SEC. 1 (2) (a): "REPRODUCE".—These words do not include the representation of a picture by a tableau vivant, formed by grouping in the same way as the figures in the picture living persons dressed in the same way and placed in the same attitude as the figures in the picture. (1894) 2 Ch. 1; 63 L.J. Ch. 417.

SEC. 1 (2) (c).—A person who employs another to adapt a foreign play is not the "author" of the adaptation. (1856) 25 L. J.C.P. 127.

SEC. 1 (2) (d).—The term "musical work" is not defined in the Act; but see the partially repealed definition in sec. 3 of the (English) Musical Copyright Act, 1906. An arrangement for the pianoforte of the score of an opera by a person other than the composer of the opera is an independent musical composition, of which the person who arranges the score for the pianoforte, and not the composer of the original opera, is the "author or composer." (1867) L.R. 3 Q. B. 223; 37 L.J.Q.B. 84. See also 52 L.W. 10=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 55 (P.C.).

"AND TO AUTHORISE ANY SUCH ACTS AFORESAID."—In the absence of any stipulation to the contrary, the vendor of a copyright may, after the sale of the copyright sell any copies which were printed before such sale. (1869) L.R. 7 Eq. 418. The word "authorise" in sec. 1 (2) of the Act covers anything done with the knowledge and connivance of a person. 1939 Rang.L.R. 121=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 266.

SEC. 1 (3): "COPIES".—No definition is given in the Act as to what will constitute a "copy". But see (1905) 1 Ch. 519; 74 L. J. Ch. 304; (1898) 14 T.L.R. 550; 55 Sol. J. 272.

"ISSUE OF COPIES OF THE WORK TO THE PUBLIC".—Under the Copyright Act, 1842, the legislature only contemplated publication within the country. (1868) L.R. 3 H.L. 100; 37 L.J. Ch. 454; but this was altered by the International Copyright Act, 1886, and the Orders in Council thereunder. Even gratuitous circulation would seem to amount to a publication. See (1852) 12 C.B. 177; 2 V. & B. 23.

SEC. 2.—The Imperial Copyright Act of 1911 is applicable to India under the Indian Copyright Act except in so far as it has been modified by the latter Act. The sole right to offer for sale the copyright in certain dramas belongs to the owner of the copyright and hence an advertisement by another claiming that he had the right to sell the same, clearly comes under the definition of the word "Infringement" of "copyright". The language of S. 2 of the Imperial Copyright Act is wide enough to include not only a sale of the copyright by a person not entitled to sell the same but also an attempted sale and the owner can in such a case claim a declaration and if necessary an injunction. Wherever the advertisement circulated, there is a cause of action for the plaintiff and jurisdiction for the Courts. I.L.R. (1945) All. 20=1944 A.L.J. 496=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 41=A.I.R. 1945 All. 55.

SEC. 2: COPYRIGHT IN COMPILATION.—Though a book is a compilation from other works and is not original, the fact that its contents have been arranged on a new plan will give the compiler a copyright in the book. 43 A. 412=61 I.C. 394=19 A.L.J. 180. Where in an action for breach of copyright of a book much stress was laid by the plaintiff upon similarities with regard to the plan of the book, the scheme, upon phrasal identities and certain mistakes: Held, that the evidence was fantastic, and such actual coincidences as do exist were quite explicable, and should be explained that both the authors had to rely upon the accumulation of information which had been made by many authors before them and to which they have had to have recourse in writing their FINE ARTS—COPYRIGHT IN ENGLISH AND INDIAN LAW.—The Fine Arts Copyright Act (25 and 26 Vic., C. 68) does not extend to any part of the British Dominions outside the United Kingdom. [(1903) A.C. 496, F.] In England before the Statute of Anne (8 Anne, c. 19) there was no copyright at common law for an author or a publisher in his productions. 22 Bom.L.R. 808=57 I.C. 592=44 B. 720. (4 H.L.C. 815; 19 B. 557, Foll.). Where a person produces and publishes a picture of an idol with several variations and points of difference and embellishments which are the result of his own imagination, he acquires a copyright in the reproduction, as it is an original work containing skill and artistic merit. If another person brings out a picture of the same idol with the same variations and points of difference and embellishments, he infringes the copyright of the former in the picture. The test and the best way of detecting the piracy in an alleged infringing work is to make a careful examination of it to see whether any of the deviations and mistakes which artistic licence permits in the original have been reproduced in the alleged infringing copy. 46 Bom.L.R. 679.

TEST OF INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.—67 I.C. 983. Innocence is no defence to a charge of infringement of copyright. The offence is complete even if the offender authorises the performance of a musical piece without any knowledge of infringing the rights of any other person. 32 P. L. R. 20=124 I.C. 894=1930 P.C. 314 (P.C.). The question, what is an infringement of an author's copyright is one which must depend upon the circumstances of each particular case, having regard to the nature of the work into which the pirated parts are imported, and the value and extent of the infringement. See 1878 A.C. 483; 47 L.J. O.P. 545 and (1873) L.R. 8 Exch. 1; 45 L.J. Ex. 28, where the defendant was held to have been guilty of an infringement of copyright in publishing copies of all the cartoons which had appeared in Punch relating to the Emperor Napoleon III. Although there are some subjects which must lead to the same result if accurately performed, the compiler has a right to restrain others from using the result of his labours, or to sue him for doing so, as in the case of translations. In such cases the question is whether the alleged infringement is a legitimate use of the author's publication, in the fair exercise of a mental operation deserving the character of an original work. (1810) 17 Ves. 422; 11 B.R. 118. As to trade catalogues; see (1875) L.R. 19 Eq. 623 and (1882) 21 Ch.D. 369; 52 L.J. Ch. 67. As to dramatisation of novel, see (1890) 63 L.T. 762. To obtain protection, a work must have literary value. Protection has been in the case of a photograph album. (1886) 33 Ch.D. 546; 55 L.J. Ch. 892 and a perforated card, (1882) 47 L. T. 539; 52 L.J. (iii) The making or publishing of paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship, if permanently situate in a public place or building, or the making or publishing of paintings, drawings, engravings or photographs (which are not in the nature of architectural drawings or plans) of an architectural work of art;

UNPUBLISHED WORK—COPYRIGHT IN.—Where P purchased the right to publish and sell 90 songs composed by D and shortly afterwards D sold 40 of these to M, who published the same and sold them, held, that P was entitled to sue M for an injunction restraining him from publishing and selling the 40 songs in violation of the right exclusively acquired by him. 12 L.W. 151=39 M.L.J. 341=59 I.C. 229.

BOOK PRODUCED BY AUTHOR AFTER FURTHER STUDIES AND RESEARCH.—Every man can take what is useful from the original work, improve, add and give to the public the whole, comprising the original work, with the additions and improvements; and in such a case there is no invasion of any right. But a copy, much less a servile copy of a work, cannot be allowed. Where the new book is a work which the author has produced after further studies, and represents the result of ten years of research work, a mature art and a greater wealth of details in depicting the various incidents, and the imagery is of a superior type and there are fresh incidents and details, which are the result of researches made by the author into works which had existed before as well as those which came into existence after the first work had been written and published; the two works are substantially different and there is no infringement of copyright. 1934 L. 777.

LAW REPORTS—EXTRACTS BY REPORTER.—A plaintiff's copyright is infringed when the defendant reproduced not only the judgments but also part of the plaintiff's reports not forming parts of judgments and facts collected by the plaintiff from the records of cases. The reporter has no copyright in the reports of judgment, but he has protection of the law in selecting and reporting cases which he obtains by expenditure of time, labour and money. 26 I.C. 30=18 O.W.N. 1078.

INJUNCTION.—In a suit for a perpetual injunction against the defendants who, it was alleged, had infringed the plaintiff's copyright by copying a large number of judgments from the plaintiffs' journal "Lahore Law Times" and compiling and publishing a book called "Consolidated Revenue Rulings," it appeared that the allegations referred to the rulings portion only of the "Law Times" and that of past years; secondly, the defendants' publication consisted not merely of Lahore rulings, but those of other places as well; thirdly, the plaintiffs had, by bringing out a similar book at a cheaper price, substantially reduced the chance of a loss to themselves; lastly, the trial Court had, by directing the defendant to keep a separate account of their sales, amply safeguarded their interests. Held, in the circumstances, a temporary injunction was not necessary. 1933 L. 448=34 P.L.R. 249. But see also 1931 L. 624. The power of the Court to grant a temporary injunction is not limited by the absence of any finding on the question of jurisdiction which has been raised in the case. Prima facie until such a question is decided in the negative, a Court has jurisdiction to do all acts and take any action that may be sanctioned by law in connection with the case. 132 I.C. 586=1931 L. 624.

ABRIDGMENT.—Merely selecting passages and knitting them together—no infringement—Raw material or the original works are open for consultation for all—Use of another's labour and skill only is prohibited. 43 B. 308=51 I.A. 109=1924 P.C. 75=46 M.L.J. 637 (P.C.). On appeal from 23 Bom.L.R. 1299. The word "original" does not mean that the work must be the expression or original or inventive thought. Copyright Acts are not concerned with the origin of ideas, but with the expression of thought; and in the case of literary work with the expression of thought in print or writing, (Ibid.) The originality which is required relates to the expression, which must be in an original or novel form, but the work must not be copied from another work, that is, it should not originate from another. (Ibid.) See also 1934 All. 922.

EVIDENCE.—In an action for breach of copyright the plaintiff relied upon the intrinsic evidence to be derived from a comparison of the two works; and urged that on comparison between the two works it would be found that there was such an accumulation of similarities, of like omissions, of plan, of phrases, of mistakes, that the inference was irresistible that defendant should have had plaintiff's work before him before.

(iv) The publication in a collection, mainly composed of non-copyright matter, bona fide intended for the use of schools, and so described in the title and in any advertisements issued by the publisher, of short passages from published literary works not themselves published for the use of schools in which copyright subsists: provided that not more than two of such passages from works by the same author are published by the same publisher within five years, and that the source from which such passages are taken is acknowledged;

(v) The publication in a newspaper of a report of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by conspicuous written or printed notice affixed before and maintained during the lecture at or about the main entrance of the building in which the lecture is given, and, except whilst the building is being used for public worship, in a position near the lecturer; but nothing in this paragraph shall affect the provisions in paragraph (i) as to newspaper summaries;

(vi) The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work.

(2) Copyright in a work shall also be deemed to be infringed by any person who—

(a) sells or lets for hire, or by way of trade exposes or offers for sale or hire; or

(b) distributes either for the purposes of trade or to such an extent as to affect prejudicially the owner of the copyright; or

(c) by way of trade exhibits in public; or

(d) imports for sale or hire into any part of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends,

he composed his work. Held, in the case of two literary works intrinsic evidence of that kind might not be sufficient to establish a case of copying even if the direct evidence was all the other way. 1933 A.L.J. 393=1933 P.C. 26=64 M.L.J. 193 (P.C.). See also 126 I.C. 197=34 C.W.N. 540.

PRESUMPTION—BURDEN OF PROOF.—Where the defendants in an action for damages for infringement of copyright in respect of a work do not put into issue the existence of the copyright in the work, there is an irrebuttable presumption that the alleged work was a work in which copyright existed and that the plaintiff was the owner of the copyright. In this class of cases, the Court should be reluctant to sit as experts and to decide the question of infringement of copyright without the aid of expert evidence. The proper course, in such cases, is to get the opinion of experts who might be appointed Commissioners to investigate and report on the matters in issue. The opinion and finding of experts are not conclusive on the Court, but may be reviewed on exceptions. 39 C.L.J. 134=81 I.C. 754=1924 C. 595. The defence of having had no reasonable ground for suspecting that the performances of a musical piece would be infringement of copyright should be proved by the defendants affirmatively. 1930 A.C. 377=124 I.C. 894=1930 P.C. 314 (P.C.). Where a person complaining of infringement of his copyright produces the book and the certificate of registration of the copyright, the burden of proving that the portion of the book which had been copied by the accused was also contained in a previous book published by the accused's father and that the complainant had, therefore, no subsisting copyright at the time of the infringement, is on the defence. 131 I.C. 865=1931 A.L.J. 304=1931 A. 353.

SEC. 2 (1) PROVISIO: CONSTRUCTION.—The proviso does not say that not more than two passages from each work of the same author are published, but says "not more than two passages from work by the same author". Obviously, the proviso is not intended to protect a man who brings out an unauthorized edition of a poet's poems by taking out two poems out of each of many works published by him separately. Quære.—Whether when a number of poems are brought out in one volume the whole volume is to be considered a literary work of the author or whether each separate poem in that volume is to be considered as separate literary work. 55 All. 564=1933 A.L.J. 791=1933 All. 474.

COPYRIGHT—ASSIGNMENT—WHAT AMOUNTS TO.—A sale of a first edition of 1,100 copies of a certain book, to be published in a particular form, amounts to an assignment of an interest in the copyright until the last copy is sold. Until then the purchaser has the right exclusively to the copyright, at any rate as far as the right to publish the book in any form is concerned. It is not merely a sale of a right to print and sell 1,100 copies in the particular form. 62 Cal. 57=39 C. W.N. 224.

any work which to his knowledge infringes copyright or would infringe copyright if it had been made within the part of His Majesty's dominions in or into which the sale or hiring, exposure, offering for sale or hire, distribution, exhibition, or importation took place.

(3) Copyright in a work shall also be deemed to be infringed by any person who for his private profit permits a theatre or other place of entertainment to be used for the performance in public of the work without the consent of the owner of the copyright, unless he was not aware, and had no reasonable ground for suspecting, that the performance would be an infringement of copyright.

3. The term for which copyright shall subsist shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, be the life of the author and a period of fifty years after his death:

Term of copyright.

Provided that at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years, or in the case of a work in which copyright subsists at the passing of this Act thirty years, from the death of the author of a published work, copyright in the work shall not be deemed to be infringed by the reproduction of the work for sale if the person reproducing the work proves that he has given the prescribed notice in writing of his intention to reproduce the work and that he has paid in the prescribed manner to, or for the benefit of, the owner of the copyright royalties in respect of all copies of the work sold by him calculated at the rate of ten per cent. on the price at which he publishes the work; and, for the purposes of this proviso, the Board of Trade may make regulations prescribing the mode in which notices are to be given, and the particulars to be given in such notices, and the mode, time, and frequency of the payment of royalties, including (if they think fit) regulations requiring payment in advance or otherwise securing the payment of royalties.

musical work which has been published or performed in public, a complaint is made to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that the owner of the copyright in the work has refused to republish or to allow the republication of the work or has refused to allow the performance in public of the work, and that by reason of such refusal the work is withheld from the public, the owner of the copyright may be ordered to grant a licence to reproduce the work or perform the work in public, as the case may be, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Judicial Committee may think fit.

SEC. 2 (3): "FOR THE PERFORMANCE IN PUBLIC".—The performance in public, though not necessarily for profit will be infringement. (1884) 13 Q.B.D. 843; 53 L.J.Q.B. 338. See (1911) 27 T.L.R. 554. To constitute infringement, it is not necessary to show that the defendant knowingly invaded the right. See (1859) 29 L.J.C.P. 20.

"CONSENT OF THE OWNER OF THE COPYRIGHT".—It need not be in the handwriting of the author, and may be given by any agent having due authority. (1855) 16 C.B. 517; 24 L.J.C.P. 169; see further, (1856) 25 L.J.C.P. 127; 17 C.B. 427; (1888) 20 Q.B.D. 378; 57 L.J.Q.B. 227. Under the English Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833, such person only was liable who, by himself or his agent, actually took part in the representation which was a violation of the copyright, and therefore the landlord of the rooms in which the performance took place was not, as such, liable. (1849) 8 C.B. 836; 19 L.J.C.P. 33; and see further as to this point. 5 B. & S. 751; (1864) 17 C.B. (N.S.) 418; 33 L.J.C.P. 319. SEC. 3.—If a copyright is shown to have subsisted when Act III of 1914 came into force, the period of copyright substituted by that Act would be 50 years from the death of the author. Where the complaint for infringement is made after the new Act the question to be considered is whether the copyright was subsisting under the new Act and not whether it was subsisting under the old Act XX of 1847. 131 I.C. 865=1931 A.L.J. 304=A.I.R. 1931 All. 353.

Ownership of copyright, etc.

5. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the author of a work shall be the first owner of the copyright therein:

Provided that—

(a) where, in the case of an engraving, photograph, or portrait, the plate or other original was ordered by some other person and was made for valuable consideration in pursuance of that order, then, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the person by whom such plate or other original was ordered shall be the first owner of the copyright;

(b) where the author was in the employment of some other person under a contract of service or apprenticeship and the work was made in the course of his employment by that person, the person by whom the author was employed shall, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, be the first owner of the copyright, but where the work is an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine, or similar periodical, there shall, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, be deemed to be reserved to the author a right to restrain the publication of the work, otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine, or similar periodical.

(2) The owner of the copyright in any work may assign the right, either wholly or partially, and either generally or subject to limitations, to the United

SEC. 5 (1) (b).—In order to give the proprietor of a periodical a copyright in articles composed for him by others, it is not necessary that there should be an express contract that he should have the property in the copyright. Where the defendants published a monthly periodical, professing to be a digest of the cases decided in the Courts during the previous month, and inserted among others, head-notes or marginal notes copied verbatim from the plaintiff's publication, it was held that the defendants were guilty of piracy. (1855) 24 L.J.C.P. 175. See (1893) 1 Ch. 218; 62 L.J.Ch. 404; approved in (1904) A.C. 17; 7 L.J.Ch. 85, and see (1859) 29 L.J.C.P. 20. The proprietor of an encyclopaedia, who employs a person to write an article for publication in that work, cannot, without the writer's consent, publish the article in a separate form, or otherwise than in the encyclopaedia, unless the article was written on the terms that the copyright therein should belong to the proprietor of the encyclopaedia for all purposes. (1848) 16 Sim. 190; 17 L.J.Ch. 210. Where the publishers of a magazine employ and pay an editor, and the editor employs and pays persons for writing articles in the magazine, the copyright in such articles is not vested in the publishers under this section. (1846) 16 L.J.Ch. 140. As to a map, see (1871) L.R. 6 Ch. 346; 40 L.J.Ch. 489. The republication of the Christmas number of a periodical under a different title, form and price is a "separate publication" of an article contained in such number, which the author is entitled to restrain. (1860) 1 J. and H. 312.

TRANSLATION.—The copyright of an English work translated by a foreigner is infringed by a re-translation of it by an Englishman into English. (1853) 1 Drew. 353; 22 L.J.Ch. 457.

SEC. 5 (2).—See A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 433; 1939 A.L.J. 71; A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 173, cited under sec. 1, supra. A sale, valid by the law of the country where made, has been held to pass the interest of the assignor. (1848) 5 C.B. 860 (Eng.). the assignment or grant must be in writing. (1876) 4 Ch.D. 419; 46 L.J.Ch. 103; evidence that the plaintiff in an action for printing a musical work acquiesced in the defendant's publication of it six years ago does not raise a presumption that the plaintiff has transferred his interest in the copyright; nor does a receipt given by the plaintiff for money received by him as the price of the copyright. (1906) 2 Ch. 550; 75 L.J. ch. 732, and the assignment may take the form of an agreement to assign (ibid.); but see (1839) 8 L.J.Ch. 216; (1838) 9 Sim. 151. On bankruptcy, the copyright would pass to the trustee without any writing. (1826) 2 Russ. 392. Kingdom or any self-governing dominion or other part of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, and either for the whole term of the copyright or for any part thereof, and may grant any interest in the right by licence, but no such assignment or grant shall be valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the right in respect of which the assignment or grant is made, or by his duly authorized agent:

Provided that, where the author of a work is the first owner of the copyright therein, no assignment of the copyright, and no grant of any interest therein, made by him (otherwise than by will) after the passing of this Act shall be operative to vest in the assignee or grantee any rights with respect to the copyright in the work beyond the expiration of twenty-five years from the death of the author, and the reversionary interest in the copyright expectant on the termination of that period shall, on the death of the author, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, devolve on his legal personal representatives as part of his estate, and any agreement entered into by him as to the disposition of such reversionary interest shall be null and void, but nothing in this proviso shall be construed as applying to the assignment of the copyright in a collective work or a licence to publish a work or part of a work as part of a collective work.

(3) Where, under any partial assignment of copyright, the assignee becomes entitled to any right, comprised in copyright, the assignee, as respects the rights so assigned, and the assignor as respects the rights not assigned, shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as the owner of the copyright, and the provisions of this Act shall have effect accordingly.

Civil Remedies.

6. (1) Where copyright in any work has been infringed, the owner of the copyright shall, except as otherwise provided by this Act, be entitled to all such remedies by way of injunction or interdict, damages, accounts, and otherwise, as are or may be conferred by law for the infringement of a right.

SEC. 6.—A book containing selections from the works of different authors can be the subject-matter of copyright. The principle applicable to such cases is that one person is not at liberty to use or avail himself of the labour which another has been at for the purpose of producing his work, and so take away the result of that other's labour, i.e., his property. 156 I.C. 841—A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 282. Where the legal right of the plaintiff, namely, his copyright in a particular book, was admitted and only its violation by the threatened publication of an alleged similar book was not denied and it further appeared that if the injunction was not issued irreparable injury or inconvenience might result to the plaintiff. Held, that it was a proper case in which a temporary injunction should be issued. Principles applicable to grant of interlocutory injunctions considered. 132 I.C. 586=1931 L. 624. See also 34 P.L.R. 249. In a case of infringement of copyright the application for temporary injunction is governed by sec. 6 of the Copyright Act and not by sec. 56 (f) of the Specific Relief Act. 132 I.C. 586=1931 Lah. 624. As to measure of damages, see (1898) 1 Ch. 58; 67 L.J.Ch. 6; and as to when damages are recoverable, see (1899) 1

SECS. 6 AND 7.—The reliefs to which a person complaining of infringement is entitled under Ss. 6 and 7 of the 1st schedule of the Copyright Act, are not alternative. He is entitled to recover both damages for infringement under S. 6 and also damages for conversion under S. 7. The value of the infringing articles that have been disposed of is not to be taken as the sale price. It has to be assessed by the methods or principles laid down. [1939 A.C. 178.]; 49 C.W.N. 280. Where in a case of infringement of copyright the plaintiff asked for damages under sec. 6 on the footing of the loss sustained and in the alternative under sec. 7 for the delivery of the unsold infringing copies and damages on the footing of conversion in respect of the infringing copies sold, and the Court awarded damages under sec. 6 and also decreed delivery of the unsold copies, held, that the plaintiff could not claim damages under sec. 7 also. Quære, whether the Court was justified in awarding

(2) The costs of all parties in any proceedings in respect of the infringement of copyright shall be in the absolute discretion of the Court.

(3) In any action for infringement of copyright in any work, the work shall be presumed to be a work in which copyright subsists and the plaintiff shall be presumed to be the owner of the copyright, unless the defendant puts in issue the existence of the copyright, or, as the case may be, the title of the plaintiff, and where any such question is in issue, then—

(a) if a name purporting to be that of the author of the work is printed or otherwise indicated thereon in the usual manner, the person whose name is so printed or indicated shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to be the author of the work;

(b) if no name is so printed or indicated, or if the name so printed or indicated is not the author's true name or the name by which he is commonly known, and a name purporting to be that of the publisher or proprietor of the work is printed or otherwise indicated thereon in the usual manner, the person whose name is so printed or indicated shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to be the owner of the copyright in the work for the purposes of proceedings in respect of the infringement of copyright therein.

7. All infringing copies of any work in which copyright subsists, or of any substantial part thereof, and all plates used or intended to be used for the production of such infringing copies shall be deemed to be the property of the owner of the copyright, who accordingly may take proceedings for the recovery of the possession thereof or in respect of the conversion thereof.

Rights of owner against persons possessing or dealing with infringing copies, etc.

8. Where proceedings are taken in respect of the infringement of the copyright in any work and the defendant in his defence alleges that he was not aware of the existence of the copyright in the work, the plaintiff shall not be entitled to any remedy other than an injunction or interdict in respect of the infringement if the defendant proves that at the date of the infringement he was not aware, and had not reasonable ground for suspecting, that copyright subsisted in the work.

damages under sec. 6 and also ordering delivery of the unsold copies when the prayers had been cast in the alternative. 126 I.C. 197=51 C.L.J. 243=34 C.W.N. 540. Though the remedies given by sec. 6, are not alternative to those given by sec. 7, yet when an owner of a copyright obtains damages under sec. 6, it often happens that he can recover nothing further in respect of damages under sec. 7. Where the amount of damages awarded under sec. 6 covers the price for permission to publish the work in question, the author is not entitled to damages also under sec. 7. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 173=40 P.L.R. 622.

38 I.C. 737=18 Cr.L.J. 353. Under sec. 7, all infringing copies of any work in which copyright subsists, become the property of the owner of the copyright. He has, therefore, a right to recover the possession of the infringing copies unsold and the price of the copies sold. 1938 A.L.J. 390=A.I.R. 1938 All. 266.

SEC. 8.—Where in an action for infringement of a copyright, the defendant alleges that he was not aware of the existence of the alleged copyright, in order to come within the provisions of sec. 8 of the English Copyright Act which has been incorporated in the Indian Act (III of 1914), it is for the defendant to allege and prove that the infringement was innocent. 9. (1) Where the construction of a building or other structure which infringes or which, if completed, would infringe the copyright in some other work has been commenced, the owner of the copyright shall not be entitled to obtain an injunction or interdict to restrain the construction of such building or structure or to order its demolition.

(2) Such of the other provisions of this Act as provide that an infringing copy of a work shall be deemed to be the property of the owner of the copyright, or as impose summary penalties, shall not apply in any case to which this section applies.

Importation of Copies.

14. (1) Copies made out of the United Kingdom of any work in which copyright subsists which if made in the United Kingdom would infringe copyright, and as to which the owner of the copyright gives notice in writing by himself or his agent to the Commissioners of Customs and Excise, that he is desirous that such copies should not be imported into the United Kingdom, shall not be so imported, and shall subject to the provisions of this section, be deemed to be included in the table of prohibitions and restrictions contained in section forty-two of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876, and that section shall apply accordingly.

(2) Before detaining any such copies or taking any further proceedings with a view to forfeiture thereof under the law relating to the Customs, the Commissioners of Customs and Excise may require the regulations under this section, whether as to information, conditions, or other matters, to be complied with, and may satisfy themselves in accordance with those regulations that the copies are such as are prohibited by this section to be imported.

(3) The Commissioners of Customs and Excise may make regulations, either general or special, respecting the detention and forfeiture of copies, the importation of which is prohibited by this section, and the conditions, if any, to be fulfilled before such detention and forfeiture, and may, by such regulations, determine the information, notices, and security to be given, and the evidence requisite for any of the purposes of this section, and the mode of verification of such evidence.

(4) The regulations may apply to copies of all works, the importation of copies of which is prohibited by this section, or different regulations may be made respecting different classes of such works.

(5) The regulations may provide for the informant reimbursing the Commissioners of Customs and Excise all expenses and damages incurred in respect of any detention made on his information, and of any proceedings consequent on such detention; and may provide for notices under any enactment repealed by this Act being treated as notices given under this section.

(6) The foregoing provisions of this section shall have effect as if they were part of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876: Provided that, notwithstanding anything in that Act, the Isle of Man shall not be treated as part of the United Kingdom for the purposes of this section.

(7) The section shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to the importation into a British possession to which this Act extends of copies of works made out of that possession.

Delivery of Books to Libraries.

15. (1) The publisher of every book published in the United Kingdom shall, within one month after the publication, deliver, at his own expense, a copy of the book to the trustees of the British Museum, who shall give a written receipt for it.

(2) He shall also, if written demand is made before the expiration of twelve months after publication, deliver within one month after receipt of that written demand or, if the demand was made before publication, within one month after publication, to some depot in London named in the demand a copy of the book for, or in accordance with the directions of the authority having the control of each of the following libraries, namely, the Bodleian Library, Oxford, the University Library, Cambridge, the Library of the Faculty of Advocates at Edinburgh and the Library of Trinity College, Dublin; and, subject to the provisions of this section, the National Library of Wales. In the case of an encyclopædia, newspaper, review, magazine, or work published in a series of numbers or parts, the written demand may include all numbers or parts of the work which may be subsequently published.

(3) The copy delivered to the trustees of the British Museum shall be a copy of the whole book with all maps and illustrations belonging thereto, finished and coloured in the same manner as the best copies of the book are published, and shall be bound, sewed, or stitched together, and on the best paper on which the book is printed.

(4) The copy delivered for the other authorities mentioned in this section shall be on the paper on which the largest number of copies of the book is printed for sale, and shall be in the like condition as the books prepared for sale.

(5) The books of which copies are to be delivered to the National Library of Wales shall not include books of such classes as may be specified in regulations to be made by the Board of Trade.

(6) If a publisher fails to comply with this section, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds and the value of the book, and the fine shall be paid to the trustees or authority to whom the book ought to have been delivered.

(7) For the purposes of this section, the expression "book" includes every part or division of book, pamphlet, sheet of letter-press, sheet of music, map, plan, chart or table separately published, but shall not include any second or subsequent edition of a book unless such edition contains additions or alterations either in the letter-press or in the maps, prints, or other engravings belonging thereto.

Special Provisions as to certain Works.

16. (1) In the case of a work of joint authorship, copyright shall subsist during the life of the author who first dies and for a term of fifty years after his death, or during the life of the author who dies last, whichever period is the longer, and references in this Act to the period after the expiration of any specified number of years from the death of the author shall be construed as references to the period after the expiration of the like number of years from the death of the author who dies first or after the death of the author who dies last, whichever period may be the shorter, and in the provisions of this Act with respect to the grant of compulsory licences a reference to the date of the death of the author who dies last shall be substituted for the reference to the date of the death of the author.

(2) Where, in the case of a work of joint authorship, some one or more of the joint authors do not satisfy the conditions conferring copyright laid down by this Act, the work shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as if the other author or authors had been the sole author or authors thereof:

Provided that the term of the copyright shall be the same as it would have been if all the authors had satisfied such conditions as aforesaid.

(3) For the purposes of this Act, "a work of joint authorship" means a work produced by the collaboration of two or more authors in which the contribution of one author is not distinct from the contribution of the other author or authors.

(4) Where a married woman and her husband are joint authors of a work the interest of such married woman therein shall be her separate property.

17. (1) In the case of a literary, dramatic or musical work, or an engraving, in which copyright subsists at the date of the death of the author or, in the case of a work of joint authorship at or immediately before the date of the death of the author who dies last, but which has not been published, nor, in the case of a dramatic or musical work, been performed in public nor, in the case of a lecture, been delivered in public, before that date, copyright shall subsist till publication, or performance or delivery in public, whichever may first happen, and for a term of fifty years thereafter and the proviso to section 3 of this Act, shall, in the case of such a work, apply as if the author had died at the date of such publication or performance or delivery in public as aforesaid.

(2) The ownership of an author's manuscript after his death, where such ownership has been acquired under a testamentary disposition made by the author and the manuscript is of a work which has not been published nor performed in public nor delivered in public, shall be prima facie proof of the copyright being with the owner of the manuscript.

work has, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, been prepared or published by or under the direction or control of His Majesty or any Government department, the copyright in the work shall, subject to any agreement with the author, belong to His Majesty, and in such case shall continue for a period of fifty years from the date of the first publication of the work.

19. (1) Copyright shall subsist in records perforated rolls, and other contrivances by means of which sounds may be mechanically reproduced, in like manner as if such contrivances were musical works, but the term of copyright shall be fifty years from the making of the original plate from which the contrivance was directly or indirectly derived, and the person who was the owner of such original plate at the time when such plate was made shall be deemed to be the author of the work, and, where such owner is a body corporate, the body corporate shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to reside within the parts

Sec. 19 does not in terms provide that the making of the record must be a lawful act or with the consent of the owner of the copyright in the original work, if such a person exists. But the section must be limited to a lawful making of the record. The copyright conferred by the section on the owner of the plate from which the record is made presupposes, therefore, that that plate came into existence lawfully. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 724=39 Bom.L.R. 654=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 472. Where the original work is the subject-matter of the copyright, it necessarily follows that the consent of the owner of that copyright must be obtained to the making of the plate. Obviously it would be lawful for the owner to refuse his consent. It would also be legitimate for him to give his consent subject to certain conditions and those conditions may involve restricting the copyright which the owner of the plate would otherwise acquire under sec. 19. Such copyright might be restricted in various ways, amongst others, by restricting the public performance of records made from the plate. (Ibid.) Quaere.—Whether the rights which accrue to the maker of a record or plate under sec. 19, are subject or subsidiary to the rights of the owner of copyright in the original work? (Ibid.) of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends if it has established a place of business within such parts.

(2) It shall not be deemed to be an infringement of copyright in any musical work for any person to make, within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, records, perforated rolls or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed, if such person proves—

(a) that such contrivances have previously been made by, or with consent or acquiescence of, the owner of the copyright in the work; and

(b) that he has given the prescribed notice of his intention to make the contrivances, and has paid in the prescribed manner to or for the benefit of, the owner of the copyright in the work royalties in respect of all such contrivances sold by him, calculated at the rate hereinafter mentioned:

Provided that

(i) nothing in this provision shall authorise any alterations in, or omissions from, the work reproduced, unless contrivances reproducing the work subject to similar alterations and omissions have been previously made by, or with the consent or acquiescence of, the owner of the copyright, or unless such alterations or omissions are reasonably necessary for the adaptation of the work to the contrivances in question; and

(ii) for the purposes of this provision, a musical work shall be deemed to include any words so closely associated therewith as to form part of the same work, but shall not be deemed to include a contrivance by means of which sounds may be mechanically reproduced.

(3) The rate at which such royalties as aforesaid are to be calculated shall—

(a) in the case of contrivances sold within two years after the commencement of this Act by the person making the same, be two and one-half per cent.; and on the ordinary retail selling price of the contrivance calculated in the prescribed manner, so however that the royalty payable in respect of a contrivance shall, in no case, be less than a half-penny for each separate musical work in which copyright subsists reproduced thereon, and, where the royalty calculated as aforesaid includes a fraction of a farthing, such fraction shall be reckoned as a farthing:

Provided that, if, at any time after the expiration of seven years from the commencement of this Act, it appears to the Board of Trade that such rate as aforesaid is no longer equitable, the Board of Trade may, after holding a public inquiry, make an order either decreasing or increasing that rate to such extent as under the circumstances may seem just, but any order so made shall be provisional only and shall not have any effect unless and until confirmed by parliament; but, where an order revising the rate has been so made and confirmed, no further revision shall be made before the expiration of fourteen years from the date of the last revision.

(4) If any such contrivance is made reproducing two or more different works in which copyright subsists and the owners of the copyright therein are different persons, the sums payable by way of royalties under this section shall be apportioned amongst the several owners of the copyright in such proportions as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration.

(5) When any such contrivances by means of which a musical work may be mechanically performed have been made, then, for the purposes of this section, the owner of the copyright in the work shall, in relation to any person who makes the prescribed inquiries, be deemed to have given his consent to the making of such contrivances if he fails to reply to such inquiries within the prescribed time.

(6) For the purposes of this section, the Board of Trade may make regulations prescribing anything which under this section is to be prescribed, and prescribing the mode in which notices are to be given and the particulars to be given in such notices, and the mode, time, and frequency of the payment of royalties, and any such regulations may, if the Board think fit, include regulations requiring payment in advance or otherwise securing the payment of royalties.

(7) In the case of musical works published before the commencement of this Act, the foregoing provisions shall have effect, subject to the following modifications and additions:

(a) The conditions as to the previous making by, or with the consent or acquiescence of, the owner of the copyright in the work, and the restrictions as to alterations in or omissions from the work shall not apply;

(b) The rate of two and one-half per cent. shall be substituted for the rate of five per cent. as the rate at which royalties are to be calculated, but no royalties shall be payable in respect of contrivances sold before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and thirteen, if contrivances reproducing the same work had been lawfully made, or placed on sale, within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and ten;

(c) Notwithstanding any assignment made before the passing of this Act of the copyright in a musical work, any rights conferred by this Act in respect of the making, or authorising the making, of contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed shall belong to author or his legal personal representatives and not to the assignees, and the royalties aforesaid shall be payable to, and for the benefit of, the author of the work or his legal personal representatives:

(d) The saving contained in this Act of the rights and interests arising from, or in connexion with, action taken before the commencement of this Act shall not be construed as authorising any person who has made contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed to sell any such contrivances, whether made before or after the passing of this Act, except on the terms and subject to the conditions laid down in this section:

(e) Where the work is a work on which copyright is conferred by an Order in Council relating to a foreign country, the copyright so conferred shall not, except to such extent as may be provided by the Order, include any rights with respect to the making of records, perforated rolls, or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed.

(8) Notwithstanding anything in this Act where a record, perforated roll, or other contrivance by means of which sounds may be mechanically reproduced has been made before the commencement of this Act, copyright shall, as from the commencement of this Act, subsist therein in like manner and for the like term as if this Act had been in force at the date of the making of the original plate from which the contrivance was directly or indirectly derived:

Provided that—

(i) the person who, at the commencement of this Act, is the owner of such original plate shall be the first owner of such copyright; and

(ii) nothing in this provision shall be construed as conferring copyright in any such contrivance if the making thereof would have infringed copyright in some other such contrivance, if this provision had been in force at the time of the making of the first-mentioned contrivance.

20. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, it shall not be an infringement of copyright in an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting to publish a report thereof in a newspaper.

Provisions as to political speeches.

21. The term for which copyright shall subsist in photographs shall be fifty years from the making of the original negative from which the photograph was directly or indirectly derived, and the person who was owner of such negative at the time when such negative was made shall be deemed to be the author of the work, and, where such owner is a body corporate, the body corporate shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to reside within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends if it has established a place of business within such parts.

Provisions as to photographs.

22. (1) This Act shall not apply to designs capable of being registered under the Patents and Designs Act, 1907, except designs which, though capable of being so registered, are not used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by any industrial process.

Provisions as to designs registrable under 7, Edw. VII, c. 29.

(2) General rules under section 86 of the Patents and Designs Act, 1907, may be made for determining the conditions under which a design shall be deemed to be used for such purposes as aforesaid.

23. If it appears to His Majesty that a foreign country does not give, or has not undertaken to give, adequate protection to the works of British authors, it shall be lawful for His Majesty by Order in Council to direct that such of the provisions of this Act as confer copyright on works first published within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, shall not apply to works published after the date specified in the Order, the authors whereof are subjects or citizens of such foreign country, and are not resident in His Majesty's dominions and thereupon those provisions shall not apply to such works.

Works of foreign authors first published in parts of His Majesty's dominions to which Act extends.

24. (1) Where any person is immediately before the commencement of this Act entitled to any such right in any work as is specified in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act, or to any interest in such a right, he shall, as from that date be entitled to the substituted right set forth in the second column of that schedule, or to the same interest in such a substituted right, and to no other right or interest, and such substituted right shall subsist for the term for which it would have

SEC. 20.—“Public meeting” is not defined in this Act, but see sec. 4 of the English Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888 (51 and 52 Vic., c. 64).

SEC. 24.—Under sec. 24 no new right was conferred on an author in respect of an existing book. Whatever copyright he had at the commencement of the Act was continued in his favour. 154 I.C. 207=1934 All. 922. An entry in the Copyright Register Book under sec. 3 of the previous Copyright Act is prima facie evidence of the partnership of the person mentioned therein, but the absence of that provision from the new Copyright Act does not make it any the less evidence when the new Act grants to the owners of existing copyrights, rights at least as valuable as the rights given under the repealed Act. Sec. 14 of the Indian Evidence Act can, therefore, be invoked to make such evidence admissible. A High Court can in such cases interfere under sec. 15 of the Charter Act. 30 I.C. 721=16 Cr.L.J. 673. If a copyright is shown to have subsisted when Act III of 1914 came into force the period of copyright substituted by that Act would be 50 years from the death of the author. Where the complaint for infringement is made after the new Act the question to be considered is whether the copyright was subsisting under the new Act and not whether it was subsisting under the old Act XX. 131 I.C. 865=1931 A.L.J. 304=1931 All. 353.

subsisted if this Act had been in force at the date when the work was made and the work had been one entitled to copyright thereunder:

Provided that—

(a) if the author of any work in which any such right as is specified in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act subsists at the commencement of this Act has, before that date, assigned the right or granted any interest therein for the whole term of the right, then at the date when, but for the passing of this Act, the right would have expired the substituted right conferred by this section shall, in the absence of express agreement, pass to the author of the work, and any interest therein created before the commencement of this Act and then subsisting shall determine; but the person who immediately before the date at which the right would have so expired was the owner of the right or interest shall be entitled at his option either—

(i) on giving such notice as hereinafter mentioned, to an assignment of the right or the grant of a similar interest therein for the remainder of the term of the right for such consideration as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration; or

(ii) without any such assignment or grant, to continue to reproduce or perform the work in like manner as theretofore subject to the payment, if demanded by the author within three years after the date at which the right would have so expired, of such royalties to the author as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration, or where the work is incorporated in a collective work and the owner of the right or interest is the proprietor of that collective work, without any such payment;

The notice above referred to must be given not more than one year nor less than six months before the date at which the right would have so expired, and must be sent by registered post to the author, or, if he cannot with reasonable diligence be found advertised in the London Gazette and in two London newspapers;

(b) where any person has, before the twenty-sixth day of July nineteen hundred and ten, taken any action whereby he has incurred an expenditure or liability in connexion with the reproduction or performance of any work in a manner which at the time was lawful, or for the purpose of or with a view to the reproduction or performance of a work at a time when such reproduction or performance would, but for the passing of this Act, have been lawful, nothing in this section shall diminish or prejudice any rights or interests arising from or in connexion with such action which are subsisting and valuable at the said date, unless the person who by virtue of this section becomes entitled to restrain such reproduction or performance agrees to pay such compensation as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration.

(2) For the purposes of this section, the expression “author” includes the legal personal representatives of a deceased author.

(3) Subject to the provisions of section 19, sub-sections (7) and (8) and of section 33 of this Act, copyright shall not subsist in any work made before the commencement of this Act, otherwise than under, and in accordance with, the provisions of this section.

Application to British Possessions.

25. (1) This Act, except such of the provisions thereof as are expressly restricted to the United Kingdom, shall extend

Application of Act to British dominions. throughout His Majesty's dominions: Provided that it shall not extend to a self-governing dominion, unless declared by the Legislature of that dominion to be in force therein either

Sec. 25.—The certificate by the Secretary of State, under sec. 25 (2), (English) Copy-right Act, has merely the effect of bringing into operation the provision that the Domi-without any modifications or additions, or with such modifications and additions relating exclusively to procedure and remedies, or necessary to adapt this Act to the circumstances of the dominion, as may be enacted by such Legislature.

(2) If the Secretary of State certifies by notice published in the London Gazette that any self-governing dominion has passed legislation under which works, the authors whereof were at the date of the making of the works British subjects resident elsewhere than in the dominion or (not being British subjects) were resident in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, enjoy within the dominion rights substantially identical with those conferred by this Act, then, whilst such legislation continues in force, the dominion shall, for the purposes of the rights conferred by this Act, be treated as if it were a dominion to which this Act extends; and it shall be lawful for the Secretary of State to give such a certificate as aforesaid, notwithstanding that the remedies for enforcing the rights, or the restrictions on the importation of copies of works, manufactured in a foreign country, under the law of the dominion, differ from those under this Act.

26. (1) The legislature of any self-governing dominion may, at any time, repeal all or any of the enactments relating to copy-right passed by Parliament (including this Act) so far as they are operative within that dominion: Provided that no such repeal shall prejudicially affect any legal rights existing at the time of the repeal, and that, on this Act or any part thereof being so repealed by the Legislature of self-governing dominion, that dominion shall cease to be a dominion to which this Act extends.

(2) In any self-governing dominion to which this Act does not extend, the enactments repealed by this Act shall, so far as they are operative in that dominion, continue in force until repealed by the Legislature of that dominion.

(3) Where His Majesty in Council is satisfied that the law of a self-governing dominion to which this Act does not extend provides adequate protection within the dominion for the works (whether published or unpublished) of authors who at the time of the making of the work were British subjects resident elsewhere than in that dominion, His Majesty in Council may, for the purpose of giving reciprocal protection, direct that this Act, except such parts (if any) thereof as may be specified in the Order, and subject to any conditions contained therein shall, within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, apply to works the authors whereof were, at the time of the making of the work, resident within the first-mentioned dominion, and to works first published in that dominion; but, save as provided by such an Order, works the authors whereof were resident in a dominion to which this Act does not extend shall not, whether they are British subjects or not, be entitled to any protection under this Act except such protection as is by this Act conferred on works first published within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends:

nion in respect of which the certificate is issued should, for the purposes of the rights conferred by the (English) Act (but for those purposes only), be treated as if it were a Dominion to which the Act extended. Thus although under sec. 1, (English) Act, an author writing in a Dominion would not, when the (English) Act was passed, have any copyright under the (English) Act, the effect of the certificate would be that such an author would become a person entitled to "the rights conferred" by the (English Act). Hence the authors in that Dominion will have the same rights under the (English) Act, within the area to which that Act extends as they would have if the Act extended to the Dominion. But the certificate does not and cannot extend the (English) Act to the Dominion, if it is not in force there. 171 I.C. 406=A.I.R. 1937 P.C. 326 (P.C.).

Provided that no such Order shall confer any rights within a self-governing dominion, but the Governor in Council of any self-governing dominion to which this Act extends, may, by Order, confer within that dominion the like rights as His Majesty in Council is, under the foregoing provisions of this sub-section, authorized to confer within other parts of His Majesty's dominions.

For the purposes of this sub-section, the expression "a dominion to which this Act extends" includes a dominion which is for the purposes of this Act to be treated as if it were a dominion to which this Act extends.

27. The Legislature of any British possession to which this Act extends may modify or add to any of the provisions of this Power of Legislatures of British possessions to pass supplemental legislation.

Act in its application to the possession, but, except so far as such modifications and additions relate to procedure and remedies, they shall apply only to works the authors whereof were, at the time of the making of the works, resident in the possession, and to works first published in the possession.

28. His Majesty may, by Order in Council, extend this Act to any territories under His protection and to Cyprus, and, on the making of any such Order, this Act shall, subject to the provisions of the Order, have effect as if the territories to which it applies or Cyprus were part of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends.

PART II.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

29. (1) His Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that this Act (except such parts, if any, thereof as may be specified in the Order) shall apply—

Power to extend Act to foreign works.

(a) to works first published in a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if they were first published within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends;

(b) to literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works, or any class thereof, the authors whereof were, at the time of the making of the works, subjects or citizens of a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if the authors were British subjects;

(c) in respect of residence in a foreign country to which the Order relates in like manner as if such residence were residence in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends; and thereupon, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act and of the Order this Act shall apply accordingly:

Provided that—

(i) before making an Order in Council under this section in respect of any foreign country (other than a country with which His Majesty has entered into a convention relating to copyright), His Majesty shall be satisfied that that foreign country has made, or has undertaken to make, such provisions, if any, as it appears to His Majesty expedient to require for the protection of works entitled to copyright under the provisions of Part I of this Act;

(ii) the Order in Council may provide that the terms of copyright within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid shall not exceed that conferred by the law of the country to which the Order relates;

(iii) the provisions of this Act as to the delivery of copies of books shall not apply to works first published in such country, except so far as is provided by the Order;

(iv) the Order in Council may provide that the enjoyment of the rights conferred by this Act shall be subject to the accomplishment of such conditions and formalities (if any) as may be prescribed by the Order;

(v) in applying the provisions of this Act as to ownership of copyright, the Order in Council may make such modifications as appear necessary having regard to the law of the foreign country;

(vi) in applying the provisions of this Act as to existing works, the Order in Council may make such modifications as appear necessary, and may provide that nothing in those provisions as so applied shall be construed as reviving any right of preventing the production or importation of any translation in any case where the right has ceased by virtue of section five of the International Copyright Act, 1886.

(2) An Order in Council under this section may extend to all the several countries named or described therein.

30. (1) An Order in Council under this Part of this Act shall apply to all His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends except self-governing dominions and any other possession specified in the Order with respect to which it appears to His Majesty expedient that the Order should not apply.

(2) The Governor in Council of any self-governing dominion to which this Act extends may, as respects that dominion, make the like Orders as under this Part of this Act His Majesty in Council is authorized to make with respect to His Majesty's dominions other than self-governing dominions, and the provisions of this Part of this Act shall, with the necessary modifications, apply accordingly.

(3) Where it appears to His Majesty expedient to except from the provisions of any Order any part of his dominions, not being a self-governing dominion, it shall be lawful for His Majesty by the same or any other Order in Council to declare that such Order and this Part of this Act shall not, and the same shall not, apply to such part, except so far as is necessary for preventing any prejudice to any rights acquired previously to the date of such Order.

PART III.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

31. No person shall be entitled to copyright or any similar right in any literary, dramatic, musical, or artistic work, whether published or unpublished, otherwise than under and in accordance with the provisions of this Act, or of any other statutory enactment for the time being in force, but nothing in this section shall be construed as abrogating any right or jurisdiction to restrain a breach of trust or confidence.

32. (1) His Majesty in Council may make orders for altering, revoking or varying any Order in Council made under this Act, or under any enactment repealed by this Act, but any Order made under this section shall not affect prejudicially any rights or interests acquired or accrued at the date when the Order comes into operation, and shall provide for the protection of such rights and interests.

(2) Every Order in Council made under this Act shall be published in the London Gazette and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after it is made, and shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

SMO. 30 (3).—This provision will not revive a right of preventing unauthorised translations of a foreign work in England which under the previously existing law had expired before the passing of the Act. See (1892) 3 Ch. 402; 61 C.L.J.Ch. 580.

33. Nothing in this Act shall deprive any of the universities and colleges mentioned in the Copyright Act, 1775, of any copyright they already possess under that Act, but the remedies and penalties for infringement of any such copyright shall be under this Act and not under that Act.

34. There shall continue to be charged on, and paid out of, the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom such annual compensation as was immediately before the commencement of this Act payable in pursuance of any Act as compensation to a library for the loss of the right to receive gratuitous copies of books:

Provided that this compensation shall not be paid to a library in any year unless the Treasury are satisfied that the compensation for the previous year has been applied in the purchase of books for the use of and to be preserved in the library.

35. (1) In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

“Literary work” includes maps, charts, plans, tables, and compilations;

“Dramatic work” includes any piece for recitation, choreographic work or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form or the combination of incidents represented give the work an original character;

“Artistic work” includes works of painting, drawing, sculpture and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art and engraving and proto-graphs;

“Work of sculpture” includes casts and models;

“Architectural work of art” means any building or structure having an artistic character or design, in respect of such character or design, or any model for such building or structure, provided that the protection afforded by this Act shall be confined to the artistic character and design, and shall not extend to processes or methods of construction;

“Engravings,” include etchings, lithographs, wood-cuts, prints, and other similar works, not being photographs;

“Cinematograph” includes any work produced by any process analogous to cinematography;

SEC. 35: “LITERARY WORK”.—It is to be noted that this definition as well as ones which follow it do not purport to be exclusive and that the ordinary and popular meaning must be given to the words interpreted as well as making them inclusive of those things specifically mentioned. The word “book” does not appear in this section, but the definition of “book” given in the Copyright Act (1842), 5 & 6 Vic., c. 45, was held to include wood engravings. (1852) 5 De G. & Sm. 267; 21 L.J.Ch. 470; maps, (1871) L.R. 6 Ch. 346; 40 L.J.Ch. 489; and newspapers. (1881) 17 Ch.D. 708; 50 L.J.Ch. 621; (1899) 40 Ch.D. 425; 58 L.J.Ch. 293 (C.A.), overruling (1869) L.R. 9 Eq. 324; 39 L.J.Ch. (52) which have no right to copy from each other, (1892) 3 Ch. 489; 61 L.J.

Ch. 521; but not the title of a book in the ordinary sense, (1881) 18 Ch.D. 76; 50 L.J.Ch. 809.

“ENGRAVINGS”.—Copyright was extended to lithographs by sec. 14 of the International Copyright Act 1852 (15 & 16 Vic., c. 12).

“Collective work” means—

- (a) an encyclopædia, dictionary, year book, or similar work;
- (b) a newspaper, review, magazine, or similar periodical; and
- (c) any work written in distinct parts by different authors, or in which works or parts of works of different authors are incorporated;

“Infringing” when applied to a copy of a work in which copyright subsists means any copy, including any colourable imitation, made, or imported in contravention of the provisions of this Act;

“Performance” means any acoustic representation of a work and any visual representation of any dramatic action in a work, including such a representation made by means of any mechanical instrument;

“Delivery”, in relation to a lecture, includes delivery by means of any mechanical instrument;

“Plate” includes any stereotype or other plate, stone, block, mould, matrix, transfer, or negative used or intended to be used for printing or reproducing copies of any work, and any matrix or other appliance by which records, perforated rolls or other contrivances for the acoustic representation of the work are intended to be made;

“Lecture” includes address, speech, and sermon;

“Self-governing dominion” means the dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, and Newfoundland.

(2) For the purposes of this Act (other than those relating to infringements of copyright), a work shall not be deemed to be published or performed in public, and a lecture shall not be deemed to be delivered in public, if published, performed in public, or delivered in public, without the consent or acquiescence of the author, his executors, administrators or assigns.

(3) For the purposes of this Act, a work shall be deemed to be first published within the parts of His Majesty’s dominions to which this Act extends, notwithstanding that it has been published simultaneously in some other place unless the publication in such parts of His Majesty’s dominions as aforesaid is colourable only and is not intended to satisfy the reasonable requirements of the public, and a work shall be deemed to be published simultaneously in two places if the time between the publication in one such place and the publication in the other place does not exceed fourteen days, or such longer period as may, for the time being, be fixed by Order in Council.

(4) Where, in the case of an unpublished work, the making of a work has extended over a considerable period, the conditions of this Act conferring copyright shall be deemed to have been complied with, if the author was during any substantial part of that period, a British subject or a resident within the parts of His Majesty’s dominions to which this Act extends.

(5) For the purposes of the provisions of this Act as to residence, an author of a work shall be deemed to be a resident in the parts of His Majesty’s dominions to which this Act extends if he is domiciled within any such part.

36. Subject to the provisions of this Act, enactments mentioned in the Second Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that schedule:

Repeal.

Provided that this repeal shall not take effect in any part of His Majesty’s dominions until this Act comes into operation in that part.

37. (1) This Act may be cited as THE COPYRIGHT ACT, 1911.

(2) This Act shall come into operation—

(a) in the United Kingdom, on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and twelve or such earlier date as may be fixed by Order in Council;

(b) in a self-governing dominion to which this Act extends, at such date as may be fixed by the Legislature of that dominion;

(c) in the Channel Islands, at such date as may be fixed by the States of those islands respectively;

(d) in any other British possession to which this Act extends on the proclamation thereof within the possession by the Governor.

observance of the Subordinate Civil Courts in that province, except the Small Cause Court at Madras, see ibid., 1903, Supplement, p. 1. Act VII of 1870 has been declared in force—in Upper Burma generally (except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1898), S. 4 (1), Sch. I, Bur. Code; in British Baluchistan, by the British Baluchistan Laws Regulation (I of 1890), S. 3, Bal. Code; in the Sonthal Parganas, by the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1872), as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation (III of 1899), Ben. Code; in the sub-division of Angul, by the Angul District Regulation (I of 1894), S. 3, Ben. Code.

It has further been declared, by notification under S. 3 (a) of the Scheduled Districts Act (XVI of 1874), to be in force in the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—the District of Hazaribagh, Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. I, p. 507; the District of Lohardaga (now called the Ranchi District, see Calcutta Gazette, 1899, Pt. I, p. 44; the District of Lohardaga then included the present District of Palamau, separated in 1894), see Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. I, p. 508; the District of Manbhum, Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. I, p. 509; the Pargana Dhalbhum in the District of Singhbhum, Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. I, p. 510; the Scheduled Districts in Ganjam and Vizagapatam, see Gazette of India, 1898, Pt. I, p. 869; the Tarai of the Province of Agra, see Gazette of India, 1876, Pt. I, p. 505.

It has been extended by notification under S. 5 of the same Act to the Kolhan in the District of Singhbhum, see Gazette of India, 1907, Pt. I, p. 655 and under Ss. 5 and 5-A of that Act to the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—the Garo Hills District, the Khasi and Jaintia Hills District, the Naga Hills District, the North Cachar Sub-Division of the Cachar District, the Mikir Hill Tract in the Nowgong District and the Dibrugar Frontier Tract in the Lakhimpur District, provided that the Act does not apply to natives of these districts and tracts who are assessed to house-tax except in such places and cases as the Deputy Commissioner may withdraw from the operation of the exemption, see Assam Gazette, 1881, Pt. I, p. 861; Gazette of India, 1884, Pt. I, p. 164; the Lushai Hills, with the same proviso, see Gazette of India, 1904, Pt. I, p. 913, and Assam Gazette, 1904, Pt. II, p. 787.

The Act came into permanent operation in Aden on 1st April, 1876, see Bombay Government Gazette, 1876, Pt. I, p. 956.

It has been declared inapplicable to proceedings before officers making a settlement, and in certain other cases under the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1871), S. 8, as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation (III of 1899), Ben. Code.

The Act has been amended in Upper Burma by the Upper Burma Civil Courts Regulation (I of 1896), S. 36, Bur. Code; in the Punjab, by the Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884), S. 71, P. and N. W. Code; and in Lower Burma by the Lower Burma Courts Act (VI of 1900), S. 47.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ACT.—The Act is a fiscal enactment, and must, in cases of doubt, be interpreted strictly in favour of the subject. 39 C.L.J. 209; 8 A. 438; 9 M. 148 (F.B.); 23 Cr.L.J. 121; 115 P.B. 1918=44 I.C. 261 (F.B.). See also 54 M.L.J. 67; 43 C.W.N. 52=1938 Cal. 785; 1933 A.L.J. 673=1933 A. 488 (F.B.); 152 I.C. 244=15 P.L.T. 548=1934 P. 571 (S.B.); 15 A.L.J. 163=38 I.C. 993; 14 A.L.J. 850=36 I.C. 877; 37 A. 159=27 I.C. 731; 34 B. 239=5 I.C. 610; 34 C.W.N. 1129; 1930 N. 73; 1928 L. 113. See also the observations of Justice Mahmood and Chief Justice Edge on the point in 12 A. 129=(1890) 10 A.W.N. 39 (F.B.). The drafting of the Act is imperfect and unscientific and its interpretation gives rise to much difficulty. 4 P. 336=6 P.L.T. 262=1925 P. 392. The Act must be taken as a whole and individual sections should not be considered by themselves in order to give effect to the legislative intent upon a particular matter. 21 I.C. 502=18 C.W.N. 121. Though the Court-Fees Act is a fiscal enactment and its provisions have therefore to be strictly construed, yet they should not be so construed as to furnish a chance of escape and means of evasion. 13 Luck. 628=1937 O. W.N. 1186=1938 O. 1. See also 18 P.L.T. 438=1937 Pat. 514. Practice of Court though long established cannot override the express provisions of the Act. See 12 A. 129=(1890) 10 A.W.N. 39 (F.B.). See also 41 I.C. 446 (Cal.); 43 B. 507 (P.C.); 27 C. 508; 13 C.W.N. 815 at 821. Provisions of other statutes which are in pari materia may be referred to, but when the Acts are different in their scope and character, they cannot be read together. 22 M. 494=9 M.L.J. 37; 4 B. 515. Thus Limitation Act cannot be consulted. 29 A. 749; 22 M. 494; 9 M. 134. The special provisions of the Land Acquisition Act should not be extended by analogy to vary the provisions of the Court-Fees Act. 152 I.C. 244=15 P.L.T. 548=1934 P. 571. In such an Act as the Court-Fees Act if there is a special provision which applies to a particular case then that special provision must be applied by the Court rather than some general classification in which the suit may also be included which may be more favourable to the plaintiff. 36 L.W. 225=1932 M. 605=63 M.L.J. 764. The Act ought to be liberally construed. 1927 M. 1002=105 I.C. 881=54 M.L.J. 67. See also 152 I.C. 244=1934 P. 571 (S.B.).

OPERATION OF THE ACT.—Court-fee on an application (for review) should be calculated according to the law in force when the application was filed. 1932 A.L.J. 908=1933 A. 20. See also 1940 A.L.J. 904=1941 All. 184. Notification increasing Court-fees issued and published on a certain date in the official Gazette even if it was received at 5 P.M. after office hours, would apply to plaints filed on the same date earlier in the day. 45 M.L.J. 557=46 M. 685 (F.B.). Plaint returned for presentation to proper Court—Court-Fees Act coming into force before actual presentation—Court-fee is payable under the new Act. 30 C.W.N. 90=91 I. C. 862=1926 C. 355. An amending Act passed subsequent to the filing of the document need not be taken into account. 1932 A.L.J. 908=1933 A. 20. See also 51 C. 216 (Plaint originally filed with insufficient stamp). Though the operation of its provisions may result in some extraordinary situation, the Act must be construed as it stands. See 1941 A.L.J. 409=1941 All. 357. Where on the death of a plaintiff in a suit for partition of his share in certain property, his brother, one of the defendants, steps into his shoes and continues the suit and obtains an amendment of the plaint so as to include his share of the property also and this amendment is obtained after the passing of the U.P. Court-Fees (Amendment) Act of 1938, the Court-fee payable in respect of the extra share must be calculated according to the Amended Act and not according to the Act prior to its amendment. I.L.R. (1942) All. 376=201 I.C. 460=1942 A.L.J. 351=A.I.R. 1942 All. 222.

APPLICATION OF ACT.—The various sections of the Court-Fees Act apply not only to suits but to appeals also. All the High Courts have always taken it for granted that appeals are valued in the same way as suits. 165 I.C. 972=44 L.W. 763=71 M.L.J. 677. Act does not apply to cases coming before the ordinary original jurisdiction of High Court. 13 R. 156=1935 R. 460.

DETERMINATION OF COURT-FEES UNDER THE ACT.—In order to determine the amount of Court-fee payable in a suit, the Court has to see in each particular case what the nature of the relief claimed is, and for that purpose it must look at the allegations contained in the plaint. 21 C.W.N. 375=35 I.C. 797. See also 15 L. 531=150 I.C. 994=1934 L. 563 N. DAMODARAM . . . 27th JUNE . . . (F.B.); 40 C.L.J. 150=79 I.C. 982. In other words, the cause of action as stated in the plaint must be seen. 20 C. 762=1928 B. 476; 15 P. 386=161 I.C. 706=1936 P. 171. The Court-fee payable on a plaint in a suit and the forum of trial depend on the allegations made in the plaint and not on the defence set up by the defendant. If the plaintiff can prove his allegations he would be entitled to the relief on the lines that he has claimed, and the forum of trial is the Court in which he has brought the suit. The fact that the defendant sets up a different title cannot alter the nature of the plaintiff's claim. If the facts are found to be as pleaded by the defendant, the proper course is to dismiss the suit and not to convert the suit into another of a different character. 182 I.C. 178. For purposes of calculation of Court-fee, the Court must take the allegations in the plaint to be prima facie correct; and a plaintiff is entitled to insist that the Court-fee should be assessed on the basis on which he has framed his plaint although there might be room for suspicion that the plaint has been so drafted as to avoid inconvenient facts and the payment of a higher Court-fee. (1937) 1 M.L.J. 572=45 L.W. 720=1937 Mad. 402. The Court-fee has to be determined on the nature of the allegations in the plaint and not on what is set up or pleaded in the defence. 135 I.C. 88=1932 M. 409; 16 I.C. 773 (Sind); 35 C.W.N. 942; 5 P. 631; 6 P. 506=1927 P. 145. The Court should not ask itself whether the allegations made in the plaint are true or probable. 64 M.L.J. 24=141 I.C. 80=1933 M. 430. See also 30 I.C. 73 (Oudh); 16 I.C. 773 (Sind). The substance and not the mere language of the plaint must be looked to. 28 I.C. 79=38 M. 922, following 30 Mad. 18 and 40 C. 59=21 I.C. 404. See also 1932 M. 605=63 M.L.J. 764=36 L.W. 225; 1939 M. 435=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 425; 46 L.W. 484=1937 M. 876=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 616; I.L.R. (Though Court-Fees Act is a fiscal enactment, Courts must see that it is not evaded). It has not been the practice of the Patna High Court to depend exclusively on the averments of the plaintiff for the ascertainment of what should be the proper Court-fee payable, or to permit a tiff to escape liability by a vague and indefinite statement of facts in the plaint, or to penalize him because he may possibly ask for a declaration which may be unnecessary. 18 P.L.T. 438=1937 Pat. 514. Merely asserting that a suit is a suit for administration does not make it one, and if a party sues to recover an estate, the valuation of the suit must be the value of the estate he seeks to recover. 1937 Rang.L.R. 426=1937 Rang. 455. It is the duty of Court to see that proper value is put on the relief claimed. Where it is too small on the face of the plaint, the Court can question the same. 21 I.C. 404=40 C. 615. The question whether Court-fee should be paid or not is a matter that is important from the point of view of Government alone. 133 I.C. 465=1931 A.L.J. 727=1931 A. 659. The plaintiff's estimate of the value of land, if contrary to the section of the Court-Fees Act, cannot be allowed to operate to the prejudice of the defendant at any stage of the suit. The defendant can object to the valuation whenever it is in his interest to do so. 49 A. 398=25 A.L.J. 258=1927 A. 308. Court-fee is paid on the relief available at the institution of the suit, but if circumstances change and it becomes necessary for the plaintiff to ask for any further relief, it is open to him to apply to the Court for amendment of the plaint by adding new relief and to offer to pay Court-fee thereon. 20 P.L.T. 818=1939 P.W.N. 61=1939 P. 219. Appeal liable to ad valorem Court-fee but not valued as such.—Ad valorem fee should be levied before admission of appeal. See 1937 Pat. 514=18 P.L.T. 438. As to refund of Court-fees, see under S. 13.

COMPROMISE BETWEEN PARTIES AND COURT.—The question of Court-fee cannot be settled by any compromise between the parties and the Court, in the absence of any one representing the fiscal authorities. 14 L. 558=144 I.C. 636=1933 L. 905. See also 1939 A. 659.

COURT-FEES AND LIMITATION.—Where no Court-fee stamp was affixed to the copy of the order appealed against filed along with the memorandum of appeal and in spite of the objection raised by the office the stamp was not affixed till long after the expiry of the period of limitation. Helid, that the appeal was not properly presented within time. 147 I.C. 342=35 P.L.R. 142=1934 L. 272. A memorandum of appeal presented to the Court of the District Judge under the law applicable to appeals, which has been transferred to the High Court on an application by the appellant, should bear court-fee stamp as prescribed for a memorandum of appeal presented to the High Court. 41 C.W.N. 1083=65 C.L.J. 499=1937 C. 514.

JURISDICTION.—The Suits Valuation Act and the Court-Fees Act are purely fiscal enactments and they have no bearing on the question as to which is the proper Court for the institution of the suit having regard to the value of the property. 1932 A.L.J. 416=1932 A. 413. When a Court has disposed of a suit, it has no jurisdiction to take up the question of valuation of the suit for purposes of Court-fee or to direct the payment of additional Court-fee. 1936 R.D. 390. There is no provision in the Court-Fees Act which justifies a process of attachment for recovery of court-fees after the Court finally parts with seisin of a case. 140 I.C. 191=1932 A.L.J. 165=1932 A. 316. See also 1933 M. W.N. 330=1934 A.L.J. 820. The only Court which can rectify an improper order as to Court-fee is the appellate Court and in cases where no appeal lies, the revisional Court. 81 I.C. 56=1923 All. 86.

COURT-FEE AND VALUATION CHARTS.—Charts showing the minimum values of lands of different classes in different parts of the district may be used for the purposes of S. 9 of the Court-Fees Act. But such charts cannot and must not be put upon the parties as though they are evidence in themselves and any judicial officer acting in a judicial matter upon such charts is acting without evidence before him. 33 C.W.N. 952=50 C.L.J. 164. The Court-Fees Act provides that the Court may issue a commission for local investigation but there is no provision for a chart issued by the District Court to the subordinate Court in which the valuation is set out of the various classes of lands in the District. 33 C.W.N. 845=49 C.L.J. 562=1929 Cal. 717.

REFUND OF COURT-FEE.—The Court can order a refund of Court-fees (1) where the Court-fees Act applies, (2) where there is an excess payment by a mistake, and (3) where on account of a mistake of a Court a party has been compelled to pay the Court-fees either wholly or in part. Outside these cases the Court has no authority to direct a refund. Thus where an appeal is withdrawn and consequently dismissed, the appellant is not entitled to apply for a refund of the Court-fees paid on the memorandum of appeal. 57 M. 1028=1934 M. 566=67 M.L.J. 321. Where on a memorandum of appeal filed out of time a conditional order was made by the Court for its admission and the condition was not complied with by the appellant, he is not entitled to get refund of Court-fees paid on the memorandum of appeal. 41 C. W.N. 1184. The Court has inherent jurisdiction to order a refund of Court-fee even in cases which do not fall within Ss. 13, 14 and 15, Court-Fees Act. Where there has been no real trial of the main issues involved in the case in both the Courts below, the appellant is entitled to a refund of Court-fee paid by him in the lower appellate Court on the memorandum of appeal. 41 P. L.R. 796=1939 L. 257. See also (1939) M.L.J. 867. Apart from the provisions of Ss. 14 and 15 of the Act, the Court has power in proper cases to make an order for refund where it is found that the Court-fees have been paid under an order subsequently held to be wrong. I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 253=75 C.L.J. 393=46 C.W.N. 697=A.I. R. 1942 Cal. 539. Where a suit is properly filed in a Civil Court, but in the meantime the legislature takes away, by an amendment of the law, the right to the relief claimed in the suit, the Civil Court should dismiss the suit. It cannot invoke its inherent powers to order the refund of the Court-fee or grant a certificate under the Court-Fees Act. 51 L.W. 105=1940 M.W.N. 68=1940 Mad. 451. The District Court, as a Court of appeal, is not entitled to issue an order of refund of excess Court-fees paid on the memorandum of appeal. Recovery of excess amount paid is a matter between the party concerned and the Revenue Authorities. All that the District Court can do is to certify that in its opinion the amount paid by the appellant is in excess of the amount required by law. Armed with the certificate the party may go to the Revenue authorities and claim a refund from them. The certificate is however merely the expression of his opinion of the Court which the executive orders of the Government require to be obtained where any person desires to make an application to the Revenue authorities for the refund of the fees paid in excess. 164 I.C. 639=1936 R. 352. The plaintiff who was called upon to make good a deficiency in Court-fee, without having done so, made an application to the Court to permit her to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue again. Her application was granted but subsequently an attachment of her property was ordered to enforce the payment of the deficiency in Court-fee whereupon she paid. In revision, held, that it was not open to a Court to issue an order of attachment for realisation of deficiency in Court-fee stamp. Held, further that as no order permitting the plaintiff to withdraw the suit and to bring a fresh suit could have been made on the basis of an insufficiently stamped plaint, which was liable to be rejected, the plaintiff had paid what was due from her and was, therefore, not entitled to get back the money. 152

SECS. 3 AND 4: SCOPE OF THE SECTIONS.—S. 4, Court-Fees Act, is imperative and enacts that no document of any kind shall be received unless it bears Court-Fees of the requisite value. Though S. 149, C. P. Code, which was subsequently introduced in the Code of Civil Procedure, vests in the Courts a discretion as to whether appeals with insufficient Court-fee should be allowed to be received when proper Court-fees are paid within the time allowed by the Court, the discretion should be exercised on correct judicial principles, and not so as to nullify the express provisions of S. 4 of the Court-Fees Act. 61 C. 663=38 C.W.N. 650=1934 C. 659. S. 4 has no application to the ordinary original civil and criminal jurisdiction, or admiralty and matrimonial jurisdictions, etc., of the High Court. But S. 3 enacts that the procedure laid down in Chapter V, Ss. 25 to 28 for collections and the mode of levying the fees shall apply to the original jurisdiction as well as the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court but it is not applicable to Letters Patent appeal from the judgment of a single Judge of the High Court and no Court-fee is leviable thereon except Rs. 2 prescribed for an application to the High Court. 44 A. 13=19 A.L.J. 677. See also 18 B. 156; 1933 S. 148 (Income-tax Reference); 45 M. 849=1922 M. 421; 65 I.C. 675; 3 L. 420=1923 L. 275; 1 P. 384=3 P.L.T. 194; nor to appeals under Agency Rules referred by Government to High Court for disposal 22 M. 162. A reasonably wide construction must be given to S. 3 and if a particular fee could have been imposed under the High Courts Act or the Government of India Act, it is payable in virtue of the power conferred by that Act within the meaning of the section, even although the High Court purported to impose the fee under a power derived from some other source. R. 204 of the Insolvency Rules (Calcutta) made under S. 112 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act could have been made by the High Court under the powers conferred on it by S. 15 of the Indian High Courts Act and the fees prescribed thereby are accordingly covered by S. 3 of the Court-Fees Act. 42 C.W.N. 1146=1938 Cal. 755. Court of extraordinary original jurisdiction, the Court-fees payable are those in force in the High Court as a Court of Ordinary Original Jurisdiction (and not those payable under the Court-Fees Act) as the case is expressly governed by S. 14 of the Madras City Civil Court Act (VII of 1892). 132 I.C. 647 = 1931 M. 457 = 60 M.L.J. 435. O. 7, R. 11, C.P. Code, does not refer to a plaint which bears no stamp. Such a plaint must be rejected in accordance with the provisions of Ss. 4 and 6. 1930 N. 224.

SEC. 4: MEMORANDUM OF APPEAL.—Under S. 4, "documents" includes memorandum of appeal. 12 A. 129 (F.B.). Appeal should not be entertained without payment of proper Court-fee. 30 I.C. 379 (Pat.); 3 P.L.J. 74 = 42 I.C. 675; 25 M. 24 (memorandum of cross objections). See also 1929 A. 75. The appeal is liable to be rejected if the deficiency is not made up within the period of limitation. 1924 L. 401; 46 I.C. 509 = 3 P.L.J. 484; 119 I.C. 700; 1930 N. 224; S. 28, infra. High Court has power to refuse to accept a memorandum of appeal when it has the endorsement of the Stamp Reporter that the Court-fee is deficient. 50 A. 980 = 118 I.C. 228 = 26 A.L.J. 1199 = 1929 A. 75. Under r. 19 of Chapter VII of the Patna High Court Rules the Stamp Reporter would be required to take action if he found that a memorandum of appeal which was insufficiently stamped had been accepted by mistake or inadvertence as sufficiently stamped. When the appeal is once admitted and registered the functions of the Stamp Reporter are not necessarily at an end. Where the law was changed after the decision of the Reporter by reason of a Bench decision of the High Court and additional Court-fee was sought to be levied under the later decision. Held, that the action of the Stamp Reporter was valid in law. 14 P.L.T. 180 = 12 Pat. 694; see also 21 Pat. 720 = 1943 Pat. 102. S. 4 is imperative in its terms. Filing of an appeal on insufficient Court-fee stamp, with the knowledge that it is insufficient, with a view to save limitation cannot be allowed. 119 I.C. 700 = 1929 N. 294. See also 1930 N. 224.

APPLICABILITY.—DOCUMENTS PRODUCED IN HIGH COURT UNDER INCOME-TAX ACT (1922), S. 66.—As no mention of the Court-fee payable on a reference under S. 66, Income-tax Act, is to be found in Schs. I and II, Court-Fees Act, S. 4 of that Act does not apply to documents produced in a reference to the High Court under S. 55, Income-tax Act, and therefore no Court-fee is chargeable on such documents. 145 I.C. 254 = 27 S.L.R. 243 = 1933 S. 148.

SEC. 5: SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—See the observations of Collins, C.J., in 21 M. 269 (270). Conditions necessary for the operation of the section. See 12 A. 129 (F.B.); 14 P.L.J. 700; 3 P.L.J. 92 = 43 I.C. 521. Before S. 5 can be applied, it must be shown that the subject-matter of the reference is a final decision of the Chief Justice of such High Court, or of such Judge of the High Court as the Chief Justice shall appoint either generally or specially in this behalf.

When any such difference arises in any of the said Courts of Small Causes, the question shall be referred to the Clerk of the Court, whose decision thereon shall be final, except when the question is, in his opinion, one of general importance in which case he shall refer it to the final decision of the first Judge of such Court.

The Chief Justice shall declare who shall be taxing-officer within the meaning of the first paragraph of this section.

fee covered by S. 3 of the Act. 42 O.W.N. 1146=1938 Cal. 755. The jurisdiction of a Taxing Officer does not arise like the jurisdiction of an arbitrator upon a difference of opinion between a Court clerk and a suitor and upon formal reference to decide the dispute. The intention of S. 5 is merely to ensure that the question should be raised before the Taxing Officer, that he should bring his mind to bear on the question and decide it. 52 C. 871=29 O.W.N. 879=1925 C. 1201. See also 20 M. 398; 44 L. W. 763=71 M.L.J. 677. S. 5 of the Act contemplates a decision of the Taxing Officer on the merits of the question. Where the Taxing Officer declines to entertain the question and to decide it, his order cannot be considered to be one under S. 5, so as to operate as a bar to the question of Court-fee being considered by the Court. 1933 A. L.J. 1537. The power of the Taxing Officer under S. 5 is not confined merely to memoranda of appeal filed in the High Court, but extends to deficiencies in stamp on a plaint or memorandum of appeal in the Courts below when the fact of detriment to the revenue is brought to his notice. 22 A.L.J. 1038=84 I.C. 822=1925 A. 184. See contra 45 I.C. 213=17 P.L.T. 677 (Court-fee payable in lower Court is to be determined by Court). The decision of the Taxing Officer of the High Court holding that ad valorem fees are payable in respect of a matter is final under S. 5 of the Court-Fees Act and final for every purpose and cannot be impeached before the Court at the time of the hearing. S. 5, like several other sections, is undoubtedly defective, as it makes no provision for the Taxing Officer being compelled to refer the question to the Judge of the Court. 44 L.W. 763=71 M. L.J. 677; 14 P. 658=159 I.C. 4=16 P.L.T. 433=1935 P. 396. Under S. 5, it is competent to the Chief Justice to refer a dispute re. Court-fee between a suitor or his attorney and the Officer of the Court, to the decision of a particular Judge of the High Court. 45 M. 849=43 M.L.J. 436=1922 M. 421. See also 71 M.L.J. 677. The decision of such Judge is final. 1927 B. 643=52 B. 61=106 I.C. 66 (2). It is not proper for a Judge to whom a Court-fee matter is referred to refer the matter to a Bench. 3 P. 146=75 I.C. 871. Nor has the Division Bench jurisdiction to decide the reference. 33 A. 20=7 A.L.J. 842 (30 M. 96, Foll.) A Division Bench of the High Court has no jurisdiction to re-open the valuation of the appeal after it is admitted. 4 P.L.J. 700=52 I.C. 508. S. 5 does not give the Taxing Judge of the High Court power to decide questions with regard to sufficiency of Court-fees paid in Subordinate Courts. He has jurisdiction only to deal with questions relating to Court-fees in the High Court. 12 R. 335=1934 R. 268; 23 Pat. 749=219 I.C. 453=(1945) P.W.N. 199=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 81. It is not within the province of a taxing Judge of the High Court under S. 5 to say whether the trial Court ought to have required payment of ad valorem Court-fee before the trial of the suit, while holding that an appeal in that suit is liable to ad valorem Court-fee. 18 P.L.T. 438=16 P. 491=1937 P. 514.

FINALITY OF THE DECISION OF THE TAXING OFFICER.—A decision of the Taxing Officer is final and is not open to appeal, review or revision. 4 P.L.J. 700=52 I.C. 508; 3 P. L.J. 92=43 I.C. 521; 60 O.L.J. 201=39 O.W.N. 131; 12 A. 129; 105 I.C. 119=1927 M. 940=53 M.L.J. 457; 1932 A.L.J. 244=1932 A. 319; 45 Bom.L.R. 880=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 441; 59 L.W. 85=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 103. It is final though wrongly given. The Bench hearing appeal will not interfere with it. 2 P. 919=5 P.L.T. 315. See also 2 P. 198=4 P.L.T. 71; 4 P. 336=87 I.C. 137=1925 P. 392 (F.B.); 1926 P. 147; 52 C. 871=29 O.W.N. 89=1925 C. 1201. The remedy of the party aggrieved is to move the Board of Revenue to grant a refund. 1926 P. 147. See also 39 P.R. 1907. In 45 Bom.L.R. 880=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 441, the remedy in case of a wrong decision was held to be to ask Government for remission of fee which ought not to have been charged. The effect of a wrong decision, however, by the Taxing Officer cannot be to prejudice the rights of the parties. 15 A. 117=13 A.W.N. (1893) 45.

OBJECTIONS AS TO INSUFFICIENCY OF COURT-FEE.—When once the Taxing Officer has decided the amount of Court-fee no objection can be taken by the respondent at the time of hearing. 20 M. 398; 20 A. 11 at 17. Where, however, no reference and decision under S. 5 has been made at all, the Court hearing the appeal must decide such question. 47 A. 756=23 A.L.J. 725. See also 20 M. 328; 37 C. 914; 21 M. 269; 1930 M. 597=58 M.L.J. 497; 12 R. 335=1934 R. 268.

TAXING OFFICER—JURISDICTION.—The jurisdiction of the Taxing Officer is limited to cases in which it is alleged that a document filed, exhibited or received in the High Court is not sufficiently stamped. It does not extend to cases in which it is alleged that a party paid insufficient Court-fee on his plaint or memorandum of appeal in the lower appellate Court. To this class of cases, S. 12 (ii) is clearly applicable. 1934 A.L.J. 957=150 I.C. 653=1934 A. 805. Taxing Officer of the High Court is the Registrar on the Appellate Side. 37 C. 914=8 I.C. 1145. In Madras, the Registrar was the ex officio Taxing Officer—Fort St. George Gazette, 29th September, 1915, Pt. II, p. 1769. But under a recent Notification the Master has been appointed as the Taxing Officer. The Deputy Registrar is not the Taxing Officer and his order is not final under the section. The question decided by him can be raised at the hearing of the appeal. 37 C. 914=8 I.C. 1145. But see also 12 R. 335=1934 R. 268.

POWERS OF THE TAXING OFFICER.—To determine the amount of Court-fee payable, the Taxing Officer has power to investigate for himself the proper valuation of the appeal. He can take evidence for that purpose and should not exercise his powers in a summary manner. 4 P. 336=6 P.L.T. 262. A taxing Judge is bound to follow the law as laid down by a Division Bench of the High Court, whether he is acting administratively or judicially. 42 P.L.R. 101. As to the nature of the powers of the Taxing Officer and Taxing Judge, see 1942 N.L.J. 466=202 I.C. 643.

REPORT OF STAMP REPORTER—POWER OF COURT.—Though in view of R. 11 of Allahabad High Court Rules, Ch. III, it is not open to the advocate or the party to question the accuracy of the report of the Stamp Reporter, if it has not been made within three weeks from the date of the report, it does not prevent the Court from overruling his report or entering into a question of the sufficiency of the Court-fee. 1933 A.L.J. 1537.

SEC. 6: DOCUMENTS.—A memorandum of appeal is a document within the meaning of this section, as also a plaint, and an application for review. 12 A. 57=A.W.N. (1889) 197. In a case to which S. 17 applies, S. 6 is controlled by S. 17. 141 I.C. 533 (1)=1933 M. 178. Documents not required to be stamped, see Ss. 33 and 19, infra. Application not required to be in writing does not fall within the section. 2 N.W.P. 418. Thus an application by an auction-purchaser for a certificate of sale need bear no stamp. 13 B. 670. So also an application for issue of succession certificate. 17 W.R. 489. As to Court-fee on application for letter of administration, see 154 I.C. 722=1935 A. 449. Also an application for refund of stamp duty. 9 W.R. 357; 1932 A.L.J. 601=1932 A. 590. No additional Court-fees are payable on a plaint returned for presentation to the proper Court. 8 B. 313. See also 1 B. 538; 7 C. 157; 2 A. 357. When a suit properly instituted before the Settlement Officer without a Court-fee under S. 8 of Reg. III of 1872 was under S. 5 of the Regulation transferred to the Civil Court, no institution Court-fee had to be paid in the Civil Court also. 12 C.W.N. 917. Under the section, a certificate under Act XL of 1858 cannot come into existence until the person who has the permission of the Court to obtain it deposits the requisite amount of stamp duty. 12 C. 542. A document not properly stamped is not a nullity. 1936 C. 277. It is always open to the Court to find out by looking into the allegations in the plaint in a suit whether or not the suit is really what it purports to be and whether the Court-fee paid is sufficient. In fact it is a duty cast upon the Court under S. 6 of the Court-Fees Act; and if it finds that the suit in substance is not what it ostensibly appears to be but one requiring a larger Court-fee, it can demand additional Court-fee. 1937 A.L.J. 562=1937 A. 411.

As to payment of stamp duty on documents insufficiently stamped, see under S. 28. The cause of action arose on 24th September, 1929, and the suit was filed on 11th October, 1932, on the opening of the Courts after the long vacation. The plaint was stamped with a Court-fee stamp of Rs. 4 instead of Rs. 39, and on the office report the Court ordered that the deficiency should be made good within two days. The deficiency was made good on 18th October, 1932, and the suit was then registered. Held, that although the Court-fee had not been paid on 11th October, 1932, the order of the Court passed under S. 149 allowing the plaintiff two days in which to make good the deficiency undoubtedly had the effect of giving the plaintiff the same force and effect as if such fee had been paid in the first instance. 1934 A.L.J. 533=1934 A. 160. Document insufficiently stamped—Rejection of—Powers of single judge of High Court. See 157 I.C. 347=1935 A. 620=1935 A.L.J. 681 (F.B.).

SECS. 6, 13, 14 AND 15.—Refund of Court-fee—Limitation on the inherent power of Court. See 157 I.C. 443=62 C.L.J. 298=1935 C. 707.

SECS. 6 AND 17.—In a case to which S. 17 applies S. 6 is controlled by S. 17. 37 L. W. 74=1933 M. 173=65 M.L.J. 252.

SECS. 6 AND 28.—Any conflict between S. 6 of the Court-Fees Act and S. 149, C.P. Code is resolved by S. 28 of the Court-Fees Act. When an insufficiently stamped memorandum of appeal is received and comes before the Court, it falls to be dealt with under S. 149, C.P., Code, read with S. 28 of the Court-Fees Act. The Court acting under S. 149, C.P. Code, may reject the memorandum as inadmissible in cases in which it sees no good ground for extension of time to make good the deficiency or merely return it. In other case re-presentation with proper Court-fee is not precluded. I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 467=1941 N.L.J. 258=1941 Nag. 220.

U.P. AM., SEC. 6, CL. (4).—Where in an appeal in a partition suit, the question of proper Court-fee is raised on an office report and the appellant attacks the finding of the trial Court as to possession, he has to satisfy the Court that it is erroneous and if he fails to do so, the finding as to possession must be regarded as prima facie correct for the purposes of Court-fee. The question of Court-fee must be decided before proceeding with any other issue. It cannot be postponed till the hearing of the appeal. 1945 O.W.N. 114=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 85=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 207.

SEC. 6-A (AS AMENDED BY UNITED PROVINCES ACT XIX OF 1938).—When an appeal lies against an order directing payment of Court-fee, incidental orders which lead up to it can be set right. I.L.R. (1941) A. 558=1941 O.W.N. 704=1941 A. 298. The right of appeal given to a suitor under S. 6-A of U.P. Act XIX of 1938 is a part of procedure relating to determination of Court-fee and is purely a matter in which the Crown is interested and in which neither the plaintiff nor the defendant has such a vested right as cannot be affected by a subsequent enactment. Act XIX of 1938, which allows an appeal against the order demanding Court-fee does not take away any right which was vested in the plaintiff on the date when he filed the plaint; it only confers upon him a new right, and it does not take away any right which was vested in the defendant either. The defendant has no vested right in the procedure by which the proper Court-fee is determined. A change in procedure cannot be said to deprive him of any vested right. Where in respect of a suit filed before the Act XIX of 1938 came into force, an order for payment of Court-fee is passed subsequent to the Act coming into force, the right of appeal under S. 6-A is available to the aggrieved party. I.L.R. (1941) A. 558=1941 A.L.J. 376=1941 O. W.N. 704=1941 A. 208. Where on an objection as to Court-fee paid being raised the Court decides the question of Court-fee along with the merits of the case and embodies everything in a single judgment and adds a direction that the decree is to be drawn up after the deficiency is made good, the procedure adopted by the Court is in flagrant violation of the provisions of the Court-Fees Act. Where the plaintiff in such a case does not make good the deficiency and appeals the appeal is an appeal against an order in accordance with S. 6-A, Court-Fees Act and not against a decree under S. 96, C.P. Code, for no decree has been drawn up in the case. 1940 O.A. 1168=1941 A. 55. As to whether cross-objections can be filed in an appeal under the section, see 1942 O.W.N. 382.

SECS. 6-B AND 6-C : REFERENCE BY WHOM COMPETENT.—Under S. 6-C, Court-Fees Act it is only the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority that is giving the power to make a reference to the High Court. The Chief Inspector cannot make a reference under that section. He is only entitled under S. 6-B within the prescribed period to move the prescribed Court "by an application in writing" for revision. A letter sent by the Chief Inspector containing a statement of his opinion and not bearing a stamp cannot be considered to be an application in writing for revision under S. 6-B. I.L.R. (1941) A. 585=1941 A.L.J. 487=1941 A. 369.

The petition for revision presented by the Chief Inspector of stamps must state the date on which he received the order as the date is material for finding whether it is in time. 1946 C.W.N. (1 & C) 118=1946 A.L.W. 126.

SEC. 7: SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—S. 7 states the various processes by which the values in different suits are to be ascertained and the schedule then applies the proper Court-fee to these values. 6 N.L.R. 164=8 I.C. 1125. Once the value of a relief is ascertained for purposes of a plaint, the first schedule rates the relief at the same value for purposes of appeal. The value of the same relief remains unchanged all through the succeeding stages though the appeal is made against its grant or its refusal by the lower Court. (Ibid.) See also 1933 N. 362; 49 I.O. 962 (P.); 30 M.L.J. 402=39 M. 725. The value of the suit thus artificially ascertained is quite distinct from valuation for jurisdiction although it may be the same in many cases. 5 C. 439=4 C.L.R. 491; 4 B. 515; 15 C. 104; 12 B.L.R. 115 (Note)=18 W.R. 109. See Suits Valuation Act. The provisions of S. 7 are applicable equally to appeals as to original suits. But the Court-fee payable in appeal need not be the same as in the suit, as the nature of the litigation may be changed in appeal. See 25 O.C. 30=1932 O. 82. In suits to obtain a declaratory decree or order where consequential relief is prayed for, and in suits to obtain an injunction, where the Court finds the relief claimed as undervalued, it is under O. VII, r. 11 (b), entitled to require the plaintiff to correct the valuation stated by him in accordance with the provisions of S. 7, Court-Fees Act. But so long as there are no rules framed under S. 9, Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), the Court would have no standard before it on which it may regard the plaintiff's valuation as an under-valuation, and its powers of correction would have to be exercised on that footing. 61 C. 796=38 O.W.N. 589=1934 C. 443 (F.B.). See 149 I.C. 109=1934 P. 234. See also cases cited under Sch. I, Art. 1, on the point. The application of any particular clause of S. 7 must depend on the substance of the claim and not on the mere words used in the plaint. 1925 M. 248=91 I.C. 709=50 M.L.J. 406; 29 L.W. 584. Court-fee is payable on the footing of the plaint and not on what is afterwards decided by the Court. 79 I.C. 913=5 P.L.T. 655.

(i) In suits for money (including suits for damages or compensation, or arrears of maintenance of annuities, or of other sums payable periodically)—according to the amount claimed;

OPERATION OF AMENDING ACTS.—Where a suit for injunction is filed before the amendment of the Court-Fees Act, by U.P. Act XIX of 1938 and Court-fee paid according to the law then in force but a second appeal is filed after the amendment, on a question as to the court-fee payable on the appeal, it was held that it was the amount mentioned in the plaint which was the basis of valuation and that one must look back to the date of the institution of the suit to ascertain it. I.L.R. (1940) A. 793=1940 A.L.J. 904=1941 A. 134. See also 1941 A.L.J. 376=1941 O.W.N. 704=1941 A. 298.

SEC. 7, CL. (1): SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—This clause has no application to suits or appeals in which no amount is claimed. 30 M. 96=16 M.L.J. 458. Suits for recovery of money by the sale of mortgaged property fall under this clause and not under Cl. (iv). 30 A. 103; 58 C. 829=1931 C. 159; 18 B. 696; 7 Bom.L.R. 194. A co-mortgagee suing to recover his individual share in the mortgage must value his suit according to the full amount due under the deed and cannot value it according to his own share. 54 L. W. 679=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 986; I.L.R. 1942 Mad. 438=(1939 M. 986) overruled. Sub-mortgage—Suit by sub-mortgagee impleading original mortgagor also—Prayer for sale of the properties mortgaged under original mortgage—Court-fee is payable on original mortgage amount and not sub-mortgage amount. 1937 M.W.N. 1040. The stamp on a plaint on an instalment bond should be calculated not on the amount of the whole bond but on the amount claimed in the suit. 4 W.B. 12.

WHAT ARE MONEY SUITS.—A suit for the balance due on a commission agency account is a money suit under S. 7 (i). 64 I.O. 626=15 S.L.R. 82. See also 18 B. 696. Also a suit for a definite sum as commission. 1928 B. 476. So also a suit for arrears of maintenance in which no declaration as to future maintenance is asked for. 87 I.O. 911=1925 N. 435; 42 A. 356; 1927 O. 623; 149 I.C. 982=1934 L. 150. A suit to obtain a declaration that the plaintiff is the sole and exclusive owner of G.P. Notes which are not mature for payment is not a suit for recovery of money, and S. 7 (i) does not apply. 188 I.C. 471=1940 Lah. 26. A suit for an order that the defendant should specifically perform a contract of guarantee or for compensation for breach of the contract falls under Cl. (1). Bom.P.J. (1890) p. 204. See also 2 R. 462=1925 R. 65; 47 I.C. 992. A suit for specific movable property of different kinds or their value as compensation, must be stamped under S. 7 (1) on the total value of the claim. 3 A. 131. Suit for an ascertained sum of cesses is governed by this clause (i). 11 P.L.T. 619. Also a suit for rent accrued due. 42 A. 353=55 I.C. 809; 17 I.C. 44. As to suit for enhancement of rent, see 61 C. 513=38 C.W. N. 527=1934 C. 674. A suit for taking of accounts of the assets and income of the joint family property for the purposes of partition of the share of the outstandings, after taking accounts, is not a claim for money governed by S. 7 (i), so far as the assets of the family or even such funds as may be found to be in the possession of the defendants on the taking of the accounts are concerned, and the Court cannot refuse to accept the plaintiff's valuation even on the ground that it is arbitrary. 165 I.C. 412 (2)=1936 M.W.N. 401=1936 M. 562. See also 160 I.C. 935=70 M.L.J. 292. In a suit for accounts, the mere fact that the plaintiff refers in the plaint to the account sent by the defendant wherein it is stated that a specific amount was remaining in the hands of the defendant, would not convert the suit into a suit for recovery of a specific

- (ii) In suits for maintenance and annuities or other sums payable periodically for maintenance and annuities ; —according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit, and such value shall be deemed to be ten times the amount claimed to be payable for one year.
- (iii) In suits for moveable property other than money, where the subject-matter has a market-value—according to such value for moveable property having a market-value ; at the date of presenting the plaint ;
- (iv) In suits—

sum of money stated in the letter so as to be chargeable to Court-fee on that amount. 163 I.C. 822=1936 M. 525. See also 1936 B. 166.

SUIT MESNE PROFITS.—A suit for means profits falls under this clause and not under Cl. (6) of Art. 17, Sch. II, Court-fee should be paid on the amount claimed antecedent to the suit. 13 C.W.N. 815=1 I.C. 670. See also 1 P.L.W. 781=40 I.C. 579; 165 I.C. 972=44 L.W. 763=71 M.L.J. 677. No Court-fee need be paid on the amount claimed subsequent to the suit. 15 B. 416. See also under S. 11. In an appeal from a decree directing ejectment and awarding mesne profits, Court-fee must be calculated on the value of land and the mesne profits. 16 M. 310. See also 23 M. 84; 43 I.C. 962.

SEC. 7, CL. (ii).—Suits for declaration of right to periodical payment fall under the clause. 42 A. 353=18 A.L.J. 328=55 I.C. 809. If in addition to such declaration, arrears are claimed, Court-fee must be paid also on such claim under cl. (1). Ibid. See also 24 B. 386=163 I.C. 471=1936 M. 388=70 M.L.J. 128. Where a suit is to secure a certain sum as arrears of annuity and also to call upon the defendant to furnish security for the payment of a certain sum per mensem the second part of the prayer is chargeable under S. 7 (ii). 1886 A.W.N. 228. A suit to obtain a reduction in the amount of maintenance decreed to a Hindu widow on a change of circumstances does not come under the clause and may be presented on a Court-fee stamp of Rs. 10. 24 B. 386=2 Bom.L.R. 191. See also 1 A. 594; 59 M. 159=69 M.L.J. 202=1935 M. 655. Suit by A against B and C for a declaration of title to certain property and injunction restraining C from paying and B from receiving an allowance of Rs. 2,400 a year out of the income thereof falls under S. 7, Cl. 4 (c) and (d) and not under S. 7, cl. (2). 17 B. 56. A suit to remove mutawalli, for accounts and for recovery of amounts directed to be paid annually to descendants of wakif under the wakf deed and for appointment of a new mutawalli, is governed by S. 7, cl. (ii) and not Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi). I. L.R. (1942) Kar. 424=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 160.

OTHER SUMS PAYABLE PERIODICALLY.—Re: Court-fee payable for suits for arrears of maintenance, see 1 Luck. 648. See also Madras Amending Act V of 1922. In construing S. 7, cl. (ii) the expression "Other sums payable periodically" must be limited by the specific words which precede it. Court-fee on a suit for assessment of rent and recovery of a specific sum of money as damages for use and occupation should be computed under Cl. (iv) (c) of S. 7. 51 I.C. 15=4 P.L.J. 561. But see 59 C. 997=55 C.L.J. 303=1932 C. 674. On this section, see also 40 C.W.N. 1149.

SEC. 7, CL. (iii).—A suit for the recovery of movable property pledged falls under this clause. See D.C.B. (Central Provinces) Part V, p. 3. Bonds have a certain market-value a suit for bonds must be valued according to the amount secured by them and not on the value of the stamp paper. 10 P.R. 1871. See also 4 C. 322=3 C.L.R. 375.

SEC. 7, CL. (iv). Court-Fees Act, must be read with O. 7, r. 11 (b), C.P. Code. S. 7 (iv) simply means that the relief sought is to be valued in the plaint or memorandum of appeal by the plaintiff. (1933 S. 322; 1931 S. 15 and 1934 C. 448, Rel. on.) 161 I.C. 384=1936 S. 25.

BENGAL AMENDMENT ACT, SEC. 8-C.—In Bengal S. 7, cl. (iv) is subject to S. 8-C of the Court-Fees Bengal Amendment Act, 1935. 68 C.L.J. 144. See also 44 C.W.N. 591=1940 Cal. 566; 44 C.W.N. 745. [For recent cases bearing on Ben. Am. Act, S. 8-C, see 41 C.W.N. 1339=1937 C. 748; 42 C.W.N. 504=1938 C. 865; 43 C.W.N. 167; I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 20=1939 C. 743; 44 C.W.N. 745=1940 Cal. 451; I.L.R. PLAINTIFF'S RIGHT TO PUT HIS OWN VALUATION IN SUITS COMING UNDER THE CLAUSE.—"The nature of the suits comprised in the six articles of the clause which in some instances renders it impossible, and in others either impossible or generally extremely difficult, to lay down even approximately fair ad valorem scale as a means of fixing the Court-fee in such suits would appear fully to account for the legislature leaving it to the plaintiff to name the valuation." Per Westropp, C.J., in 2 B. 219. There is a conflict of rulings as to whether the Court has power to question or interfere with the plaintiff's valuation or whether the Court is bound to accept the valuation of the plaintiff however arbitrary it may be. The Calcutta High Court is of the view that it was never intended that the plaintiff should assign an arbitrary value and that if he puts an arbitrarily low value, it is open to the Court to determine the true value. 40 C. 245=15 C. L.J. 194=17 C.W.N. 591; 11 C.W.N. 705.

to enforce a right to share in joint family property;

(a) for moveable property where the subject-matter has no market-value, as, for instance, in the case of documents relating to title,

(b) to enforce the right to share in any property on the ground that it is joint family property,

But see 27 C.W.N. 457=1923 C. 329; 33 C.W.N. 231 (23 C.W.N. 753, P.C. Rel. on.) The Patna High Court and the Allahabad High Court are of the same view. 2 P. 198=4 P.L.T. 71; 56 I.C. 316=4 P.L.J. 703; 41 I.C. 95=2 P.L.W. 173; 5 P.L.J. 394; 131 I.C. 808=1931 P. 195; 36 A. 500=12 A.L.J. 844=24 I.C. 679. But the Bombay and Madras High Courts hold that the plaintiff has the right to put his own valuation on the claim and that the Court cannot revise such valuation. 44 B. 331=22 Bom.L.R. 289; 33 B. 307=11 Bom.L.R. 30. See also 2 B. 219 cited infra and 17 B. 56; 23 M. 490=10 M.L.J. 240; 38 M. 922=28 M.L.J. 118=28 I.C. 79. See also 27 M. 480; 30 M. 18; 24 M.L.J. 233 (F.B.). The Privy Council ruling in 23 C.W.N. 753=43 B. 376 would seem to support this view. There it was held that where a plaintiff sues for a declaratory decree and asks for consequential relief, then for purposes of Court-fee and for purposes of jurisdiction, it is the value that the plaintiff puts upon the claim that determines both. See also 33 C.W.N. 231; 68 C.L.J. 144. In Punjab also the Court does not interfere with plaintiff's valuation of the suit. 1922 L. 236; 111 P.R. 1913=22 I.C. 503; 1927 L. 890=9 L. 366. So also in Burma. See 3 Bur.L.J. 128=1924 R. 378 (2). But see 1933 R. 40. For decisions of Nagpur Judicial Commissioner's Court, see 1924 N. 295; 1924 N. 316. See also 79 I.C. 582. [See also under Cl. (iv) (c).]

APPEAL.—In the light of the reference to the memorandum of appeal in the last paragraph of the clause, the appellant can set his own value where the subject-matter of the appeal is not co-extensive with the original claim. 23 M. 490. But a party cannot differently value the relief sought by him at different stages of the same litigation. 24 M. 331. See also 82 I.C. 614=5 L. 481=1925 L. 1.

SEC. 7 (iv) (a).—A suit to recover title-deeds, although it may involve a question of title, is not a suit to obtain possession of land. 4 C. 322=3 C.L.R. 375. See also 26 C. 204=2 C.W.N. 718; 10 P.R. 1871. As to whether suit for recovery of mortgage deed falls under this clause, see 39 P.R. 1875; 63 C. 657; 164 I.C. 1042=40 C.W.N. 90=62 C.L.J. 405. A suit for a declaration that the person really interested in a promissory note is the plaintiff and not the defendant, though it is in the defendant's name, and for recovery of the note but not for recovery of the money due thereunder, to which the maker of the note is also a party falls under S. 7, cl. (iv) (a) of the Court-Fees Act, and the plaintiff has got to state the value at which he values the relief. Cl. (iii) of S. 7 does not apply to the case. 58 M. 228=40 L.W. 709=1934 M. 730 (1)=67 M.L.J. 680.

CASE UNDER U.P. AMENDMENT ACT, S. 7 (iv) (a).—When along with a declaratory relief there is sought some consequential relief in respect of immovable property, but such relief is not capable of valuation in money, then court-fee should be paid as if the relief was one for possession of immovable property. 15 Luck. 415=1940 O.W.N. 223=1940 O. 249.

SEC. 7 (iv) (b): "RIGHT TO SHARE".—The expression "right to share" has been differently interpreted by the different High Courts. The Bombay High Court has held that the words refer to a suit for the enforcement of what may be called an abstract claim of right to share in any joint property. In such view the clause would apply only where the right which is sought to be enforced is a right to share as a joint sharer in joint family property, where the plaintiff's status as a co-parcener is in dispute. See 33 B. 658=11 Bom.L.R. 1074=4 I.C. 243. Ordinary suits for partition would fall either under Cl. (v) of Art. 17 (6) of Sch. II according as the plaintiff is in joint possession or not. For cases where the Bombay High Court has held that ad valorem Court-fee should be paid under Cl. (v) see 33 B. 658; 18 B. 209. In a previous case (22 B. 315), however, this Court had held that the fee payable in a suit for partition would be according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint. [S. 7, Cl. (iv) (b).] The Calcutta High Court also has held the view that the clause refers to a suit for joint possession by a co-parcener who is out of possession and not to a suit for partition which is governed by Art. 17, Cl. (6). 6 C.L.J. 651=12 C.W.N. 37. Where the plaintiff is already in possession of his share and all that he wants is to obtain a partition which is merely to change the form of enjoyment of the property, the suit is incapable of valuation. 8 C. 757=11 C.L.R. 95; 5 C. 188=4 C.L.R. 418; 13 C.L.R. 253. See also 20 C. 762; 27 I.C. 465 (C); 137 I.C. 519=36 C.W.N. 291=1932 C. 353; 22 C.W.N. 669; 38 C. 681. In a recent Full Bench decision, the Madras High Court also has taken the view that the clause does not apply to ordinary suits for partition between co-parceners of a Hindu family. See I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 259=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 32=51 L.W. 11=1940 Mad. 113 (F.B.) overruling 21 M.L.J. 21. The Allaha- bad High Court and Patna High Court are of the same view. See 34 A. 184=8 A.L.J. 1329=13 I.C. 185 following A.W.N. (1900) P. 90 and 28 A. 340; 49 I.C. 115 (Pat.); 58 I.C. 236=5 P.L.J. 540; 2 P. 32. Where the plaintiff is out of possession of his share in the joint property he is required to pay ad valorem Court-fee under S. 7, Cl. (iv) upon the valuation of his share in the property. 58 I.C. 236=5 P.L.J. 540. See also 63 I.C. 203 (Pat.); 1924 N. 86=81 I.C. 766; 19 N.L.R. 99; 101 I.C. 770=1927 N. 248. [The plaintiff cannot give this value as he likes according to the view taken by these Courts—see cases cited supra on the point.] The Patna High Court went to the length of holding that a party seeking partition must ask for joint possession if he is out of possession as a condition precedent to a decree for partition and that in a suit so framed he must pay fixed fee in addition to an ad valorem fee. 3 P. 618=1924 P. 558=81 I.C. 1052. See also 6 P.L.J. 662=65 I.C. 294 (Declaration of title prayed for regarding one of the items to be partitioned); 1 P.L.T. 529=56 I.C. 570; 123 I.C. 525=1930 L. 839; 131 I.C. 283=1931 L. 170; 141 I.C. 175=1933 L. 208=34 P.L.R. 84; A.I.R. 1939 L. 568. For older decisions, see 40 P.L.R. 2=1938 L. 321; 2 L. 114=61 I.C. 628; 104 P.R. 1895; 28 P.R. 1903=65 P.L.R. 1903. In a suit to enforce the right to share in joint family property, i.e., a suit to be restored to joint possession or enjoyment of joint family property, Court-fee would be payable under S. 7 (iv) (b), ad valorem on the value of the relief as fixed by the plaintiff; and in a suit for partition of joint property whether owned by a joint family or otherwise, where the plaintiff alleges that he is in actual or constructive possession thereof, Court-fee payable would be Rs. 10 under Art. 17 (vi), Sch. II, Court-Fees Act. But if the Court finds, on a plea being raised by the defendant, this allegation to be untrue, then ordinarily the suit will be dismissed solely on the ground that the plaintiff being out of possession is not entitled to sue for partition without asking for possession of the property in dispute, unless for special reasons the Court deems it proper to allow an amendment of the plaint on payment of the requisite Court-fee. 15 L. 531=150 I.C. 994=36 P.L.R. 48 (F.R.); (1941) Lah. 152 (F.B.). For older decisions, see 40 P.L.R. 2=1938 L. 321; 2 L. 114=61 I.C. 628; 104 P.R. 1895; 28 P.R. 1903=65 P.L.R. 1903. S. 7 (iv) (b) will not apply to cases where the plaintiff is in joint possession of the joint family property but it must apply to cases where he is out of possession of it and seeks partition. In the former case the court-fee is levied under Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II. 1939 O.L.R. 607=1939 O.W.N. 1055=15 Luck. 76=1940 O. 47.

In Burma also, in a suit for partition, the plaint must be stamped according to the plaintiff's valuation of his share which he seeks to recover. 9 Bur.L.T. 97=35 I.C. 731. (The value given by the plaintiff in this case does not seem to have been arbitrary but the value assessed by the Divisional Judge.) See also 7 R. 164=1929 R. 211 holding that in a suit by a Mahomedan for a share or inheritance, ad valorem Court-fee is payable under the clause. See also 1937 R.L.R. 447 cited under Ch. II, Art. 17 (viii). In a suit for partition of joint property, where the plaintiff alleges joint possession, a Court-fee of Rs. 10 only is sufficient under Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) S. 7 (iv) (b) of the Act does not apply to such a claim. To determine the Court-fee leviable regard must be had to the allegations in the plaint and the substance of the relief sought apart from the consideration of any evidence in the case. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 84=A.I.R. 1945 Sind 128.

"ANY PROPERTY."—The terms are wide enough to include movable property.

"JOINT FAMILY PROPERTY."—The old decisions of the Madras High Court as to the distinction between partition of joint family property and partition of other joint property are rendered obsolete by the Full Bench decision in I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 259=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 32. As for the previous decisions on the point, see 90 I.C. 848=1926 M. 122; 1930 M.W.N. 508; 141 I.C. 80=64 M.L.J. 24; 129 I.C. 824=1931 M. 94; 43 M. 397=38 M.L.J. 92. See also for other High Court decisions as to the meaning of the words "joint family property". 20 I.C. 177; 1930 L. 839. See 7 R. 164=1929 R. 211, where the Rangoon High Court applied the clause to a suit by a Mahomedan for a share of inheritance.

SUIT BY PLAINTIFFS NOT IN POSSESSION.—Where the plaintiff is not in possession actual or constructive of the property, Court-fee must be paid ad valorem as for suit for possession and partition. 27 I.C. 465=21 C.L.J. 253=20 C.W.N. 51; 137 I.C. 519=36 C.W.N. 291=1932 C. 353; See also 1941 Rang.L.R. 249=1941 Rang. 297. But mere denial by the defendant of the plaintiff's title and possession does not convert a partition suit into one of declaration of title and recovery of possession. 12 C.W.N. 37=6 C.L.J. 651. See also 38 C. 681; 35 C.W.N. 942. S. 7 (iv) (b) makes no difference between a plaintiff who is in actual possession and one who is merely in constructive possession of the property which is to be partitioned. Where a plaintiff never alleged that he was in actual or constructive possession but asked for delivery of his share to him and further asked for accounts and delivery to him of his share of the amount that might be found due to the estate, it clearly is not a case where a ten rupee stamp would be sufficient. 1941 Rang.L.R. 249=1941 Rang. 297. Taxing officers should be astute to see that a plaintiff should not avoid liability to pay Court-fee under S. 7 (iv) (c) or 7 (v) by merely omitting to insert a prayer for possession in what was essentially a title suit in the guise of a partition suit. 18 P.L.T. 488=16 P. 491=1937 P. 514. If a suit for partition of joint family property is really or actually in the nature of a title suit, ad valorem Court-fees are payable, whether the suit be regarded as falling under S. 7 (iv) (c), 7 (iii) or 7 (v). But where in substance the relief sought is the partition of the property of which the plaintiff claims to be in joint possession, the suit falls under Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II and ad valorem Court-fee is not leviable. The plaint has to be construed as it is and care should be taken not to import into it anything which it does not contain, either actually or by necessary implication. A relief not asked for cannot be imported so as to charge Court-fee thereon. 20 Pat. 780. Where on the face of the plaint the suit was in fact a suit by a purchaser of an undivided share to establish his title to recover possession of the same, a claim for partition being added to make the relief sought effectual, it was held that an ad valorem Court-fee was payable on the plaint and not a fixed fee. 28 A. 340. See also the Patna High Court decisions cited supra on the point. A co-owner is to be presumed to be in constructive possession on the ground that possession of one co-owner is possession on behalf of all. 79 I.C. 718=5 P.L.T. 655; 20 C. 762; 44 C. 524.

VALUE FOR JURISDICTION—PARTITION SUIT.—In a partition suit, it is the share claimed by the plaintiff which is the subject-matter of the claim and not the whole of the joint property which is sought to be divided. See 22 B. 315; 8 B. 81; 24 A. 381; 24 M.L.J. 283=18 I.C. 368 (F.B.); 20 M. 289=7 M.L.J. 90; (1941) 2 M.L.J. 567; see also 5 P.L.J. 540=58 I.C. 236; 1917 P.H.C.O. 301; 7 B. 164=1929 R. 211. But see the decision of the Calcutta High Court to the contrary in 10 C.W.N. 564=3 C.L.J. 257; 3 C.L.J. 197=10 C.W.N. 565 (footnote); 4 C.L.J. 509; 12 C.W.N. 37=6 C.L.J. 651; 8 C. 757; 52 C. 128=29 C.W.N. 76=1925 C. 320 (S. 8 of the Suits Valuation Act does not apply.) In 2 P. 432=1923 P. 342, a distinction is made between suits for partition pure and simple, where the plaintiff is in joint possession and suits where the plaintiff seeks adjudication of his title or extent of share and for partition. In the former case, the value of the entire property is the value for jurisdiction and in the latter case, the value of the plaintiff's share. In a suit to establish plaintiff's right to share in joint family property, the value of the action is the value of the plaintiff's interest. 1929 P. 615.

WRITTEN STATEMENT CLAIMING SHARE.—A defendant in a partition suit, asking for a decree for his share need not pay Court-fee in order to make his claim effective. 55 M. 975=1929 Mad. 722=63 M.L.J. 845; I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 534=1941 Sind 50; 45 Bom. L.R. 1052. See also I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 856=1945 N.L.J. 361=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 273 (Defendants sharers claiming accounts from stranger in possession of joint property).

SEC. 7 (iv) (b) AND (c), (iv-A) AND (v) (AS AMENDED BY MADRAS ACT V OF 1922).—Two Hindu sons filed a suit against their step brothers and step-mother for a declaration that the properties in suit were the undivided ancestral properties of the family and that a sale-deed executed by their father in favour of their step-mother was invalid, and they prayed for separate possession of their shares after a partition by metes and bounds. They also alleged that there was a prior registered partition deed and that the sale-deed in favour of the step-mother was intended merely for the purpose of concealing the properties from them at that partition. Held, that S. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act governed the suit and that it did not fall under S. 7 (iv) (b) and (c) or under S. 7 (iv-A). 43 L.W. 583=1936 M. 411=70 M.L.J. 398. On this point, see also 68 M.L.J. 755; 1935 P. 452; 1935 A. 667; 1935 L. 698; 1935 C. 805; 62 C. 479; 68 M.L.J. 369.

SEC. 7 (iv) (c): CONSEQUENTIAL RELIEF.—Consequential relief means a substantial remedy in accordance with the title of which declaration is prayed for. 24 I.C. 316=1 L.W. 398. See also 24 C.W.N. 33 (P.C.); 42 P.L.R. 364. The expression "consequential relief" in S. 7 (iv) (c) means some relief which would follow directly from the declaration given, the valuation of which is not capable of being definitely ascertained which is not specifically provided for anywhere in the Act and cannot be claimed independently of the declaration as a substantive relief. 139 I.C. 32=1932 A.L.J. 684=1932 A. 485 (F.B.). [5 A. 331 (F.B.) Overruled.]. See also 171 I.C. 900=1937 Sind 248; I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 451=43 P.L.R. 106=1941 Lah. 97 (F.B.); 23 Pat. 749=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 81. One declaration may be consequential relief to another. 44 C. 352=21 C.W.N. 834; 47 Bom.L.R. 859. The question whether there is really a prayer for consequential relief must depend upon the substance of the claim and not the words which the plaintiff chooses to use. 20 M.L.J. 791=5 I.C. 927; 30 M. 18; 38 M. 922 (F.B.). See also 25 I.C. 797=21 C.W.N. 375; 3 P. 915=80 I.C. 544; 1925 M. 713=48 M.L.J. 688; 29 L.W. 584=56 M.L.J. 394; 116 I.C. 895=1929 L. 463; 32 P.L.R. 729; 16 L. 752=37 P.L.R. 860; 152 I.C. 847. When the first relief in the suit relates to a declaration as to the general title of the plaintiff to all the properties he inherited and the second to set aside a particular deed of transfer in respect of a particular properly inherited by her, held, the reliefs are separate and necessary and ad valorem Court-fee must be paid. 5 P. 496=1926 P. 453. The prayer for the appointment of a receiver in a suit by a Hindu reversioner for a declaration that an alienation by the widow is not binding on the reversion cannot be regarded as a 'consequential relief' since both the reliefs are unconnected and independent of each other. The proper Court-fee payable is for declaration under Sch. II, Art. 17-B (Mad. Am. Act) and for Receiver under Sch. II, Art. 17-B (Mad. Am. Act). 51 M.L.J. 67=96 I.C. 129=1926 M. 678. But see 38 M. 922; 19 I.C. 359=93 P.R. 1913; 1931 A.L.J. 837; 36 I.C. 831 (M.); 62 I.C. 36 (P.). Even in 51 M.L.J. 67, cited above, there is an observation that it may be quite conceivable that the plaint may be so drafted that both the reliefs may be claimed on the strength of the same set of facts, in which case the second relief may be consequential upon the first. See also 45 L.W. 491=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 739. Consequential and substantial reliefs—Distinction—Suit for declaration that property is wakf and its alienation is void—Ad valorem Court-fee payable. 1941 Lah. 97 (F.B.).

CLAUSE INAPPLICABLE TO SUITS FOR BARE DECLARATION.—Under Sch. II, Art. 17, a fixed fee of Rs. 10 has to be paid on a plaint for a declaratory decree where no consequential relief is prayed for. 43 B. 507=46 I. A. 24=36 M.L.J. 437. See also 69 I.C. 577; 23 A.L.J. 344=47 A. 501=1925 A. 602. In such a case the Court need not go into the question whether the suit was bound to fail for not having prayed for consequential relief. 1932 A.L.J. 466=1932 A. 560. See also 20 P.L.T. 818=1939 P.W.N. 61=1939 P. 219. The question of Court-fee must no doubt be decided on the allegations in the plaint and the relief actually asked for. But it is a common fashion to attempt an evasion of Court-fees by causing the prayers in the plaint into a declaratory shape. The Court must therefore look into the substance of the relief claimed. When the allegations in the plaint clearly show that the plaintiff virtually seeks the cancellation of certain deeds, though in form the suit is declaratory, the suit is one for a declaration with consequential relief, falling under S. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court-Fees Act and ad valorem Court-fee must be paid. 152 I.C. 312=11 O.W.N. 1292=1934 O. 505. See also 141 I.C. 798=1933 O. 116=10 O.W.N. 19; 27 C.W.N. 972=1924 C. 183; 131 I. C. 604=1931 A.L.J. 235=1931 A. 369; 32 P.L.R. 745; 140 I.C. 191=1932 A. 316=1932 A.L.J. 165; 142 I.C. 699=10 O. A suit for declaration that a sale deed executed by the plaintiff is void and inoperative against him on the ground that he was made to execute it because of coercion, undue influence, and fraud exercised upon him, need only be stamped with a Court-fee of Rs. 10. 138 I.C. 147=9 O.W.N. 440; 10 O.W.N. 133. But see 142 I.C. 705=1933 R. 40. (Arbitrary under-valuation not allowed). A suit for declaration that a certain alienation made by the plaintiff's father should not be binding upon their reversionary interest comes under Art. 17 of Sch. II. 5 L. 137=1924 L. 530=83 I.C. 332. So also a suit by reversioners to have certain alienations by widow declared invalid even though there is mention in the prayer about the grant of any other relief to which plaintiff may be entitled. 18 P. 756=20 P.L.T. 850=1940 P. 158. See also 23 Pat. 749=219 I.C. 453=(1943) P.W.N. 199=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 81. SUITS WHICH FALL UNDER THE SUB-CLAUSE.—Suits for declaration and injunction. 17 B. 56; 18 B. 100; 17 S.L.R. 15=80 I.C. 969; 36 A. 500=24 I.C. 679=12 A.L.J. 844; 1922 N. 264; 1930 M.W.N. 656; 133 I.C. 120=1931 Lah. 307; 1936 L. 166; 43 P.L.R. 337=1941 Lah. 307; I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 379=43 P.L.R. 305=1941 Lah. 284; 41 Bom.L.R. 425. But a futile and denounceable claim for injunction is not a consequential relief. 42 P.L.R. 364. If there are other consequential reliefs prayed for along with an injunction, they should be valued according to law and the proper Court-fee would depend upon the total value. 43 I.C. 995=1918 M.W.N. 40. In a suit for a declaratory decree where consequential relief is prayed the plaintiff is entitled to put his own valuation on the suit subject to Ss. 4 and 9 of the Suits Valuation Act and he must do so by putting down one single and entire sum as representing the value of the total reliefs sought by him. He cannot put one valuation for purposes of Court-fee and another for purposes of jurisdiction. 57 C.L.J. 465. In a suit for declaration with consequential relief plaintiff is entitled to place any value on the suit and the value for purposes of Court-fee and jurisdiction is the value of the relief; but the defendant is entitled to take objection to the valuation given in the plaint, both as affecting the question of jurisdiction and as affecting the question of Court-fee. And when objection is taken the Court is obliged to enter into the question of whether the value is correct. 149 I.C. 109=1934 P. 234. A suit for a declaration that plaintiff is the sole shebait, and for an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his possession of the endowed properties, falls within S. 7 (iv) (c). 40 C. 245=16 C.L.J. 19=17 O.W.N. 591. See also 31 S.L.R. 442=1937 Sind 241 (S. Also a suit for declaration that a will is a forgery and that plaintiff is the legal heir and for an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his property. 9 L.L.J. 579=29 Punj.L.R. 27. A suit was filed for a declaration, but pending the suit an injunction was obtained. The suit being dismissed, an appeal was preferred, the injunction subsisting at the time of appeal. Held, for purposes of Court-fees, the appeal fell within S. 7 (iv) (c) and ad valorem fee was payable on the consequential relief. 5 P. 211=94 I.C. 22=1926 P. 249. Where however an appeal is preferred only against the declaration it may be valued under Sch. II, Art. 17. 3 P. 640=2 P.L.R. 193=80 I.C. 563=1924 P. 582. Where provision for residence and maintenance of a female is made in a family arrangements a suit for declaration of such right and injunction comes under S. 7 (iv) (c) and not S. 7 (iv). 123 I.C. 240=1930 S. 198. A suit for partition and possession of half share alleged to be held adversely comes under this sub-clause. 58 M.L.J. 497. A suit by a husband for restitution of conjugal rights with a prayer for an injunction restraining the wife's parents from obstructing recovery of the wife falls under S. 7 (iv) (c) and Court-fee is payable ad valorem on the amount of valuation put by the plaintiff for purposes of jurisdiction—the value for Court-fee and for jurisdiction being the same. Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II does not apply to the suit. 39 C.W.N. 131=60 C.L.J. 201. As to appeal questioning award in land acquisition cases, see 60 C.L.J. 216. A suit to declare an execution sale illegal and for an injunction restraining the auction-purchaser and puisne mortgagee from taking possession falls under this clause. 58 C. 281=1930 C. 686. The plaintiffs prayed to declare a prior partition and certain alienations not to be binding on them. They further prayed for a re-partition and for possession. Held, (1) that the suit has not to be valued on the value of the entire family property but only on the plaintiffs' shares; (2) that declarations sought were ancillary to the prayer for possession and the case fell within S. 7 (iv) (c) and not under S. 7 (iv-a); (3) that the valuation under S. 7 (v) should be adopted. 1932 M.W.N. 1322=140 I.C. 585=36 L.W. 793. 17 (vi) has no application to the case. But when declaration is unnecessary and a person seeks partition ignoring a previous partition alleged to be a colourable transaction, to which plaintiff though a minor was made a party as if he were a major, Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) applies and not this clause. 20 Pat. 780=23 Pat.L.T. 218=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 60. In Bihar and Orissa so far as a partition suit happens to be actually in the nature of a title suit, ad valorem court-fee is payable by the plaintiff, whether the suit is regarded as governed by S. 7 (iii) or S. 7 (v). It makes no practical difference whether the suit is to be regarded as a suit for declaration with consequential relief falling under S. 7 (iv) (c), or a suit for possession of movable and immovable property governed by S. 7 (iii) and (v), since in the Courts in Bihar and Orissa, where the consequential relief sought is recovery of possession of land the plaintiff is not permitted to value the land at a lower rate than would be assessed under S. 7 (v). 18 P. 267=1939 P.W.N. 197=1939 Pat. 274.

SUITS NOT COMING UNDER THE SUB-CLAUSE. A suit for declaration and consequential relief prima facie comes within S. 7, Cl. CASES UNDER CL. (v) AND (iv) (c).—See 45 L.W. 49=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 739; 1927 A.W.R. 417. If in a suit the principal relief claimed is one for possession and the relief for declaration is merely ancillary to it, it is enough to pay the Court-fee on the relief as to possession. On the other hand, if the principal relief is for a declaration and the plaintiff's right to possession depends upon his being entitled to the declaration, then the relief for possession must be regarded as a consequential relief and the Court-fee will be payable according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint or in the memorandum of appeal. If a case falls under the first class the Court-fee is payable on five times the Government revenue. In the latter class the plaintiff must pay Court-fee on the valuation put by him on the disputed property for purposes of jurisdiction. Where a Hindu son sued questioning the validity of certain alienations made by his father and claimed a decree for possession of his share and a declaration that the father had no right to make the alienations, held, that the suit was one for declaration with a consequential relief and not merely one for possession for purposes of Court-fee. 6 O.W.N. 1105=1930 O. 104. See also 1930 O. 368; 202 I. C. 174=44 P.L.R. 162=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 209. In all cases where possession is claimed, the plaintiff has to establish his title before he can get a decree for possession. Where a suit is in reality one for possession, the fact that the plaintiff asks in his plaint for something in the nature of a declaration will not make it a suit for declaration and consequential relief for the purposes of Court-fee. The suit being really one purely for possession, Court-fee is payable only on that basis. 193 I.O. 538=21 P. 1068=1941 P. 167; 48 Bom.L.R. 193. Where a Hindu son seeks to recover possession of joint family properties which have been sold in execution of decrees on mortgages executed by his father from purchasers of those properties who are in possession thereof, he cannot ask for possession without getting a declaration that the debts covered by the mortgages were incurred for an illegal or immoral purpose, the son being bound by such sales unless he proves that the debts are illegal or immoral. Hence S. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court-Fees Act applies to the suit. But where the son sues for possession of properties conveyed by his father by private sales the position is different. He can treat such sales as not binding on him leaving it to the alienees to prove necessity or antecedent debts. It is open to him to treat such sales as null and void, and in a suit of that nature, S. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act would apply. 24 Pat. 334=1945 P.W.N. 327 (2)=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 421. Where the essential claim made by the plaintiff is one for possession, the fact that the plaint attempts to anticipate a possible defence and says that the defendants will rely upon certain dispositions of the property falsely alleged to have been made, the suit is one for possession under S. 7 (v) and there cannot be any pretence that the claim is one for a declaration with consequential relief falling under S. 7 (iv) (c). Merely because the defendants challenge the title of the plaintiff, the suit does not become one for a declaration with consequential relief. 16 P. 766=18 P.L.T. 977=1938 P. 22 (S.B.). See also 21 P.L.T. 609; 1942 N.L.J. 372. Where a plaintiff asks for declaration and a consequential relief, though it is enough for his purposes to merely ask for possession the suit must be treated as one falling under S. 7 (iv) (c). 1938 N.L.J. 130. See also 202 I.O. 174=44 P.L.R. 162=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 209. In a suit by Hindu sons for a declaration that a decree obtained by the defendant against their father is not binding on them and the joint family property, Court-fee is payable not as on a mere declaration but ad valorem, because the obvious effect of the decree would be to save property from liability to the decretal amount. (24 O.C. 361; 10 M. 187; 5 P.L.J. 394; 8 L. 531, Foll.) 8 Luck. 668=150 I.O. 722=11 O. W.N. 488=1934 O. 212 (1). A prayer for confirmation of possession includes a prayer for recovery of possession if the Court thinks the plaintiff is out of possession. 2 P. 198=4 P.L.T. 71; 179 I.O. 586=1939 Pat. 254. Where a Magistrate passes an order under S. 146, Cr.P. Code, and interferes with possession, relief regarding possession should also be prayed for. 105 I.O. 351=1927 N. 316. A suit to set aside an execution sale of certain properties on the ground that the decree having been previously adjusted could not be executed, and that the sale was therefore null and void, is one substantially for possession and comes under Cl. (v) and not under S. 7 (iv) (c). 49 O. 880=27 O.W.N. 566=38 O.L.J. 74=1922 O. 506. See also 94 I.O. 179=13 O.L.J. 124=1926 O. 380. Where the prayer was that upon the determination of the plaintiff's proprietary interest in a house, the defendants who were merely tenants at will may be ordered to vacate the house, held, the suit was one for ejectment falling under S. 7, Cl. (v). 5 P. 631. The clause is not applicable to a suit for recovery of possession by cancellation of a document. 1929 O. 419. But in Madras there is a special Cl. (iv) which would apply. See 64 M.L.J. 127. As to a suit for the removal of the manager of a religious institution on the ground that it is a private one and that the plaintiff alone has the power to appoint and dismiss the manager, see 17 I.O. 270=216 P.L.R. 1912. SUITS FOR CANCELLATION OF A DECREE OF DOCUMENT.—See 152 I.O. 847. [Separately provided for, so far as Madras is concerned, by Cl. (iv-a) inserted by Madras Act V of 1922.]

(1) DECREE.—S. 7 (iv) (c) is applicable to a suit in which, having regard to the substance of the plaint, it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to obtain a declaratory decree or order to perfect his right to the consequential relief that he claims; for instance, where the plaintiff seeks relief to which he is not entitled unless and until some decree or document or alienation of property is avoided, a suit in which a declaration in that behalf is claimed is within S. 7 (iv) (c). 9 R. 401=134 I. C. 1263=1931 R. 319. A suit to declare a decree or document to which the plaintiff was a party not binding on him falls within this clause. 38 M. 922=28 M.L.J. 118. See also 43 I.C. 962=3 P.L.J. 92; 118 I.C. 465=1929 N. 71. Where a party to a decree sues for a declaration that it is illegal and void, the granting of such a declaration in his favour has the effect of setting aside that decree and relieving him of the obligations thereunder. Even though a consequential relief may not be expressly prayed for, yet if such a relief is implicit in the declaration and is a necessary consequence of it, it must be deemed to be included in the declaration prayed for. To such case it is S. 7 (iv) (c) which applies and not Art. 17 (iii), Sch. II and an ad valorem court-fee is payable. 13 Luck. 628=1938 O. 1 (F.B.). A suit in which the only prayer is to have the decree set aside as null and void is a suit for declaration without consequential relief falling under Art. 17 of Schedule II. 20 B. 736; 30 C. 788; 34 C.W.N. 1129; 150 I.C. 1030=1934 R. 152. See also under Art. 17 (3) of Schedule II. A suit to set aside a decree on the ground of fraud would fall under this sub-clause. 7 L.L.J. 15=86 I.C. 680=1925 Lah. 346; 16 N.L.R. 84=36 I.C. 360. See also 1934 Pesh. 109; 8 L. 531=9 L.L.J. 400=102 I.C. 46=1927 L. 399; 116 I. C. 895=1929 L. 463. A suit for a declaration that a decree was fraudulent and incapable of execution and that the family property should be released from execution falls under S. 7 (iv) (c) and is not a suit for possession under Cl. (iv). 40 C. 615=21 I.C. 404. See also 51 I.C. 536=24 M.L.T. 254; 56 I.C. 550. A person was a bona fide purchaser for value of lands which were found to be burdened with a charge of a maintenance decree. The person brought a suit for a declaration, "that the lands were not liable for the maintenance charge." Question was whether S. 7 (iv) (c) or Art. 17 (ii), Sch. II applied. Held, that although the relief asked for was a mere declaration yet it involved the consequential relief of amendment of the maintenance decree, and hence S. 7 (iv) (c) applied. A suit for a declaration that the decree obtained by the defendant is fraudulent and for an injunction restraining the defendant from restraining with the plaintiff's possession of the property in suit falls under Cl. (iv) (c). 40 C.L.J. 150=79 I.C. 982=1924 C. 969; 137 I. C. 240=33 P.L.R. 488; 1930 M.W.N. 656. Suit by a minor on attaining majority to set aside a mortgage decree against him as void falls within Cl. (iv) (c). 65 I. C. 980=24 O.C. 361. See also 32 P.L.R. 729. In Madras such a suit would fall under Cl. (iv-a). 139 I.C. 317=1932 M. 605=63 M.L.J. 764; 141 I.C. 80=64 M.L.J. 124=1933 M. 430. A person not a party to the decree may sue to have it declared void without asking for any consequential relief and the suit is not governed by Cl. (iv) (c). 73 I.C. 767=1933 L. 373. A person who is not a party to a decree need not get the decree set aside. But a son is bound by a decree obtained against the father. So where a son sues for declaration that a decree debt against his father is not binding on him, or on the joint family property, there is involved in it a prayer for setting aside the decree and hence ad valorem court-fee is payable. I.L.R. 1943 Nag. 440=1942 N.L.J. 466=202 I.C. 643=A.I. R. 1943 Nag. 70. See also 46 P.L.R. 346=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 13. The question whether a decree sought by a plaintiff is a mere declaratory decree without any consequential relief coming under Art. 17 (iii) of the second schedule of the Court-fees Act, or whether it is a decree with consequential relief governed by S. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court-Fees Act, depends not on whether or not the plaintiff was a party to the decree which he is seeking to avoid, but whether or not the relief claimed comes under S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act. 177 I.C. 550=1938 O. W.N. 889=1938 O. 201 (F.B.). A suit brought by the legal representatives of a deceased debtor who is a party to an agreement registered under the C.P. and Bihar Debt Conciliation Act, having the force of a decree, to have that "decree" made unenforceable against him, requires an ad valorem Court-fee stamp. I.L.B. (1945) Nag. 5=1945 N.L.J. 431=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 30.

(2) DOCUMENTS.—A suit for declaration of the invalidity of a mortgage deed, for cancellation and for an injunction restraining the defendant from enforcing its terms, would fall within sub-cl. (iv) (c). 13 I.C. 864=7 N.L.R. 190. See also 1937 L. 698. So also a suit to declare a gift deed executed by the plaintiff's husband in favour of the defendant void, as he was a lunatic, and praying that possession be delivered to plaintiff as manager on behalf of her lunatic husband comes under cl. (iv) (c). 22 A.L.J. 945=47 A. 78. Also a suit for declaration by a member of a joint Hindu family that a mortgage deed executed by a deceased co-parcener is not binding on him and also for possession of the property. 50 A. 610=26 A.L.J. 316=1928 A. 248.

Suit by a bona fide purchaser for value of lands, burdened with a charge under maintenance decree, for a declaration that the lands are not subject to the charge involved the consequential amendment of maintenance decree and hence S. 7 (iv) (c) applied. 174 I.C. 891=1938 N. 183. A suit for declaration that the decree obtained by the defendant is fraudulent and for an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the plaintiff's possession of the property in suit would fall under the sub-cl. (iv) (c) if the defendant holds the property under a document executed by the plaintiff and it is necessary first to obtain cancellation. 38 M. 321=24 M.L.J. 592. Where the suit was for the cancellation of a sale-deed executed by the plaintiff and for recovery of possession of the land and the plaintiff paid Court-fee for the cancellation of the sale-deed on the amount of the consideration specified in the deed. Held, that the claim for recovery of possession was merely ancillary to the main claim, namely, setting aside the sale-deed, and that separate Court-fee was not payable in respect of the prayer for possession. 64 M.L.J. 127=56 M. 401=1933 M. 231. A suit for cancellation of a registered instrument under S. 39 of the Specific Relief Act, is a suit for declaration and consequential relief. 45 I.C. 238=3 P. L. J. 194. See also 23 M. 490; 29 B. 207=6 Bom.L.R. 1125; 35 P.R. 1914=25 I.C. 435; 1929 O. 491; 43 P.L.R. 252=1941 Lah. 265. But see 139 I.C. 32=1932 A.L.J. 684=1932 A. 485 (F.B.). So also suit for cancellation of a will falls under the clause. 36 I.C. 95=87 P.R. 1916. Where a will is attacked not only on the ground that it is not genuine and not properly registered, but is also as being brought about by fraud, undue influence, etc., the plaintiff virtually asks for the cancellation of the will and it must be deemed to involve a consequential relief. The plaint has to be stamped ad valorem under S. 7 (iv) (c) of the Act. 14 Luck. 536=1939 O. 125. A suit for a declaration that a deed is inoperative is in substance one for its cancellation. 20 M.L.J. 791=5 I.C. 927. See also 118 I.C. 465=1929 N. 71. A suit though cast in the form of a declaratory relief only, but in substance aiming at setting aside a deed, formally executed and registered in accordance with law is governed by S. 7 (iv) (c) and not by Sch. II, Art. 17 (iii). 22 Pat. 783=24 P.L.T. 446=1944 M.W. N. 54=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 17 (F.B.). See also 10 Pat. 432=1931 Pat. 78=130 I.C. 46. Persons who are not parties to a document need not sue for its cancellation. Thus a suit for a declaration that mortgage deed is not binding on the plaintiff who was not a party to the same, falls under Sch. II, Art. 17-A and not S. 7 (iv) (c). 87 I.C. 660 (2)=1925 M. 713=48 M.L.J. 688; 10 O. W.N. 19=1933 O. 116. See also 5 A. 331; 1924 M.W.N. 210=78 I.C. 118 (2)=1924 M. 611 (2). A claim to have a registered agreement entered into before a Debt Conciliation Board, declared invalid, is equivalent to have it adjudged void or voidable and would therefore fall under S. 39 of the Specific Relief Act under which the Court may adjudge the document void or voidable and order it to be delivered up and cancelled. In such a case the plaintiff must be deemed to have asked for the relief which the Court can grant under S. 39 of the Specific Relief Act and this amounts to consequential relief and hence the suit would fall under S. 7 (iv) (c). 1940 N.L.J. 96. Where an ex-minor sued alleging that he was a minor at the time of the execution of a mortgage deed by him and that it was therefore void against him, held, that all that was necessary for the minor was to ask that the document be declared to be void against him and the suit need not be treated as involving a prayer for a consequential relief, namely, the setting aside of the document. 11 B. 66=1933 R. 109. Where the mother as the guardian of her minor sons executed a release deed on behalf of the minors, the release deed is not void but only voidable and must be set aside. Hence a suit for declaration by the sons after attaining majority that the release deed is invalid and for injunction must be treated as one for cancellation falling under cl. (iv-a). 1928 M. 668. Where however cancellation is specifically asked though unnecessarily, the suit would fall under this sub-clause. 44 A. 629=20 A.L.J. 587=1922 A. 358. A suit by a plaintiff for declaration of his title and injunction alleging the settlement deed relied on by defendant to be a sham one falls under Cl. (iv) (c) and the document need not be set aside. 1929 M. 478=120 I.C. 378=30 L.W. 796. A suit to declare a sale fraudulent and fictitious does not involve a consequential relief and ad valorem court-fee is not necessary. 1939 Cal. 363; 1941 O.W.N. 471. A suit for cancellation of a deed of adoption should be stamped, whether under S. 7 (iv) (c) or Sch. II, Art. 17 (v) at Rs. 10, for the Court-fee on a suit to declare an adoption invalid, where the consequential relief claimed is that of cancellation of the deed, cannot be more than the Court-fee to set aside an adoption, which is Rs. 10. 1937 R. 400. A plaintiff in possession suing for the cancellation of a sale deed alleged to have been obtained from her by fraud and undue influence could not be required prior to the passing of the U.P. Court-Fees Amendment Act of 1938 to pay ad valorem Court-fee on the market-value of the property, which is the Court-fee payable in a suit for possession. 15 Luck. 531=1940 O.W.N. 389=1940 O. 248.

WHAT DETERMINES THE VALUE IN A SUIT UNDER THE CLAUSE.—Where the plaintiff prays for a declaration and consequential relief, the value of the consequential relief determines the Court-fee. 3 P. 640=80 I.C. 563. See also 4 P.L.J. 297=46 I.C. 24=5 P.L.J. 394; 133 I.C. 687=12 P.L.T. 656; 131 I.C. 808=1931 P. 195. A suit for a declaration that a certain decree is not binding on the plaintiffs or the properties in their hands and for possession of a portion of those properties which had been sold in execution of the decree is a suit for declaration and consequential relief and Court-fee is to be paid only on the relief for possession. 38 M. 1184=25 I.C. 683=1 L.W. 824. In a suit for a declaration and consequential relief, the plaintiff is bound to pay ad valorem fees in proportion to the loss from which he seeks to be relieved. 56 I.C. 316=4 P. L.J. 703. A suit by the next heir of an alienable estate for a declaration that would prevent the then holder's contemplated sale should bear ad valorem Court-fee on the sum of the intended sale. 1928 N. 243. In a suit for declaration of right to office of the shewait of a temple and also for permanent injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with that right, the plaint is to be valued for purposes of jurisdiction and Court-fee at the value of the debutter property. (28 B. 567, Dist.) 1930 Cal. 41. Such portion of the property only as is the subject-matter of dispute need be valued. (Ibid.) 89 I.C. 930=1925 M. 1143.

VALUATION IN SUITS FALLING UNDER THE CLAUSE.—There is considerable divergence of judicial opinion on the question whether in cases coming under sub-cl. (c) and (d) of Cl. (4) the plaintiff is absolutely at liberty to put his own valuation. The Calcutta High Court has recently held that he can give his own value and the remedy lies not in nullifying the words of the Act, but in the rule-making power of the High Court conferred on it by S. 9 of the Suits Valuation Act. See 34 C.W.N. 321=127 I.C. 665=1930 C. 473; 58 C. 281=1930 C. 686=34 C.W.N. 870. See for the earlier decisions of that Court, 1928 C. 55=105 I.C. 80; 32 C. 734; 1922 C. 242; 79 I.C. 988=1924 C. 969. For decisions to the contrary, see 6 C.L.J. 427=11 C.W.N. 705; 40 C. 245=17 I.C. 162; 1941 C. 509. [In order to remove the doubts S. 8-C has been enacted in Bengal giving the Court power to revise value on enquiry, see 42 C.W.N. 504=I.L. R. (1938) 2 Cal. 64=1938 C. 865.] In a suit for declaration of title to a certain property and for an injunction falling within Cls. (c) and (d) of S. 7 (iv) the amount of Court-fee is, no doubt, computed according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint. But where it is possible for the Court on the facts stated to question the plaintiff's valuation, it can exercise its powers of correction under S. 8-C of the Act. 175 I.C. 261=66 C.L.J. 462=1938 C. 302. Where a suit is instituted for a declaration of title of the plaintiff to a certain provident fund money and for injunction restraining the defendant from withdrawing that money, it cannot be said that there is no objective standard of valuation, and the correct valuation of the relief claimed is the amount of the provident fund. 177 I.C.

893=42 C.W.N. 192=1938 C. 161. In a suit for rectification of a solenama upon which a preliminary decree was made in a partition suit, on the ground of fraud or mutual mistake of parties, the value of the property which would be affected by the preliminary decree which would be made in the partition suit, if the plaintiff ultimately succeeded in his suit, cannot be taken as an objective standard for the purpose of determining the value of the relief in the suit. In the absence of any other satisfactory objective standard, the plaintiff's valuation must be taken as correct and final. 42 C.W.N. 614=68 C.L.J. 413. In a suit to obtain a declaratory decree with consequential relief the plaintiff can put his own valuation on the relief sought by him. But the Court is empowered under the law to revise the valuation put by the plaintiff, and if, on such revision, it is of opinion that the valuation is insufficient or arbitrary, it has jurisdiction to fix a right value. 22 Pat. 783=24 P.L.T. 446=1944 P.W.N. 54=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 17 (F.B.). A Hindu widow brought a suit to cancel a deed of family settlement executed between her and her husband's brother alleging that she was induced to sign it by fraud and misrepresentation, and praying that a copy of the decree be sent to the registration office for a note being made that the document has been cancelled. She alleged in her plaint that her husband died separate from his brother and that on his death, she as his widow and heir got possession of his entire estate. The deed, however, recited that her husband and his brother were joint and that the plaintiff on her husband's death was entitled to maintenance in lieu of which she was given properties worth Rs. 20,000. She originally paid a Court-fee of Rs. 15 as on a declaratory suit but on being directed by Court to value the relief, she valued it at Rs. 5,100 on which amount Court-fees were paid. It was held by the lower Court that she should pay Court-fee on the market value of the properties involved, which came to about Rs. 41,000. Held, that the proper method of valuing the suit was according to the injury or loss from which plaintiff sought protection, and that loss could not be valued at the total value of the properties in suit, though such a value might be proper if the plaintiff were out of possession or if the document sought to be cancelled denied her any right and title whatsoever; in this case since the plaintiff came to Court for some more or better rights than what the document gave her, it was for her to value her relief in the suit. Since the valuation put by her was neither wholly unreasonable nor arbitrary, the Court should prima facie be disposed to accept the same, and was not justified in demanding Court-fee on the market-value of the properties in suit. 20 P.L.T. 638=1939 P. 531. In a suit for a declaration that a compromise decree passed in a partition suit was obtained by fraud, and for partition, it is difficult to say that the value of the relief setting aside this decree can possibly be the total value of the joint property. There is really no objective standard of valuation at all, and in the absence of rules made under S. 9 of the Suits Valuation Act, it is impossible to say that the plaintiff's valuation of the relief is incorrect. 70 C.L.J. 158=44 C.W.N. 1038=1940 C. 552. In a suit for a declaration that a certain decree obtained by the defendant against the plaintiff is void and for an injunction restraining the defendant from executing that decree, it cannot be said that there is no objective standard for valuing the relief claimed, as such standard must be taken to be the value of the plaintiff's property which he would stand to lose if the decree against him is put into execution. It would follow, therefore, that if the value of the decree exceeds the value of the assets, the valuation should be based on the valuation of the assets, or, if the assets are of greater value than the decree, the valuation should be based upon the value of the decree. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 409=1940 Cal. 482. See also 44 C.W.N. 860. The Bombay High Court has always held that the plaintiff has the right to value his claim as he pleases. See 44 B. 331=56 I.O. 340 and other cases cited supra under the main Cl. (iv). So also the Lahore High Court. 137 I.C. 240=33 P.L.R. 488; 9 L. 366=1927 L. 890; 140 I.C. 73=33 P.L.R. 458; 9 L.L.J. 579=29 P.L.R. 27; 40 P.L.R. 204. Also the Peshawar Court. 197 I.O. 782=A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 4. Also the Nagpur Judicial Commissioner's Court. 1927 N. 375. But see 110 I.C. 163=1928 N. 243; 165 I.C. 106=1937 N. 14. But according to the later rulings of the Nagpur High Court, the Court can interfere with any value put on a relief sought by a plaintiff in a suit under S. 7 (iv) (c), if the valuation appears to be arbitrary and unreasonable. But a Court should not endeavour to correct a plaintiff's valuation except in a clear case where the disparity is so great as to show that the plaintiff has not endeavoured to fix a fair value at all, but has simply set down a figure which is unreasonable and bears no relation to the value of the right litigated. I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 558=1938 N.L.J. 327 (F.B.). The plaintiff cannot put any arbitrary value on his consequential relief. Where a person in possession of an item of gifted property sues for a declaration and consequential reliefs of cancellation of the gift and possession of the remaining items, he has to pay a Court-fee only on the value of the properties, possession of which is asked for. 1938 N. L. J. 130. Where a plaintiff sues for a declaratory decree and asks for consequential relief and puts his own valuation upon that consequential relief, then for the purpose of court-fee and also for the purposes of jurisdiction, it is the value that the plaintiff puts upon the plaint that determines both. It is not however open to the plaintiff to put an arbitrary value of his claim. 1937 N. 316. The Allahabad High Court expressed the opinion that the plaintiff cannot give an arbitrary value. See 36 A. 500. See also 50 A. 610=1928 A. 248; 142 I.C. 705=1933 R. 40. But see 3 Bur.L.J. 128=1924 R. 378 (2). According to the Oudh Chief Court there is no direct authority for the Court to interfere with the valuation set by the plaintiff unless the Court can take advantage of S. 151, O.P. Code. See 1928 O. 260=107 I.C. 330 (The case is of over-valuation and not under-valuation). In Sind it has been held that a suit for injunction to restrain enforcement of a money decree should be valued according to the amount of the decree. 130 I.C. 445=1931 Sind 15. The Patna High Court has uniformly held that the plaintiff cannot give an arbitrary value. See 2 P. 198; and other cases cited under Cl. (iv). See also 24 Pat. 334=1945 P.W.N. 327=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 421. Although it is for the plaintiff to state the amount at which he values the relief sought, it is open to the Court to determine the question as to the true valuation of the suit if such question is raised. 1931 P. 195=131 I.C. 808. Where in order to succeed in a suit for possession, it is necessary for the plaintiff to obtain a declaration that a document or decree is void or inoperative, the Court-fee to be paid must be calculated on the actual value of the property. 43 I.C. 962=3 P.L.J. 92; 179 I.C. 586=1939 P. 254. P brought a suit for setting aside a sale held in a certificate case. The property had been found to be worth at least Rs. 12,000 in another proceeding inter partes, but it had been purchased by the certificate holder for one pice. P however was in possession. In the suit he prayed that the sale might be held to be illegal and might be set aside and that a permanent injunction should issue restraining the auction-purchaser from taking possession on the basis of the said auction sale. P framed the suit under S. 7, Cl. (iv), sub-cl. (e), Court-Fees Act, and put the valuation at the price for which it had been purchased, viz., one pice and paid Court-fee thereon. Held, that as no objective standard of valuation was available in so far as P's claim was concerned he was entitled to put his own valuation. 184 I.C. 206=1939 Cal. 278. In a suit for permanent injunction restraining a decree-holder from executing his decree on the ground that the same was obtained by fraud and collusion and was incapable of execution, the plaintiff must value his suit according to the amount of the decree and to pay ad valorem Court-fee. 182 I.C. 188=1939 Pat. 572. In Madras, the plaintiff was at liberty to value the relief arbitrarily prior to the amendment

(d) to obtain an injunction,

for easements ;

(e) for a right to some benefit (not herein otherwise provided for) to arise out of land, and of 1922. See 27 M. 480. Now under the proviso a suit for declaration and consequential relief regarding immovable property should be valued at one half the value computed under Cl. (v). See 1930 M. W. N. 656. A suit for cancellation of a document or a decree has to be valued under Cl. (iv-a). Where the plaintiff is interested only in a portion of the property in respect of which the decree was passed the suit must be valued only according to the extent of the plaintiff's claim. 42 C. 370=36 I.C. 111=19 C.W.N. 895; 4 P.L.J. 191=44 I.C. 891. In a suit to set aside a partition deed, so far as the plaintiffs are concerned, Court-fee is payable only on the value of the plaintiff's share of the property. 138 I.C. 303=1932 M. 491=62 M.L.J. 712. As a general rule the amount at which the plaintiff values the relief sought by him for purposes of Court-fee is to be taken despite anything to the contrary in the plaint as the value for purposes of jurisdiction. 140 I.C. 73=33 P.L.R. 458. Under S. 8, Suits Valuation Act, the value for jurisdiction follows value for the Court-fee and not vice versa. 58 C. 281=1930 Cal. 686. But where a person values his claim at a certain figure for purposes of jurisdiction and he is subsequently called on to pay Court-fee on the footing that the suit falls under S. 7 (iv) (c), it is not open to the plaintiff to modify the valuation for purposes of Court-fee. 32 P.L.R. 729; 40 P.L.R. 938=1938 Lah. 647. See also 36 A. 500 on the point. But see 1930 M.W.N. 353=129 I.C. 824=1931 M. 94; 58 C. 281=1930 C. 686.

Sec. 7 (iv) (c) AND SCH. II, ART. 17 (iii). —Sch. II, Art. 17 (iii) only applies when no consequential relief is sought. Where consequential relief by way of injunction is asked for then S. 7 (iv) applies and ad valorem Court-fee on the value of the claim has to be paid, a single valuation covering both declaration and injunction. 1939 A. M. L. J. 80. The relief originally prayed for was a declaration that the plaintiff was the owner of certain property. A Court-fee of Rs. 10 was paid. Subsequently the prayer was sought to be amended thus: "On account of that, (a particular) decree is null and void, and ineffectual; it may be declared, etc." Held, that the effect of the amendment was to add to the original relief a prayer for a further declaration for which a further Court-fee of Rs. 10 should be paid and that the second relief asked for was not consequential relief within the meaning of S. 7 (iv) (c) so as to necessitate the payment of ad valorem fees. 55 A. 274=1933 A.L.J. 311=1933 A. 350; 1935 A. 817. Sec. 7, Cl. (iv) (d).—See 45 B. 567=59 I.C. 777=46 I.C. 884=63 P.R. 1902. The valuation of the relief sought in a suit for an injunction is left entirely to the discretion of the plaintiff or appellant as the case may be and the Court is not entitled to question the correctness of the amount so declared. (43 B. 376 and 31 Bom.L.R. 841, Foll.) 12 B. 335=1934 B. 268. In a suit for injunction, relief cannot be valued differently for Court-fees and jurisdiction. 22 Bom.L.R. 1450; 99 I.C. 868; 92 I.C. 730=1926 M. 591; 1929 L. 566=116 I.C. 908. (See Suits Valuation Act, S. 8.) As to the effect of Rule 4 of Rules framed by Lahore High Court under S. 9 of the Suits Valuation Act, see 47 P.L.R. 436 (F. B.). Plaintiff can put his own valuation and where the lower Court finds that the valuation is reasonable, the High Court will not interfere with it. 94 I.C. 103 (2)=100 P.L.L.C.O. 102=1926 P. 334. As to declaratory suits where the plaintiffs asked for injunction, see 21 I.C. 771=19 C.L.J. 15; 11 N. 100; 31 C.W.N. 1045=1927 C. 775; 48 A. 412=94 I.C. 951=1926 A. 423. See also the cases noted under Cl. (iv) (c). A suit for rent and for declaration of title with injunction falls under S. 7 (1) (iv) (d) as the injunction is a distinct and independent relief. 17 I.C. 44=6 S.L.R. 114; 19 A. 60. See also 4 A. 329 on the sub-clause.

Sec. 7 (iv) (d) AND BEN. AM. ACT, S. 8-C. —In a suit for permanent injunction restraining the defendant from executing a decree obtained by him against property in possession of the plaintiff, the plaintiff cannot place his own valuation on the relief claimed by him, nor can the relief be valued according to the value of the property which would be affected by the injunction. In a case of this sort the objective standard of valuation must be taken to be represented by the extent to which the plaintiff will be benefited if he succeeds in his suit. It would be necessary during the course of an enquiry under S. 8-C of the Court-Fees Act to estimate the value to the plaintiff of the property without the permanent injunction and also on the assumption that a permanent injunction could be obtained. The difference in the amounts of these two estimates would be the measure of the value of the relief sought by the plaintiff and it would be according to the figure thus obtained that the plaintiff's suit should be valued. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 33=44 C.W.N. 591=1940 Cal. 566.

Sec. 7, Cl. (iv) (e).—This sub-clause would apply to suits in respect of a right of way, right to light and air and other rights for accounts ;

(f) for accounts—

according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint or memorandum of appeal ; of easements over immovable property. In a suit for injunction restraining municipality from demolishing thara, the plaintiff can put any valuation and R. 4, Cl. 10 (Vol. 3, Rules and Orders) of Lahore High Court are not applicable. 116 I.C. 908=1929 L. 566.

SEC. 7, CL. (iv) (f) (CL. (iv) (b) IN U.P.): ARBITRARY VALUATION, IF PERMISSIBLE.—The provisions of the Court-Fees Act are controlled by O. 7, R. 1 (2) and R. 11 (b), C.P. Code, and where the Court finds that the relief has been valued arbitrarily or improperly the Court can compel the plaintiff to revise valuation and pay proper Court-fee thereon. 1933 Sind 322. See also 31 S.L.R. 442=1937 S. 241 (F.B.); 150 I.C. 1090=1934 A.L.J. 643=1934 A. 807; 163 I.C. 822=1936 M. 525=43 L.W. 300=70 M.L.J. 292. Where a plaintiff brings a suit for recovery of a sum of Rs. 900, the mere fact that he adds a prayer for relief for any other sum that may be found due, cannot have the effect of converting the money suit into a suit for accounts, and S. 7, Cl. (iv) (f) of the Court-Fees Act will not apply. 17 Luck. 246=196 I.C. 441=1941 O.W.N. 1095=1941 Oudh 622. It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that the right of a plaintiff in a suit for accounts of a partnership to put a notional value upon the relief he claims extends throughout the whole course of the proceedings up to second appeal and that it extends to appellants or respondents who file cross-objections. The Court is not bound in every case to accept the valuation put by the appellant upon the relief sought by him. As the suit proceeds and circumstances change and the preliminary decree is followed by a final decree, the relief claimed by an appellant in an appeal from the final decree is no longer tentative and uncertain, but is ascertained and can be accurately valued; and the Court therefore is not bound to apply in such an appeal the principle of notional valuation applied or accepted at the beginning of the suit when everything was uncertain. If the appellant is able to ascertain the amount then remaining in dispute, he must pay Court-fee on the value of the relief he seeks in his appeal and cannot be allowed to put a mere notional value. 31 S.L.R. 37.

SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—The value of a suit for accounts is the approximate value stated in the plaint, which determines the Court-fees as well as the forum. 6 C.L.J. 225; 100 I.C. 632=8 P.L.J. 145; 37 B.L.R. 148; 1936 L. 978. A suit for accounts of the rent recovered by the defendants falls under S. 7 (iv) (f) and the plaintiff is at liberty to value it as he pleases. The fact that the plaintiff issued, prior to the institution of his suit, a notice claiming a definite sum does not have the effect of making the suit fall under S. 7 (4). 162 I.C. 227=38 Bom.L.R. 218=1936 B. 166; 1936 M. 525. The fact that the plaintiff had on an earlier occasion filed a suit on accounts against the same defendant claiming a larger amount than the plaint valuation is no reason for pinning him down to his original estimate. 1942 N.L.J. 197. The plaintiff is entitled to value the relief at any figure he chooses and the stamp will have to be made up subsequently if relief of greater value is granted to him. 8 L.L.J. 78=94 I.C. 650=1926 L. 242 (1); I.L.R. 1944 All. 133=213 I.C. 412=1944 A.L.J. 70=A.I.R. 1944 All. 84. It is open to the plaintiff to value a suit for account as he likes, even though such valuation may be arbitrary and even if during the course of the trial he should make admissions that far larger amounts are due to him, it is not open to the Court to require him to revise the valuation and pay additional Court-fee. 139 I.C. 105=1932 M. 656. See also 156 I.C. 424=1935 B. 212; 156 I.C. 718=1935 L. 689; 1936 R.D. 237. The plaintiff is entitled to pay Court-fee on the value he has thought fit to give to the relief sought notwithstanding that he has through mistake or inadvertence stated the value for purposes of jurisdiction at a different figure. 35 L.W. 358=137 I.C. 871=1932 M. 565. (25 C.W.N. 768; 15 Bom.L.R. 1123 and 58 C. 281, Foll.) The Court trying such suit does not lose its jurisdiction because the amount found due exceeds the jurisdiction of the Court. 9 N.L.R. 112=20 I.C. 928; 25 M. 543; 40 M. 1=32 M.L.J. 221; 16 A. 286; 33 A. 97; 56 B. 23=34 Bom.L.R. 44=137 I.C. 702=1932 B. 111. The Calcutta High Court has however held that the Court can only award a sum up to the limits of its pecuniary jurisdiction. 13 C.W.N. 493. S. 11 provides the means of recovery of excess Court-fee due on the excess decreed. 46 I.C. 165=22 C.W.N. 669; 45 C. 634. In a partnership suit, the subject-matter would be the severance of the final relationship and determination of the relative shares of the partners. The aggregate of the specific amounts will represent the value of the subject-matter of the suit, even though the plaintiff's tentative value be less or more. 1930 L. 725.

SCOPE OF THE SUB-CL. (iv) (f).—The sub-clause would cover all suits which involve accounting between parties. Thus a claim for accounts in a partnership suit would fall under the sub-clause. 46 I.C. 165=22 C.W.N. 669; 15 Bom.L.R. 1123=22 I.C. 71; 7 B. 125; 13 C.L.R. 160; 64 M.L.J. 576. An administration suit is not merely a suit for accounts and ought not to be so regarded for any purpose relating to Court-fee; especially where the suit is not one by a creditor for the administration of the assets of a deceased but one where a division of properties may have to be made, it should be valued under Art. 17-B of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act. (Judgment of Wadsworth, J., in C.M.A. No. 235 of 1938, Foll.). The jurisdiction is to be determined by the market-value of the property. In an appeal from a decree in a suit for administration the appellant is entitled to value his relief for purposes of court-fee at such figure as he may fix. He is not bound to pay court-fee on the ad valorem value of the appeal. 42 P.L.R. 101. The claim of the creditor in pursuance of the notification of Court after a preliminary decree in an administration suit cannot be deemed to be a 'plaint,' so as to require court-fee to be paid thereon. 134 I.C. 1137 (2)=1931 M. 683=61 M.L.J. 933. But see 222 I.C. 139 (Sind), which has reference to the explanation added to sec. 11 in Sind. In order that a suit which does not expressly ask for accounts may be treated as one for accounts in essence, the substance of the allegations in the plaint may legitimately be looked into and these allegations must show that the plaintiff is asking for accounts against the defendant as an accounting party. Where a plaint does not indicate that the plaintiff is asking for accounts as accounting party and that accounts should be taken to ascertain the amount due from him, and the relief claimed by him and granted to him is one purely of a declaratory character and no money decree is passed, the suit is not a suit for accounts. 1943 O.W.N. 480 (2)=211 I.C. 125=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 101. A claim for mesne profits is not a claim, the value of which cannot be ascertained, and ad valorem court-fee is to be paid thereon and plaintiff cannot recover anything in excess of the valuation put by him. 40 I.C. 579=3 P.L.J. 67. A suit for partition and accounts against a karta of a joint family is not a suit for account and would not fall under this sub-clause. 10 Pat.L. T. 491=1930 Pat. 1. In a suit for partition by metes and bounds after division in status, a prayer for accounts is leviable to court-fee under this clause. 64 M.L.J. 576=1933 M. 431=143 I.C. 755.

DUTY OF PLAINTIFF.—Where the plaintiff brings a suit for accounts he is bound to value his suit tentatively by doing his best to give a fair estimate of the relief which he hopes to obtain and he must not fix the valuation arbitrarily in order to avoid payment of the proper court-fees or overvalue it. 22 Pat. 114=206 I.C. 126=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218. Where a suit by a ward who has attained majority is for accounts against his former guardian, he need not specify the amounts he expects to receive; it is sufficient to pay court-fees on the relief of accounting and to pay court-fees later on on the amount found due. Where accounts had already been furnished by the guardian to the Court and examined by auditors, the ward cannot sue for accounts but can sue only on the accounts already furnished for recovery of what is payable after surcharging and falsifying. The suit really is to surcharge and falsify accounts already furnished and to recover specific sums, and therefore, the plaintiff must value and stamp his plaint on an ad valorem basis. (1945) 2 M.L.J. 460; 1929 P. 626.

APPEAL IN CASE FALLING UNDER THE SUB-CL. (iv) (f).—An appellant against a decree dismissing a suit for an account cannot in appeal change his valuation when the subject-matter of the appeal is the same as in the trial Court. The scheme of the Court-Fees Act does not allow the plaintiff to change in appeal the valuation adopted by him in the plaint in the trial Court. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 1031=1938 Mad. 887=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 557 (F.B.). A plaintiff in a suit for accounts is no doubt entitled to place his own valuation on the relief claimed. If his suit fails and he appeals against the refusal to take an account, the appeal would relate solely to a right to an account, and the appellant might place his own value on the memorandum of appeal. But if the suit results in a decree for a certain amount against the plaintiff, his appeal against such decree is not merely in relation to an account, but is really an appeal against a money decree and he must pay ad valorem of court-fee on the amount of the decree. He cannot be permitted to place an arbitrary value on his appeal for purposes of court-fee. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 477=43 Bom.L.R. 475=1941 Bom. 242. Where a person appeals from a preliminary decree in a suit for account, he is allowed the option of placing his own valuation upon the memorandum of appeal and he is not bound by the valuation put upon the claim in the plaint. 44 A. 542=20 A.L. J. 416=1922 A. 228; 47 A. 756=23 A.L. J. 725=89 I.C. 122; 3 P. 146=1924 P. 161; 91 I.C. 32=1926 L. 189; 141 I.C. 277=1933 N. 127; 9 Rang. 165=138 I.C. 91=1931 R. 146 (F.B.). But see contra 1921 M.W.N. 558=70 I.C. 392; 39 M. 725=38 I.C. 602=30 M.L.J. 402 (F.B.); 23 M. 490=20 I.C. 328=9 N.L.R. 112; 79 I.C. 923 (Sind); 7 P.R. 1925=28 I.C. 262; 14 P. 658=159 I.C. 4=16 P.L.T. 433=1935 P. 396; 31 S.L.R. 37. See also 50 I.A. 232 cited below. In an appeal against a preliminary decree in a suit for the taking of accounts, the defendant-appellant is not bound by the valuation of the relief made in the plaint; and is at liberty to make a fresh valuation for the purposes of the appeal. But in an appeal against a final decree deciding that a specific sum of money is due by the defendant to the plaintiff, the only valuation which the defendant-appellant can be permitted to put upon his appeal is the amount of the decree which he seeks to have set aside. 1937 Rang.L.R. 369. A defendant appealing from a preliminary decree for an account has to stamp his memorandum of appeal according to the plaintiff's valuation and cannot value his appeal at whatever may seem to him to be approximately correct. Where a defendant appeals against a final decree, he should pay court-fee on the amount of the decree passed against him, except in cases where he appeals only against a portion of the decree. Sec. 7 (iv) (f) applies to appeals by a defendant. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 598=47 L.W. 488=1938 M. 435=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 628 (F.B.). This rule does not apply to an appeal by plaintiff against a final decree making him liable for a particular amount and the appeal may be valued at the notional value originally stated by him in the plaint. (1943) 2 M.L.J. 347=56 L.W. 510=1943 M.W.N. 817=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 685. In an appeal from a preliminary decree passed in a suit for accounts, the valuation once fixed by the plaintiff must be adhered to in appeal unless the subject-matter of the appeal is not identical with that of the suit, in which case, it is open for the appellant to value the subject-matter of the appeal differently and to pay the court-fee thereon. 21 S.L.R. 377=98 I.C. 909=1927 Sind 100. See also on the point. 11 Pat.L.T. 629; 131 I.C. 337=1931 L. 143; I.L.R. 1943 Nag. 17=1942 N.L.J. 557=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 13. On an appeal against the preliminary decree for winding up a partnership, a court-fee of Rs. 10 is sufficient, other questions relating to allowing or disallowing certain items being incidental. 1 L. 6=19 P.L.R. 1920=57 I.C. 185. See also 1936 L. 458; 31 S.J. R. 37; 1937 A.L.J. 480=1937 A. 465 (Suit for accounts by principal against agent—Appeal by defendant from preliminary decree—Court-fee). See also 1938 N.L.J. 341=1938 Nag. 527; I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 344. In a suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff for a sum of Rs. 10,000. The defendant appealed against the decree, claiming a decree in his favour for such sum as may be found due and valued the appeal at Rs. 1,000 and paid court-fee of Rs. 107-8-0. Held, that the valuation was arbitrary and could not be accepted; and that the subject-matter of the appeal being the decree for Rs. 10,000 and interest, ad valorem court-fee must be paid on that amount. 150 I.C. 1090=1934 A.L.J. 643=1934 A. 807. But see also 141 I.C. 277=29 N.L.R. 34=1933 N. 127; 31 S.L.R. 31; 18 Lah. 196=39 P.L.R. 884=1937 Lah. 694. Where in a suit for accounts a party appeals from a preliminary decree paying ad valorem fee on the amount mentioned in the plaint and before the decision of that appeal appeals from the final decree, he need not pay ad valorem court-fee on the entire amount awarded by the final decree but only on the amount, if any, in excess of that on which court-fee was already paid. 55 M. 664=1932 M. 453=62 M.L.J. 624. The mere fact that in such a case the plaintiff will have to pay fee under sec. 11 of the Court-Fees Act to enforce the liability under the decree does not relieve the defendant-appellant from paying fee on the entire amount decreed. 33 C. W.N. 743=1929 C. 815. Art. 17 of the Act could not apply to such a case, where a person seeks to set aside a decree for a particular sum of money. (Ibid.) Where there was a claim for Rs. 3,000 and a cross-claim for Rs. 29,000 and plaintiff's claim was dismissed but cross-claim allowed for Rs. 19,000 and the plaintiff valued his appeal at Rs. 19,991 it was held that the valuation applied for the appeal in its entirety both to reverse the decree passed against him and to grant a decree in his favour inasmuch as he can fix his own valuation in appeal. 56 I.A. 232=57 M.L.J. 281=1929 P.C. 147 (P.C.). Where a plaintiff definitely fixes a certain sum as the amount of his claim, this must be considered as the value of the original suit as well as the appeal. But when he fixes a certain sum as the amount of his claim only approximately, the amount found due by Court determines the forum of appeal. 34 C. 954=11 C.W.N. 1133=6 C.L.J. 255; 31 C. 365; 9 L. 23; 52 B. 904=115 I.C. 391; 1933 Sind 322. But see 40 M. 8=32 M. L. J. 221. In a suit for accounts the determination of the forum of appeal from the preliminary decree depends upon the valuation of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction. 31 P.L.R. 536=1930 L. 332. On this clause, see also 144 I.C. 559=1933 L. 633; 38 Bom.L.R. 754=1936 B. 353 (Suit to declare will null and void and for administration of estates).

SEC. 7 (iv) (a) AND (iv-B) (U.P.).—Where a suit was filed for a declaration that certain persons were the duly elected office-bearers of a certain committee and not the defendants and for an injunction to restrain the defendants from acting as such office-bearers held, that the words 'relief sought' in sec. 7 (iv) (a) of the Court-Fees Act meant the whole relief which was prayed for in the suit and that as the relief for injunction could not be treated as an independent relief, it could not be valued under sub-sec. (iv-B) of sec. 7 of the Act. I.L.R. (1944) All. 214=213 I.C. 227=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 40=1944 A.L.J. 95=A.I.R. 1944 All. 113.

U. P. COURT-FEES AMENDMENT ACT, 1938, SEC. 7 (iv-B).—Sec. (iv-B) applies to a suit in which the only relief claimed is one to obtain an injunction. 15 Luck. 415=1940 Oudh 24. See also 1941 O.W.N. 379 (Appeal in suit under sec. 33 (3), Agri. Rel. Act; U. P. Court-fees). 1940 A.L.J. 689 (F.B.); I.L.R. (1940) All. 93=1940 A.L.J. 30=1940 All. 189 (Suit under sec. 33, U. P. In all such suits, the plaintiff shall state the amount at which he values the relief sought ¹* * *

LEG. REF.

¹ The words "and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section thirty-one shall apply as if for the word 'claim' the words 'relief sought' were substituted" were repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act (XII of 1891).

Where a plaintiff sued as a universal legatee of a certain X for recovery of property bought by X bonami in the name of the defendant who was styled as the adopted son of one M a nephew of X and also asked for a declaration that the defendant was not the adopted son of M, it was held, that what had to be considered for the purpose of determining the court-fee was, what was the property that might be diverted by that adoption, that the property which might be diverted, would be that property which at the date of the death of X was joint and which the defendant or M himself as the case might be would have taken by survivorship and not the separate property of X. 1942 A.L.W. 192.

SEC. 7 (iv-B), PROVISIO: CONSTRUCTION OF WORDS.—The words "involved in or affected by the relief sought" in sec. 7 (iv-B), proviso must be strictly construed. They clearly exclude all properties which are not involved in or affected by the relief sought. I.L.R. (1944) All 133=213 I.C. 412=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 25=1944 A.L.W. 57=1944 A.L.J. 70=A.I.R. 1944 All. 84. See also 1945 O.W.N. (C.C.) 404.

SEC. 7, CL. (iv-A) (U. P. AMENDMENT).—As a 'will' is no more than a mere declaration of an intention it cannot possibly be described as an instrument securing any property. Hence a 'will' cannot fall within the meaning of sec. 7 (iv-A). I.L.R. (1944) All 133=213 I.C. 412=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 25=1944 A.L.J. 70=A.I.R. 1944 All. 84. The words 'a decree for money' as used in sec. 7 (iv-A) of the Court-Fees Act does not necessarily mean a 'simple money decree'. Even in a mortgage suit money is decreed. In a suit to set aside a mortgage decree, the sale thereon and possession, the basis of valuation should be the amount of the decree and not the value of the property; court-fee is chargeable on the claim for cancellation of decree and not for possession only; the relief of setting aside the sale would follow the setting aside of the decree and hence no separate court-fee is necessary 12 Luck. 54=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 118; 1943 A.W.R. (C.C.) 33 (3)=1943 O.W.N. 148. Where a substantive relief is really involved which falls under sec. 7 (iv-A) but only a declaration is prayed for, court-fee should be charged on the substantive relief. The Court should not be entirely guided by the language used by the plaintiff. It should look at the substance of the relief claimed. I.L.R. (1944) All 336=1944 O.A. (H.C.) 128=1944 A.L.J. 256=A.I.R. 1944 All. 271. See also I.L.R. (1944) All 388=1944 A.

L.J. 304=A.I.R. 1944 All. 208. Where a suit for declaration of right is based on a gift executed by a donor who had derived his title under a will and the defendant not only impugns the validity of will but also in the alternative questions the nature of interest conveyed by it and both his pleas are rejected and the appeals raising the same contentions, ad valorem court-fee must be paid under sec. 7 (iv-A) (2) and not a fixed fee under Art. 17 (iii) of the same Act. 1943 O.W.N. 250=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 29. Where the plaintiffs in a suit pray that certain sale deeds be declared invalid and ineffectual and that the possession of the property should be delivered to them, they must pay court-fee both on the relief for possession and on the relief for adjudging the deeds of sale to be void or voidable. I.L.R. (1945) All 51=1945 A.L.J. 244=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 162=A.I.R. 1945 All. 290. A suit for declaration under r. 103 of O. 21, C. P. Code, necessitated by an order of the executing Court under r. 99 of that order is in substance not one for avoiding the decree under execution but in reality is a suit which seeks the reversal of the order of the execution Court. Hence it would be governed by Art. 17 (1) of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act. Even if the reliefs fall under sub-sec. (iv-A) of sec. 7 of the Act, the special provisions for suits of this nature contained in Art. 17 (1) of Sch. II would override the general provisions contained in sub-sec. (iv-A) of sec. 7 of the Court-Fees Act. I. L.R. (1945) All 68=219 I.C. 335=1945 A.L.J. 108=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 30=A.I.R. 1945 All. 111.

AS AMENDED BY MADRAS ACT (V OF 1922), SEC. 7 (iv-A) AND (v).—Where the suit was for the cancellation of a sale-deed executed by the plaintiff and for recovery of possession of the land and mesne profits, and the plaintiff paid court-fee for the cancellation of the sale-deed on the amount of the consideration specified in the deed and also paid court-fee on the mesne profits: Held, that the claim for recovery of possession was merely ancillary to the main claim, namely, setting aside the sale-deed, and that separate court-fee was not payable in respect of the prayer for possession. 56 M. 401=142 I.C. 29=64 M.L.J. 127. See also 42 L.W. 860=1935 M. 863=69 M.L.J. 458; 42 L.W. 217=1935 M. 671=69 M.L.J. 45. An order of the liquidator under sec. 42 (2) (b) of the Co-operative Societies Act is not a "decree for money" within the meaning of sec. 7 (iv-A) of the Court-Fees Act, as amended by Madras Act V of 1922, not having been passed by any Court in a suit. Sec. 7 (iv-A) cannot therefore apply to a suit for a declaration that an order of a liquidator determining the amount of contribution payable by the plaintiff under sec. 42 (2) (b) of the Co-operative Societies Act is null and void. The suit is governed by Art. 17-A of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act as amended in Madras. 169 I.C. 698=1937 M. 604=

(1937) 1 M.L.J. 640. The worshippers of a temple representing the temple, sued for a declaration that a decree obtained against the temple properties by a grocer in a suit on a promissory note executed by the hereditary trustee for goods supplied by the grocer, was not binding on the temple. Both the temple and the trustee for the time being were put in the array of defendants. It was held that the plaintiffs were in substance praying on behalf of the temple for cancellation of the decree obtained against the temple, and the suit was therefore liable to court-fee under sec. 7 (iv-A). I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 708=1941 Mad. 493=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 414. Suit to declare right to properties by survivorship as joint family properties and for possession—Allegation that will execute by deceased member is forgery—Claim for return of pronote on the ground of discharge—Court-fee payable. 163 I.C. 837=43 L.W. 696=70 M.L.J. 542. The proper prayer in a suit under sec. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act is for a declaration that the alienation is not binding upon the creditors to the extent of their debts and not for the cancellation of the deed of alienation. The suit therefore falls under Art. 17-A of Schedule as amended in Madras and not under sec. 7 (iv-A). 50 L.W. 248=1939 M. 894=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 400. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 73. So also a suit for declaration that a document purporting to be executed by plaintiff is a forgery. 58 M. 448=68 M.L.J. 95=41 L.W. 90=A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 203; or has been tampered with by substitution of a spurious sheet. 59 L.W. 165=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 239. The documents which require to be set aside are documents whereby rights are transferred or released such as sales, gifts, mortgages, leases, releases, etc., and to fall under sec. 7 (iv-A), the document ought to be set aside must of itself have secured the property, i.e., there must have been a conveyance of the said property or a release of right thereunder which would operate to extinguish the rights of the person conveying or releasing, and not merely a confirmation of an already existing right. 48 L.W. 623=1938 Mad. 824. A plea that a document purporting to be executed by another person in favour of the plaintiff does not amount to a due fulfilment of the contract entered into by that other with the plaintiff is certainly not what in law will be spoken of as a prayer for 'cancellation' of that document. 161 I.C. 184=1936 M.W.N. 510=1936 M. 266. A suit by a minor after attaining majority to set aside an alienation made by his guardian during his minority and for possession is governed by sec. 7 (iv-A) of the Court-Fees Act as amended in Madras. The plaintiff has to pay the court-fee based on the actual value of the property as shown in the sale deed which he seeks to avoid; and not the artificial value prescribed by sec. 7 (v) of the Act. 1938 M. 921=48 L.W. 277. But see (1943) 1 M.L.J. 249=204 I.C. 278=1943 M.W.N. 175=56 L.W. 158=A.I.R.

1943 Mad. 427, holding that a partition deed in which a minor plaintiff was represented by his father as guardian need not be set aside and that a suit for re-partition is governed by sec. 7, cl. (v) and not sec. 7, cl. (iv-A). It was alleged in the plaint that the plaintiff executed a sham and nominal gift deed for the purpose of screening his property from his creditors. He was subsequently dispossessed of the property and he therefore sued for a declaration that he was still the owner of the property; despite the execution of the gift deed and for possession. Held that the suit must be looked upon as being merely for a declaration and consequential relief and cannot be regarded in substance as one for cancellation of the deed within the meaning of sec. 7 (iv-A). 57 L.W. 392=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 408 (2)=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 497. Razinama decree—Suit to declare null and void—Plaintiffs minors in prior suit represented by defendants as guardians—Court-fee payable. 71 M.L.J. 383=1936 M. 470=43 L.W. 715; 141 I.C. 80=64 M.L.J. 24 (Suit for declaration that prior decree is not binding on plaintiff). SUIT FOR PARTITION BY MINOR HINDU CO-PARCENER—DECREE ALSO IMPEACHED AS NOT BINDING.—In respect of the decrees passed in suits in which plaintiff had been eo nomine impleaded as a party, he has to pay court-fee according to sec. 7 (iv-A) as he must be held to have impliedly asked for a cancellation of the decree. He must pay ad valorem court-fee on the amount of the decrees and not merely on his share fraction, as his liability is for the full amount though limited to the extent of his share in the family assets. It makes no difference that the plaintiff was a minor or merely a junior member. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 259=1940 M. 113=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 32 (F.B.). In a suit for partition and possession of their shares by the members of a malabar tarwad against a karnavan of a tarwad, challenging the validity of certain decrees passed against the karnavan as such, the plaintiffs have to ask for cancellation of the decrees, because the decrees are against the tarwad represented by the karnavan, and each member of the family is as much bound by the decrees as if he had been specifically impleaded by name in the suit. I.L.R. 1944 Mad. 430=56 L.W. 549=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 19=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 396. But if the plaintiffs allege that the decrees were against a person who was not the karnavan or manager, it may be unnecessary to set aside the decree and it would be sufficient if they pray for a declaration that the decrees were not binding on the family as they were obtained against a person who did not represent the family. (Ibid.); see also 56 L.W. 255=1943 M.W.N. 265=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 474=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 296. There is a distinction between an obligation imposed on a party by a decree and an obligation imposed by his personal law in pursuance of

(v) In suits for the possession of lands, houses for possession of lands, and gardens—according to the value of the subject-matter ; and such value shall be deemed to be—a decree. In one case he seeks to get rid of the obligation existing under the decree; in the other he seeks to have it declared that he or his interest in the property or estate, which is sought to be made liable, cannot be rendered liable under the decree by virtue of the said personal law. In the latter case he is not bound to sue for cancellation of the decree; in the former he is so bound. Where a Hindu reversioner brings a suit to have it declared that a decree obtained against the widow of the last male-holder is a collusive decree and does not affect the plaintiff or his vested remainder interest in the properties of the last male-holder, and that the decree-holder should be restrained by a permanent injunction from bringing to sale in execution the interest of the plaintiff in the estate, the suit does not fall under sec. 7 (iv-A) of the Act. 45 L.W. 380=1937 M. 449. Suit to reduce rate of maintenance awarded by a decree does not fall under this clause. 59 M. 159=69 M.L.J. 202=1935 M. 655=42 L.W. 42.

COMPUTATION OF VALUE UNDER SEC. 7 (IV-A) (MADRAS).—In a suit for cancellation of a deed of conveyance and for possession of the property, falling under sec. 7 (iv-A) as amended in Madras, the proper method of calculating the value of the subject-matter is the market value of the property on the date of the plaint. The valuation should not be in accordance with sec. 7 (v). I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 764=1939 M. 462=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 702 (F.B.).

(AS AMENDED IN MADRAS), SEC. 7 (IV-A) AND (IV) (c).—Suit to declare usufructuary mortgage deed sham and nominal—Prayer for injunction to restrain defendant from interfering with payment of rents by tenants to plaintiff—Sec. 7, cl. iv (c) proviso applies and not sec. 7, cl. (iv-A). (1943) 1 M.L.J. 316=(1943) M.W.N. 272=A.I.R. 1943 M. 49.

SEC. 7, CL. (v): APPLICABILITY.—See 45 L.W. 541; 45 L.W. 491=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 73. The distinction which is drawn in sec. 7 between land, houses and gardens indicates that lands with buildings upon them come within the definition of 'houses' and therefore a mill assessed to land revenue should be assessed for purposes of court-fee on its market value. 1941 Pesh. 69. In a suit for possession of land and buildings against the defendant alleging that the plaintiff is a Mahant of a temple and that the plaintiff property is owned by the idol and that the defendant has taken illegal possession of the property, and for an injunction restraining defendant from interfering with the plaintiff's management, the plaintiff must pay ad valorem court-fee on the market value of the property. This, however, is subject to the proviso that where the properties are not capable of being valued owing to the character of the user to which they are put court-fee under Art. 17 (vi) is payable in respect thereof. Such properties ordinarily are the materials and the site of the temple and the materials and the sites of such buildings as are adjuncts to the temple and are not directly productive of any income for the temple. 40 P.L.R. 113. Where a plaintiff sues for possession of a temple on the strength of an agreement for management by rotation the court-fees are payable according to Sch. II, Art. 17 (6) of the Court-Fees Act. The temple so long as it stands as a temple remains the property of the deity and has no market value within the meaning of sec. 7 (v) (c) of the Act. 1938 N.L.J. 214=1938 Nag. 481. A suit which does not fall under sec. 92, C. P. Code, and which is not for the administration of any trust but is in substance one for the administration of the property of a caste, wherein all the members of the caste are interested, after ejection of persons who are in exclusive possession thereof and who refuse to have the same administered for the common benefit, falls directly under sec. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act and must be valued for purposes of court-fee as a suit for possession. Recovery of possession being a necessary and substantial relief in such a suit, and being sought on behalf of all the members of the caste, the suit comes within the purview of sec. 7 (v). 1937 M.W.N. 217=45 L.W. 510. A suit for declaration of title as adopted son and for possession is a suit that comes within cl. (4) (c) and not within cl. (5). 1923 P. 100; 5 P.L.J. 339=56 I.C. 422. See also 38 M. 1184=1 L.W. 824=25 I.C. 683. (Suit for declaration that a decree is void and for possession of properties sold in execution thereof). Where the declaration as to validity of adoption was neither claimed nor necessary the suit fell under cl. (v) and not under cl. (iv) (c). 9 R. 401=134 I.C. 1273=1931 R. 319. See also 1929 N. 276. Where the suit is by a junior member for partition of the Thavazhi properties, for determining the court-fee payable, the point to be considered is whether on the date of suit the defendant's possession was possession on behalf of the Thavazhi. If he is not in such possession, court-fee should be paid under sec. 7 (v). 1938 M.W.N. 131=1938 Mad. 474. Suit for possession—Defendant challenging plaintiff's title, and plaintiff anticipating possible defence on that ground—Suit, if one for possession or falls under sec. 7 (iv) (c). 18 P.L.T. 977=1938 Pat. 22 (S.B.). In a suit for declaration that a decree obtained against the plaintiff was void on the ground that the plaintiff then a minor was not properly represented, and for recovery of possession of the properties covered by the decree, the main relief is recovery of possession and the suit falls under cl. (v). 139 I.C. 317=1932 M. 605=63 M.L.J. 764. If a person is out of possession of property to which he considers he is entitled on the strength of any right title or interest that he claims, and seeks to obtain possession from the person who is keeping it back from him, where the subject-matter is land, and—

there being no jointness of possession or title between the two his suit is one for possession, bare and simple to which the provisions of sec. 7 (v) of the Act apply and no occasion arises to invoke Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II. I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 240=1938 Lah. 275. Where in a suit for partition and possession among co-sharers the plaintiff alleges his exclusion from possession of the property, the court-fee payable is ad valorem under sec. 7 (v). I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 309=1938 M. 278=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 29. Where the purchaser of the interests of a Hindu coparcener in the joint family properties brings a suit for partition of joint family property in which he has no co-parcenary interest, he asks for a declaration of the entire share of his vendor and then seeks possession of what he has purchased. The separation or declaration of the vendor's share is a relief independent of the relief of possession and separate court-fees have therefore to be paid for the two reliefs. 47 Bom.L.R. 350=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 336. Suit to avoid claim order—Court-fee payable—Value of suit for purposes of jurisdiction—Mode of determining value of land. 56 M. 716=1933 M. 439=64 M.L.J. 568. A suit for possession by a trustee or manager of a religious endowment falls under this clause and not Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II. 1932 A.L.J. 773=1932 A. 593. In such a suit immovable property has to be valued under cl. (v) but the temple should be left out of account as having no market value (ibid.) The Madras Government Notification No. 5791 dated 17-5-44, reducing court-fee in a suit by a trustee applies only where the status of the defendant as trustee either at the time of the suit or previously is undisputed. I.L.R. 1945 Mad. 584=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 383=57 L.W. 615=(1944) M.W.N. 702=A.I.R. 1945 M. 102. Where the only dispute in a suit is as to whether the plaintiff was entitled to the management of certain trust property as a Sarbarahkar or the defendant was entitled to the management as a Sarbarahkar, it can hardly be deemed to be a suit for possession of the property because both naturally admit that the possession is with the principal. Hence sec. 7, cl. (v) cannot apply to such a case and the provision applicable is really Sch. II, Art. 17 (iv) of the Act. I.L.R. 1944 All. 564=1944 A. L. J. 408=A. I. R. 1944 All. 279. A suit by a landlord against his tenants occupying a holding under him, to eject them from a tank-bed which they are alleged to have encroached upon, praying for an injunction restraining them from interfering with his possession and for a mandatory injunction directing them to remove the mud thrown by them on the land to make it cultivable, is governed by Art. 17-B of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act, as the tank-bed claimed has no market value. Sec. 7 (v) has no application to the case. 40 L.W. 718=1934 M. 714=67 M.L.J. 688. The plaintiff, an inamdar, claimed that he was entitled to both warams in the inam land though he had no proof of actually letting the defendants into possession he claimed the right to eject them after due notice by virtue of his title to the kudivaram. The defendants did not dispute the plaintiff's right to melwaram but asserted occupancy rights in the land. Held, that court-fee was payable on the plaint under sec. 7 (iv) (c) and not under sec. 7 (v) or (xi) (cc) of the Act. 140 I.C. 462=93 M.L.J. 759. But see 41 L.W. 562; 58 M.L.J. 369=1935 M. 346; I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 672; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 739=45 L.W. 491=1937 Mad. 529. A suit by Hindu reversioners to recover possession of property gifted by a Hindu widow after her death falls under cl. (v) though the prayer was for declaration and consequential relief. 3 P.L.T. 704=1922 P. 615 (F.B.). See also 57 I.C. 494=18 A.L.J. 903. Suit for possession and arrears of rent from a tenant, including a tenant holding over, falls under cl. (xi) (cc) and not this clause. 33 Bom.L.R. 263=1931 B. 234. But a suit for possession against a tenant holding over in defiance of a notice to quit, is one against a trespasser and is governed by this clause and not by cl. (xi) (cc). 1923 N. 310=8 N.L.J. 63. A suit for possession questioning the validity of a certain compromise and a decree passed on the basis of such compromise. 1929 O. 419. A suit for possession and also for an order to compel defendant to execute and register a sale deed, the plaintiff alleging that the land had been sold to him and that the defendant had received part of the consideration is a suit for possession only within the clause and not also for specific performance. 60 I.C. 512; 14 C.L.J. 159. In a suit to enforce a mortgage by a decree for sale, cl. (v), (vi), (ix) and (x) of sec. 7 have no application and court-fee is payable on the ad valorem scale. 58 C. 829=130 I.C. 876=1931 C. 159. A suit by a mortgagee to recover possession under the terms of the deed of mortgage is one under cl. (ix) and not under this clause and the court-fee is payable on basis of the principal. 1929 O. 321 (1). But a suit by a mortgagee for possession from prior mortgagees was held to be governed by this clause and not clause (ix). 134 I.C. 597=1931 O. 366. A suit by a person, alleging that he was a tenant dispossessed by his landlord, against the landlord and a third person who is in possession of the property, is not one between landlord and tenant and court-fees should be paid according to sec. 7 (v), (32 C. 268, Foll.) 29 N.L.R. 367=1933 N. 312. See also 1938 O.W.N. 453=1938 O. 139. In a suit for possession against a mortgagor who had not delivered possession of property mortgaged, an ad valorem court-fee on the market-value must be paid as the defendant is in possession and as there is no special provision in the Court-Fees Act as regards suits of this kind. 1940 A.M.L.J. 49.

APPEAL.—An appeal by an alienee defendant against a decree setting aside a sale of joint family property on condition that plaintiff paid a certain sum of money, should be stamped under sec. 7 (v). 47 M.L.J. 919=48 M. 652=1925 M. 323. An appeal claiming that the appellant must be appointed trustee of durgas in suit in the place of plaintiffs appointed by the Court falls under sec. 7 (v) and not under Art. 17-B, Sch. II, 88 I.C. 209=1925 M. 804=48 M.L.J. 571. See also 1930 M. 597. In a suit for declaration of jote right and for possession, a decree was passed in trial Court. The appeal by the defendant was dismissed. The second appeal was governed by sec. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act. 34 C.W.N. 217. Where in a suit for recovery of possession of certain property on payment of the necessary court-fees on the value of the property, the claim is decreed and the defendant appeals against the decree, he is bound to pay the same court-fee though he is in possession of the property. 1929 Sind 161. In a suit for partition claiming one third share of a house which the plaintiff alleged was joint family property, the trial Court held that not only the suit house but also another house in the possession of the plaintiff constituted joint family property and ordered that unless the plaintiff amended his plaint and chose to bring into hotchpot the house in his possession his suit would be dismissed. On appeal by plaintiff, it was held that court-fee was payable only in respect of the suit-house and not also in respect of the other house which never formed any part of the subject-matter of the litigation. 45 Bom.L.R. 880=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 441.

SEC. 7 (v) (a).—A share in an under-proprietary tenure in a village is a definite share within sub-cl. (a). 24 O.C. 29=58 I.C. 132. See also 7 O.W.N. 956. As to a suit by a subordinate tenure holder, see 8 C. 192.

SEC. 7 (v) (b).—'Definite share' of an estate means an undivided tangible fraction of an estate. 19 M.L.T. 206=33 I.C. 683. As to the meaning, see also 3 P.L.T. 511; 16 A. 286; 1937 N. 100; 167 I.C. 909=1937 A.L.J. 88=1937 A. 206; 55 A. 531=1933 A.L.J. 398=1933 A. 414. Individual field plots forming part of a holding but not separately assessed not a definite share. 2 Bur.L.T. 39=75 I.C. 217. On the point, see also 46 M.L.J. 345=77 I.C. 781=1924 M. 646; 34 M.L.J. 558=47 I.C. 543. The words "fractional shares" in Government notification No. 358, dated 10th September, 1921 cover also a case where the plaintiff claims a definite area within the survey number forming a complicated fraction of the whole. See 54 M.L.J. 67=105 I.C. 881=1927 M. 1022. But see contra 16 A. 493; 35 M.L.J. 558; 33 A. 630=11 I.C. 816; 1 R. 492=75 I.C. 217=1923 R. 246; 116 I.C. 209=1930 L. 182. It is settled law in the Punjab that whenever a person sues for possession of a plot of land which can be arithmetically worked out as a proportion or a fraction of the property that has been assessed to land revenue and is so noted in the jamabandi, the provisions of sec. 7 (v) (b) and not (v) (d), are applicable. 46 P.L.R. 350=219 I.C. 425=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 15. Where the share claimed is situated in khatas separately assessed by Government to land revenue and the claim in appeal relates to only one-third of the land originally claimed in the khatas in dispute, the court-fee on appeal is payable on only one-third of five times of land revenue payable on the land originally claimed. A.I.R. 1943 Pesh. 96. A suit for partition and separate possession of the interest of the plaintiff in an Izara Village in Berar falls under sec. 7 (v) (b) and not under sec. 7 (v) (c) of the Court-Fees Act. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 802=1943 N.L.J. 445=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 315. Remissions of revenue granted in any particular year cannot be taken into account in calculating the value of land for purposes of court-fee under sec. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act; the calculation should be based on the revenue fixed at the settlement. The words "the revenue so payable" and the words "such revenue is settled" undoubtedly refer to the revenue.

fixed at the settlement and cannot refer to the revenue less remissions in any particular year. 1937 A.L.J. 828=1937 A.W.R. 747=1937 A. 657. Suits for possession of inam lands wrongly classed as ryotwari may be valued as such under cl. (b). 41 I.C. 167 (Mad.). On this sub-clause; see also 1933 O. 505; 156 I.C. 884=1935 L. 331.

Sec. 7 (v) (c).—'Such revenue' means an annual revenue payable to Government on an entire estate or defined share thereof, fixed permanently or not. Laps subject to fluctuating assessment are within this sub-clause and not within sec. 7 (v) (d). 40 P.R. 1919=50 I.C. 142. "The year next before the date of presenting the plaint"—Meaning. See 3 A.L.J. 244=28 A. 411. In construing the words "nett profits", the Court must have regard to the subject-matter. In fixing the value of kudiavaram right in a land, deduction should be made of the rent payable by the owner of kudiavaram. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 190=59 L.W. 141=(1946) M.W.N. 138. As to revenue free land, see 155 I.C. 668=1935 A. 642. If the subject-matter of the suit is land paying no revenue and has produced no profits during the year next preceding the suit, the valuation should be made with reference to similar land in the neighbourhood, irrespective of the fact that the land is 'religious land'. 60 I.C. 5=(1920) 3 U.B.R. 236. Sec. 7 (v) (c) does not give the Court any option to consider whether or not the nett profits for the year preceding the presentation of the plaint are exceptional or unusual. Such profits cannot be excluded from consideration for purposes of court-fee on the ground that they partake of the nature of a windfall. 52 L.W. 146=1940 Mad. 821=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 176. Under sec. 7 (v) (c), the plaintiffs must pay court-fee on fifteen times the nett profits arising during the year immediately preceding the institution of the suit. If the amount of the nett profits stated by the plaintiff in his valuation statement is accepted by the Court the matter ends. But if the Court sees reason to think that such profits have been wrongly estimated then it has to proceed to make enquiries on the two heads mentioned in the concluding portion of sub-cl. (a) of sec. 7 (v). It must proceed to ascertain (1) the nett profits of the land, building or garden as the case may be in the year immediately preceding the presentation of the plaint; and (2) its market-value. If the nett profits are not readily ascertainable or assessable it is to ascertain the market-value, but if the nett profits are readily ascertainable or assessable it is under the obligation to direct its enquiry on both the heads—on the market-value also. It can then only require the additional court-fee to be paid (if payable) on the lower of the two figures arrived at such enquiry. The Court cannot merely ascertain the amount of nett profits and assess court-fee on fifteen times such profits without determining the market-value. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 450=44 C.W.N. 822=1940 Cal. 438. A defendant is not estopped from valuing the appeal correctly, simply because he did not object to the valuation of the plaintiff in the suit. The plaintiff paid court-fee on the market-value. The suit was decreed. The defendant in appeal paid court-fee on fifteen times the nett profits. Held: It was proper. 49 A. 398=25 A.L.J. 258=1927 A. 308. On this section, see also 159 I.C. 636=42 L.W. 765.

Sec. 7 (v) (d).—A suit for possession of a plot of land but not a definite fractional share, sold out of a holding is not governed by sec. 7 (v) (d) and the court-fee should be calculated on the market-value of the land where it is impossible to find out the actual revenue on the said plot. 33 A. 630=8 A. L.J. 798. See also 55 A. 531=1933 A.L.J. 398=1933 A. 414; 1 R. 492=1923 R. 246; 6 P.R. 1883; 16 A. 493; 1930 L. 182=116 I.C. 209; 1937 N. 100; 167 I.C. 909=1937 A.L.J. 88=1937 A. 206. But see 54 M.L.J. 67, cited under sub-cl. (b). So also a suit for a portion of a Survey number not separately assessed. 34 M.L.J. 558=47 I.C. 543=8 L.W. 88; and a suit for a land forming an indefinite share of an estate. 41 C. 812=18 C.W.N. 659. Suit for declaration of title as ghatwali and for recovery of possession of ghatwali did not fall within Art. 17, cl. (vi) of Sch. II, that as the ghatwali was part of an estate paying revenue to Government but not a definite share of such an estate and not separately assessed to Government revenue, the court-fee ought to be

(1) where the land is held on settlement for a period not exceeding thirty years and pays the full assessment to Government—a sum equal to five times the survey assessment ;

(2) Where the land is held on a permanent settlement or on a settlement for any period exceeding thirty years, and pays the full assessment to Government — a sum equal to ten times the survey-assessment ;

(3) where the whole or any part of the annual survey-assessment is remitted— a sum computed under paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of this proviso, as the case may be, in addition to ten times the assessment, or the portion of assessment, so remitted :

Explanation.—The word “estate” as used in this paragraph, means any land subject to the payment of revenue, for which the proprietor or farmer or raiyat shall have executed a separate engagement to Government, or which, in the absence of such engagement, shall have been separately assessed with revenue :

(e) Where the subject matter is a house or garden

Basis of taxation under the Act is the actual value of the property and not its probable value under more efficient management. 62 I.C. 513=6 P.L.J. 411.

SEC. 7 (v) (e).—For purpose of computing valuation of the subject-matter in a suit for possession, the legislature had drawn a distinction between land and house or garden. If the subject-matter in suit is a garden, it would come under cl. (e), sub-sec. (v), sec. 7 and court-fee will have to be paid on the market-value of the garden and not on the basis of annual revenue of land. 11 I.C. 810=1936 C. 264. As to the meaning of the word ‘garden’, see 40 M. 824=39 I.C. 254=2 L.L.J. 362; 68 I.C. 345; 30 I.C. 845=18 M.L.T. 243. A suit for possession of garden land, though assessed to land revenue is governed by cl. (v) (e). 71 P.R. 1914=25 I.C. 545; 146 P.R. 1908. See also 117 I.C. 781=1930 Sind 15. A person claiming under-proprietary rights in land by virtue of a permanent lease brought a suit for possession of the land and the building and a guava grove thereon. The building was not a tenant’s house or any other building necessary for the enjoyment of the land but a substantial structure used as a tannery. Similarly the trees were not self-grown but were planted. Held, that the buildings and grove could not be said to be appurtenant to the land and hence a separate court-fee under sec. 7 (v) (e) should be paid on the market-value of the building and the grove. 1938 O.W.N. 23=1938 O. 40. There is no market-value for a temple and a suit for recovery of possession of a temple falls under Sch. II, Art. 17 (b) and not under sec. 7 (v) (e). 46 M. 782=45 M.L.J. 274 (F.B.). SEC. 7 (v) AND (x).—In a suit for specific performance of a contract for conveyance of immovable properties, there is no question of primary and secondary relief; both the execution of the conveyance and delivery of possession are essential reliefs. In such a suit the purchaser seeks to enforce his contract. The fact that the purchaser claims possession in the suit will not make the suit one for possession, as the specific provision in cl. (x) of sec. 7 for specific performance will exclude the applicability of the general provision in sec. 7 (v) relating to suits for possession. Where the claim to possession is involved in the claim to specific performance, the suit remains one for specific performance and must be dealt with on that basis. 1937 M.W.N. 236=1937 M. 831. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 114.

(U. P. AMENDMENT), SEC. 7, CL. (v) 1, (d) AND (vi).—Where in a suit for pre-emption the test laid down by sec. 7 (v) (1) (d) could not apply owing to the absence of evidence of rental value of the land, it cannot be said that the market-value means pre-emptive value and that this value should be deemed to be the cash paid after deducting the value of the encumbrances. Market-value must be determined upon the state of things existing at the time of the sale. The amount paid to the vendor plus the value of the encumbrances, must for the purpose of court-fee, be taken to be the value of the subject-

SEC. 7 (vi).—The court-fees in a pre-emption suit in respect of a sale of land paying revenue should be calculated according to sec. 7 (v). 15 P.R. 1919=49 I.C. 358. See also 1934 L. 424. In a suit for pre-emption in respect of separate plot of land which does not constitute any definite fraction of a distinct revenue paying area and is not separately assessed to revenue, the court-fee should be paid on the market-value of the land in suit, and not, as is the case where the suit is for a definite fractional share, on five times the Government revenue. 1933 O. 533. In a suit for pre-emption the court-fee payable is to be calculated on ten times the land revenue assessed on land and the amount of court-fee has nothing to do with the consideration of the sale or the amount of encumbrance on the property. 1933 L. 676; 32 A. 19=6 A.L.J. 905; 3 A.L.J. 244=28 A. 411. The market-value of the property in a suit for pre-emption is to be determined with reference to its value at the date of the sale and not with reference to its value at the date of the institution of the suit. 1924 L. 380. See also 1937 L. 239=39 P.L.R. 511.

APPEAL IN CASES COMING UNDER THE CLAUSE.—Where appeal is by the vendees objecting that plaintiff is not entitled to the land, the court-fee to be fixed will be in accordance with sec. 7 (vi). 76 P.R. 1913=19 I.C. 961. See also 6 A. 488; 1929 L. 879; 1944 O.W.N. 238=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 276. But where the objection is only to the amount to be paid by the pre-emptor, it should be calculated ad valorem on the difference between the amount awarded and that claimed or admitted. 32 A. 19; 1929 L. 190=113 I.C. 538; 117 I.C. 480=1929 O. 240 (2). See also 40 A. 353=44 I.C. 666=16 A.L.J. 174. The plaintiff in a suit for pre-emption offered Rs. 700 as the actual price when the house was ostensibly sold for Rs. 1,200. The Court Amin fixed the market-value at Rs. 750. The suit was dismissed but the price paid was held to be Rs. 1,200. On appeal, held, that court-fee both in the trial Court and in appeal was to be paid only on the market-value and that it could not be said that since the appeal was also for reduction of price the court-fee should be paid on Rs. 1,200. U. P. (AMENDMENTS), SEC. 7 (vi-A) AND SCH. II, ART. 17 (vi).—In the case of an appeal from a decree in a suit for partition the court-fee payable should be on the value of that share of the appellant which is in dispute in the appeal. Where no share is in dispute sec. (vi-A) has no application. Where the dispute is only to the allocation of the different properties it is impossible to attach any pecuniary value to the dispute and the fixed fee under Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) should be paid. I.L.R. (1943) A. 507=209 I.C. 411=1943 A.L.J. 247=A.I.R. 1943 A. 281. The meaning of the word 'possession' used in sec. 7 (vi-A) cannot be restricted to actual possession. Where a co-owner brings a suit for partition of a share in the joint property and he is in actual possession of some portion of the joint property, a presumption of constructive possession in respect of the property of which he is not in actual possession can arise and the suit would be governed by the first portion of sec. 7 (vi-A). 209 I.C. 442=1943 O.W.N. 356=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 456. The words "his claim to be a co-owner on such date is denied" occurring in sec. 7 (vi-A) as amended in U. P., should be interpreted to mean both when it is denied in its entirety or even when only the extent of the share claimed is in dispute. 1944 A.L.J. 367=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 82=1944 A.L.W. 327=A.I.R. 1944 All. 199.

SEC. 7 (viii).—A suit to set aside a sale on the ground that the attachment was not binding is virtually a suit to set aside the attachment within the clause. 14 M.L.J. 144. As to suit by unsuccessful claimant of property attached, see 35 C. 202=12 C. W. N. 169 (P.C.). See also 80 P.R. 1886. A suit by decree-holder for restoration of attachment falls under this clause. U.B.R. (1897-1901), Vol. II, p. 355. Sec. 7 (viii) is not confined to attachments under O. 21, C. P. Code. Hence a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is the owner in possession of certain properties attached in proceedings under secs. 87 and 88, Cr. P. Code, against the plaintiff's husband as an absconder and an appeal against the decision therein, would fall under sec. 7 (viii). 20 Luck. 254=1944 O.W.N. 516=1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 320=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 104.

(U. P. AMENDMENT), SEC. 7 (viii).—The words used in cl. (viii) of sec. 7 of the to redeem;

Court-Fees Act (as amended in U.P.) viz., "including suits to set aside an order passed under O. 21, rr. 60, 61 or 62 of the C. P. Code, are of sufficient amplitude to embrace a suit to challenge an order dismissing a claim as being filed too late. For the purposes of cl. (viii) it is immaterial whether the order was right or wrong. 210 I.C. 191=1943 O.W.N. 378=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 422.

Sec. 7 (ix).—See 69 M.L.J. 45; 154 I. C. 550=1935 B. 693; 1935 Pesh. 8; 63 C. 657. In a second appeal from a decree in a suit against a mortgagee for the recovery of the mortgaged property the court-fees must according to sec. 7 (ix) of the Court-Fees Act, be calculated ad valorem on the principal money expressed to be secured. Though the result may seem to be somewhat extraordinary the Act has to be construed as it stands. I.L.R. (1941) All. 469=1941 A.L.J. 409=1941 All. 357. The phrase "recovery of property mortgaged" in cl. (ix) of sec. 7 does not mean recovery of possession of the mortgaged property from the mortgagee, but is a phrase convertible with the word "redeem", the ordinary significance of the term to "redeem" being to recover a pledge, to get property freed from a charge or mortgage, 63 C. 657. The court-fee payable in a suit to redeem kanam is in accordance with the provisions of this clause. 23 L.W. 758=95 I.C. 26 (1)=1926 M. 667. Where in a suit for redemption of a kanom, the plaintiff seeks to deduct from the kanom amount certain damages to which he claimed to be entitled, he is not bound to pay court-fee on the amount of damages till after it is ascertained and a set-off is allowed. 50 M.L.J. 493=1926 M. 764.

SUITS FOR REDEMPTION, FORECLOSURE, ETC.—In such suits court-fee is payable only upon the principal amount secured by the mortgage. 57 I.C. 673. The plaintiff is not bound to pay court-fee upon the surplus amount claimed as mesne profits. 45 A. 154=1923 A. 261. See also 60 M.L.J. 698=132 I.C. 317=1931 M. 479; 19 M. 16; 29 A. 471. But see the observation to the contrary in 17 I.C. 442=12 M.L.T. 493. See also 13 O.C. 32=5 I.C. 444; 1924 N. 346; 31 A. 44; 113 I.C. 34=1929 N. 1. Nor on interest due on the mortgage. 13 A. 94; 14 M. 480. The jurisdiction value in a redemption suit is also the principal amount though sec. 8 of the Suits Valuation Act does not apply. 60 M.L.J. 698=1931 M. 479, relying on 5 M. 284 (F.B.) and 39 M. 447; 31 A. 44. But see 1927 R. 304 holding that it is the value of the mortgaged property. See also 13 B. 489; 51 C. 737=1924 C. 783. Suit for sale on the mortgage is not governed by the clause. 7 B.L.R. 194; 58 C. 829=1931 C. 159. Also a suit for possession brought after a decree for foreclosure has been obtained. 1 C.L.R. 473. See also 134 I.C. 597=1931 O. 366. The proper valuation of a suit for redemption is the amount of the mortgage admitted by the plaintiff to be binding on him and not that of the mortgages set up by the defendant. 37 M. 420=15 I.C. 587. In a suit for redemption by a co-mortgagor of his share of the mortgaged property, the court-fee is to be calculated on the amount of the mortgage debt charged on his share of the property. 45 I.C. 300=5 O.L.J. 43. See also 6 B. 324. A suit by a mortgagee to recover possession of the mortgaged property under the terms of the deed is one under cl. (ix) and court-fees on the principal amount secured should be paid. 1929 Oudh 321. But in a suit by a mortgagee with possession for recovery of the mortgaged property from prior mortgagees it was held that cl. (v) and not this clause was applicable. 134 I.C. 597=1931 O. 366. On this section, see also 63 C. 657; 40 C.W. N. 90.

APPEAL FROM MORTGAGE DECREE DISPUTING ONLY PERSONAL LIABILITY—COURT-FEE.—Where, in an appeal from a mortgage decree ordering the sale of the mortgaged property and enabling the plaintiff to apply for a personal decree for any balance left after the sale, the appellant does not dispute the liability of the property but disputes only his personal liability, the value of the subject-matter of the appeal is not the whole mortgage amount but the excess of the mortgage amount over the net sale proceeds for which alone he is by the decree likely to be made liable. 1933 M.W.N. 1408.

APPEALS IN SUITS FOR REDEMPTION AND FORECLOSURE.—There is a conflict of rulings on the question whether the clause is applicable to appeals and whether the fee in such appeals should also be calculated on the principal amount under the clause or on the amount in dispute under Art. I, Sch. I. According to the Allahabad High Court, the court-fees should be calculated on the value of the subject-matter of the appeal. 35 A. 94=18 I.C. 365; 30 A. 547; 36 A. 40=21 I.C. 723 (F.B.); 31 A. 295; 47 A. 926=88 I.C. 888=1925 A. 734 (13 A. 94 not now good law). See also 1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 55 (Court-fee should be paid on the principal amount). So also according to the Punjab High Court. 14 I.C. 78=54 P.R. 1912; 1 L. 234=3 L.L.J. 370. So also in Oudh. 1930 O. 329; 2 O.L.J. 257=30 I.C. 322. (54 I. C. 733=22 O.C. 289, contra). The Madras High Court also was of the same view in 29 M. 367=16 M.L.J. 287; but in a later case (20 M.L.J. 121=3 I.C. 459) it was held that, where there is a denial of the right to redeem, the fee should be computed according to the principal amount secured by the mortgage. This view is to be found also in earlier cases (14 M. 480 and 16 M. 326). The position in Madras is well summed up in I.L.R. 1943 Mad. 819=(1942) M.L.J. 785=1943 M.W.N. 14=56 L.W. 778=A.I.R. 1943 M. 146. In Bombay it was held that the court-fee should be calculated on the principal debt as in original suits. 10 B. 44. See also under Art. I, Sch. I. In an appeal from a decree in a redemption suit, when the right to re-

and in suits by a mortgagee to foreclose the mortgage, or, where the mortgage is made by conditional sale, to have the sale declared absolute—according to the principal money expressed to be secured by the instrument of mortgage;

for specific performance.

(x) In suits for specific performance—

demption is no longer in dispute, and the appellant merely seeks to reduce the liability imposed upon him by the trial Court, the court-fee payable on the memorandum of appeal is the fee on the amount in respect of which he seeks to avoid liability under Art. 1, Sch. I. Sec. 7 (ix) does not apply to such an appeal. 47 Bom. L. R. 400 = A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 504. In an appeal, where the question raised is the right to redeem or foreclose for an adjudged sum, court-fee is payable on the principal mortgage money. 54 I.C. 733=22 O. C. 289; 67 I.C. 130=3 Lah.L.J. 156. See also 20 I.C. 257=9 N.L.R. 86; 6 N.L.R. 164=8 I.C. 1125; 1933 L. 155; 134 I.C. 124 = 1931 L. 633; 134 I.C. 604=1931 O. 353. Thus if a suit for redemption were dismissed, the plaintiff-appellant can prefer an appeal paying court-fee under cl. (ix). 134 I.C. 124=1931 O. 633. But in an appeal by the mortgagor against a decree for redemption, seeking reduction of the decretal amount, ad valorem court-fee must be paid on the amount of the mortgage. 1 L. 234=57 I.C. 215; 1923 L. 309; 58 P.R. 1915=30 I.C. 104; 55 I.C. 177=156 P.W.R. 1910 (Second appeal against enhancement of the amount by the appellate Court). See also 30 I. C. 322=2 O.L.J. 257; 5 N.L.R. 130=3 I.C. 920; 1930 L. 601=122 I.C. 736; I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 49=1937 Nag. 295 (F.B.); 222 I.C. 194=1946 N.L.J. 110. So also where the respondents in an appeal by the mortgagee, file cross-objections to the same effect. 134 P.W.R. 1911=11 I.C. 198=213 P.L. R. 1911. So also where enhancement of amount is sought, fee is to be paid on the amount sought to be recovered. 54 I.C. 733 = 22 O.C. 289. See also 25 O.C. 30=1932 O. 82; 11 N.L.R. 83=29 I.C. 609; 1931 N. 180; 134 I.C. 124=1931 L. 633. Where the plaintiffs in a redemption suit file appeals both from the preliminary decree and final decree, claiming a reduction of amount fixed as payable by them the appeal against the final decree is only of a formal nature and it is enough if a court-fee of Rs. 2 is paid thereon, if ad valorem court-fees are paid in the other appeal. 4 L. 406=1923 L. 632. See also 39 A. 452=41 I.C. 346=15 A.L.J. 464. Where the mortgagee in an appeal against a decree in a redemption suit contests not only the finding of the lower Court as to the amount payable by the mortgagor before he can redeem the mortgage but also that the transaction is a sale and not a mortgage as held by the lower Court, the court-fee on the appeal is payable on the principal sum secured on the mortgage and not on the amount claimed. 1933 L. 155. The expression "suits" used in cl. (ix) of sec. 7 means "appeal" as well, as the expression has been used to cover the entire litigation from its beginning to the end. 167 I.C. 577=1937 N. 6. In a suit for redemption, or for foreclosure or for enforcement of a mortgage by conditional sale, the claim cannot be properly valued in accordance with the value of the property, but an artificial value has to be fixed in accordance with sec. 7 (ix), Court-Fees Act, and the value so fixed cannot vary, but must remain constant throughout all stages of the litigation, because the word 'suit' in cl. (ix) covers both the claim in the Original Court, as well as that in appeal. 167 I.C. 577=1937 N. 6. In an appeal from a decree for redemption of a mortgage and surplus profits, where the appellant challenges bona fide both the right of redemption and the amount of profits, the appellant is liable to pay court-fees under sec. 7 (ix) of the Court-Fees Act only on the principal sum secured by the mortgage. I.L.R. 1937 N. 49 (F.B.). No doubt in the case of a mortgage where the right to redeem or foreclose is challenged, the amount of court-fee payable on appeal is provided for in sec. 7 (ix), for "suit" there includes "appeal". But when none of these is challenged as where only the amount of the price fixed for redemption is challenged, such a relief is neither for foreclosure nor for sale, nor is it for redemption. The only dispute is with reference to the difference between the amount fixed in the lower Court and the amount claimed in appeal. Such a claim does not come under sec. 7, cl. (ix), nor does it fall under any other provision in the Act. It is therefore not "otherwise provided for" and so court-fee must be paid on the memorandum of appeal in accordance with the Art. 1, Sch. I, that is, the fee must be paid ad valorem on the value of the subject-matter in appeal. 167 I.C. 577=1937 N. 6.

SEC. 7 (x) (a).—See 40 C.W.N. 90=62 C.L.J. 405; 63 C. 657. Sec. 7, cl. (x) (a) applies to a suit for specific performance of a contract to sell, in which the plaintiff seeks to force the vendor to execute and register a sale-deed and also to hand over possession of the property. 38 A. 292=14 A.L.J. 434; 45 M.L.J. 431=47 M. 150=1924 M. 360. But in Punjab such suit was held to fall under sec. 7 (v) and not under sec. 7 (x) (a). 128 P. W.R. 1918=46 I.C. 534; 60 I.C. 512; 107 P.W.R. 1916=34 I.C. 192. LEG. REF.

C. 134=1929 P. 645. Court-fees are payable on both the reliefs according to 60 I.C. 654 (O.). The clause covers also exchange. 1923 L. 456. But see (1944) 1 M.L.J. 187=57 L.W. 130=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 252 holding that a suit for specific performance of a contract of exchange is governed by Sch. I, Art. 1 and not sec. 7, cl. (viii) or Sch. II, Art. 17-B. Where the contract of sale was in discharge of a mortgage debt, the consideration must include the debt as due on the date of the contract and not the debt that may be subsequently claimed as scaled down under the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act in the event of the contract of sale not being enforced. (1943) 1 M.L.J. 12=56 L.W. 91=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 372.

Sec. 7 (x) (c).—A suit for specific performance of a contract of lease should first be valued for court-fees under sec. 7 (x) (c) and the same is the value for purposes of jurisdiction. 34 C.L.J. 94=66 I.C. 268=25 C.W.N. 768. As to suits falling under the clause, see 17 C.W.N. 160=15 I.C. 46; 25 C. 46; 25 C.W.N. 768=34 C.L.J. 94; 1939 A.M.L.J. 80; I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 367=1939 Mad. 360=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 268 (F. Sec. 7 (xi).—A suit for fixation of rent under sec. 45 of the Agra Tenancy Act has to be valued for purposes of court-fee at the annual rent asked for by the plaintiff, as required by sec. 7 (xi). 1936 R.D. 390. In a suit for assessment of rent, there being no rent previously, cl. (xi) does not apply. 1927 P. 123.

Sec. 7 (xi) (b).—A tenure-holder is a tenant within the meaning of sec. 7 (xi) and the words "right of occupancy" used in cl. (b) of the section are to be understood in the popular and more general sense of a right by virtue of which a tenant remains in actual and physical possession as it were of the tenancy and so does not include the rights of a tenure-holder. 61 C. 513=38 C.W.N. 527=1934 C. 674.

Sec. 7 (xi) (cc).—Holding over after determination of tenancy. See 154 I.C. 615=1935 P. 90. Where a fiscal distinction is made between two causes of action, they can properly be regarded as two distinct causes of action. 1935 A.M.L.J. 4. This section is not confined to cases where the defendant is clearly estopped from denying the plaintiff's title. 99 I.C. 981=1927 M. 331=52 M.L.J. 100. See also 116 I.C. 374. The word "tenant" means a person who was a tenant but had ceased to be so. 33 C.W.N. 769=1930 C. 42. In a suit for ejectment of an under-ryyat, the court-fee payable is one year's rental. 133 I.C. 689=54 C.L.J. 68. The words "including a tenant holding over" are sufficient to indicate that the provision is meant to cover even those cases where a person was a tenant before but his tenancy has been determined since. 14 P.L.T. 616=1933 P. 664; 42 P.L.R. 784=1941 L. 39. See also I.L.R. Where a person claimed to be on the land on payment of rent and it appeared that his father had during his lifetime held over the land for a number of years after the expiration of the lease, and the landlord instituted a suit in ejectment. Held, that the suit was governed by sec. 7 (xi) (cc). 1933 C. 822. Tenant holding over—Assignee from lessor—Suit by for possession—If one by landlord against tenant—Jurisdiction—Determination. 44 L.W. 800=71 M.L.J. 342. Suits between landlord and tenant have to be valued for court-fees upon the rent for the previous year and the same is the value for jurisdiction. 25 I.C. 975=12 A.L.J. 933. A suit to recover possession of land from a tenant is valued according to a year's rental next before date of presenting the plaint under sec. 7 (xi) (cc) and not under sec. 7, cl. (v) (d). 39 M. 873; 29 M.L.J. 572; 27 P. R. 1910=5 I. This is so even where plaintiff is in possession of part of a house and wants to recover another part from his alleged tenant. 104

- (d) to contest a notice of ejectment, according to the amount of the rent of the ¹[immoveable property] to which the suit refers, payable for the year next before the date of presenting the plaint.

8. The amount of fee payable under this Act on a memorandum of appeal against an order relating to compensation under any Act for the time being in force for the ²acquisition of land for public purposes shall be computed according to the difference between the amount awarded and the amount claimed by the appellant.

LEG. REF.

² See now the Land Acquisition Act, (I of 1894).

I.C. 412=1927 Sind. 248. In such a case court-fee is payable on proportionate rent. 139 I.C. 95=1932 Sind. 73. A suit by a landlord against his tenants holding over after the period of their tenancy, for recovery of possession also falls under this clause. 55 I.C. 178=24 C.W.N. 151; 33 Bom.L.R. 263=1931 B. 234. But where the tenant holds over in spite of notice to quit, he is a trespasser and a suit for possession against him falls under sec. 7 (v). 1923 N. 310=8 N.L.J. 63; 20 N.L.R. 124; 84 I.C. 202=1925 N. 131. See also 1928 C. 753. Where a relief against a trespasser is claimed along with a relief against a tenant, the former portion does not fall under the clause. 91 I.C. 488=1926 C. 504. In suits under the clause, the Court will not go into the question of title. 27 I.C. 162=27 M.L.J. 475; 5 P. 208=1936 P. 251. But see 91 I.C. 488=1926 C. 504. Where in a suit for ejectment there was an additional prayer for declaration of plaintiff's title as owner, the court-fee is payable under sec. 7, cl. (iv) (c) and not under this sub-clause. 29 L.W. 760=1929 M. 529. See also 5 P. 208=94 I.C. 19=1926 P. 251. But where in an ejectment suit the question of title was raised by the defendant, the suit should be valued under this sub-clause. 33 C.W.N. 769=1930 C. 42. See also 138 I.C. 88=1932 M. 409. A suit for declaration of kudiwaram right and ejectment of tenant falls under cl. (iv) (c) and not under this clause. 63 M.L.J. 759=140 I.C. 462. In suit for possession of properties from tenants, if a decree is passed conditional on the plaintiff paying a certain sum of money for value of improvements due to the defendants, the plaintiff appealing against the decree awarding compensation there being no question about possession must pay court-fee on the value of improvements. The subject of the appeal is the value of improvements and not possession of land as in the suit in the lower Court, and it is not therefore enough if the appeal be valued as a suit for possession. 48 L.W. 661=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 840.

Sec. 7 (xi) (d).—In a case to contest a notice of ejectment the relief claimed may be in the alternative (a) non-ejectment, as (b) compensation, but the suit is valued on the rental of the land without any regard for compensation claimed, the claim for compensation being regarded as ancillary. If ejectment were decreed with compensation and the tenant appealed claiming still non-ejectment and in the alternative more compensation, he would still pay on the original subject-matter that is the rent. But where the landlord defendant appeals and he desires to get rid of the amount of the compensation, he should pay ad valorem court-fee. 11 L.L.T. 116. See also 20 L.L.T. 155.

Sec. 7 (xi) (e).—A suit for possession by a tenant against his landlord falls within sec. 7, cl. (xi) (e). 16 C.L.J. 375. The clause should not be limited to suits where the landlord and tenant alone are parties. It applies to cases where to avoid delay, etc., other persons also are impleaded. 87 I.C. 1002=1925 S. 275. But see 32 S. 268 where the clauses have been held not to apply to such cases. A suit for possession by a tenant against the landlord and persons claiming only melwaram rights is not governed by this clause but by cl. (5). 31 M. 11=17 M. L.J. 478. The value for purposes of jurisdiction also is the same as that for court-fee. 39 M. 873=29 M.L.J. 572=31 I.C. 104.

Sec. 8: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY.—Sec. 8 is a special provision applicable to appeals against all orders of awards relating to compensation under the Land Acquisition Act, and overrides the general provision contained in Art. 17 (iv) of Sch. II, 21 M. 269; 159 I.C. 274=1935 L. 448. See also on the section, 21 A. 354; 21 M. 309; 39 C. 906; 17 I.C. 724=17 C.W.N. 933; 35 C.W.N. 1103. An appellant is bound to include in the valuation of his appeal the amount of 15 per cent. of the excess market-value and pay court-fee thereon. 57 M.L.J. 357=1930 M. 45. Section inapplicable to appeal by the Crown on the ground that the award is excessive. 46 M.L.J. 150=1924 M. 489 (2); 1928 R. 197=6 R. 281; 138 I.C. 199=1932 O. 224. The memorandum of appeal by a claimant to land acquired in a Land Acquisition proceeding should bear a court-fee stamp ad valorem on the value of the land claimed. 45 Bom. 277=64 I.C. 582 (584)=23 Bom. 9. If the Court sees reason to think that the annual nett profits or the market-value of any such land, house or garden as is mentioned in section 7, paragraphs 5 and 6, have or has been wrongly estimated, the Court may, for the purpose of computing the fee payable in any suit therein mentioned, issue a commission to any proper person directing him to make such local or other investigation as may be necessary, and to report thereon to the Court.

10. (i) If in the result of any such investigation the Court finds that the nett profits or market-value have or has been wrongly estimated, the Court, if the estimation has been excessive, may, in its discretion refund the excess paid as such fee; but, if the estimation has been insufficient, the Court shall require the plaintiff to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the said market value or nett profits been rightly estimated.

(ii) In such case the suit shall be stayed until the additional fee is paid. If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the suit shall be dismissed.

LEG. REF.

1 Cl. (iii) was repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act, 1891 (XII of 1891). The clause was as follows:—"Sec. 180 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall be construed as if the words 'the market-value of any property or' were inserted after the word 'ascertaining' and as if the words 'or annual nett profits' were inserted after the word 'damages'".

Act, ad valorem court-fee is payable under Art. 1, Sch. I, and sec. 8 is inapplicable. 56 M.L.J. 337=1929 M. 223. See also 60 C.L.J. 216. Where the appellant definitely claims a share in the compensation awarded for the land acquired by Government under the Land Acquisition Act, court-fee is payable on the ad valorem scale on the value of the appellant's claim. 134 I.C. 127=1931 L. 343. Where the compensation money is in custodia legis and the question in the appeal merely is, which of the rival claimants is entitled to it, a mere declaration by the appellate Court will be sufficient and court-fee is therefore payable only on that basis. 55 M. 641=1932 M. 438=62 M.L.J. 541. The court-fee payable in respect of a memorandum of appeal against an award by a tribunal constituted under the U. P. Town Improvement Act, is under sec. 8 of the Court-Fees Act which applies to the case, on the difference between the claimed and awarded amount. The appeal will not come under Sch. II, Art. 17 (iv). I.L.R. (1939) All. 142=1938 A.L.J. 1124=1939 All. 127. As to appeal against an award under sec. 19 (i) of the Defence of India Act for compulsory acquisition of land, see 47 Bom.L.R. 327=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 348, cited under Sch. II, Art. 11.

(BENG. AMENDMENT), SEC. 8-D (2).—The Court has jurisdiction to direct the plaintiff to deposit the costs of a local investigation as to the valuation of a property under sec. 8-D (2), held at the instance of the defendant. It can make the defendant responsible for such costs if the result is in favour of the plaintiff. 47 C.W.N. 373.

SEC. 9.—The Court is not bound to appoint a commissioner to hold an enquiry. It may itself hold an enquiry. 29 A. 749=4 A.L.J. 636. The decision of the Court as to the market-value of immovable property passed after objection made, is final, even though no enquiry was made under a commission. 14 W.R. 451. The commission may issue at any stage of the suit. 2 M. 308=4 Ind. Jur. 285. If a commission is ordered under sec. 9 not at the instance of the plaintiff, there is no power to make the plaintiff deposit the costs of the commission. 33 C.W. N. 952=50 C.L.J. 164=1930 C. 65. Where the question of deficit court-fees was not apparent on the face of the record, payment of court-fees cannot be made a condition precedent to the filing of appeal. The proper course is to order judicial enquiry under this section after the appeal is filed. (Ibid.). See also 1929 C. 717.

SECS. 9 TO 11: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—Secs. 9 to 11 do not relate to appeals. 12 A. 129 (F.B.). The sections are not in conflict with sec. 28. (Ibid.) As to the effect of dismissal of a suit under the section, see 12 A. 129; 8 A. 282.

SEC. 10: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—See 12 A. 129. The specific provisions of sec. 28 are not cut down by the section. (Ibid.) The Court has no jurisdiction to order the deficit court-fee to be paid by the plaintiff after the dismissal of his suit and on his default, to order the attachment of his properties. 46 C. 520; 52 I.C. 435. See also 152 I.C. 799=1935 L. 75; 32 I.C. 534=9 Bur.L.T. 43; 1925 L. 131; 142 I.C. 225=1933 M. 321. If the Court finds that sufficient court-fee has not been paid it is bound to stay the suit and to fix a time within which the additional fee can be paid, without any regard to the fact, whether that be a time within or beyond, the period of limitation. 4 A.L.J. 636=29 A. 749. If the fee is paid within the time so fixed, the plaint is as valid as if it had been properly stamped in the first instance. 29 A. 749. See also 34 C. 20 (F.B.). A plaintiff who fails to pay additional court-fee within the time or is in excess of the profits claimed or the amount at which the plaintiff valued the relief sought, the decree shall not be executed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits or amount so decreed shall have been paid to the proper officer.

allowed by the Court, is liable to have his suit dismissed under sec. 10 and not to have his plaint rejected under O. 7, r. 11, C. P. Code. 26 I.C. 746=16 Bom.L.R. 763; 29 A. 749. But only a Court having jurisdiction to try the suit can so dismiss it. 51 B. 236=29 B.L.R. 280=101 I.C. 343=1927 Bom. 257. The dismissal, however, has the same effect as rejection. 12 A. 129. It could not operate as res judicata. 8 A. 282. An order rejecting a memorandum of appeal for deficient court-fee is not a decree or final order and does not preclude the appellant from presenting a fresh memorandum on proper court-fee. 59 C. 388=138 I.C. 643=1932 C. 482. A suit can be dismissed under the section at any stage of the case. 2 M. 308. See also 56 I.C. 316=4 P.L.J. 703. Once a Court finds that the market-value of the property is different to that alleged in the plaint, the plaintiff should be at once called upon to make up the proper court-fee as determined, before the trial of the suit takes place. It is obviously improper for the Court to hold up the decision on the question of court-fee until the end of the suit and incorporate the order passed in the decree which is perfectly useless. (1935 L. 75 Rel. on.) 40 P.L.R. 88=1938 Lah. 311. The plaintiff can abandon a portion of the claim and retain that part for which he had already paid court-fee. 27 A. 151. But see contra. 16 Bom.L.R. 763=26 I.C. 746. Where a Court returns a plaint for presentation to a proper Court, the latter Court to which the plaint is presented should give credit to the fee already paid. 51 B. 236=29 Bom. L.R. 280=1927 B. 257; 35 M. 567=21 M. L.J. 533.

SEC. 11: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—See 12 A. 129. Sec. 11 of the Court-Fees Act casts a duty on the executing Court to collect the deficit court-fee when it finds that execution is sought for the recovery of an amount over and above what was claimed in the plaint. The power of the executing Court in this behalf does not depend on any direction in the final decree. The executing Court has also the power to determine whether this amount should be borne by the decree-holder himself or can be recovered by him from the judgment-debtors as costs relating to execution. 38 L.W. 572=1933 M. 787=65 M. L.J. 526. See also (1942) 2 M.L.J. 673=55 L.W. 786=1942 M.W.N. 713=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 145. Sec. 11 refers only to suits for mesne profits of immovable property or for accounts and does not apply to mortgage suits where on account of the interest pendente lite a decree for a much larger amount than was claimed is passed. 3 P.L.T. 146=1922 P. 59. See also 105 I.C. 395=1 P.L.T. 331. Additional court-fee is not assessable by reason of the accrual of interest pendente lite. 1927 P. 230; 1928 P. 58; 17 B. 41; 1928 P. 58. In cases within the first paragraph of sec. 11 of the Court-Fees Act non-payment of the balance of court-fee merely postpones the date on which the decree can be executed while the second paragraph under which the Court has power to dismiss the suit is only applicable "where the amount of mesne profits is left to be ascertained in the course of the execution of the decree". Where the account directed by a decree is not an account of mesne profits nor is it so described, and it involves among other things an account of the sums received from a money-lending business, and the amount due to the plaintiff thereon is not "left to be ascertained in the course of the execution of the decree", the case does not fall within the second paragraph and the Court has, therefore, no jurisdiction to dismiss the suit for non-payment of the additional court-fee. 64 I.A. 191=18 Lah. 502=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 1=1937 P.C. 163 (P.C.). The section only says that the decree shall not be executed until the court-fee is paid. It in no way requires the Court to postpone the passing or the drawing up of the decree. 21 Pat. 366=109 I.C. 818=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 410=23 Pat.L.T. 202. The penalty mentioned in the final provisions of sec. 11 does not apply to the cases coming under the first para. 11 I.C. 73 (C.). The Court has no power to fix any time for payment, in such cases; only the decree cannot be executed until the additional fee is paid. 59 I.C. 385 (M.). See also 30 M. 82. If the appellate Court grants a decree for an amount larger than that claimed in the Court below, court-fee must be paid on the difference and unless this is done the decree cannot be executed. 3 P.L.T. 813=1923 P. 28. The word 'decree' in sec. 11, para. 2 as applied to a suit for partition and mesne profits means the final and not the interim decree. 59 I.C. 385 (M.). Where the value of the reliefs is ascertained after trial, the Court-fee on the difference between the plaint valuation and the amount decreed should be paid, under the 2nd paragraph. 24 I.C. 643=1 O.L.J. 281. A Court has discretionary power under S. 11 to enlarge the time originally fixed for the payment of the Court-fees in such cases, even when application to enlarge the time is made after the expiry of the time originally granted. 10 I.C. 268=13 C.L.J. 432. Where a plaintiff claimed mesne profits from a certain date till delivery of possession of property, but no Court-

Where the amount of mesne profits is left to be ascertained in the course of the execution of the decree, if the profits so ascertained exceed the profits claimed, the further execution of the decree shall be stayed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so ascertained is paid. If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the suit shall be dismissed.

fee was paid on that claim but a statement was made that Court-fee on that relief would be paid when ordered by the Court. Held, that the plaintiff ought to have given a tentative valuation for the claim for mesne profits and on that valuation Court-fees ought to have been paid, and that an amendment of the plaint so as to remove that technical defect could be permitted even in appeal. 72 C.L.J. 14=1941 Cal. 1.

MESNE PROFITS.—A decree for mesne profits does not become operative till after the amount has been ascertained, and the Court-fee under S. 11 paid. 27 I.C. 300 (P.). The second part of S. 11 applies only to a claim for mesne profits accruing subsequently to the date of suit of which the plaintiff is unable to calculate the approximate value because he cannot say for how long a period he is likely to be kept out of possession. 13 P.L.T. 810=12 P. 188=1933 P. 81. The Court-fee payable is an ad valorem fee. 55 I.C. 24=1 P.L.T. 235. On this point, see also 50 M. 488=52 M.L.J. 128. The mere fact that court-fee had not been paid on a decree granted does not prevent the decree-holder from making an application for execution and all that S. 11 provides is that the decree should not be executed (34 Bom. 189 and 1930 Nag. 241, Rel. on.) 178 I.C. 202=1938 Lah. 326. The plaintiff can obtain execution of a portion of the decree granting reliefs other than mesne profits without paying Court-fee on such mesne profits. 12 B. 98. See also 24 C. 174; 54 M. 98=1931 M. 717=61 M.L.J. 424. The term 'suit' is to be construed as confined to that part of the suit which relates to mesne profits. 12 B. 98. So in case of default, the claim in respect of mesne profits along is to be dismissed. 24 C. 173=1 C.W.N. 243. After such dismissal, application for execution of the decree for mesne profits cannot be entertained. 24 C. 173. Approximate amount to be stated for mesne profits accrued due before suit. 24 I.C. 232 (1). The plaintiff in a suit having omitted to claim future mesne profits, subsequently applied for permission to amend his plaint by including a claim therefor, but the application was rejected. Against the decree for possession the defendant appealed to the High Court and the plaintiff filed a memorandum of objections claiming future mesne profits, but, his contention that no Court-fees was payable on the claim for mesne profits was overruled by the Taxing Officer, who held that ad valorem Court-fees was payable on the amount claimed. At the time of the hearing of the appeal, plaintiff questioned the decision of the Taxing Officer and claimed refund of the amount of Court-fee paid by him. Held, (1) that under S. 11 of the Court-fees Act, as amended in Madras, no Court-fee is payable in respect of future mesne profits before the final decree is passed, a claim to mesne profits being in respect of a cause of action not arising at the date of the suit. (2) that under S. 5 of the Court-Fees Act, the decision of the Taxing Officer had become final and could not be impeached at the hearing of the appeal. 165 I.C. 972=44 L.W. 763=71 M.L.J. 677.

COURT-FEES IN APPEAL.—Where in a suit for partition and mesne profits, the Court awarded in the preliminary decree mesne profits for three years before suit but made provision for its subsequent determination, in the appeal therefrom the defendant need not pay any Court-fees in respect of this decree for mesne profits. 58 M.L.J. 497=1930 M. 597 (52 M.L.J. 128 to the contrary not approved). But see 8 P. 906=1929 P. 731. Where the applicant for the recovery of mesne profits appeals from the decision of the trial Court awarding him a smaller amount than what he claimed he is not bound to pay ad valorem Court-fee on the amount of his claim. No Court-fee apart from the fixed fee can be claimed from him until the amount of mesne profits actually due to him has been ascertained. 11 P.L.T. 703.

FUTURE MESNE PROFITS.—As to whether Court-fee is payable on future mesne profits under the section, there is a conflict of rulings between the various High Courts. See 20 M.L.J. 98=5 I.C. 880; 15 B. 416; 17 B. 41; 6 O.C. 351; 13 C.W.N. 815; 24 I.C. 232; 21 M. 317 (appeal); 2 A. 642; 3 G.L.J. 94; 16 C.L.J. 564; 15 I.C. 572; 1938 M. 727=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 750. A direction in a decree for payment of extra-fee in respect of such mesne profits does not form part of the decree. The execution of the decree is not conditional upon the payment of the extra-fee. 30 M. 31=16 M.L.J. 543. See also 33 C. 1232. The law on the subject has been made clear so far as Madras is concerned. See para. 3 of S. 11 substituted by Madras Act V of 1922. See I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 1050=1938 M. 727=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 750. Court-fee is payable on future mesne profits but it can only be exacted after the amount has been ascertained by enquiry and the Court has no jurisdiction to dismiss such an application for non-payment of Court-fee in advance. 5 P. 361=93 I.C. 939=1936 P. 218 (F.B.). See also 108 I.C. 801=9 P.L.T. 657; 1930 R. 246. Where the decree directs payment of future mesne profits at a certain rate, Court-fee should be paid on the amount accrued due when execution is applied for. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 31=A.I.R. 1946 Sind 19; I.L.R. (1935) Kar. 313. Fees are payable on the difference between the amount paid on the mesne profits claimed in the plaint and the amount ascertained to be due subsequent to the filing of the suit. 10 L.B.R. 276=62 I.C. 175; 1929 L. 753. Collection of excess Court-fee. See 152 I.C. 608=1935 L. 40.

ACCOUNT SUITS.—The plaintiff has a right to value his claim on estimate and the Court has power to decree larger amount. 24 O.C. 209=64 I.C. 101. See also 25 M. 543; 12 M.L.J. 35; 9 B. 22; 27 Punj.L.R. 187=94 I.C. 650=1926 L. 242 (1).

ADMINISTRATION SUIT.—Though adminis tra-

Decision of question as to valuation. on a plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be decided by the Court in which such plaint or memorandum, as the case may be, is filed, and such decision shall be final as between the parties to the suit.

tion suit is analogous to an account suit up to a certain stage, the two are not identical for all purposes, at least so far as the ultimate decision of the Court is concerned. Hence where in a suit by a creditor for administration of the estate of a deceased debtor, other creditors are impleaded as party defendants before the preliminary decree and they set out in their written statements their claims against the estate of the deceased but the Court has allowed certain dividends upon the amounts found to have been due to them, those creditors cannot be ordered to pay Court-fees upon the entire amount of their claims, irrespectively of what are being actually paid to them as dividends. 43 C.W.N. 52=68 C.L.J. 345=1938 Cal. 785. See also 54 L.W. 663=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 692; 1941 Rang.L.R. 512=1941 Rang. 312; 42 P.L.R. 101. It is the practice in the moffussil to demand payment of Court-fees from defendants who come in under a preliminary decree in administration suits, and they cannot obtain relief under the decree without payment of the proper Court-fee. 1939 Rang.L.R. 134=1939 Rang. 115. See also 17 Pat. 542; 222 I. C. 499 (Sind) with reference to the explanation added to the section in Sind.

POWER OF COURT TO PASS DECREES FOR SUMS BEYOND PECUNIARY JURISDICTION.—In suits for accounts and mesne profits, even if the sum found due exceeds the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court, it is competent to the Court to give a decree for such amount. 40 M. 1=32 M.L.J. 221=39 I.C. 439 (F.B.); 33 A. 97; 28 Bom.L.R. 1461=1927 B. 83; 89 I.C. 353=1925 Sind. 324. But see the decisions of the Calcutta High Court to the contrary. 13 C.W.N. 493; 21 C.W.N. 310; 43 C. 650=15 C.W.N. 506=13 C.L.J. 132. See also 1929 L. 107; 49 P.R. 1906=94 P.L.R. 1906; 2 R. 408. The case of future mesne profits stands on a different footing from a suit for accounts, see 53 C. 14=1925 C. 1076 (F.B.).

SEC. 12: CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The provisions of section are to be strictly construed. The additional fees should be levied in exact conformity with the words of the statute. 39 C.L.J. 217=82 I.C. 292=1924 C. 953. The question of the sufficiency of the stamp on the memorandum of appeal should always be regarded as open until the appeal is finally heard and disposed of. 14 P.L.T. 180=12 P. 694=1933 P. 234. When a Court has passed a judicial order fixing the correct Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal, it is not open to that Court to vary it afterwards either at the instance of a party or of its own motion. [(1937) 1 M.L.J. 89 and (1935) 69 M.L.J. 439, followed.] 48 L.W. 461=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 647. After the suit is decided, the Court is no longer seized of the case and has no jurisdiction to require the plaintiff to make good the alleged deficiency in Court-fee. (82 I.C. 588 and 52 I.C. 435, foll.) 34 P.L.R. 84=1933 L. 208. See also 18 P.L.T. 864. Once the Court holds that the Court-fee paid was sufficient and correct, the decision is final under S. 12 (1) and the Court has no power to revise the valuation. Nor can the High Court, in revision against an order of the lower Court from the later order passed in supersession of the first order, act under S. 12 (2) of the Act, because the suit itself is not before the High Court. The condition precedent to the exercise of powers under S. 12 (2) is that the suit, i.e., the subject-matter of the suit, should be before the Court of appeal, reference or review. 45 L.W. 206=1937 M. 325=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 89. The expression "every question relating to valuation" in S. 12 (1) cannot be construed in the restricted sense of a question relating to appraisal of Court-fee as distinguished from the question of category; I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 275=1937 M. 81=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 1 (F.B.).

SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—A decision on the question of Court-fee in the Court of First instance is final between the parties under S. 12 (1) but can be reopened by an appellate Court under S. 12 (2) in the interest of revenue. 25 I.C. 506 (M.). See also 60 C.L.J. 201=39 C.W.N. 131; 43 B. 507 (P.C.); 40 I.C. 904=106 P.W.R. 1917; 90 I. C. 321 (2)=1925 P. 488. The valuation made by the Court of the first instance for the purpose of assessing Court-fee is final and cannot be challenged in appeal, when there is no question as to the class in which the suit falls and the question is merely of valuation in that class. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 166=44 C.W.N. 745=1940 Cal. 451. Though there is no appeal against a decision as to the correct valuation for any particular class of suits, still there is an appeal against a decision that any particular suit falls within a particular class. 162 I.C. 227=38 Bom.L.R. 218=1936 B. 166. It cannot be held that a decision would be final under S. 12 (1) only if it has been finally arrived at after both parties have been heard. The object of S. 12 (1) is to ensure that the Court at as early a stage as possible should finally determine the amount of the Court-fee before the subject-matter of the suit was to be embarked upon. 1941 M.W.N. 406=53 L.W. 740=1941 M. 626=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 796. The decision is not final within the meaning of S. 12 unless it is reached after both sides have had a chance to be heard. After a plaint is filed and summons is issued to the other side, it is open to the other side to contend that the Court-fee paid is insufficient. It is on deciding such a plea that the Court would come to a "decision" which under S. 12 of the Act would be final as between the parties. I.L.R. 1942 Nag. 432. Where on the report of the Munsarim a Civil Judge decides that the Court-fee paid on an appeal is sufficient it is not such a final order within the meaning of S. 12 (1) as to preclude a District Judge going into the question once again either on the report of the Inspector of Stamps or on the preliminary objection of the opposite side. 200 I.C. 223=1942 O.W.N. 338=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 385; 1941 N.L.J. 303=1941 Nag. 217. If the Court holds under S. 7 (v) (a) that a certain amount is the net profit in the year immediately preceding the institution of the suit or investigates the question of market value and arrives at a certain figure, its finding is final and conclusive under S. 12 (i) only as regards the amount or figure so arrived at. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 450=44 C.W.N. 822=1940 Cal. 438. Appeal requiring ad valorem Court-fee filed as miscellaneous appeal and allowed—Application by respondent after remand for stay of proceedings until payment of proper Court-fee—Order rejecting—Revision—High Court would not interfere if the order is manifestly correct. 18 P.L.T. 864=1937 P.W.N. 983. The section does not bar a reconsideration of the decision on the question of valuation if jurisdiction will be affected on a correct valuation. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 400=202 I.C. 65=55 L.W. 173=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 502.

(ii) But whenever any such suit comes before a Court of appeal, reference or revision, if such Court considers that the said question has been wrongly decided to the detriment of the revenue, it shall require the party by whom such fee has been paid to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the question been rightly decided, and the provisions of S. 10, paragraph ii, shall apply.

FINALITY OF DECISION UNDER SUB-SEC. (1).—An appeal would lie from the decision of a Court in respect of the class in which a suit ranks but no appeal would lie from a decision in respect of the valuation of the suit in that class. 28 A. 411; 23 B. 486. See also 1935 L. 698; 1935 A. 455; 27 B. 140; 17 B. 56; 15 B. 82; 16 I.C. 963=16 C.L.J. 375; 6 C. 249; 23 C. 723; 28 C. 334; 51 C. 516=28 C.W.N. 683=1924 C. 731; 14 M. 169; 1925 M. 713=48 M.L.J. 688; 90 I.C. 321 (2)=1925 P. 488; 3 P. 930=1924 P. 673; 87 I.C. 911=1925 N. 4; 49 I.C. 442; 16 P.R. 1919=49 I.C. 711; 16 I.C. 773; 2 S.L.R. 72; 105 I.C. 610; 106 I.C. 817; 130 I.C. 643=1931 Lah. 378; 33 Bom.L.R. 263=1931 Bom. 234. Nor is such an order revisable. 1927 M. 1021. An order accepting Court-fee paid on a memo. of appeal is revisable in view of S. 12 (2). 222 I.C. 194=1946 N.L.J. 110. S. 12 makes the valuation for the purposes of Court-fees final. It has got nothing to do with the question of valuation for the purposes of jurisdiction. If, therefore, a trial Court comes to the conclusion that the value of the subject-matter of a suit is beyond its jurisdiction and returns the plaint under O. 7, R. 10, in an appeal from that order the appellate Court can enter into the question of valuation and if it finds that it is within the jurisdiction of the trial Court it should direct it to entertain the suit. 44 C.W.N. 394. See also 1938 A.L.J. 214=1938 Nag. 481. Where, in a suit for declaration that a certain revenue sale is illegal and ultra vires, the plaintiff values the suit as one for a declaration only and pays a Court fee of Rs. 200, and the Court decides the question of Court-fee as a preliminary issue and decides that that Court-fee paid is sufficient, no appeal lies against such decision. Nor is the order holding that the Court-fee paid was correct an appealable decree. 63 C.L.J. 16=1936 C. 784. Where an order rejecting a plaint necessarily involves a decision of the category or class under which a suit falls, even though it incidentally decides a question of valuation the order is appealable. 49 I.C. 442=4 P.L.J. 57. If the dispute involves questions of principle as to the nature of the suit and the retrospective operation of statutes an appeal against an order for payment of Court-fee is maintainable. 51 C. 216=28 C.W.N. 683=1924 C. 731. The section does not also apply where the question relates to the competency of the Court of first instance to entertain the suit. 17 C.W.N. 503=16 I.C. 575=16 C.L.J. 371; 3 P. 930=1924 P. 673. Thus an order returning a plaint for representation on the basis of the valuation made by the Court is appealable. 52 I.C. 1001=1919 M.W.N. 599. See also 47 I.C. 7=151 P.W.R. 1918. The decision to be final must be a decision made before the parties on the record after plaint is filed. 20 A. 11 (F.B.).

SEC 12 (ii) : SCOPE OF.—The appellate Court has power to require a party to make good the deficiency in the Court-fee payable by him in the lower Court in cases in which the lower Court has expressly or impliedly decided the question of the category in which the suit ought to be placed for purposes of Court-fee, but which decision is, in the opinion of the appellate Court, erroneous. I.L.R. (1937) M. 275=1937 M. 81=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 1 (F.B.). S. 12 (2) gives an appellate Court power when an appeal comes before it to correct a mistake made below, and has jurisdiction to require payment of the difference between the Court-fee actually paid and the proper Court-fee payable, although no question was raised when the case was in that Court. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 647=1940 Mad. 383=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 425. The words "any such suit" in S. 12 (i) cannot be construed to mean the entire suit and not a part of the suit. S. 12 (ii) therefore applies not only when the whole decree has been appealed against but also when the appeal is only with regard to a portion of the claim in suit. 63 C. 720=40 C.W.N. 406. Where only a part of the subject-matter of the suit is the subject of appeal and is before the appellate Court, that Court acting under S. 12 (ii) of the Court-Fees Act can realise the deficit Court-fee only in respect of that part and not on the entire subject-matter of the suit. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 309=47 L.W. 70=1938 Mad. 278=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 20. There is nothing in S. 12 (2) of the Act to justify the view that a Court may not reconsider an order which it has already passed under the subsection. 53 L.W. 740=1941 Mad. 626=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 796. There is no warrant for holding that S. 12 (2) applies only to cases where the plaintiff is the appellant. Applying S. 10 (2) to appeals and reading it with S. 12 (2), the word "suit" should be deemed to include an appeal. The actual wording of S. 12 (2) shows that the appeal is considered as an extension of the suit. 51 L.W. 434 (2)=1940 M.W. N. 348=1940 M. 674=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 478 (2). The jurisdiction of the Taxing Officer is limited to cases in which it is alleged that a document filed, exhibited or received in the High Court is not sufficiently stamped. It does not extend to cases in which it is alleged that a party paid insufficient Court-fee on his plaint or memorandum of appeal in the lower appellate Court. To this class of cases, S. 12 (ii) is clearly applicable. 1934 A.L.J. 957=1934 A. 805. An appellate Court cannot under S. 12 (ii) order payment of additional Court-fee stamps, unless the first Court has decided the question of valuation. 36 I.C. 957=10 Bur.L.T. 242. But see contra 31 C.W.N. 1045=1927 C. 775. But where the Court proceeds to the trial of the suit, it must be assumed that the Court has tacitly decided that the fee paid is correct. 109 P.R. 1912=15 I.C. 463. The act of the chief ministerial officer entrusted with the duty of receiving plaints and seeing that proper Court-fee is paid thereon, in accepting the plaint amounts to such decision. 1926 M. 96=49 M.L.J. 608. The question of deficit Court-fees should be dealt with by the appellate Court as soon as it is discovered, though it may be postponed at the Court's discretion in exceptional cases. 62 I.C. 43=6 P.L.J. 293. If the question arises on appeal, the appeal should first be admitted so as to remove doubts as to jurisdiction and this point should be decided before other issues, and appeal should be stayed till the deficit is paid. 62 I.C. 43=6 P.L.J. 293. See also 58 I. C. 271=5 P.L.J. 508. Until the appeal is admitted, it is not competent to the appellate Court to pass an order dismissing the suit for non-payment of Court-fee. 1 M.L.J. 528. So also where deficit Court-fee was not paid on a document in the lower Court, the same cannot be recovered as a condition precedent to the filing of the appeal. The proper procedure is to allow the filing of the appeal and thereafter take steps to recover the deficit Court-fees. 33 C.W.N. 952=50 C.L.J. 164=1930 C. 65. See also 31 C.W.N. 1045=1927 C. 775. It is the duty of the High Court to see that proper Court-fees are paid to the High Courts as well as in the Courts below. 43 I.C. 489=3 P.L.J. 101. See also 235 P.L.R. 1913=19 I.C. 856. If the appellant has failed to pay sufficient Court-fees in the Court below, his appeal will not be heard till the deficiency has been made good. Where it was the respondent who was in default no decree shall be executed in his favour till the deficiency has been made good. 3 P.L.J. 443=44 I.C. 53. The appellate Court may refuse to prepare or sign its decree until the deficiency is made up. 41 P.L.R. 491. See also 1939 Sind 279. In 44 Bom.L.R. 117=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 151, it was held that the appeal should be stayed until payment of Court-fee by respondent and that the appellants might pay the Court-fee on behalf of the respondent and include it in costs. One effective way of enforcing payment of deficiency of Court-fees is to refuse in second appeal to hear counsel of that party. 1929 A. 577=27 A.L.J. 808. See also 58 I.C. 271=5 P.L.J. 508. If a plaintiff respondent fails to make good a deficiency in the Court-fee paid on the plaint, it is competent to the appellate Court to call upon him to pay the deficit; and in the event of his failure, dismiss the suit. 56 I.C. 316=4 P.L.J. 703; 60 I.C. 654=23 O.C. 388; the procedure prescribed in S. 10 (2) being applicable. 20 A. 362. The Court cannot dismiss the appeal for non-prosecution in such a case. 33 C.W.N. 845=1929 C. 717. Where there was deficiency in the Court-fee paid on cross-objections in the lower appellate Court, the High Court can insist on the payment of the same even though the second appeal does not relate to the subject-matter of such memorandum of cross-objections. 1 P. 471=1922 P. 284. Once an appeal has been dismissed, the High Court ceases to have seisin of the appeal or case and is power less to call upon the respondent to pay any deficiency. 4 P.L.J. 472=51 I.C. 756. See also 58 I.C. 271=5 P.L.J. 508; 1925 L. 131 (1); 7 A. 528; 18 M. 415; 142 I.C. 25=1933 M. 321. Nor can an appellant be required to pay additional Court-fees after the disposal of the appeal. 1929 O. 483 (1). See also 141 I.C. 175=1933 L. 208. Once the decree in a suit has been signed and sealed, the Judge making that decree becomes functus officio and cannot thereafter make order for payment of deficient Court-fee, but if the matter comes to the High Court in revision, the High Court has power, if it considers that the question as to Court-fees has been wrongly decided to require payment of such additional fee as would be payable. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 469=1939 Sind 279. See also 41 P.L.R. 491. Where a plaint is returned for presentation to the proper Court and an appeal is preferred against that order, it is open to the appellate Court to go into the question relating to the Court-fee and decide that the lower Court had jurisdiction to entertain the suit. S. 12 of the Court-Fees Act is no bar. It only makes a decision final as to any question which relates to valuation for the purpose of determining the amount of any fee. It does not apply where there is a dispute as to the class in which the suit falls. If there is any doubt as to what section would apply to a suit, then it raises a question of principle, the jurisdiction to determine which is not impaired by S. 12 of the Court-Fees Act. 178 I.C. 97=1938 N.L.J. 214=1938 Nag. 481. See also 44 C.W.N. 394. The Act does not apply to decided cases but applies only to pending cases. 32 I.C. 534=9 Bur.L.T. 43; 1925 L. 131.

An order under section 12 (2) is not final as an order under section 12 (1), and can be reconsidered. (1941) 1 M.L.J. 796=198 I. C. 597.

WHETHER APPELLANT CAN ABANDON A PORTION OF CLAIM.—The appellant who has not properly stamped the appeal and is unable to do so may leave a part of the claim retaining only that much as is covered by the stamp. 10 I.C. 207=11 P.R. 1912; 29 Punj.L.R. 64; 1926 L. 477. There is nothing to prevent,

13. If an appeal or plaint, which has been rejected by the lower Court on any of the grounds mentioned in the Code of Civil

Refund of fee paid on Procedure, is ordered to be received, or if a suit is memorandum of appeal. remanded in appeal, on any of the grounds mentioned in S. 35¹ of the same Code for a second decision by the lower Court, the Appellate Court shall grant to the appellant a certificate, authorising him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the memorandum of appeal :

an appellant from attacking only a portion of the decree by paying Court-fee only thereon, though the reason for the attack might cover the whole decree. 38 M. 18=16 I.C. 877. A defendant appealing on the ground that the suit ought to have been dismissed in toto as time barred must appeal on the whole case and pay stamp duty on the whole claim. 44 I.C. 890=14 P.W.R. 1918. Whether an appellate Court has power to allow a valuation of claim in the Court below to be reduced in order to relieve a party from liability to pay the proper Court-fee, see 23 I.C. 489=3 P.L.J. 101.

SECS. 12 (ii) AND 28.—Where a written statement claiming a set-off is accepted by the trial Judge through mistake or inadvertence, although not stamped, and the trial Judge, although he subsequently directs the party to pay the Court-fees, does not realise the full Court-fees, the High Court can in second appeal under S. 12 (ii), and S. 149, C. P. Code, direct the payment of the additional Court-fees. 1936 C. 277.

SEC. 13 : SCOPE OF SECTION.—The Court has the power under S. 151 to grant a certificate for refund of Court-fee, in cases not covered by Ss. 13, 14 and 15 of the Court-Fees Act. The discretion of the Court is not barred by the fact that the excess fee was paid by the mistake of the party and not in consequence of any direction by the Court. (55 M. 641, Foll.) 38 L.W. 983=66 M.L.J. 35. See also I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 519=1937 N. 268; 1939 M.W.N. 1143=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 867; 41 P.L.R. 96=1939 Lah. 257; 1940 Mad. 208; 18 P.L.T. 804; 1937 P.W.N. 893. S. 13 of the Court-Fees Act is not exhaustive; the High Court in suitable cases may exercise its inherent powers vested in it by S. 151, C. P. Code, and order refund of Court-fees paid. Where therefore, the memorandum of appeal was not registered as out of time and the delay was due—not to any negligence on the part of the plaintiff but to some gross negligence on the part of his legal adviser, held, it was a fit case for refund. 152 I.C. 215=38 G.W.N. 185=1934 C. 615. See also 39 G.W.N. 1074. If a remand can be deemed to have been made on any of the grounds mentioned in O. 41, r. 23, C. P. Code, the appellant is entitled to a refund certificate under S. 13 of the Court-Fees Act, although the appellate Court erroneously purports to make the remand under S. 151, C. P. Code. 40 L.W. 372=1934 M. 643.

APPLICABILITY OF THE SECTION.—The section applies where a decree in favour of the respondents is set aside and the case is sent back for a second decision. Where the decision in favour of the respondents is set aside qua a portion only of the subject-matter of the suit, the proviso applies. 39 I.C. 28=14 A.L.J. 671. But where the decree is set aside against some respondents only and the case remanded, the successful appellant cannot get a refund of Court-fee. (Ibid.) Where the plaintiff appealed to the High Court only against the order in favour of some of the defendants and the High Court remanded the case to the Court of first instance only to that extent, held, that the certificate to be granted under S. 13 should authorise the appellant to receive only so much of the fee as would have been originally payable on the part of the subject-matter of the suit remanded. 54 A. 523=140 I.C. 466=1932 A.L.J. 320=1932 A. 550. See also 14 R. 173 (F.B.). The words of S. 13 do not appear to contemplate the grant of a certificate in respect of Court-fee paid in the lower appellate Courts. 47 L.W. 300=1938 M. 479. If an appeal is remanded, the Court is bound to grant a certificate under S. 13. Refusal to grant such certificate is a material irregularity within S. 115, C. P. ¹ As to refund of fees paid on applications to the Chief Court or the Court of the Financial Commissioner of the Punjab for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under the Code of Civil Procedure—See the Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884), S. 72 as amended by the Punjab Courts Act (XXV of 1829), P. and N. relied upon is inadmissible. 102 I.C. 298 (1)=1927 L. 592. S. 13 does not apply to the case of an appeal against a preliminary decree. 3 P.L.J. 116=43 I.C. 855. The trial Court dismissed the suit against defendants 4, 5 and 6 and decreed the claim against defendants 1, 2 and 3. The plaintiffs appealed to the District Judge claiming that a decree should be passed in their favour against defendants 4, 5 and 6 also. They made defendants 1, 2 and 3 pro forma respondents. The District Judge dismissed the appeal. On second appeal against the same parties, the High Court allowed the appeal and set aside the decree of the lower appellate Court as well as that of the first Court and sent the case back to the first Court. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a refund of the Court-fee paid in the High Court but not in the lower appellate Court. 56 A. 526=1934 A.L.J. 41=1934 A. 106 (F.B.). As to the scope of the proviso, see 6 W.R. 65. An application under S. 13 for refund of Court-fee is covered by S. 19, Cl. (xx) and no Court-fee is chargeable on it. 1932 A.L.J. 601=1932 A. 590.

REFUND IN GENERAL.—Where counsel stamps the memorandum of a time-barred appeal and is heard on the point of limitation and the appeal is dismissed, he cannot set up the plea of the failure of the Court Clerk to inform him of the practice about stamping appeal memoranda as a ground of claiming refund of the Court-fee paid. 22 I.C. 884=7 L.B.R. 90. Where excess Court-fee is paid, credit for the excess paid in the Original Court may be allowed in appeal to the plaintiff-appellant. 1886 A.W. N. 228. The Court has power to make an order for refund of excess Court-fee paid under a bona fide mistake. 107 I.C. 320=9 P.L.T. 240; 102 I.C. 193 (1)=1927 Sind 192; 40 C. 365=20 I.C. 498. See also 1928 P. 35; 107 I.C. 825 (P.). The High Court can under its inherent powers assist an appellant who has erroneously paid excess Court-fee on his memorandum of appeal. What it does judicially in such a case is to decide what is the proper Court-fee and then issue a certificate to the party that excess Court-fee has been levied. It still lies with the revenue authorities to decide whether or not they will refund the excess in the circumstances. 55 M. 641=62 M.L.J. 541=1932 M. 438. See also 40 C. 365; 57

I.C. 26. The High Court has no power to issue a certificate authorizing the Collector to refund the excess stamp duty paid by a suitor by reason of over-valuation of his suit. 20 W.R. 106; 102 I.C. 193=1927 S. 192. So also with regard to excess fee paid according to the wrong decision of the taxing officer. 39 P.R. 1907. See also 1925 P.H.C.G. 359=92 I.C. 626 (1)=1926 P. 147. But see 3 P.L.J. 452=46 I.C. 27; 40 C. 365=20 I.C. 428. Government however may order such refund, notwithstanding the absence of any special provision in the law authorizing them to do so. 39 P.R. 1907. Where owing to an erroneous order of the lower Court the defendant had to pay Court-fee in excess and though ultimately he succeeded in second appeal, the High Court did not include the excess Court-fee paid by the defendant in his costs, and the lower Court held it had no power in the matter, held, that justice should be done and the excess should be refunded. 36 C.W.N. 190=1932 C. 450=137 I.C. 791. Court-fees paid on appeal from final decree during pendency of appeal from preliminary decree should be refunded. 83 I.C. 829=1925 O. 39. Where appeal is dismissed for non-payment of additional Court-fee, Court-fee already paid cannot be refunded. 105 I.C. 742=6 P. 602. Whether High Court can order refund of Court-fee when second appeal is dismissed for want of jurisdiction, see 6 Pat. 599. The Chief Court has jurisdiction to order a refund of Court-fee even in cases which do not fall within Ss. 13, 14 and 15. Where the appeal was found to be wholly unnecessary and no proceedings except the admission of the appeal had taken place in respect thereof, held, that an order for refund of Court-fee might be passed. 7 Luck. 588=1933 O. 170. Loss of original certificate for refund—Court has power to issue a duplicate. 56 L.W. 56=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 377.

SECS. 13, 14 AND 20.—Custody fees though paid in Court-fee stamps as a matter of convenience are not Court-fees paid for any particular document under the Court-Fees Act. The money is legally payable in advance and hence no question of mistake or inadvertence comes in Ss. 13 and 14 of the Act do not apply to this case. The payment is contingent payment and if contingency does not happen the person depositing the fees is entitled to return. Apart from any rules, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to grant a refund of the custody fees when lying unspent. 64 C.L.J. 492=1937 C. 86=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 624.

SECS. 13 TO 15.—The Court has no power, after the appeal has been disposed of, to recover the deficient Court-fee on the memorandum of objections. [140 I.C. 191; 46 C. 520; 82 I.C. 588; 51 I.C. 756 (F.B.), Foll.] 142 I.C. 25=37 L.W. 300=1933 M. 321. In cases not falling under Ss. 13, 14 and 15 of the Court-Fees Act, the Revenue Authorities are not bound to make a refund even if a certificate of the Court is given. In such cases the Court has no power to order refund or to give a certificate to say that a party is entitled to it. All that the Court can certify is that he has paid excess Court-fee. 38 L.W. 983=66 M.L.J. 35. See also 39 C.W.N. 1074.

But nothing in the former part of this section shall entitle the applicant to such certificate where the reversal or modification is due, wholly or in part, to fresh evidence which might have been produced at the original hearing.

SEC. 14.—In calculating 89 days referred to in Art. 5, Sch. I, the time during which the Court is closed for vacation cannot be excluded. 9 M. 134. The apparent intention of S. 14 is to require full stamp in every case of delay after the 89th day from the date of the decree and to permit refund at the discretion of the Judge when the delay is not due to the appellant's laches. (Ibid.) See also 9 C.L.R. 479. On the section, see also 39 C.L.J. 344=80 I.C. 794=1924 C. 994.

The requirements of S. 15 are (1) the admission of the application for review of judgment irrespective of the correctness of the grounds for the admission; (2) a reversal or modification of the former decision on the ground of mistake in law or in fact, such reversal or modification not being due wholly or in part to fresh evidence which might have been produced at the original hearing. A delay of six months in making the application was considered to be no bar to the relief under section. 10 P. 649. When a case came clearly within O. 47, R. 1, C. P. Code and conditions requisite under S. 15 of the Court-Fees Act were present, refund was ordered though the Court proposed to act under S. 151, C. P. Code, instead of O. 47, r. 1. 1924 C. 1054=28 C.W.N. 928. See also 7 R. 88=1929 R. 158, where the Court ordered refund for the ends of justice and to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court although S. 15 was not applicable to the case. SEC. 17: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—The object of the section is to prevent loss of revenue to the State. 6 I.C. 715. This section applies to cumulative relief for several distinct causes of action and has no application to distinct reliefs arising out of the same cause of action. 2 B. 219; 21 A. 200. See also 78 I.C. 415=1924 P. 596; 50 I.C. 470=4 P.L.J. 195. The words "distinct subjects" are synonymous with distinct causes of action. 5 L.B.R. 95 (F.B.). See also 16 A. 401; 158 I.C. 780=39 C.W.N. 1146=1935 C. 573; 27 A. 184; 2 A. 679 (F. B.); 1 P.L.T. 444=57 I.C. 685; 110 I.C. 191=1928 P. 274; 24 Pat. 334=1945 P.W.N. 327=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 421; 209 I.C. 530=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 355; 22 Pat. 275=1943 P.W.N. 194=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 356; (Separate claims to reliefs preferred by separate claimants are generally distinct subjects). 156 I.C. 135=1935 M. 262=68 M.L.J. 316 (two security bonds by the same judgment-debtor—Suit on—They constitute distinct subjects for purpose of Court-fee); 68 M.L.J. 280 (declaration as regards adoption and wills). They are not to be interpreted with reference to S. 7. 50 I.C. 470=1922 P. 359;

57 I.C. 685=1 P.L.T. 444. As to the meaning of the word 'subject' see 47 M. 150=45 M.L.J. 481=1924 M. 360; 9 P.L.T. 199=7 P. 402=1928 P. 274. The word 'distinct subjects' in S. 17, Court-Fees Act, means distinct causes of action. Where a suit is on more than one mortgage the Court-fee shall be paid on each mortgage. S. 67-A of the T. P. Act does not control S. 17 of the Court-Fees Act. When a subsequent general enactment cannot override or interfere with a special Act, one special Act cannot override or interfere with the provisions of another special Act. 1940 Rang.L.R. 767=1941 Rang. 95. Where two reliefs are claimed in the alternative in respect of the same cause of action, they cannot be considered to be "distinct subjects" within the meaning of S. 17 of the Court-Fees Act. 47 L.W. 64=1938 Mad. 241=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 139; 1925 Pat. 193. S. 17 applies to suits and appeals from suits and not to applications and appeals from orders passed on applications. 27 S.L.R. 312=1933 Sind 343. A suit for khas possession of Zerai lands against several persons holding the same, is based upon a single right and the Court-fee payable is upon a single cause of action. 9 P.L.T. 199. S. 17 applies to alternative reliefs claimed with reference to more causes of action than one. The section is not necessarily confined to cases where cumulative reliefs are claimed. 47 I.C. 866 (N.); 11 O.C. 173; 16 M.L.J. 462=30 M. 61. But see 44 I.C. 143 (P.); where it has been held that Court-fee must be paid on the relief which appears to be of the higher value. See also 78 I.C. 530=1925 P. 193 (2); 6 B. 302; 16 O.C. 354; 15 B. 82. Where reliefs claimed are alternative S. 17 of the Court-Fees Act does not apply and the Court-fee is payable on the relief which bears the highest valuation. 1939 A.M.L.J. 80. See also 1925 Pat. 193. Where plaintiff has paid Court-fee on smaller of two alternative reliefs, that relief alone should be tried. 1923 L. 456. Where however the alternative reliefs are based exactly on the same cause of action they are not two distinct subjects within the section. 5 L. 114=1924 L. 464; 39 C.L.J. 209; 96 I.C. 826=1926 L. 467. See also 62 M.L.J. 150=55 M. 336; 120 I.C. 411=1930 N. 55 (2). In such a case, Court-fee must be paid on the higher relief. But if a fixed Court-fee is payable in respect of one relief and ad valorem Court-fee in respect of another, even though the former is valued higher than the latter, the higher Court-fee should be paid. 55 M. 336=62 M.L.J. 150. Where in respect of a settlement deed executed by the last male-holder, his reversioner sues for a declaration that the said deed is not binding on him as having been brought about by fraud, coercion and undue influence, also praying for an alternative relief that if the deed is found to be valid, he should be given a decree for the amount payable under the deed, the cause of action is only one, namely, the execution of the deed; and though two reliefs are claimed in respect thereof, one on the footing of its validity and the other on the footing of its invalidity, they are not distinct subjects and the plaintiff need not therefore pay separate Court-fees on each of the two reliefs. 47 L.W. 664=1938 M. 241=(1928) 2 M.L.J. 139.

The appellant sued for possession of property purchased by him under a sale deed and in the alternative for the recovery of the consideration money paid by him. He valued the suit at Rs. 955 made up of Rs. 925 representing the value of the property and Rs. 30, the mesne profits claimed by him and paid Court-fee on that amount. The value of the alternative relief also was the same, viz., Rs. 955 made up of Rs. 925 the amount of the consideration for the sale-deed and Rs. 30 for the incidental expenses. Held, that a single Court-fee based on the valuation of Rs. 955 was sufficient and the suit did not comprise two "distinct subjects" so as to fall under S. 17. 55 L.W. 621=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 744=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 417. Where in a suit for specific performance of an agreement to sell, the consideration being the discharge of a mortgage debt due to the plaintiff, a decree on the mortgage is asked for as an alternative relief, the two reliefs are based on the same cause of action, and separate Court-fee on each is not necessary. The matter falls under the proviso to S. 17 (2) of the Court-Fees Act as amended in C. P. 1942 N.L.J. 352.

Suit for money on a promnote from legal representatives of the executant, or in the alternative from an alleged agent of the executant, is for alternative reliefs based on the same cause of action. 1930 N. 55. The plaintiff sued as endorsee of a promissory note. The defence was that the note offended the provisions of the Paper Currency Act. Thereupon the plaintiff obtained an assignment of the original obligation and applied to add it in his plaint. There was no question of limitation: Held, the amendment introduced a fresh cause of action, extraneous to the old, and so the plaintiff should be directed to pay Court-fees afresh on the new cause of action. 131 I.C. 1=1931 M. 533. See also 159 I.C. 340=1934 L. 605. (independent reliefs).

SUIT FOR IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY AND PAST MESNE PROFITS.—A suit for possession and for mesne profits is not a suit embracing two distinct subjects. 16 A. 401. See also 8 C. 593 (F.B.); 19 C. 615; (1942) O.W.N. 394=201 I.C. 567=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 412. For decisions to the contrary, see 12 B. 96; 2 A. 676; 4 P.L.J. 195=50 I.C. 470 (each case depends on its own peculiar circumstances). In Madras, the question is now settled by the Full Bench decisions cited below. In a suit for possession of moveable property and past mesne profits Court-fee is payable on the aggregate value of both the reliefs and not separately on the value of each relief. 1930 M. 833 (F.B.) [8 C. 593 (F.B.)]; and 16 A. 401, Rel. on; 38 M. 829 (F.B.). Expl. and Dist.; they are not "distinct subjects within the meaning of S. 17 (ibid.). A plaintiff suing for redemption of a mortgage and asking for surplus profits is not asking for two distinct reliefs, and the suit does not comprise distinct subjects within the meaning of S. 17 of the Court-Fees Act. The value which the plaintiff places on the relief for redemption covers the relief in regard to surplus profits as well, and the latter need not be valued separately. 1940 M.W.N. 1153=1941 Mad. 115=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 867. O. 2, rr. 2 and 4, C.P. Code, clearly indicate that a claim for mesne profits would not be barred under O. 2, R. 2, C.P. Code, if such a claim was not included in a previous suit for possession and that the claims for possession and mesne profits are not based on the same cause of action. The cause of action in respect of the claim for arrears of royalty is also separate and distinct from the cause of action for khas possession and mesne profits. Consequently, a suit for khas possession, mesne profits and arrears of royalty, being based on three separate and distinct causes of action, is a multifarious suit and falls within the purview of S. 17. 1942 C. 40. See also 45 C.W.N. 996.

SUITS FALLING WITHIN THE SECTION.—S. 17 of the Act applies to suits where the plaintiff in the same suit unites several causes of action against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly and to appeals arising out of those suits. 15 Luck. 395=1940 O.W.N. 165=1940 O. 243. Such authority may return the difference, provided the same be claimed within three years after the date of such probate or letters,

But when, by reason of any legal proceeding, the debts due from the deceased have not been ascertained and paid, or his effects have not been recovered and made available, and in consequence thereof the executor or administrator is prevented from claiming the return of such difference within the said term of three years, the said Authority may allow such further time for making the claim as may appear to be reasonable under the circumstances.

Whenever such a grant has been or is made in respect of any property forming part of an estate, the amount of fees then actually paid under this Act shall be deducted when a like grant is made in respect of property belonging to the same estate, identical with or including the property to which the former grant relates.

SEC. 19-H.—The grant of probate cannot be delayed on account of the Collector's omission in making the motion under S. 19 (H) (4). 40 I.C. 576 (C.) As to procedure under the section, see 6 C.W.N. 898. The valuation fixed by the Dt. Judge after objection made by Collector is final and no appeal lies therefrom. 78 I.C. 901=1925 C. 357. A proceeding under S. 19-H merely decides a revenue dispute between the Collector and the holder of probate. The Court has no power to award costs in such proceeding. 50 C. 239=1923 C. 406.

CL. (3) : CONSTRUCTION—UNDER-ESTIMATION OF VALUE—MEANINGOF.—The value of an estate under-estimated if part of it is wrongly exempted on the ground that it is held in trust. The valuation is for the purposes of assessing the duty payable and such valuation is under-estimated if assets which should not have been excluded from that valuation, are excluded. 62 C. 114=1935 C. 509.

CL. (4) Scope—Application for letters of administration—Claim to exemption from Court-fee on the ground of the fund being held in trust not beneficially—Certificate by Registrar of High Court exempting from Court-fee—If bars application by Collector. 62 C. 114. Per Curiam.—If a husband enters any shares in the names of himself and his wife, then it is an advancement for the benefit of the wife absolutely if she survives her husband. Hence on the wife's survival, such shares are not property of her deceased husband. The wife then is not liable to pay Court-fees on the value of the shares (English cases considered). 9 Luck. 370=1934 O. 72. An application to the Calcutta High Court by the Collector under S. 19-H (4) should be made in its testamentary and intestate jurisdiction, and not in its ordinary original civil jurisdiction. 49 C.W.N. 695. Under S. 19-H (4) it is not enough for the Collector simply to make an application for enquiry. He should place before the Court materials showing that an enquiry is needed (i.e.), he should make a case for enquiry upon definite facts. 49 C.W.N. 695.

STARTING POINT.—The period of six months prescribed in the proviso to sub-S. 4, S. 19-H must be taken to run from the time of the pro-

(4) If the petitioner does not amend the valuation to the satisfaction of the Collector, the Collector may move the Court before which the application for probate or letters of administration was made, to hold an inquiry into the true value of the property :

Provided that no such motion shall be made after the expiration of six months from the date of the exhibition of the inventory required by section 277 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, or, as the case may be, by section 98 of the Probate and Administration Act, 1881.

(5) The Court, when so moved as aforesaid, shall hold, or cause to be held, an inquiry accordingly, and shall record a finding as to the true value, as near as may be, at which the property of the deceased should have been estimated. The Collector shall be deemed to be a party to the inquiry.

(6) For the purposes of any such inquiry, the Court or person authorized by the Court to hold the inquiry may examine the petitioner for probate or letters of administration on oath (whether in person or by commission), and may take such further evidence as may be produced to prove the true value of the property. The person authorized as aforesaid to hold the inquiry shall return to the Court the evidence taken by him and report the result of the inquiry, and such report and the evidence so taken shall be evidence in the proceeding, and the Court may record a finding in accordance with the report, unless it is satisfied that it is erroneous.

(7) The finding of the Court recorded under sub-section (5) shall be final, but shall not bar the entertainment and disposal by the Chief Controlling Revenue authority of any application under section 19-E.

(8) The Provincial Government may make rules for the guidance of Collectors in the exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (3).

¹19-I. (1) No order entitling the petitioner to the grant of probate or letters of administration shall be made upon an appli-sentation of the revised inventory. [41 Cal. 556 (P.C.), Rel. on.] 9 Luck. 370=1934 O. 72.

Sec. 19-I : CONSTRUCTION.—The word “property” in S. 19-I is used in its inclusive and not in its exclusive sense, and means all the property of the deceased. What the section requires is a full and honest account of all the property of the estate in respect of which a grant is applied for. 30 S.L.R. 201=165 I.C. 202=1936 Sind 150. The expression “valuation of the property” in S. 19 means valuation of the property of the deceased. 9 Luck. 370=1934 O. 72. Court-fee payable on the value as on the date of the application and subsequent alteration of law, enhancing the Court-fee does not affect the petitioner’s rights. 39 C.L.J. 209=1924 C. 987. The practice in Calcutta is to pay Court-fees to the Registrar whose certificate should be produced in Court to obtain the grant. 26 C. 404=26 C. 407. See also L.B.R. (1893-1900) 623. In Subordinate Courts the fees must be paid to the Court clerk who will certify the amounts to the Court. L.B.R. (1893-1900) 623. A Court will hear the application for Probate or Letters of Administration where the applicant has not paid but has undertaken to pay whatever fees would be found due.

14 O.C. 14=8 I.C. 695. S. 19-I says that the Court shall not grant probate until the Court-fees are paid. It does not say that the Court shall not try an application for probate or letters of administration until the fees are paid or that the payment of the fees is a condition precedent to the making of the application. I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 194=204 I.C. 457=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 19. On this section, see also 31 I.C. 460. On a petition for letters of administration for part of property Court-fee on the value of the whole property cannot be levied. 90 I.C. 620=1925 L. 493. See also 1935 Sind 150. The section does not apply to provident fund money. 1925 N. 108 (1)=82 I.C. 128. An executor cannot be compelled to pay probate duty until the Collector has finished his work with regard to valuation of the property. 1929 C. 733. The question whether a certain property is or is not trust property comes under S. 19-I and an order in respect of that property by a Financial Commissioner under S. 19-G without proceeding under S. 19-H is ultra vires. 1928 L. 947. [33 M. 93 (F.B.), Folio] The date of the payment for the valuation of the estate for the purpose of assessment of probate duty is the date on which the application for grant of probate is made. The Court-fee ought to be levied as a preliminary on the valuation put forward by the applicant for probate but the duty chargeable may subsequently be revised as a result of a reference

(2) The grant of probate or letters of administration shall not be delayed by reason of any motion made by the Collector under section 19-H, sub-section (4).

¹19-J. (1) Any excess fee found to be payable on an inquiry held under section 19-H, sub-section (6), and any penalty or forfeiture under section 19-G, may, on the certificate of the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority be recovered from the executor or administrator as if it were an arrear of land-revenue by any Collector in any part of British India.

(2) The Chief Controlling Revenue Authority may remit the whole or any part of any such penalty or forfeiture as aforesaid, or any part of any penalty under section 19-E or of any court-fee under section 19-E in excess of the full court-fee which ought to have been paid.

Sections 6 and 28 not to apply to probate or letters of administration.

¹19-K. Nothing in section 6 or section 28 shall apply to probates or letters of administration.

PROCESS-FEES.

Rules as to cost or processes.

20. The High Court shall, as soon as may be, make rules as to the following matters :

(i) The fees chargeable for serving and executing processes issued by such Court in its appellate jurisdiction, and by the other Civil and Revenue Courts established within the local limits of such jurisdiction ; made by the Collector under S. 19-H of the Act. 12 L.L.T. 37. O. VIII, r. 14 of the Madras High Court (Original Side) Rules, which relates to paupers, refers not only to suits but also to proceedings. An application for probate is clearly a proceeding within the meaning of this rule, and it is open to the Court not only to entertain the application in forma pauperis but also to make a further order granting probate to the applicant without payment by him of the requisite Court-fee (succession duty) under Art. 11, Sch. I of the Court-Fees Act. In this respect, S. 19-I of the Court-Fees Act should be reasonably interpreted; the section cannot be read as altering the policy of the pre-existing law. In such cases, on the analogy of O. 33, r. 10, C. P. Code, the Government has a first charge on the subject-matter of the pauper application, i.e., the estate of the deceased. (1937) 2 M.L.J. 899. Application for probate—Duty called for and paid and application refiled—Receipt of dividends in the meantime—Date for valuation of estate. See 14 L. 526=1933 L. 936. Where duty is enhanced after application and before grant, the enhanced duty should be paid. 23 Pat. 672; 218 I.C. 293=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 86. I.L.R. 1944 All. 229=1944 A.L.J. 133=A.I.R. 1944 All. 119: But see contra 46 Bom.L.R. 768=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 1; 24 Pat. 171=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 361. S. 19-I is subject to O. 33, C. P. Code—Probate or letters of administration in forma pauperis—Court has power to issue. See 47 L.W. 731=1938 M. 486=1938 M.W.N. 640.

NON-COMPLIANCE WITH—EFFECT.—It does not follow that because an application for letters of administration with the will annexed, is not in proper form, because of non-compliance with the provisions of S. 19-I of the Court-Fees

Act the proceedings are a nullity. The Court may not pass an order granting letters until the application is made in proper form and fulfils the requirements of the law. The Court can give the applicant an opportunity to amend the application and make good the debts, and then proceed, to make a grant. It is not necessary that the application should be dismissed and that the applicant asked to start the proceedings de novo. 30 S.L.R. 201=1936 Sind 150.

SEC. 19-J.—Where S. 19-J is properly applicable, the petitioner is entirely in the hands of the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority who is at liberty to refuse to stamp probate till the penalty has been paid. 43 C. 230=20 C.W.N. 504=31 I.C. 460.

SEC. 20.—A commission issued to an Ameen to make local investigation, is not a process within S. 20. 17 C. 281. The provisions of S. 93, C. P. Code (now O. 48, r. 1), do not appear to give a Court any power to depart from the rules of the High Court on the subject of the levy of process-fees or to remit these fees. 26 C. 124. The Court of a Special Judge is a Civil Court within the meaning of S. 20. In appeals before the Special Judge, process fees should be paid according to the scale laid down in the High Court Rules framed under the section. R. 65 of the rules framed by the Government under S. 189 of the B. T. Act is not applicable to such a case. 58 C. 995=35 C.W.N. 253=1931 C. 572. Scope—Custody fees in respect of attachment of movables—Decree-holder has a right to refund of unspent fees. See 1937 C. 86=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 624.=41 C.W.N. 155. An order issued by the Court for the sale of property in its custody during the pendency of a suit either by the process establishment of the Court or by an officer specially appointed under r. 197 of the Madras Civil Rules of Practice and Circular Orders is a "process" within the meaning of S. 20 of the Court-Fees Act and the sale is therefore charge-

(iii) the remuneration of the peons and all other persons employed by leave of a Court in the service or execution of processes.

every District Judge and every Magistrate of a District shall fix, and may from time to time alter, the number of peons necessary to be employed for the service and execution of processes issued out of his Court and each of the Courts subordinate thereto and for the purposes of this section, every Court of Small Causes established under Act No. XI of 1865 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature)³ shall be deemed to be subordinate to the Court of the District Judge.

23. Subject to rules⁴ to be framed by the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority and approved by the Provincial Government [* * * * *]⁵ every officer performing the functions of a Collector of a District shall fix, and may from time to time alter, the number of peons necessary to be employed for the service and execution of processes issued out of his Court or the Courts subordinate to him.

Any remuneration paid to a person appointed to conduct the sale is exclusive of the poundage which, under R. 200, is one of the expenses of the sale and therefore the fixing of the remuneration of the person appointed to hold the sale does not obviate the necessity for the levy of poundage. OF THE MODE OF LEVYING FEES.

Collection of fees by stamps.

25. All fees referred to in section 3 or chargeable under this Act shall be collected by stamps.

27. The ³[Appropriate Government] may, from time to time make rules for regulating—

- (a) the supply of stamps to be used under this Act :
- (b) the number of stamps to be used for denoting any fee chargeable under this Act.
- (c) the renewal of damaged or soiled stamps ; and
- (d) the keeping accounts of all stamps used under this Act :

Provided that, in the case of stamps used under section 3 in a High Court, such rules shall be made with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of such Court.

All such rules shall be published in the Official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Stamping documents inadvertently received.

SEC. 27.—Stamps impressed with "for use in the High Court only" are not invalidated for use in subordinate Courts. 8 P.L.T. 33=1926 P. 408. Where a plaint not properly stamped is presented to a wrong Court and is returned to be presented to a proper Court, the latter Court can require the plaintiffs to file Court-fees in accordance with the rules though no objection to it was first taken. 11 P.L.T. 711. Where the fees were not devoted in the manner prescribed in the rules the application can be treated as unstamped. 26 N.L.R. 263. Where plaintiffs presented a plaint with two stamps one for Rs. 20 and another for Rs. 10 and the Court returned demanded a single impressed stamp as per rules, the Court should grant a certificate for refund of the stamps originally filed. 11 P.L.T. 708. There is nothing in the rules which prohibits the receipt by the Court of a plaint with Court-fee stamps of a denomination lower than the one required by the rules. The rules provide for this, in fact. Where the Court-fee stamps of the requisite denomination are not available, and the plaintiff files his plaint with insufficient Court-fee, the Court is bound to receive the plaint, fixing a time within which the deficiency should be made up, and if it is not complied with within the time fixed, then to reject it. It is illegal and unjust to refuse to receive the plaint. The order is liable to be set aside in revision. 44 L.L.W. 830=71 M.L.J. 804.

SEC. 28: SCOPE.—The specific provisions of the section are not cut down either by Ss. 9 to 11 of this Act or by O. VII, r. 11 (Old S. 54) of C. P. Code. 12 A. 129 (F.B.). The effect of the section is that if the necessary Court-fees on a document are paid within the time allowed by the Court, the document may be treated as valid from the date on which it was filed. 8 R. 538=129 I.C. 500=1931 R. 38. The mistake or inadvertence referred to in this section is that of the Court and its officers and not of the party. 1901 A.W.N. 21 ; 12 A. 129 ; 20 M. 319. On this point, see also 4 A.L.J. 636 ; 29 A. 749. Where an appeal is not properly stamped, whose appeal will not be dismissed but amount covered by Court-fee will be decreed. 96 I.C. 135=1926 L. 558. See also 131 I.C. 297=1931 L. 237. It is open to plaintiff or an appellant to reduce his claim and effect a saving of Court-fee if otherwise permissible. In so far as he submits to the decree appealed against, it becomes final, and the appeal is limited to the amount in contest on which alone Court-fee need be paid. 27 A.L.J. 547=116 I.C. 82=1929 A. 308. See also 27 A. 151. Even Revenue Officer has the powers under S. 28 to direct the payment of Court-fees in revision. 30 I.C. 862 (2)=22 C.L.J. 57. But this power must be exercised before making the final decision in the case. 7 A. 528=5 A. W.N. 140 (But see the judgment of Mahmood, J., contra, in the same case). S. 28

But, if any such document is through mistake or inadvertence received, filed or used in any Court or office without being properly stamped, the presiding Judge or the head of the office, as the case may be, or, in the case of a High Court, any Judge of such Court, may, if he thinks fit, order that such document be stamped as he may direct; and, on such document being stamped accordingly the same and every proceeding relative thereto shall be as valid as if it had been properly stamped in the first instance.

29. Where any such document is amended in order merely to correct a mistake and to make it conform to the original intention of the parties, it shall not be necessary to impose a fresh stamp.

30. No document requiring a stamp under this Act shall be filed or acted upon in any proceeding in any Court or office until the stamp has been cancelled.

Such officer as the Court or the head of the office may from time to time appoint shall, on receiving any such document, forthwith effect such cancellation by punching out the figure-head so as to leave the amount designated on the stamp untouched, and the part removed by punching shall be burnt or otherwise destroyed.

⁴ For remission of duty payable under the Act, in respect of Indian probates, letters of administration of succession certificates of the share or other interest of a deceased member of a company formed under Act VI of 1882, provided that the said share or interest was registered in a branch register of the United Kingdom under Act IV of 1900, and that such member was at the date of the decease domiciled elsewhere than in India, see Notification No. 881 L.R. Gazette of India, 1900, Pt. I, p. 100. For remission of duty on applications for suspension or remission of land revenue, see Notification No. 4385 L.R., dated 19th August, 1901, Gazette of India, 1901, Pt. I, p. 608. For remission of fees on applications for issue of permits for transport of country spirits, see Notification No. 6260 L.R. dated 12th December, 1901 Gazette of India, 1901, Pt. 1, p. 1030.

fault of payment). See also 26 M. 421=2 Weir 488; 20 C. 687. The making of an order under S. 31 does not amount to an enhancement of sentence and an appellate Court can order the accused to pay the complainant's Court-fees. 47 M. 914=47 M.L.J. 355. (Old rulings to the contrary are not now good law.) See also 1925 Mad. 136=47 M.L.J. 355.

APPEAL AND REVISION.—The appellate Court cannot set aside an order passed by a Criminal Court under S. 31. 11 Cr.L.J. 194=4 I.C. 1130. But see also 1923 A. 86, infra. If under S. 31 the order directing payment to complainant is not proper, it can be corrected in appeal or revision. 3 A. 187 (Cr.)=1923 A. 86.

SEC. 34.—The case of mukhtear who purchases a Court-fee stamp for a client and transfers it to another client is not covered by S. 34. Where a pleader's munshi instead of obtaining refund on an unused stamp altered the name on the stamp and used it for another client for the first time, held, that the accused was not liable to be convicted under S. 468, I.P. Code, and S. 34, Court-Fees Act, in the absence of proof that he acted dishonestly or fraudulently. 133 I.C. 645=1931 L. 337. See also 30 C. 921. To establish a charge of an offence under S. 34 (3) it is necessary for the prosecution to identify the stamps alleged to have been wrongfully sold. Where the only evidence on the point was that of three entries in a particular exhibit, it was held that it was not enough to sustain the charge. 174 I.C. 513=42 C.W.N. 246=1938 C. 195.

36. Nothing in Chapters II and V of this Act applies to the commission payable to the Accountant-General of the High Court at Fort William, or to the fees which any officer of a High Court is allowed to receive in addition to a fixed salary.

³ Inserted by S. 155 and the Fourth Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908).

SCOPE OF SCHEDULE I.—Schedule is supplementary and not alternative to S. 7. 6 N. L.R. 164=8 I.C. 1125. The proviso to Art. 1 is of general application and is not confined to complaints and memoranda of appeals under Art. 1 only. 3 A. 108 (112); 29 C.

140. Multifarious suits under S. 17 are also subject to it. 3 A. 108.

SCH. AND SS. 4, 6 AND 7: SCOPE.—The schedules to the Court-Fees Act, when read with Ss. 4 and 6 of the Act, do impose a liability. S. 7 refers only to suits and, in certain cases specifically mentioned, memoranda of appeal. The fees chargeable in respect of all other documents are those laid down in the Schedules to the Act, liability being imposed by the Schedules read with S. 4 or S. 6 as the case may be. 1939 Rang.L.R. 474=1939 Rang. 375.

ART.: APPLICABILITY.—Art. 1 applies only to those cases which are not otherwise specially provided for under the Act. 61 P. R. 1919=47 I.C. 992. Suit for specific performance of a contract of exchange fails under the Article. (1944) 1 M.L.J. 187=57 L.W. 180. Suit for cancellation of instrument under S. 39, Specific Relief Act, falls under the residuary Article, Sch. I, Art. 1. 139 I.C. 32=1932 A.L.J. 684=1932 A. 485 (F.B.). See also cases cited on the point under S. 7, Cl. (iv) (c) (IV-A Mad.). In order to find out the real nature of the relief claimed by the plaintiff one has to look at the allegations in the plaint. Where from such allegations it is clear that the relief claimed is not only for setting aside an award but also for the cancellation of the agreement on the basis of which the award was made as well, the plaintiff is liable to pay ad valorem Court-fee. 1942 A.L.W. 223. If prayer for this relief is attached to a prayer for a declaration, the question is whether the cancellation should be regarded as consequential on the declaration or as a substantial relief requiring separate valuation. In the former case, a single Court-fee will have to be paid on the value of the reliefs sought under S. 7 (iv) (c). In the other event, a Court-fee will have to be paid on the value of the subject-matter in dispute under Art. 1 of Sch. I, if the subject-matter is capable of valuation, otherwise a fixed fee of Rs. 10 under Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II. 43 P.L.R. 252=1941 Lah. 265; I.L.R. 1941 Lah. 451=43 P.L.R. 106=1941 Lah. 97 (F.B.). There is no particular section in the Court-Fees Act for assessment of fair rent and so ad valorem fee has to be paid. 100 I.C. 913=8 P.L.T. 366=1927 P. 123. See also 1929 C. 141. An application for restitution under S. 144, C. P. Code, may be stamped as a mere application. Ad valorem fee is not necessary. 21 C.W.N. 544. But an appeal against an order passed under S. 144, C. P. Code, is an appeal against a decree and an ad valorem stamp duty is payable thereon. 82 I.C. 321=22 A.L.J. 881. See also 41 C.W.N. 157=1937 C. 152; 113 I.C. 270; 42 C.W.N. 152; 1938 Rang. L. R. 635; 1937 Pesh. 3=167 I.C. 879. But see contra 1927 L. 635. (See also under Sch. II, Art. 1). So also on an appeal against an order under O. 21, R. 50 (2). 10 Bur. L.T. 42=35 I.C. 429; 1930 L. 825; 37 C.W.N. 227. See I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 589=1939 Sind 161 (F.B.). (Case under Bombay Amending Act and notification). Also on an appeal against an order under O.

21, r. 99. 10 B. 238; 8 C. 720. See also 29 M. 172; 4 M. 221. Regarding Court-Fees in appeals in land acquisition cases, see 1927 C. 45=97 I.C. 140; 29 L.W. 237=1929 M. 223; 35 C.W.N. 1103; 138 I.C. 199=1932 O. 224. (See also under S. 8). An application for settlement of fair rent and for declaration under Ss. 105 and 105-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act ad valorem Court-fee is payable on the value of the subject-matter. 117 I.C. 701=1929 C. 141. The principle of valuation in appeal is the same as in original plaint. 1930 R. 164. The value of the subject-matter in dispute in an appeal must be the value of the relief granted by the decree which the appellant wishes to disembarass himself of. The question is "what is the value to the appellant of immunity from the decree." Upon the answer depends the value at which the appeal ought to be assessed. It is not open to the appellant defendant to avoid assessing his appeal at its full valuation merely because it may prove, as a result of the appeal itself, that the plaintiff's valuation was excessive. 1941 A.L.J. 381=1941 All. 295. An ad valorem Court-fee has to be paid on a memorandum of appeal against a decree or order having the force of a decree. A memorandum of appeal against an order rejecting a plaint must be stamped ad valorem. 1929 P. 615. See also 60 C. 530=37 C.W.N. 227=1933 C. 546; I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 589=1939 Sind 161 (F.B.) [appeal from order under C. P. Code, O. 21, r. 50 (2)]. Where a plaint is rejected under O. 7, r. 11, C.P. Code, as the deficiency in Court-fee was not made good and an appeal is preferred therefrom, the subject-matter of the appeal is not the amount of the claim in the suit but the sum of money rightly claimable as Court-fees. Ad valorem Court-fee on the difference between the amount demanded by the Court and that paid by the plaintiff, ought to be paid on the memorandum of appeal. 1939 N. L.J. 32. But see 1935 N. 83 (Court-fee is same as that on plaint); I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 981=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 662. Court holding additional Court-fee necessary and returning plaint for necessary amendments instead of demanding additional Court-fee and rejecting plaint on failure to pay—Proper procedure pointed out—Court has no power to direct amendment. See 1938 M. 645=47 L.W. 523. An appeal from a decision under O. 21, r.

63-H, C. P. Code should be valued at the amount which the decree-holder seeks to recover from the garnishee. This of course is not necessarily the same as the amount for which he has a decree against the judgment-debtor. S. 47, C. P. Code, has no application to decisions under R. 63-H of O. 21. Appeals from such decisions must be valued by the appellant and Court-fee paid ad valorem on the value under Sch. I, Art. 1 and not under Sch. II, Art. 11, Court-fees Act. 22 Pat. 278=209 I.C. 394=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 280=222 I.C. 382.

COURT-FEES ON SET-OFF.—The words "set-off" and "counter-claim" are not defined in the Court-Fees Act. They refer to a cross-claim against the plaintiff which entitles the defendant to refuse to pay the amount demanded by the plaintiff and to assert that the result of setting off the cross-claim of the defendant would be that the defendant would on the contrary be entitled to a decree for the balance. 1933 Sind 247. See also 13 L.L.T. 45; 1935 P. 110; 1940 N.L.J. 176. Where the defendant claims set-off, the amount of which exceeds the amount of claim made against him, he must pay ad valorem Court-fees on the entire sum claimed by him and not merely on the difference between the two amounts. 45 A. 218=20 A.L.J. 1005=1923 A. 118. See also 8 A. 396; 13 B. 672; 15 M. 29. The expression "set-off" includes an equitable set-off also and is not confined to legal set-off coming under O. 8, r. 6, C. P. Code. 147 I.C. 719; 1933 M. 203; 142 I.C. 719 following 45 All. 218. See also 58 M. 338=68 M.L.J. 23; 1936 A.M.L.J. 60; 1936 N. 290; 165 I.C. 430=1936 N. 222; 1938 A.L.J. 701=1938 All. 522; 43 C.W.N. 838=1939 Cal. 415; 45 Bom.L.R. 516=210 I.C. 88=A.I.R. 1943 Bom.227; I.L.R. 1944 Nag. 260=209 I.C. 241=1943 N.L.J. 455=A. I. R. 1943 Nag. 314. No claim for set-off can be decreed in excess of the amount claimed. Payment of further Court-fee after decision is not permissible. I.L.R. 1944 Nag. 260=1943 N.L.J. 455=209 I.C. 241=A. I. R. 1943 Nag. 314. Suit for possession of share by partition—Defendant claiming to be in possession under wakfnama—Decree by trial Court finding wakf invalid—Appeal seeking to set aside decree—Claim by appellant that declaration of validity of wakf will be enough—Court-fee payable. 159 I.C. 727=1936 A. 216. Where on a suit on a promissory note the defendant claimed a specified amount by way of damages, setting out the particulars of the claim made by him as one arising from the transaction of sale which led to the execution of the promissory note and by reason of the breach of covenant alleged to have been committed by the plaintiff. Held, that the claim by way of set-off came under Art. 1, Sch. I. (Ibid.) In a suit for accounts and to recover moneys of a dissolved partnership the defendant's claim for decree on accounts is not a counter-claim. No Court-fee need be paid thereon until the amount has been ascertained. 27 I.C. 316=8 S.L.R. 122; 27 I.C. 320=8 S.L.R. 124. See also 1933 M. 353. Pending a suit, the disputes were referred to arbitration out of the Court and it was found that the money was payable to defendant. The Court could direct the defendant to plead the award as an adjustment and claim the amount awarded, paying Court-fee thereon. 18 S.L.R. 111=88 I.C. 61 (2)=1925 Sind 266. There is nothing in the Court-fees Act directing payment of Court-fee on oral representations made before a Judge. When admittedly no written statement is filed by the defendant no Court-fee is payable on any set-off or counter-claim made orally by the defendant. 1945 A.M. L.J. 28.

CROSS-OBJECTIONS.—A memorandum of cross-objections must bear Court-fees ad valorem on the value of the subject-matter in dispute. 46 C. 160=45 I. C. 939=27 C. L.J. 443; 15 A.L.J. 886; 1933 O. 528; 155 I.C. 293=1935 O.W.N. 505; 39 P.L.R. 586; 185 I.C. 623; 43 C.W.N. 838=1939 Cal. 415. Petition stating reasons on which the respondents supported the decree, does not amount to cross-objection for which ad valorem fee is payable. 44 A. 577=1922 A. 280. Nor mere criticism of judgment. 1 P. 258; 25 O.C. 275=1923 O. 44 (1). Where the suit of the plaintiff-appellant was entirely dismissed by the Court below and there was nothing in that decree against which the defendant-respondent was required to object, objections filed by him supporting the decree on some of the grounds that have then decided against him in the Court below are strictly speaking not cross-objections but are really only a means of giving notice to the appellant of his intentions and an ad valorem Court-fee is therefore not payable on them. 1937 O.L.R. 554=1937 O.W.N. 1057=1937 O. 512. See also I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 981=1938 Mad. 498=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 662. In the case of cross-objections relating to possession of land, ad valorem fee is payable on its value and not on the basis calculated under S. 7 (v). 22 A.L.J. 911. Cross-objections in a suit for declaration must bear ad valorem fee under this Article as Art. 17 of Sch. II does not refer to cross-objections. 3 P.L.J. 197=45 I. C. 568. See also 40 A. 93=43 I.C. 179. On a cross-objection as to the finding of the lower Court on a portion of sale consideration being not for legal necessity, Court-fees should be paid on the amount held to be not for legal necessity. 45 A. 537=1924 A. 175. See also 40 A. 93=43 I.C. 179=15 A.L.J. 886; 1939 Rang. 375. A respondent who files a memorandum of objections cannot claim to have Court-fees reduced simply because the appellant has paid more than what he should have paid. 46 C. 160=45 I.C. 939. A memo. of cross-objections filed in the High Court on the question of costs only does not fall under Art. 1, Sch. I, but may be treated as a petition under Art. 1 (d) of Sch. II and a Court-fee of Rs. 2 is leviable thereon. 64 I.C. 606=25 C.W. N. 934. But see contra 2 R. 637=1926 R. 145; 98 I.C. 272=1926 L. 645; 8 P. 543=1929 P. 286; 1930 A. 1097. No Court-fee is chargeable on a memorandum of objections filed under O. 41, r. 26, C. P. Code. 54 A. 465=1932 A. 526. Where the defendant is not putting forward any counter-claim, but is making various claims as to items in the particular account to be taken in the suit, he cannot be asked to pay Court-fees on those sums. 1933 M. 353. See also 1940 Rang. L. R. 529=1940 Rang. 300. The plaintiffs and the defendants were tenants in common. The plaintiffs sued for partition of the property. In their written statement the defendants said that the plaintiffs had been managing the property and recovering the rents. They did not value their relief for account of the rent or pay Court-fee thereon. Held, that it was incumbent on them to value their relief and to pay necessary Court-fees. 1933 S. 304.

THE AMOUNT OR VALUE OF THE SUBJECT-MATTER IN DISPUTE.—The words “value of the subject-matter in dispute” in Art. 1, Sch. I, refer in the case of a suit, to the value of the subject-matter of the suit, and in the case of an appeal, to the value of the subject-matter in dispute in appeal. The subject-matter of the suit and the subject-matter of the appeal may not be the same. Where the appellant appeals against the decree in a suit on merits and also challenges the order of costs independently, then the value of the subject-matter in dispute in appeal is the total amount of the subject-matter in the suit and the amount of costs challenged. 15 Luck. 392=1940 O. W. N. 167=1940 Oudh 182. S. 7 prescribes the value that shall remain unchanged in all stages of a case. Once the value of the relief is ascertained for the purposes of the plaint, the 1st Schedule rates the relief at the same value for the purposes of the appeal. 6 N. L.R. 164=8 I.C. 1125. See also 25 P.R. 1916=32 I.C. 121. The words “the subject-matter in dispute” in Art. 1, Sch. I, mean, in reference to a cross-objection, the subject-matter in dispute in the cross-objection. If, therefore in an administration suit the respondents, who have been ordered by the preliminary decree to pay to the appellants a certain sum as special costs in any event (the ordinary costs being ordered to abide the passing of the final decree), file a cross-objection relating to the findings in the suit and also to the special costs, the cross-objection, so far as it relates to the special costs, is chargeable with Court-fees ad valorem on the amount of the costs. 1939 Rang. L. R. 474=1939 Rang. 375. An appeal filed by some only of the plaintiffs need only be stamped to the extent required by the interests of those parties. 10 L. L. T. 23. Where the valuation of the original suit is over Rs. 5,000, but the appellant is interested only to the extent of Rs. 200, he can value his appeal at Rs. 200. 37 A. 208=13 A.L.J. 283. In a second appeal from a dismissal of an appeal for non-payment of deficient Court-fee, the dispute in the lower Court having reference only to the Court-fee payable, the subject-matter in dispute in second appeal is the amount of stamp in dispute between the parties, in other words, the difference between the Court-fee paid and the Court-fee demanded is the matter in dispute in second appeal. 1938 Mad. 498=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 981=(1938) 1 M. L. J. 662. See also 1937 O. 512. The subject-matter of every appeal does not necessarily coincide with the subject-matter of the suit in regard to which the appeal has been filed. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 981=1938 Mad. 498=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 662; 45 Mad. 246=41 M. L. J. 587. See also 1940 O. 182.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where a decree for possession is given to the plaintiff conditional on his paying a certain amount to the defendant an appeal by him against the condition must be valued ad valorem on the amount he was asked to pay. (Ibid.); 59 I.C. 667=21 P.W.R. 1921; 92 I.C. 624=1926 M. 225; 108 I.C. 379 (2)=10 L.L.J. 55; 45 M. 246=1922 M. 211. Where a plaintiff asks for a declaration that a certain decree against him is void and illegal, it involves the setting aside of the decree and relieving plaintiff of the obligations arising thereunder and, therefore, involves a consequential relief and the plaintiff is liable to pay an ad valorem Court-fee under Art. 1, Sch. I and not fixed fee as given in Art. 17 (iii) of Sch. II. 1940 O.W.N. 1121=191 I.C. 413=16 Luck. 526. Where the plaintiff's suit for possession was decreed on condition of the plaintiff paying off the encumbrances on the property, an appeal against the condition should bear an ad valorem Court-fee on the value of the encumbrance. 1 P.L.T. 738=57 I.C. 481. See also 59 I.C. 667. Where a suit for possession in which the defendant admits plaintiff's title but claims a charge of Rs. 700 over that property, is decreed but without upholding defendant's claim and the defendant files an appeal, he should pay ad valorem Court-fee on Rs. 700, the amount claimed by him. 1936 L. 935. Where in a suit for ejectment, the defendant set up title in himself and also claimed Rs. 500 as compensation for improvements, and a decree was passed for the plaintiff the claim in respect of improvements being disallowed, an appeal by defendant again raising both the questions should bear Court-fee only as on a suit for possession. 23 M. 84. See also 48 M. 652=47 M.L.J. 919=1925 M. 323. Thus in a case where the claim for improvements is incidental to a decree for possession Court-fee is as in a suit for possession. See 1926 Mad. 225. See also 1940 O.L.R. 92 (Appeal against order disallowing claim under S. 9, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act). Though the real subject-matter in dispute has reference only to the amount of compensation, still a party can as a mere camouflage raise a question of title in order to escape liability for Court-fees. There is no provision of law authorising him to bring the case under S. 7, Cl. (v). See 1928 M. 929=110 I.C. 752. See also 1931 L. 633. Where the defendant's plea in a suit for possession that the plaintiff cannot get possession without payment of her dower debt, was rejected by the lower Court and the suit decreed, and the defendant appealed, held, that she was not bound to pay any Court-fee on the dower amount and the Court could grant a decree to plaintiffs conditional on payment of dower debt to defendant. 36 A. 322=25 I.C. 935=12 A.L.J. 481. Where in the decree of the lower Court a charge is created over the lands purchased by the defendants for payment of certain amounts to the plaintiff and the defendants appeal to remove the charge, they should pay ad valorem Court-fee on the value of the properties or on the decretal amount whichever is less. 5 P. 721=8 P. L.T. 284=1927 P. 46; 11 P.R. 1916=33 I.C. 138; 7 L. 215=96 I.C. 473=1926 L. 408 (appeal from the decree rendering a property liable for the decree amounts). The plaintiff sued to recover dower. The trial Court decreed the suit against the person and personal property of 1st defendant but refused to pass a decree against the assets of deceased in the hands of defendants 2 to 5. The plaintiffs besides claiming a further sum by way of interest also prayed for a further declaration that the assets of the deceased might be made liable for the decree debt. Held, that Court-fee was payable on the ad valorem scale on the value of the debt in respect of which the liability of the properties was sought to be established. 54 A. 608=1932 A. 406=1932 A.L.J. 387. An appeal against one defendant only to establish his liability on a hypothecation bond must bear Court-fee calculated on the amount of the debt sought to be recovered. 13 M. 508; 24 Bom.L.R. 313. See also 86 P.R. 1912=222 P.L.R. 1912. Where a decree gives the plaintiff a partial relief, the plaintiff appellant is bound to pay Court-fee on the difference between the value of the relief he claims and that granted by the decree appealed from. 19 C. 272. See also 6 P. 17=1927 P. 123. In an appeal from instalment decree Court-fee must be paid on the difference to the appellant between getting his money on the date of the decree and getting it by instalments as ordered. 12 P.R. 1915=24 I.C. 931. See also 19 C. 272; 167 I.C. 26=1937 Pesh. 31; 1936 Pesh. 232. A plaintiff appellant who seeks to get rid of an order for payment of a sum of money should value his appeal at the amount of that sum of money. Plaintiff got a decree for possession subject to his paying his share of the debts binding on the property. Plaintiff appealed against the order requiring him to pay. Held, that he should value his appeal on the basis of the value of the order for payment which he was seeking to get rid of in the appeal. 52 L.W. 397=1940 Mad. 955=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 406. The plaintiff sued for the recovery of a certain amount from a company and from certain debenture-holders of that company and for a declaration that the amount was recoverable in priority over the debentures in favour of certain other persons. The debenture-holders appealed to the High Court to modify the decision of the trial Court by refusing the declaration as to priority. Held, that Court-fee payable was ad valorem on the decretal amount or on the value of the debentures whichever was less. 54 A. 553=1932 A.L.J. 385. If in a suit to contest a notice of ejectment falling under S. 7 (xi) (d), the landlord defendant appeals and the relief which he desires to get rid of is simply the amount of compensation awarded to the plaintiff, he should pay ad valorem Court-fee. 11 L.L.J. 116. If in an appeal in a partition suit, the appellant claims sums as due from the other party further than what was allowed by the lower Court, Court-fees should be paid ad valorem on the amounts claimed. 33 P.L.R. 12. See also 32 P.L.R. 854. Appeal from order as to restitution under C. P. Code, S. 144, ad valorem Court-fees to be paid. See 41 C.W.N. 157=1937 C. 152; 167 I.C. 879=1937 Pesh. 3 (order by trial Court refusing to allow costs directed to be paid by Privy Council). See also 42 C.W.N. 152; 1938 Rang.L.R. 635. Where an appeal is filed against an order of the trial Court awarding interest on the decretal amount to be refunded under S. 144, C. P. Code, claiming additional interest, the Court-fee payable is ad valorem Court-fee on the amount claimed. So also where the opposite party making the refund files a cross-objection praying for reduction of the interest awarded by the trial Court, it must pay ad valorem Court-fees on the interest sought to be reduced. 167 I.C. 879=1937 Pesh. 3. Where in a suit on a mortgage by one of the two mortgagees the widow of the other impleaded as a defendant prays for a declaration that the mortgagees were not members of a joint Hindu family and that as they both had contributed to the mortgage money she is entitled to one half of anything found due and the Court grants the declaration and passes a decree in favour of both the plaintiff and the widow and the plaintiff appeals against the declaration alone he has to pay ad valorem Court-fee on the valuation of the suit under Art. 1, Sch. I of the Court-Fees Act and not the fixed fee as given under

Art. 17 (iii) of Sch. II of the Act. The question in such an appeal is whether the decree is to remain a joint decree or whether it should become a decree solely in favour of the plaintiff. 1943 A.W.R. (C.C.) 57=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 361.

FUTURE INTEREST.—Where the amount due could be ascertained from the judgment and decree appealed from that should be the value of the appeal or cross-objection and future interest need not be taken into account. 36 A. 40=21 I.C. 723=11 A.L.J. 1016. See also 3 P.L.J. 443=44 I.C. 50; 171 I.C. 79=1937 N. 95; 3 P.L.T. 813=1923 P. 28; 6 P.L.J. 676=1922 P. 386; 23 S.L.R. 277; 104 I.C. 391=1927 Sind 251. But if any future interest is determined by the trial Court and is entered in the decree, additional Court-fee on such interest has to be paid. 1923 Pat. 28. See also 1 Pat. 19; 104 I.C. 391=1927 S. 251; 167 I.C. 577=1937 N. 6; 165 I.C. 279=1936 O.W.N. 916; 1937 N. 95. Where the appellant claims sums of money a definitely ascertainable sum among others by way of pendente lite interest which is disallowed by the trial Court must be held to be part of "amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute" and ad valorem Court-fee is payable under Sch. I, Art. 1, on the sum claimed as pendente lite interest. 52 A. 1029=1931 A. 351; 23 Pat. 905=219 I.C. 234=1945 P.W.N. 7=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 145. Where the mortgagee appealed on the ground that interest ought to have been allowed till the date of realization, Court-fee is payable under Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II. 27 A. 559. There is no provision of law authorising assessment of additional Court-fee by reason of accrual of interest pendente lite where the plaintiff appeals. 1927 P. 230; 1923 P. 28; 10 M.L.J. 144. See also 150 I.C. 653=1934 A.L.J. 957=1934 A. 805; 18 B. 696; 35 A. 94=11 A.L.J. 20. It is otherwise if the defendant appeals. 8 P.L.T. 555=1927 P. 230. In Madras the practice is to include the subsequent amount in the value of an appeal by defendant. The preliminary mortgage decree in a suit for sale of the mortgaged property awarded the plaintiff a certain amount on account of principal and interest on a part of the principal from the date of the suit till the date fixed for redemption. In the appeal the plaintiff claimed interest on the whole amount of the principal from the date of the suit till the date of realization. Held, that the period from the date of the institution of the suit till the date of realization was divisible into two parts: (1) the period from the date of the institution of the suit up to the date of redemption, and (2) the period from the date of redemption up to the date of realization. As far as the second period was concerned, the amount claimed by the plaintiff was unascertainable. He must therefore pay a Court-fee of Rs. 10 under Sch. 2, Art. 17 (vi) in respect of this second period. As far as the first period was concerned the total amount claimed by the plaintiff was ascertainable. The total amount awarded to the plaintiff in respect of this period was also ascertainable. From the total amount claimed in appeal in respect of the first period must be deducted the total amount awarded to the plaintiff in respect of this period by the trial Court. The difference between these two sums would be definite and ascertainable sum. Court-fee on this sum must be paid ad valorem under Sch. I, Art. 1. 45 P.L.R. 382=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 275 (F.B.); see also 40 P.L.R. 123. Where a preliminary mortgage decree directs the payment of the principal with interest from the date of the suit till the date of redemption fixed by it the defendant is bound to pay interest till the date of redemption even if he redeems the mortgage on a date earlier than the date fixed for redemption. Consequently in the appeal by the defendant praying for the dismissal of the plaintiff's suit in its entirety the defendant must under Sch. I, Art. 1 pay ad valorem Court-fee on the principal and interest from the date of suit till the date fixed for redemption. 45 P.L.R. 382=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 275 (F.B.) (Such a decree is however not in accordance with the provisions of O. 34, r. 2 and Forms 5-A of App. D of the C. P. Code).

INTEREST PENDENTE LITE.—There is no provision in the Court-Fees Act under which a plaintiff can be called upon to pay Court-fee on the interest which accrues after the institution of the suit. The holder of a mortgage decree who has already paid Court-fee on the amount due at the date of suit can execute a decree for a higher amount on account of interest pendente lite without being liable to pay additional Court-fee thereon. When a wrong order is made for such payment and complied with, the decree-holder cannot execute the decree for such payment made by him, as the amount cannot properly be regarded as costs in the case recoverable from the judgment-debtor. 152 I.C. 244=15 P.L.T. 548=1934 P. 571 (S.B.). See also 154 I.C. 470; 1939 Pat. 83=17 P. 687=1939 P.W.N. 162. As to future interest, see also 157 I.C. 633=1935 O.W.N. 919.

MESNE PROFITS—APPEALS.—The value of an appeal by defendant from a decree awarding future mesne profits must include the future mesne profits decreed from the date of plaint till the date of appeal. See 50 M. 488. An appeal from a final decree under O. 30, r. 12 (2), C. P. Code, in respect of subsequent mesne profits is chargeable with ad valorem fee. 45 M. 280=42 M.L.J. 184=1923 M. 19; 11 P. 532=1932 P. 228; 12 P. 188=13 P.L.T. 810=1933 P. 81. No Court fee is payable on future mesne profits in an appeal from the preliminary decree. 20 M.L.J. 98=5 I.C. 880; 21 M. 371; 13 C. W.N. 815. Where the appellants have paid full Court-fee on the claim for mesne profits, in appeal against the preliminary decree, they need not pay any additional fee on their appeal against the mesne profits ascertained subsequent to their original appeal. 15 I.C. 572=16 C.L.J. 564. See also 3 P. 875=1924 P. 694. Where the suit involves a claim for mesne profits ad valorem Court-fee is payable on the amount for which the appellant seeks to avoid liability or on the amount by which he seeks to enhance the value of the decree. This rule applies to all appeals whether the profits have accrued before suit or after the institution of the suit. 14 P.L.T. 180=12 P. 694=1933 P. 234. See also 1937 P.W.N. 893=18 Pat. L.T. 864. Where the plaintiff's claim to mesne profits was disallowed, an appeal filed by him should bear Court-fee on the amount of mesne profits which had been claimed and disallowed. 1931 A.L.J. 413=1931 A. 538. Where mesne profits are left to be ascertained in execution, an appeal from a decree awarding mesne profits must be valued at the same valuation as the suit. 49 I.C. 962; 1 I.C. 670=13 C.W.N. 815; 1929 P. 731. But see 53 M. 540; 22 Mys.L.J. 92=49 Mys.H.C.R. 38. Tentative valuation of a claim is permissible only in suits for account and mesne profits. Defendant who in a suit for damages sets up a cross-claim for damages suffered by him on account of the acts and conduct of the plaintiff and asks for a set-off against the plaintiff's claim must estimate his claim as accurately as he can and pay ad valorem Court-fee thereon and cannot be allowed to put a tentative valuation for the claim. 183 I.C. 373=43 C.W.N. 838=1939 Cal. 415.

RELIEF AS TO COSTS.—When relief is sought with regard to costs independently of the main contest between the parties, Court-fees must be paid on the costs decreed. 3 P.L.J. 443=44 I.C. 50; 19 M. 350; 35 P.L.R. 656=1933 L. 739. See also 157 I.C. 90=1935 L. 379.

ACCOUNT SUITS.—See also under S. 7, Cl. (iv) (f). Ten rupees stamp is sufficient for an appeal in a preliminary decree for dissolution of partnership dealing with certain items disallowed, as such disallowance is only incidental to the main relief. 1 L. 6=57 I.C. 185. In a suit for an account it is open to the defendant to say that on the accounts being gone into, money would be due to him and that a decree should be passed in his favour for such amount as may be found due to him. In such cases the Court should not refuse to pass a decree in favour of the defendant if it finds that the plaintiff is indebted to the defendant. In the absence of any express provision in the Court-Fees Act, there is no obligation on a defendant to claim any specific sum as due to him in his written statement or to pay Court-fee thereon on pain of being debarred from obtaining a decree in his favour in the same suit. Nor where a defendant nominally value his relief in his written statement on which he pays Court-fee and offers to pay additional Court-fee on such sum as may be found due to him on a settlement of accounts can he be deemed to have relinquished his claim for the balance. 1933 S. 247. See also 43 Bom. L.R. 475=1941 B. 242=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 477.

COMPROMISE.—Suit to declare compromise and decree void—Court-fee payable. See 1934 A.L.J. 955=1934 A. 1071.

APPEALS IN MORTGAGE SUITS.—Where the plaintiff in a mortgage suit for sale appeals against the decree for sale, in order to establish the liability to the debt of certain property exonerated by the lower Court, Court-fee is payable on the decree amount but not exceeding the market value of the property. 16 M.L.J. 458=30 M. 96 (F.B.). See also 37 C. 914; 33 A. 20; 44 C.W.N. 482. The method of valuation mentioned in S. 7 (5) cannot be adopted in such a case. 1931 M. 710. See also 54 L. W. 526=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 774=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 152. (Suit for money claiming first charge on certain assets—Decree for money without charge—Appeal claiming charge on assets—Court-fee to be paid on value of assets). Where a decretal amount has been ordered to be recovered from a certain property and an appeal is preferred to get that property released from the liability the value for the purposes of Court-fee would be the price of the property or the decretal amount whichever is less. 176 I.C. 319=1938 Pesh. 38. Where mortgage decree for sale declares the separate liabilities of different properties from different sums of money, the Court-fee on appeal by one of the defendants whose property had been held liable for a specific sum of money must be calculated on the sum for which the property had been held liable. 35 A. 92=18 I.C. 577=11 A.L.J. 33. Members of a joint family have no specified shares in the family property and where some of them appeal against a decree in a suit to enforce a mortgage of the family property, Court-fees must be paid on the amount decreed and not on the appellant's share of the amount. 55 I.C. 233 (P.). Art. 1, of Sch. I applies to appeals in mortgage suits and Court-fee is payable on the subject-matter in dispute in the appeal and not on the principal money secured by the mortgage. 30 A. 547=5 A.L.J. 531. See also 47 A. 926=23 A.L.J. 853=1925 A. 734; 162 I.C. 729=38 P.L.R. 12=1936 L. 17; 1 L. 234; 29 A. 471=107 I.C. 671 (1). On this point, see also the cases noted under S. 7 Cl. (ix). In an appeal against decree for redemption or foreclosure claiming a higher amount than that fixed by the Court, Court-fee should be paid on the excess amount claimed. 5 P.R. 1911 =9 I.C. 676; 74 I.C. 88 (1)=1924 O. 170; 22 I.C. 642=16 O.C. 354; 29 I.C. 609. Cross-objections in appeals arising out of redemption suits must be stamped ad valorem on the amount by which the decretal amount is sought to be reduced. (11 I.C. 198, Rel. on.) 11 O.W.N. 559=1934 O. 246. An appeal filed by certain defendants in a mortgage suit whose claim to priority of their mortgage was negatived by the lower Court, praying for a declaration that they were the prior mortgagees should bear ad valorem Court-fee and Art. 17 (iii) has no application. 54 A. 347=1932 A.L.J. 45 =1932 A. 221. But see contra 61 C. 320=148 I.C. 1084=58 C.L.J. 542=39 C.W.N. 248=1934 C. 377. In a suit for sale or mortgaged property, the puisne mortgagee and mortgagor were impleaded. The mortgagor denied the puisne mortgage, but the Court found it to be subsisting, and in the decree, ordered that the balance, after paying off the plaintiff mortgagee should be paid to the puisne mortgagee and the surplus, if any, should be given to the mortgagor. In an appeal by the mortgagor challenging the portion of decree in favour of the puisne mortgagee, held, that ad valorem Court-fee on amount due on the mortgage should be paid and not merely for a declaration. 146 I.C. 1003=1933 L. 954. Appeal against a mortgage decree on the ground that a condition of priority should be removed requires an ad valorem fee. 4 P.L.J. 323=51 I.C. 786. Ad valorem Court-fees must be paid on an appeal from an order refusing to make a personal decree under O. 34, r. 6, C. P. Code. 40 A. 553=47 I.C. 562=16 A. L.J. 437; 195 I.C. 239=1941 Pesh. 56. So also on an appeal against an order passing such personal decree. 1924 A. 292. See also 30 I.C. 497=19 O.C. 121; 6 N. Where the mortgagor objected to the passing of final decree pleading an uncertified payment which the Court rejected and final decree is passed, it is not an order in execution but a judgment in the mortgage suit and an appeal therefrom must bear stamp ad valorem. 1928 R. 194=6 R. 285. [35 A. 476 (F.B.) and 22 Bom. L. R. 811, Foll.] An appeal against a final decree on the ground that the mortgagor should or should not have been allowed further time in which to pay the mortgage-debt is not an exception to the general rule that an appeal against a final decree requires an ad valorem Court-fee. 7 N.L.R. 41; 130 I.C. 98=1931 N. 1 (F.B.). The plaintiff sued for a declaration that the property mortgaged by certain deeds executed by a Mahant is the property of a certain math and that the mortgagees have no right to have the property sold by auction. Held, that the plaintiff sought, in effect to have the mortgage deeds in question adjudged void and the suit must be regarded as falling under S. 39 of the Specific Relief Act and as being not of a purely declaratory nature, and ad valorem Court-fee was payable. [1932 A. L.J. 684 (F.B.), App.] 1936 A.L.J. 798 =1936 A. 710. Mortgage decree—Some of mortgaged properties purchased in execution by mortgagee in part satisfaction—Mortgagee assigning properties purchased and also balance of decretal dues to third person—Decree thereafter re-opened and new decree passed under Bengal Money-Lenders Act directing restoration of properties to mortgagor—Appeal by assignee challenging validity of decree, instalments and order for restoration, but not amount of decree—Court-fee payable is on value of the properties. 49 C.W.N. 385=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 354. As to Court-fee on appeal from personal decree in mortgage suit, see 62 C. 568=39 C.W.N. 315.

APPEALS IN PARTITION SUITS.—In partition suits whether the plaintiff is in joint possession or out of possession the plaint or memorandum of appeal must bear ad valorem Court-fees on the value of share. Art. 17 (6), Sch. II, will not apply. 73 I.C. 788. See also the cases noted under S. 7, Cl. (iv) (b). Where in a partition suit, the appellant claims certain sums from the other party and also pleads that he should not have been made liable for certain other sums, Court-fee is payable on the several sums on the ad valorem scale. 32 P.L.R. 854. See also 33 P.L.R. 12.

PARTITION SUIT, APPEAL IN—COURT-FEES.—See 157 I.C. 787=1935 L. 14.

APPEALS IN PRE-EMPTION SUITS.—Where one of the grounds of appeal in a suit for pre-emption is that the right to pre-empt has or has not been established as the case may be, the subject-matter of the dispute continues to be the right of pre-emption, and its value must be determined with reference to S. 7, Cls. (v) and (vi). 6 A. 488. But when the question in appeal relates solely to the amount to be paid by the pre-emptor, the Court-fee must be calculated on the difference between the amounts allowed as the sale price and that claimed or admitted by the party. (Ibid.) See also 131 I.C. 751=1931 L. 490; 76 P.R. 1913=19 I.C. 961. In the above classes of cases it may happen that the appeal against the whole decree is chargeable to less Court-fee than an appeal against part of the decree. An appellant is entitled notwithstanding his admitted intention to attack only part of a decree to take advantage of anomaly existing in the law of Court-fee and to appeal against the whole decree in order to avoid payment of a higher Court-fee applicable to an appeal if only an appeal against part of the decree is preferred. See 32 P.L.R. 591=1931 L. 633. Where in a suit for possession of house by pre-emption is decreed on payment of Rs. 700, the Court-fee on memorandum of appeal should be paid ad valorem on that amount, 1934 L. 424. See also 1928 M. 929=110 I.C. 752 (parties can avail of camouflage of law).

PROMISSORY NOTE—SUIT ON.—Where on a suit brought on the basis of a promissory note the defendant claimed in his written statement a specified amount by way of damages, setting out the particulars of the claim made by him as one arising from the transaction of sale which led to the execution of the promissory note in favour of the plaintiff and by reason of the breach of covenant alleged to have been committed by the plaintiff. Held, that the claim by way of set-off came under Art. 1, Sch. I. 142 I.C. 719=1933 M. 203. Suit on promissory note—Decree against defendant personally—Appeal alleging that defendant is not personally liable but only as trustee.—Court-fee payable is ad valorem. 52 L.W. 903=1941 M. 313=1940 2 M.L.J. 946.

RENT, ENHANCEMENT OF.—A suit for enhancement of rent under S. 7 of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act is not governed by S. 7 (i) of the Court-Fees Act, because it is not a suit for recovery of money; or by S. 7 (ii) because a claim to enhancement of rent is not similar to a right to maintenance or annuity and the words "other sums payable periodically" must be construed as implying sums payable in the nature of maintenance and annuities upon the rule of ejusdem generis (4 P.L.J. 561, Foll.); or by S. 7 (iv) (c), because there was no consequential relief; or by S. 7 (xi) because the words "rights of occupancy" in cl. (b) denote such rights under which a tenant could be in actual physical possession and not to others who hold superior interests, as a tenure holder. The Court-fee in such a suit is therefore payable under Sch. I, Art. 1 of the Court-Fees Act on the difference between the rent actually paid and the rent claimed on appeal on the difference between the rent awarded by the first Court and that claimed. 61 C. 513=38 C.W.N. 527=1934 C. 674. As to Court-fee on suit by tenant under S. 112, Madras Estates Land Act and appeal from the decree by landlord, see I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 980=46 L.W. 263=1937 M. 786=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 347. An appeal from a decree passed by the Special Judge under S. 14 of the U. P. Encumbered Estates Act falls under Art. 1, Sch. I and ad valorem Court-fee has to be paid. Neither Art. 11 nor Art. 17 of the Second Schedule applies to the case. I.L.R. (1938) All. 230=1938 O.W.N. 88=1937 A.L.J. 1373=1938 All. 97 (F.B.). See also 1941 O.W.N. 219=1941 O. 269. Appeal under S. 25, U.P. Agriculturists' Relief Act—Court-fee payable. 1937 A.W.R. 932=1938 All. 14.

APPEALS ARISING FROM A SINGLE SUIT.—Where several defendants who could have preferred a single appeal prefer separate appeals against a decree, each must pay full Court-fee on his appeal. 48 I.C. 424=91 P.R. 1918. See also 13 P.L.T. 810. Two second appeals by the same party against two decrees passed in the appeals filed by both the parties against a mortgage decree, must be stamped separately and cannot be consolidated. 43 A. 56=58 I.C. 230=18 A.L.J. 894.

MAXIMUM FEES—PROVISO.—Although the proviso to Art. 1, Sch. I, refers only to the maximum fee leviable on a plaint or memorandum of appeal and leaves out any reference to written statement pleading a set-off or counter-claim, there is no authority for charging a larger sum on a written statement than that specified as maximum in the schedule. 1930 O. 140. The proviso is of general application and is not confined to plaints or memoranda of appeal under Art. 1 only. 3 A. 108 (112); 29 C. 140. Multifarious suits under S. 17 are also subject to it. 3 A. 108.

SUITS OF SMALL CAUSE NATURE—ART. 2 (MAD.).—In Madras a lower scale of fee is prescribed for suits of a small cause value by Art. 2. In a suit for two sums, vis., Rs. 600 and Rs. 400 due respectively on two promissory notes, it has been held that S. 17 applies and Court-fee is payable at the lower scale for the second item. 141 I.C. 533=1933 M. 178. Order rejecting plaint for failure to pay additional Court-fee, appeal from—Court-fee. See 1935 N. 83. See also 1939 N.L.J. 32.

ARTS. 1 AND 2 (AS AMENDED BY MADRAS ACT V OF 1922)—SUIT IN MOFUSSIL FOR TWO SUMS OF Rs. 600 AND 400—COURT-FEE PAYABLE.—If two sums of Rs. 600 and 400 respectively are claimed in a suit on the basis of two promissory notes, the Court-fee is payable on the two sums separately. The first item is governed by Art. 1 of Sch. I but the other by Art. 2 and so they are distinct. And S. 6 is controlled by S. 17. 1933 M. 178=65 M.L.J. 252.

ART. 1 AND UNITED PROVINCES ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT 1934, S. 14 (5), EXPLANATION.—Where the amount decreed was subsequently increased by an amendment in virtue of S. 14 (5), Explan. of the U. P. Encumbered Estates Act and an appeal is preferred against the order of amendment, it is in substance an appeal against the amended decree, though the memorandum of appeal merely purported to appeal against the order amending the decree and the case therefore falls under Art. 1, Sch. I, and ad valorem Court-fee is payable. 1941 O.W.N. 355=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 217=1941 O. 269. See also 1938 All. 97 (F.B.); 1941 O. 60. ART. 4.—The decision of a Court dismissing an appeal under O. 41, r. 11, C. P. Code, is a judgment and an application for review of the decision comes within the article. 30 C.W.N. 334=93 I.C. 909 (2)=1926 C. 638. Upon an application for review, no matter, what may be the actual relief sought the Court-fee payable is the fee actually leviable upon the plaint or memorandum of appeal upon which the judgment of which review is sought was passed. 20 I.C. 3=254 P.L.R. 1913; 31 A. 294=6 A.L.J. 215=1 I.C. 209. See also 57 C. 679=142 I.C. 416 (N.); 74 I.C. 255=1924 O. 108; 129 I.C. 191=1930 C. 631; 82 I.C. 297=1924 C. 881; 86 I.C. 143=1925 P. 368. The word "leviable" is used to provide for an application for review in forma pauperis. 31 A. 294=6 A.L.J. 215. See also (1941) 2 M.L.J. 500. On the point, see also 20 A. 410; 91 P.R. 1895. An application for review of the judgment in a second appeal passed before the Court-Fees Amendment Act of 1922 was presented after the passing of the Act. Held, the Court-fee leviable was that which fell to be levied under the amended Act calculated as if the application for review were a plaint or memorandum of appeal for the relief sought for. 50 M. 488=1927 M. 360=52 M.L.J. 128. But see contra 28 C.W.N. 403=1924 C. 881; 1932 A.L.J. 908. The words "the plaint" in column 3 mean nothing else than the plaint which was actually filed and which has resulted in the judgment which is sought to be reviewed. They do not mean an imaginary plaint which might be filed at the time of the application for review, asking for the same relief as in that application. 57 C. 679=1930 C. 631; 1943 O.W.N. 14=204 I.C. 486=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 225. As to the fee leviable, see 74 I.C. 255=1924 O. 108 cited under Art. 4. In computing the period of 89 days, the applicant cannot deduct the time which may have been spent in obtaining a copy of the judgment. 2 O.C. 302. See also 39 P.R. 1879. Nor the days during which the Court is closed for vacation. 9 M. 134; 9 C.P.L.R. 479. See also 80 I.C. 794=1924 C. 994. Application presented on 90th day, 89th day being Sunday must be stamped with full fee under Art. 4. 15 C.L.J. 505=15 I. C. 455. Where after the appeal was dismissed and before the application for review was presented, the Court-fee was enhanced, the application is correctly stamped with half the Court-fees paid on the memorandum of appeal. 28 C.W.N. 403=1924 C. 881. See also 1932 A.L.J. 908. But see the cases cited under Art. 4. The proper Court-fee on an application for review of a judgment is that payable on the actual relief sought for in the application and not the entire Court-fee paid on the plaint or memorandum of appeal. Thus where the applicant seeks review only so far as it affects the question of the costs awarded to him Court-fee is payable only on the relief asked for. 11 R. 120=1933 R. 203.

ARTS. 4 AND 5: COURT-FEE PAYABLE.—Under Arts. 4 and 5, the Court-fee to be paid on an application for review of judgment must be either the fee or one-half of the fee leviable on the plaint or memorandum of appeal (i.e.) which is prescribed for the original plaint or original memorandum of appeal, and the application cannot be valued in proportion to the value of the relief sought in review. 18 L. 238=1937 L. 439. An application for restoration of an appeal dismissed for non-payment of printing costs should be treated as an application for review and not as an application under O. 41, r. 19 and should be required to be stamped under Arts. 4 and 5 of Sch. I, Court-Fees Act. 17 Pat. 252=19 P.L.T. 17=1938 P. 111. But see cases cited under Sch. II, Art. 1 as regards review of such orders.

Court-fee according to Art. 5 of Sch. I of the Act, an obligation that depends to some extent on the time at which the application is made, the calculation of the 90 days' time is not to be according to rules applicable to times laid down in the Limitation Act but the 90 days mentioned in the Court-Fees Act is to be taken as simply 90 days. Holidays and time taken for obtaining copies, could not be excluded. But in cases of hardship where delay is not due to laches on the part of the applicant the Court has a discretion under sec. 14, Court-Fees Act, to give a certificate directing the refund of the excess fee in proper cases. I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 392=1941 N.L.J. 205=1941 N. 236.

ARTS 6 TO 9.—Where the Deputy Registrar whose duty is to see that all documents presented in the High Court are duly stamped, accepts copies of judgments and decrees filed with an application under sec. 81 (2), Government of Burma Act, which have not been stamped as required by Arts. 6 to 9, Court-Fees Act, it is an implied decision that the copies are in order and when an objection is raised that it is not in order the applicant is entitled to time to furnish the necessary stamps. 196 I.C. 892=1941 R. 294.

ARTS. 6 AND 7.—Notes of judgment furnished to parties under the Rules of Practice for the guidance of Small Cause Courts are copies of decrees and require a stamp under Art. 7. 6 M.H.C.R. App. xxiii.

This Article is intended to authorise the levy of 8 annas in the case contemplated under O. 13, r. 9 of the Civil Procedure Code, which deals with the return of admitted documents 43 I.C. 383. A copy of a general power-of-attorney produced in Court for verification does not require a Court-fee stamp of annas 8 under this Article. (Ibid.)

ARTS. 6 AND 7: BASIS OF VALUATION.—The valuation of the subject-matter of the suit for the purposes of the determination of proper Court-fee payable on copies of judgment and decree must be made according to the provisions of the Court Fees Act itself (i.e.) sec. 7. 1945 A.W.R. (Rev.) 74.

ART. 7.—Sec. 47, C. P. Code, applies to execution of decrees of the Privy Council. An order by the trial Court, refusing to allow costs directed to be paid by the Privy Council has the force of a decree and its copy filed with the appeal from the order, must bear a stamp of Re. 1 under Art. 7, Court-Fees Act. Where, however, the copy is under-stamped owing to a bona fide mistake, the appellate Court, can under sec. 149, C. P. Code, allow the appellant to make up the deficiency and can condone under sec. 5, Limitation Act, the period from which the appeal was filed with an insufficient stamped copy up to date. 167 I.C. 879=1937 Pesh. 3; 1940

ART. 9.—There is no provision of law and there is nothing in the Civil Rules of Practice authorising the levy of search fees for supplying copies to litigants when an application is made; all that is required by a party is to supply stamps for copies and if the required number of stamps are supplied, it is the Court's duty to furnish the copies asked for. 51 M. 599.

ART. 11: SCOPE.—The fee prescribed by this Article is only in respect of probates or letters of administration, and not in respect of the application for probate (for which see Art. 1 of Sch. II). The Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal against an order in probate proceedings is governed by Art. 1, Sch. II. Therefore an ad valorem duty on the value of the estate need not be levied. 9 I.C. 538=21 M.L.J. 418. See also 4 C.W. N. 600; 1935 A. 449.

A person is bound to pay stamp duty for probate only on the amount of the right, title and interest of the testator in the property bequeathed. 100 I.C. 111. (Mad.). The value of an annuity for determining the amount of probate fee payable thereon is the market value and not ten times the annual payment. 1 Bom. 118. RAILWAY PROVIDENT FUND.—Money standing to the credit of a deceased person in Railway Provident Fund deposit is personal property, that is, an asset of the deceased and if such sum exceeds rupees two thousand, it is liable to assessment under Sch. I, Art. 11. There is no provision in the Court-Fees Act under which the party can claim an exemption from liability to pay duty. 122 I.C. 322=1933 O. 145 (F.B.). See also 6 R. 558=1928 R. 312; 1933 S. 101. But see 1930 C. 252 and 92 I.C. 525 and 1926 N. 306 holding that moneys due under a Railway Provident Fund is exempt from succession duty and passes to the nominee of the holder. If a debt has been partly discharged, duty need be paid only on the amount of the balance of debt still due. 19 A. 129. Court-fee should be paid by a Hindu daughter on an application for certificate in succession to mother who succeeded to her husband's properties though duty was paid by the latter on her application. 36 I.C. 125=20 C.W.N. 1125.

ART. 12: "AMOUNT OR VALUE OF ANY DEBT OR SECURITY"—INTERPRETATION.—It is impossible to interpret the words "the amount or value of any debt or security" in Art. 12 of Sch. I of the Court-Fees Act as referring to anything except individual debts and individual securities. Therefore, the amount payable in respect of an application for a succession certificate is to be calculated according to the amount of the individual items comprised in the application and not according to the total amount of those items. 151 I.C. 262=1934 O. 414. The court-fee is not to be paid in the application for the issue of a succession certificate, but on the certificate itself. Therefore, the relevant date for calculating the amount of court-fee is not the date when the application for the issue of the certificate is made, but, the date when the certificate is drawn up or when the Court passes an order that such certificate should be drawn up. 160 I.C. 709=1936 A.L.J. 55=1936 A. 309.

APPLICATION FOR SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE BY MARRIED SISTER OF DECEASED—COURT-FEE.—The married sisters of the deceased are not "dependents" as defined in sec. 2 (c) of the Provident Funds Act. Where they are not nominees, they can only get the money by producing probate, letters of administration or a succession certificate, and court-fee is payable on the deceased's provident fund, as being

On petitions under secs. 34 and 74, Trusts Act, court-fees under Sch. II, Art. 1 (d) are sufficient. 11 O.W.N. 323=1934 O. 118 (2).

Art. 1, cl. (d).—No court-fee is payable in respect of a memorandum of objection filed under O. 41, r. 26, C.P. Code. The object of the memorandum of objection is to give notice to the opposite party of the grounds on which the finding is proposed to be contested. It does not seek any relief from the Court and does not contain any request for any order being passed on it. It can, therefore, hardly be regarded as an application or petition within the meaning of Art. 1, cl. (d) of Sch. II. 160 I.C. 38 (1)=1936 O.W.N. 113=1936 O. 180. ³This Article was substituted by Act XVII of 1914, Sch. The original Article ran as follows:—"Bail bond or other instrument of obligation not otherwise provided for by this Act, when given by the direction of any Court or executive authority."

Art. 5.—In a suit to establish or disprove a right of occupancy, the plaint or memorandum of appeal shall bear a court-fee of eight annas under article. 40 A. 358=16 A.L.J. 167=44 I.C. 608. As to case where the plaintiff sued to eject defendant as being a tenant at will with the mere intention of contesting the right of occupancy claimed by the latter, see 11 C.L.R. 91; 16 M. 310. For a suit to declare plaintiff statutory tenant on a certain rental article applicable is Sch. II, Art. 17 (iii) not Art. 5. 1941 R.D. 24=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 18=(1941) A.W.R. (Rev.) 29.

Art. 6.—Security bonds filed by a claimant in a claim case, being an instrument of obligation given in pursuance of an order of Court, is governed by Sch. II, Art. 6. 49 C. 997=1923 C. 269 (2). See also 29 C.W.N. 851=53 C. 101=1925 C. 906 (F.B.); 58 M. 687=1935 M. 380=68 M.L.J. 436. They will also be chargeable under the Stamp Act if they are of the kind described in Art. 40 or 57 thereof. 2 C.W.N. 851 (F.B.). Security bonds given in pursuance of an order of the Court for stay of execution must be written on paper properly stamped under the Stamp Act and not on plain paper bearing a court-fee stamp of eight annas. 43 I.C. 376=21 C. W.N. 1150; 7 L.L.J. 343=1925 L. 552. But see 41 L.W. 482=68 M.L.J. 466 (F.B.); 1929 L. 205, holding that the bond must bear court-fees and no stamp under Stamp Act is necessary. Stamp on security bond by receiver pledging immovable property. 43 M. 363=38 M.L.J. 503. Where a security bond is executed by a surety under O. 41, rr. 5, 6, C.P. Code, it is liable to a court-fee under Art. 6 of Sch. II, Court-Fees Act, and to stamp duty under Art. 57, Sch. I, Stamp Act. This applies only in relation to deeds executed in the mofussil. (1933 L. 1004; 1934 L. 138 and 1931 O. 99 (S.B.), Foll.; 1931 A. 189 not foll.; 30 S.L.R. 1); 1936 Sind. 41. Security bond for the production of attached livestock is a bond given in pursuance of an order made by a Court within Art. 6 and the Stamp leviable on such a bond is under Court-Fees Act and not under Arts. 15 and 57 of the Stamp Act. 37 M. 17=20 I.C. 775=24 M.L.J. 637.

A bond executed by a surety in accordance with sec. 55 (4) of the C.P. Code, undertaking that the debtor would file a petition within a month to be declared an insolvent and that he would appear in any proceeding whenever called upon, need only be stamped with a court-fee of annas eight under Art. 6 of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act. As it imposes only a personal obligation and does not hypothecate any movable or immovable property, Art. 57 of Sch. I of the Stamp Act has no application to it. 14 L. 284=1933 L. 89 (F.B.). See also 143 I.C. 12 (Lah.); (117 I. [27 L.W. 366 is not good law.] Where a plaintiff sued to avoid a document executed during his minority, all that was necessary for him was to ask that the document be declared to be void against him and the suit need not be treated as involving a prayer for consequential relief, namely, the setting aside of the document. 11 R. 66. As to memo. of appearance, see 35 C.W.N. 1100.

Art. 11: Scope of Article.—An order in probate proceedings has the force of a decree and so Art. 11 is not applicable to an appeal therefrom. 21 M.L.J. 481=9 I.C. 538. See also 1938 Rang.L.R. 72=1938 Rang. 141. So also an order under O. 21, r. 50 (2), C.P. Code. 10 Bur.L.T. 42=35 I.C. 429; 37 C. W.N. 227; 1934 L. 958; also an order under O. 21, r. 99, C.P. Code. 10 B. 238; 8 C. 720; 29 M. 172. Though decision under sec. 47 of the C.P. Code is a decree, an appeal therefrom should be stamped under this article by a notification of the Governor-General. The Madras Court-Fees Act removes all doubts by specially including orders under sec. 47 and sec. 144 of the C.P. Code. An application by way of restitution under sec. 144, C.P. Code, is one under sec. 47 and hence an appeal from an order on such application would be chargeable with court-fees under this article under the Government Notification. 11 C.L.J. 541=6 I.C. 125; 41 C.W.N. 157=1937 C. 152. AS AMENDED IN MADRAS, SCH. II, ART. 11.
—An order rejecting an application under O. 20, r. 12, C.P. Code, asking for an inquiry into future profits, which has been left open in the decree in the suit, and for an order directing the defendants to pay the amount found due, is not a decree as defined by S. 2 (d), C.P. Code. An appeal from the order rejecting the application, has to be valued for purposes of Court-fee under Sch. II, Art. 11 of the Court-Fees Act, as amended in Madras, and a Court-fee of one rupee is sufficient. The appellant cannot be ordered to estimate the amount at which he values his relief and to pay an ad valorem Court-fee. 49 L.W. 652=1939 Mad. 667=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 356.

ART. 11 (AS AMENDED IN BIHAR AND ORISSA), SCH. II.—Applicability—Appeal from decree under O. 20, r. 12 (2), C. P. Code—Proper Court-fee. 18 P.L.T. 864.

ART. 12.—A petition by which a party upon whom citation has been issued, opposes the grant of probate is not a caveat and need not be stamped as such. 36 I.C. 38=20 O.W. N. 787.

ART. 17: APPLICABILITY — MEMO. OF CROSS-OBJECTIONS.—Court-fee on memo. of cross-objections should be paid ad valorem under Art. 1, Sch. I and not as under Sch. II, Art. 17, as the word "cross-objection" is to be found only in Art. 1, Sch. I and not in Sch. II, Art. 17. 1933 O. 528. But see 1934 A.L.J. 743=1934 A. 728 contra. An appellant appealing merely against the portion of a decree declaring his personal liability, can do so on a Court-fee of Rs. 10. 36P. L.R. 104=1934 L. 865.

ART. 17 (i): SUIT TO SET ASIDE SUMMARY ORDER.—A plaint in a suit under O. 21, r. 63, C.P. Code, is governed by this article. 26 O.W.N. 126=1922 C. 166; 64 I.O. 49; 8 P.L.T. 832=1923 P. 152; 22 I.C. 676=1913 U.B.R. 181. A suit to cancel the order on the claim petition, to declare the plaintiff's title to the property, to raise the attachment and to obtain a permanent injunction against the execution being continued to sale is in substance one to avoid the attachment and Court-fee is payable under Art. 17 of Sch. jurisdiction in such a case is the value of the land under Cl. (v). 64 M.L.J. 568=1933 M. 439. When a claim or objection to attachment has been made under O. 21, r. 58, C.P. Code, a suit for a bare declaration under O. 21, r. 63, will lie. In such a suit the proper Court-fee payable is Rs. 10 and the valuation of the suit for Court-fee and the valuation thereof for jurisdiction will always be different, the valuation for the latter purpose being the value of the attached properties. 12 R. 679=1934 R. 332; 45 O.W.N. 50=72 C.L.J. 526=1941 Cal. 28; 18 Pat. 323=20 Pat. L. T. 710=1939 P. 571. A suit under O. 21, r. 103, C.P. Code, though the plaintiff claims possession of property of which he had been dispossessed, nevertheless falls under Art. 17 of Sch. II. The restoration of possession is implicit in the setting aside of the executing Court's Order. The consequential relief in substance is not one to seek possession but reversal of the executing Court's order. 1938 N.L.J. 107=1938 Nag. 300. A suit for cancellation of a certificate which was signed by the certificate officer under sec. 6 of the Public Demands Recovery Act, comes within Art. 17, Cl. 1 of Sch. II, and only a fixed Court-fee is payable. 44 C.W.N. 255=1940 Cal. 215. A suit under Madras Act (XXVII of 1860) to contest the award of a Settlement Officer falls within this clause. 4 M. 204. The proper Court-fee payable on an application under sec. 84 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act (II of 1927) is that fixed by Art. 17-A (1) of the Madras Court-Fees (Amendment) Act, 1922, and not that fixed by Art. 17 (1). The Board of Commissioners for Hindu Religious Endowments is not a 'Civil Court' under Art. 17 (1) of the Madras Court-Fees (Amendment) Act of 1922. 113 I.C. 88=1929 M. 52. But see 1929 M. 334. The Court-fee payable on such petitions under sec. 84 (2) is Rs. 15, the fee prescribed in Art. 17. 52 M. 388=1929 M. 334. Arts. 17-A and 17-B cannot be regarded as parts of Art. 17 but only as new articles. 1929 M. 334=52 M. 388 (1929 M. 52, Dias. from). See also 68 M.L.J. 327; 68 M.L.J. 329; 68 M.L.J. 280.

MADRAS AMENDMENT—SCH. II, ART. 17-A.
—Art. 17-A (1) governs only cases where no consequential relief is prayed for. If as incidental to his remedy by way of partition, a plaintiff contends that a mortgage of the joint family property is not for family purposes, it cannot be said that the suit is one in which no consequential relief is prayed. 1938 M. W.N. 181=1938 M. 474. Where a suit for a declaration without consequential relief instituted in a District Munsiff's Court, is transferred to a Subordinate Judge's Court for trial along with another suit in that Court, an appeal against the decree in such suit must be stamped with a Court-fee stamp of Rs. 100 and not Rs. 15. The decree appealed against is a decree of a sub-Court; the fact that the suit was originally filed in the Court of the District Munsiff cannot make it a decree of that Court for purposes of court-fee under Art. 17-A of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 646=51 L.W. 228=1940 Mad. 383=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 425. MADRAS AMENDMENT—SCH. II, ART. 17-B.

—The word "estimate" in Art. 17-B of Sch. II of the Court-fees Act as amended in Madras involves the idea of approximation and cannot be interpreted as meaning accurate valuation. Where in a suit to recover a sum of Rs. 18,897 from the defendant as a first charge from certain properties as trust money; the plaintiff gets only a decree but no charge, and the plaintiff appeals against the decree and seeks to get a charge on the properties which are valued in the memorandum of appeal at Rs. 9,500 it cannot be said that the relief is incapable of valuation so as to attract, Art. 17-B of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act. The Court-fee payable on the memorandum of appeal is the amount which would be payable under Art. 1, Sch. I, on the sum of Rs. 9,500 which is the value placed by the plaintiff on the property over which the charge is claimed. 54 L.W. 526=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 774. The appellants were executors of three promissory notes on which suits were instituted. Two of the notes were executed by them simply in their personal capacity while in the third there was a reference to a trust in the body of the instrument, though the appellants had not signed as trustees. In all the three suits the claim was against the appellants in their personal capacity and decrees were passed rendering them personally liable. The appellants preferred second appeals and contended that as the debts had been contracted for trust purposes they should not be made personally liable, and that the decrees should have been set aside.

trustees and against the trust property in their hands. The appellants claimed that the appeals were incapable of valuation and that they were only liable to Court-fee under Art. 17-B of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act as amended in Madras and that no ad valorem Court-fee was payable. Held that the appellants were seeking to get rid of their liability to the extent of both their persons and property in respect of the amounts decreed against them, and it could not therefore be said that the subject-matter of the appeals was incapable of valuation so as to permit Court-fee being paid under Art. 17-B of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act as amended in Madras and that therefore Court-fee must be paid ad valorem on the value of the decree in each suit. 52 L.W. 903=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 946=1941 Mad. 313. A suit under sec. 112 of the Madras Estates Land Act is not a suit in which it is not possible to estimate at a money value the subject-matter in dispute; and therefore Art. 17-B of the Court-Fees Act as amended in Madras cannot apply to such a suit. An appeal by the landlord against a decree in a suit filed by the tenant is not also governed by Art. 17-B. The value of the subject-matter in such a suit or appeal is not more than the annual rent the recovery of which is resisted, and ad valorem Court-fee must be paid on such amount under Sch. I, Art. 1. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 980=1937 Mad. 786=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 347. A suit by a defeated claimant under O. 21, r. 63, C.P. Code, for a declaration of his title to the property in suit, and for a permanent injunction on the defendant so that no delivery of possession of the property in suit may take place, and to prevent the defendant from taking any illegal action whatsoever to the detriment of the plaintiff, is governed for purposes of Court-fee by Sch. II, Art. 17 (1) of the Court-Fees Act as amended in Bihar and Orissa and the Court-fee payable is that prescribed by that article and not ad valorem Court-fee. 193 I.C. 782.

ART. 17, CL. (iii).—See CL (i) of Art. 17-A of Madras Act.

CROSS-OBJECTION IN DECLARATORY SUIT—AD VALOREM COURT-FEES, IF PAYABLE.—A cross-objection in a declaratory suit where no other relief is asked for, does not require ad valorem Court-fees. The Court-fees Act lays down the principles for Court-fees and the Schedules merely apply those principles in detail. The principle of the Act to be deduced from sec. 7 is that ad valorem Court-fee are not to be charged in a declaratory suit where consequential relief is not prayed for. On that view, the omission of the words "cross objection" from Schedule II, Art. 17 (iii) is a mere clerical error and it is no doubt intended that by a memorandum of appeal a cross-objection should also be included. A cross-objection and an appeal are very intimately connected and there is no essential difference from the point of view in Court-fee between the one and the other, and there is no reason why a person who files a cross-objection should have to pay ad valorem Court-fee, whereas if he filed an appeal instead of a cross-objection he will not have to pay Court-fee. 152 I.C. 196=1934 A.L.J. 743=1934 A. 728. But see 1933 O. 528, contra.

SUITS FOR DECLARATION WHERE NO CONSEQUENTIAL RELIEF IS PRAYED.—Where a plaint or a memorandum of appeal asks only for a pure declaration, the Court in calculating Court-fees cannot go into the question whether he should also have asked for consequential relief. The effect of failing to ask consequential relief is for the final decision of the Court. A fixed fee under article is sufficient. 27 C.W.N. 972=1924 C. 183. A suit solely to declare that a sale-deed executed by the plaintiff is void and inoperative against him, on the ground that he was made to execute it because of coercion, undue influence and fraud falls under this Article. 9 O.W.N. 440=133 I.C. 147. The plaintiff who was not a party to the deed sued to have it declared null and void. There was no prayer for the document being delivered up after cancellation. Held, that the suit was one for a mere declaration and was leviable to Court-fee on that basis. 141 I.C. 798=10 O.W.N. 19=1933 O. 116. But see 63 M.L.J. 764=139 I.C. 317=1932 M. 605, holding that a party cannot alter the nature of the suit or its eventual effect by wording the plaint as one for a declaration and that a suit for possession or cancellation of decree cannot be framed as one for declaration that the decree was not binding on the plaintiff in order to pay a smaller Court-fee. Even where relief is prayed for it may be a mere surplage in which case the suit may be stamped as a mere declaratory suit under this article. 3 P. 795=80 I.C. 655=1925 P. 44. Where the plaintiff merely asks for a declaration that the previous decree is not in any way binding upon him and is altogether void and ineffectual, his suit is one for obtaining a declaratory decree only and falls under Art. 17 (3), Sch. A suit by a beneficiary under a trust to set aside certain alienations of trust property by the trustees does not fall under this article. 61 M.L.J. 39=130 I.C. 449=1931 M. 24. A suit for declaration that a previous decree declaring certain wakfnamas invalid is not binding on the plaintiff falls under Art. 17, Sch. II, and not under sec. 7, cl. (4) (c). 34 C.W.N. 1129 (21 C.W.N. 375; 20 B. 742, Ref. to). See also 156 I.C. 13=1935 L. 611. Where the declaration sought by a plaintiff amounts to no more than that she has a right to recover her dower debt from a certain property, the subject of the waqf, the plaintiff is only suing for her right as to the property, namely, the right to attach and put to sale that property for recovery of her dower debt. The declaration sought falls within the purview of sec. 42 of the Specific Relief Act and hence the relief is for a mere declaratory decree without any consequential relief coming under Art. 17 (iii) of the Second Schedule to the Court-Fees Act and does not fall under sec. 7 (iv) (c). 1939 O.W.N. 152=1939 O.A. 293. Where an ex-minor sued alleging that he was a minor at the time of the execution of a mortgage deed by him and that it was void against him. Held, that all that was necessary for the minor was to ask that the document be declared to be void against him and the suit need not be treated as involving a prayer for a consequential relief, namely, the setting aside of the document. 11 R. 66=1933 R. 109.

ART. 17, CL. (iv).—See cl. (ii) of Art. 17-A of Madras Act inapplicable to compensation awards under the Land Acquisition Act covered by sec. 8. 21 M. 269. See also 35 C.W.N. 1103; 138 I.C. 199=1932 O. 224; 1938 A.L.J. 1124 (Appeal against order of tribunal constituted under U.P. Town Improvements Act). But sec. 8 applies only to appeals by persons who claim compensation. For an appeal by the Secretary of State against the compensation award of the Court, a court-fee of Rs. 10 only is required under article. 37 P. R. 1913=17 I.C. 764. Proceedings before the Court on a reference by the Collector under sec. 19, Land Acquisition Act, cannot be described as a suit to set aside an award under this Art. 17 (4). Where a suit is for a declaration that an award made by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies which directed the plaintiff to pay the opposite party a sum of Rs. 10,244-1-9, is ultra vires, the suit is governed by Art. 17 (iv) of Sch. II, and it is only a fixed court-fee and not ad valorem court-fee that is payable. There is no reason to limit the term 'Award' in the article to an award by arbitrators. Any judicial decision which is not a decree might be considered to be an award for the purposes of Art. 17 (iv) of Sch. II. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 636=1941 N.L.J. 254=1941 Nag. 243. The provision applicable is Sch. I, Art. 1 if not sec. 8 and court-fees are payable in the appeals ad valorem on the difference between the sum awarded by the Court and the sum which the appellant claims should have been awarded. 6 R. 281=1928 R. 197. Where an appeal is preferred to the High Court against an order of the Civil Court on a reference by the Collector under sec. 5 of the Bengal Alluvial Land Act, a fixed court-fee of Rs. 20 is payable. 58 C. 710=35 C.W.N. 181.

ART. 17 (v).—The plaintiff may value the relief claimed in his suit to set aside an adoption and that valuation determines the Court which is to decide the suit. 37 C. 860=14 C.W.N. 929=6 I.C. 680. See also 15 A. 378. In a suit to declare adoption invalid, market value of property claimed is the basis of court-fee. 52 M. 340=56 M.L.J. 107=1928 M. 1294. See also 1937 Rang. 400 (Suit for cancellation of a deed of adoption). A suit for mere declaration that an adoption is valid does not admit of being satisfactorily valued and falls under Art. 17, cl. (vi). 24 I.C. 286=17 O.C. 90. A suit for declaration that certain adoption deed executed by a widow shall be of no effect on the plaintiff's reversionary rights is not a suit to annul an adoption. 84 I.C. 486=1925 L. 229.

ART. 17, CL. (v).—Where a suit for declaration that plaintiff is the adopted son of the last male owner and therefore entitled to property in his possession was dismissed, the court-fee payable on the appeal is an ad valorem fee on the value of the property in possession of the appellant as the adopted son of the last owner. 43 I.C. 64=15 N.L.R. 24. In a suit for declaration that an adoption never took place, court-fee is payable on the value of the property, title to which is affected. 58 I.C. 965 (1). [These decisions were under a C.P. Gazette, Notification No. 1641, dated 28th September, 1911.]

declaration that a decree passed against plaintiff for Rs. 5,366 was obtained by misrepresentation, fraud and undue advantage and was therefore unenforceable and void, and for an injunction restraining the defendant from executing it, is in effect a suit for setting aside the decree passed against the plaintiff. Such a suit falls, for purposes of court-fee, under Art. 17 (v) of Sch. II to the Court-Fees Act as amended by the Bombay Finance Act (1932). Sec. 7 (iv) (c) does not apply to such a case. Hence a court-fee of Rs. 15 for the relief of setting aside, under Art. 17 (c), Sch. II, and another court-fee for the injunction on the valuation given by the plaintiff must be paid. The plaintiff cannot be allowed to value the whole suit as he chose under sec. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court-Fees Act. 47 Bom.L.R. 386=1945 Bom. 474.

ART. 17, CL. (vi).—See Art. 17-B of the Madras Act. (1937) 2 M.L.J. 347; (1937) 2 M.L.J. 572.

CONSTRUCTION AND SCOPE.—Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act should be very strictly interpreted, the article cannot be invoked when a suit is otherwise provided for. 60 C.L.J. 201=39 C.W.N. 181. To bring a case within the scope of this clause, it must be established that it is not possible, even to state approximately a money value for the subject-matter in dispute. 1 I.C. 670=13 C.W.N. 815. See also 59 C.L.J. 447=1934 C. 786; A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 433. Thus a suit for restitution of conjugal rights would fall under the clause. 34 C. 352=11 C.W.N. 458=5 C.L.J. 400. See also 60 C.L.J. 201; 8 C.W.N. 705=31 C. 849; 28 A. 545; 9 I.C. 186=8 A.L.J. 889; 33 A. 767=11 I.C. 186. So also a suit under sec. 92, C.P. Code. 14 C.W.N. 932=12 C.L.J. 211=7 I.C. 92; 1927 M. 940=53 M.L.J. 457; 8 L. 730=1928 L. 113. See now cl. (iii) of Art. 17 of Madras Act. A prayer for temporary mandatory injunction to compel defendant to deposit in Court an amount due by him to the trust, in a scheme suit under sec. 92, C.P. An appeal against an order refusing grant of letters of administration is governed by Art. 17 (vi) as the subject-matter in dispute cannot be estimated at a money value. 22 I.C. 98=35 A. 448. The court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal presented to a High Court from an order refusing or granting letters of administration or probate of a will is Rs. 2 under Art. 11, Sch. II. Neither Art. 1 of Sch. I, nor Art. 1 or Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II, is applicable to such a case. 1938 Rang. L.R. 72=1938 Rang. 141. The memorandum of appeal against a redemption decree absolute on the ground that the money was deposited at a later date than that allowed and that it should not have been so received falls within the clause. 10 I.C. 736=7 N.L.R. 41. As to appeal against an order rejecting an appeal memorandum for non-payment of court-fee, see 98 I.C. 668 (2)=1927 N. 100. But see 1935 N. 83 (F.B.); contra. As kyauing cannot be transferred by sale, mortgage or gift, it has no market value and the plaint in a suit by Hypangyi to recover possession of kyauing should bear a fixed stamp. 57 I.C. 953=13 Bur. L.T. 40. Where the plaintiff alleging that he was the duly elected Mahant sued for possession of the Math properties, held, the case was governed by sec. 7 (v) and not this article but that the temple should be left out of account as having no market value. 1932 A.L.J. 777=1932 A. 593. See also 7 R. 245=1929 R. 134 and 372 (F.B.); 40 P.L.R. 113; 1938 N.L.J. 214 (Suit for possession of temple). A mere intention to dedicate property for religious purposes is not sufficient to convert the property into religious property. Court-fee to be paid for recovery of possession of such property will be ad valorem. 178 I.C. 232=1938 R. 303. A suit under sec. 92, C.P. Code, that a mahant may be removed and new mahant may be appointed along with a committee and that the trust property may be made over to them falls under Sch. II, Art. 17 (6) and not under sec. 7 (iv) (c). 110 I.C. 264=1928 L. 113. But see 48 C.W.N. 598 where certain reliefs not covered by sec. 92, were also asked for. Where the subject-matter of the suit is the right to mutawalliship and the office does not carry any salary or any other material enjoyment, it is not capable of monetary valuation and therefore the proper court-fee is the fixed fee of Rs. 15 provided by Sch. II, Art. 17, para. 6. 1934 P. 647. See also 1938 N.L.J. 357=1938 N. 587 (Suit for removal of mutawalli and rendition of accounts). Plaintiffs prayed that they be appointed mutawallis and the defendant be ordered not to interfere with their management and worship. The suit having been dismissed, the plaintiffs preferred an appeal. Held, that the relief claimed should not be presumed to be one for possession of the trust property, the latter part of the relief may be considered a superfluity, the case comes under Art. 17 (vi) of the second schedule, as it is not possible to estimate at a money value the subject-matter in dispute namely, the appointment of the plaintiffs as mutawallis in the place of the defendant. The criterion is to see whether by obtaining the particular relief claimed, the plaintiffs can obtain possession of the property by execution of the decree. 171 I.C. 468=1937 O.W.N. 1149=1937 O.L.R. 555. An appeal preferred against the decree in an interpleader suit which declares the title of one of the claimants and directs the delivery of the property to him upon payment of costs to the plaintiff should be stamped under the article. 2 P.L.T. 280=61 I.C. 820. Court-fee is necessary on the claim for interest from date of suit to date of realization made in appeal, either ad valorem the sum up to the date of the appeal or at least a court-fee of Rs. 10 as provided by Art. 17 (6). 1935 L. 241. An objection on appeal as to the manner in which a decree in a suit for dissolution of partnership is to be enforced is covered by this article. 90 I.C. 629=1925 L. 496. Where in an appeal from the final decree in a mortgage suit, the only question is whether the property should be sold or whether the mortgagee should foreclose, it is difficult to place an exact money value on the appeal for the calculation of ad valorem court-fees and under Art. 17 (66) of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act, the memorandum of appeal should bear a court-fee stamp of Rs. 15. 15 P.L.T. 696=1934 P. 473 (L). But see also 61 C. 320=38 C.W.N. 276=1934 C. 377. Suit for money against joint family consisting of two brothers B and G—Personal decree against G only but decree against both with respect to share in family property—Appeal by plaintiff praying for personal decree against B also—Court-fees must be under Art. 17 (vi). See 171 I.C. 18=1937 Pesh. 89. Where in an appeal from a final decree for sale in a mortgage suit, the amount of the decree is not challenged, but the only reliefs prayed were extension of time for payment and permission to pay by instalments, the reliefs claimed are incapable of valuation and as such Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II applies. In respect of each of the two reliefs separate court-fee has to be paid. I.L.R. (1938) Nag.

423=1938 N.L.J. 269=1938 Nag. 409 (F. B.). Memorandum of objections by ryot only attacking the finding of the lower appellate Court as to the amount of rent legally due is capable of being estimated in money value within the meaning of cl. 17 (6) of Sch. II. 57 M.L.J. 260=1930 M. 22. Relief originally prayed for was a declaration that the plaintiff was the owner of certain property. A court-fee of Rs. 10 was paid. Subsequently the prayer was sought to be amended thus: “On account of that (a particular) decree is null and void and ineffectual it may be declared, etc.” Held, that the effect of the amendment was to add to the original relief a prayer for a further declaration for which a further court-fee of Rs. 10 should be paid and that the second relief asked for was not consequential relief within the meaning of sec. 7 (iv) (c) so as to necessitate the payment of ad valorem fees. 55 A. 274=1933 A. L.J. 811=1933 A. 850. Where in an appeal under sec. 45, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act, the appellant does not object to the amount of the decree but only to certain conditions imposed by the special Judge, the appeal comes under Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) of the Court-Fees Act in that it is not possible to estimate the subject-matter of the appeal at a money value. An appeal which does not relate to the amount of the decree passed but only to the manner in which the decree can be enforced or executed falls only under Art. 17 (vi) of the second schedule to the Court-Fees Act. 15 Luck. 321=1940 O.W.N. 26=1940 Oudh 183. See also 1940 O.W.N. 207=15 Luck. 413. In a suit on mortgage the mortgagee was granted a decree for certain sum payable in annual instalments and was held entitled to possession under O. 34, r. 2, C.P. Code, on mortgagors’ failure to pay the instalments regularly. The mortgagee appealed from it claiming a decree under O. 34, r. 4, C.P. Code. Held, that the court-fee payable in appeal was under Art. 17 (6), Sch. II. 167 I.C. 26=1937 Pesh. 31. See also 1936 R. D. 236. The amount of future interest cannot be determined as it depends upon the date of payment of the amount decreed, by the judgment-debtor. Therefore, a court-fee stamp Rs. 10 only is payable on cross-objections filed with regard to future interest. 163 I.C. 928=38 P.L.R. 276=1936 L. 668.

CASES NOT COMING UNDER THE CLAUSE.—Art. 17 could not apply to a case where a person with a definite decree for a particular sum of money against him seeks to set it aside. The question whether or not the decree is at the moment capable of execution without payment of certain amount by plaintiff as additional court-fees need not be considered. 33 O.W.N. 743=1929 O. 815. Where in a suit for the enforcement of a mortgage or charge against certain property the trial Court held the charge to be enforceable only against a portion of the property, an appeal to have the charge declared against the whole property must bear ad valorem fee on the value of the property in dispute. 65 I.C. 114=24 O.C. 295. So also an appeal in a mortgage suit claiming priority for the mortgage held by the appellants. 54 A. 347=1932 A. 221. But see 46 L.W. 524=1937 M. 840. Art. 17 (vi) cannot apply to the case of property which clearly has a money value although it may be difficult to estimate such value correctly. Where the plaintiff-appellants sought to render certain property in the hands of the defendants liable for a certain money claim, held, that ad valorem court-fee was payable. 54 A. 608=1932 A.L.J. 387=1932 A. 406. When a plaintiff who obtained a decree for the full amount sued for against one of the defendants appealed with a view to make the other defendants also liable, held he was bound to pay ad valorem court-fee on the amount for which the other defendants were sought to be made liable and not fixed fee under this article. 24 Bom.L.R. 313=46 B. 840. See also 86 P.B. 1912=16 I.C. 777; 59 C.L.J. 447=1934 O. 786 (Valuation of appeal by defendants in a suit for accounts). The mortgagor denied the puiame mortgagee, but the Court found it to be subsisting, and in the decree, ordered that the balance, after paying off the plaintiff mortgagee should be paid to the puiame mortgagee and the surplus, if any, should be given to the mortgagor. In an appeal by the mortgagor challenging the portion of decree in favour of the puiame mortgagee, held that ad valorem court-fee on amount due on the mortgage should be paid and not merely for a declaration. 146 I.C. 1003=1933 L. 954.

SUITS FOR PARTITION.—[See also under sec. 7, cl. (iv) (b)]. Where in suit for partition of joint family property, the plaintiff alleges that he is a coparcener, that is enough to show plaintiff's joint possession, because the possession of one coparcener must be deemed to be in possession on behalf of all. Where a plaintiff alleges that the family has continued joint court-fee has to be calculated on the basis of that allegation and the suit does not fall under sec. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act merely because the plaintiff does not specifically allege joint possession or enjoyment. 45 L.W. 541=1937 M. 606. This rule applies where the suit is by the widow of a deceased coparcener under the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act. (1943) 2 M.L.J. 172=56 L.W. 417=1943 M.W.N. 519=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 654. Where some of the family properties has been alienated by the father or manager of the family, the suit in respect of that property should be valued as a suit for possession under sec. 7 (v). I.L.R. Suit to set aside decree effecting partition by metes and bounds and for fresh partition of all properties held by plaintiff and defendants exclusively since date of prior partition. It cannot be said that in such a case the plaintiff is in joint possession with the defendants, so as to take the suit out of sec. 7 (iv) (c), and to bring it under Sch. II, Art. 17(vi), as being liable to a fixed court-fee instead of ad valorem court-fee. The fact that the plaintiff is already in possession of a portion of the property of which he seeks a re-partition cannot entitle him to credit for court-fees payable in respect of that part of the property. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 102=1941 S. 154. The suit for partition is not converted into a case of claim to possession because the defendants set up that the house is not joint property and that the plaintiff has no title to it. 35 C.W.N. 942. See also 12 C.W.N. 37=6 C. II, Court-Fees Act shows that when a suit falls under any one of the clauses of that article, the plaint as well as the memorandum of appeal arising from such a suit, is chargeable with a fixed court-fee of Rs. 10 only, irrespective of whether the subject-matter in appeal is or is not capable of being estimated in money value. 1941 Lah. 123 (F.B.). Where in defence to a suit for partition by a Mahomedan heir, the widow pleads that her right to remain in possession in lieu of dower is paramount to that of the plaintiff's and her defence is rejected, the test to be applied to find out the proper court-fee payable in respect of an appeal against the rejection of such a plea is, to consider what would be position, if the appellant was endeavouring to establish in a suit in which she was plaintiff the same right as she is trying to maintain in the appeal. Applying the test, the court-fee payable was not an ad valorem court-fee but court-fee under Art. 17 (vi) of the second schedule of the Court-Fees Act. 1940 A.L.J. 789=1940 All. 521. A decision as to the amount of court-fee should be founded solely on a consideration of the cause of action on which the plaintiff is suing and not on pleas of defendant. 16 I.C. 773=6 S.L.R. 72. On the application of one of the co-sharers in a partition suit the Court directed the properties to be sold as they were not capable of partition. A suit, however, in which plaintiff plays for declaration of his title and partition as a consequential relief, falls within sec. 7. Cl. (iv) (c) and the plaintiff's share becomes also the valuation of the suit for jurisdiction. 2 P. 432=4 P.L.T. 257. See also 81 I.C. 648=1924 N. 105; 84 I.C. 538=1925 P. 703. So also in a suit intended to recover possession, plaintiff must pay ad valorem fee upon the value of the share. 8 C. 757; 8 P. 818=1930 P. 1; 1935 Pesh. 30. See also cases noted under sec. 7 (iv) (b). A memorandum of appeal against an order of the Court in a partition suit, directing the defendants to put in properly stamped applications if they wished to have their respective shares separated off by the Court, must be stamped with a Court-fee of Rs. 10 under Sch. II, Art. 17, Cl. (vi). 274 P. L.R. 1913=20 I.C. 177=183 P.W.R. 1913. Where in a suit for declaration and partition the defendant appeals from the decree for partition he is not entitled to stamp the appeal memorandum with Rs. 10, Court-fee stamp, simply on the ground that he is in possession of the property. 1930 R. 164. A plaintiff sued for partition alleging that he was in joint possession and paid Court-fees under Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi). The Court found that he was not in joint possession and called upon him to pay ad valorem Court-fee. The suit was dismissed on plaintiff's failure to pay the deficient Court-fee. The Court-fee for appeal by plaintiff was under this sub-clause until the question of joint possession was finally decided in appeal. 1930 A. 443. So also for the appeal by the defendant if the lower Court finds the plaintiff to be in joint possession. 1930 L. 839. A suit for partition of a joint property is with reference to the matter of Court-fees governed by Sch. II, Art. 17, Cl. (vi). In appeals against decrees in partition suits the Court-fee payable is Rs. 15. It does not matter whether the ground of attack is with reference to the allotment of specific portion of immovable or movable property or the ground of attack is the question of costs. 56 C. 188=116 I.C. 383=1928 C. 878. Where the plaintiff sued for partition, his father and step-brother alleging a previous partition, it was substantially for a declaration that the prior partition was not binding on him and for other reliefs and falls under sec. 7, Cl. (4) (c) and not under this article. 129 I.C. 824=1931 M. 94. Where in an appeal in a suit for partition the only proper relief is the claim for partition and the relief regarding the declaration and injunction are unnecessarily put in the Court may permit the appellant to give up the unnecessary reliefs and limit his claim to partition. 35 C.W.N. 942: Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act is inapplicable to an appeal from an order under O. 21. r. 50 (2), C. P. Code. Sub-rr. (2) and (3) of r. 50 of O. 21 show that the subject-matter in dispute in proceedings under them is the liability of the person against whom execution is sought for payment of the decretal amount, on the ground that he was a partner in the judgment-debtor firm. The subject-matter in appeal against an order passed under sub-r. (2), therefore, is the liability of the judgment-debtor for the same amount. This amount is clearly ascertainable and it cannot, therefore, be said that the subject-matter of the appeal is one where it is not possible to estimate it at a money value. On such an appeal Court-fee payable is ad valorem. 35 P.L.R. 565=1934 L. 958. As to suits for maintenance, see 149 I.C. 983=1934 L. 150. Appeal in suit for partition—Property subject to charge to meet marriage expenses—Court-fee payable. 159 I.C. 802=1936 A. 221.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, SUIT FOR.—The plaintiff sued for specific performance of a contract to execute a deed of trust in favour of certain institutions in respect of certain joint properties belonging to and in possession of both the plaintiff and the defendant. Under the trust deed, both the plaintiff and the defendant were made trustees. Held, that the suit did not come under any of the specified classes of suits for specific performance which are contemplated by sec. 7 (x) of the Court-Fees Act, that the relief claimed was not the property itself but merely specific performance of the agreement, the money value of which it was not possible to estimate and that consequently the suit was governed by Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) of the Court-Fees Act. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 411=42 C.W.N. 667. Article not applicable to suit for specific performance of a contract of exchange. See (1944) 1 M.L.J. 187=57 L.W. 130.

SUIT ON PROMISSORY NOTE.—Where a decree in a suit on a promissory note awards interests at the contract rate up to the date of suit, but is silent as to the claim for interest from the date of suit till realisation, for an appeal from such decree on the ground that interest should have been allowed up to the date of realisation, the proper Court-fee payable is Rs. 10 as provided for by Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II to the Court-Fees Act. 154 I.C. 479. A suit to obtain an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the service by the plaintiffs of an idol and to frame a scheme so that they and the defendant might be entitled to carry on the service of the idol and to enjoy the emoluments of the office separately and without interference from each other cannot be described as a suit for partition; yet it is, in a sense, a suit which may be regarded as a suit of a similar nature for the purpose of estimation of Court-fees. Such a suit is one to which Art. 17 (vi) of the Second Schedule applies. 1935 A.L.J. 295=1935 A.W.R. 251.

ORDER REJECTING PLAINT FOR FAILURE TO PAY ADDITIONAL COURT-FEE—APPEAL FROM—COURT-FEE.—Per Full Bench.—Where an appeal is filed from an order rejecting a plaintiff for failure to pay additional Court-fee demanded, the subject-matter in appeal is capable of valuation. An order rejecting a plaintiff for failure to pay additional Court-fee demanded is such a complete and final determination of the rights of the parties that there is no room in any appeal from such an order for the proposition that the subject-matter in appeal is not the same as the subject-matter in the original suit, and the same Court-fee is payable on the appeal as on the plaintiff. 1935 N. 83 (F.B.)=157 I.C. 186=18 N.L.J. 207.

DISTINCT RELIEFS—TRST.—Where the relief sought consists of two parts which are such that the first is the foundation for the second and the second part is a necessary consequence of the granting of the first part then the two can be taken together as really constituting one relief which is quite enough for the purpose of decreeing the plaintiff's claim. On the other hand, if the two parts are such that the second does not necessarily follow from the first or that the first goes farther than what is necessary for the granting of the second part of the relief, then one sum of Rs. 10 as Court-fees would not be sufficient. Where the relief claimed is that it may be declared that the property in suits is wakf alaulad and is not attachable and saleable, the declaration that the property is wakf alaulad is the foundation for and would necessarily involve the granting of the relief that the property is not attachable and saleable and only one sum of Rs. 10 is payable as Court-fees. But where the relief claimed is that it may be declared that the property in suit is owned and possessed by the plaintiff and cannot be subject to attachment and sale in satisfaction of a certain decree, the plaintiff in asking for a declaration as to possession is asking for more than is actually necessary for the granting of the second part of the relief, as the plaintiff would succeed if he establishes that he is the owner of the property. In such a case, therefore, two distinct reliefs are claimed by the plaintiff and two sums of Rs. 10 are payable as Court-fees. 1936 A.L.J. 1155=1936 A. 874.

WRITTEN STATEMENT CLAIMING PARTITION.—A defendant in a partition suit asking for a decree for his share need not pay Court-fee in order to make his claim effective. 55 M. 975=1932 M. 722=63 M.L.J. 845.

PRAYER FOR EXPUNGING REMARKS FROM JUDGMENT.—The prayer in an appeal was that in sub-clause (a) of clause v for the word 'ten' the word 'twenty' shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 10.

3. For clause (ii) of section 10 of the principal Act, the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

ii. In such case—

(a) The suit shall be stayed until the additional fee is paid and if the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the suit shall be dismissed; and whether the additional fee is or is not paid.

(b) The Court may, if it is of opinion that the estimation has been grossly insufficient, further order that the expenses of the commission, or such portion thereof as the Court may think reasonable, be paid by party in fault to the Government, and the order so made shall have the force and effect of a decree passed by the Court.

THE BENGAL COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT (IV OF 1922).

An Act to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, and the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, with reference to the scale of Court-fees in Bengal.

WHEREAS it is necessary to revise the scale of court-fees for Bengal, by amendment of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, and the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, in their application to Bengal, in the manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

the reversioner was Rs. 20 under Art. 22 of Sch. II to the Court-Fees Act, as amended

(ii) to any Civil Court other than a High Court,	One rupee.
(b) to a Chief Controlling Executive or Revenue Authority,	Two rupees.
(c) to a High Court	Five rupees."

14. Above the words "Five rupees," where they occur in the third column opposite Arts. 12 and 13 in the same schedule to the same Act, the words "Ten rupees," shall be inserted opposite Art. 12 and the bracket between Arts. 12 and 13 in the second column shall be omitted.

Amendment of Sch. II, Art. 12. 15. (1) The words "Ten rupees" in the third column, opposite Art. 17 in the same schedule to the same Act, and the bracket opposite that article in the second column in the same schedule shall be omitted.

Amendment of Sch. II, Art. 17. (2) In the third column in the said article,—
 (a) opposite entries i, ii, iv, and vi, the words "Fifteen rupees" shall be inserted; and
 (b) opposite entries iii and v the words "Twenty rupees" shall be inserted.

Amendment of S. 71 of Act XV of 1882. 16. In section 71 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882,—

(1) in clause (a) for the words "Five hundred rupees" the words "Fifty rupees" shall be substituted;

(2) after clause (a) the following shall be inserted, namely:—
 "(b) when the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds fifty rupees, but does not exceed five hundred rupees—the sum of six rupees four annas and three annas in the rupee on the excess of such amount or value over fifty rupees;"

(3) cl. (b) shall be renumbered as clause (c) and in that clause as renumbered for the words "Sixty-two rupees eight annas" the words "Ninety rupees ten annas" shall be substituted, and after the words "One anna" the words "Six pies" shall be inserted.

17. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any probate, letters of administration or certificate in respect of which the fee payable under the law for the time being in force has been paid prior to the commencement of this Act, but which have not issued.

(2) To the said section as so re-numbered and amended the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

“(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1) or in any other Act, a Court may receive a plaint or memorandum of appeal in respect of which an insufficient fee has been paid, subject to the following conditions, namely :—

(a) no such plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be registered unless the plaintiff or appellant has, before such date as the Court may have fixed in this behalf paid to the Court such reasonable sum on account of court-fee as the Court may direct;

(b) the Court shall reject the plaint or memorandum of appeal if the sum referred to in clause (a) is not paid before the date fixed by the Court.”

Amendment of Section 7.

7. In section 7 of the said Act,—

(1) clause (b) of paragraph iv shall be omitted.

(2) in paragraph iv, after the words “memorandum of appeal” the following words, figure and letter shall be inserted, namely :—

“subject to the provisions of section 8-C”;

(3) for paragraph v the following paragraph shall be substituted, namely :—

“v. In suits for the possession of land, buildings or gardens—

(a) according to the value of the subject-matter, and such value shall be deemed to be fifteen times the nett profits which have arisen from the land, building or garden during the year next before the date of presenting the plaint, or if the Court sees reason to think that such profits have been wrongly estimated, fifteen times such amount as the Court may assess as such profits or according to the market-value of the land, building or garden, whichever is lower;

(b) if, in the opinion of the Court, such profits are not readily ascertainable or assessable, or where there are no such profits, according to the market-value of the land, building or garden;

Explanation.—In this paragraph “building” includes a house, outhouse, stable, privy, urinal, shed, hut, wall and any other such structure, whether of masonry, bricks, wood, mud, metal or any other material whatsoever :—

(4) for paragraph vi the following paragraph shall be substituted, namely :—

“vi. In suits to enforce a right of pre-emption—according to the market-value of the land, building or garden in respect of which the right is claimed :

Explanation.—In this paragraph ‘building’ has the same meaning as in paragraph v” ;

(5) after paragraph vi the following paragraph shall be inserted, namely :—

“vi-A. In suits for partition and separate possession of a share of joint family property or of joint property, or to enforce a right to a share in any property on the ground that it is joint family property or joint property—

if the plaintiff has been excluded from possession of the property of which he claims to be a co-parcener or co-owner, according to the market-value of the share in respect of which the suit is instituted.” ;

Insertion of new sections 8-A to 8-F.

8. After section 8 of the said Act, the following sections shall be inserted, namely :—

“8-A. In every suit in which an ad valorem court-fee is payable under this Act on the plaint, the plaintiff shall file with the plaint a statement of particulars of the subject-matter of the suit and his own valuation thereof unless such particulars and the valuation are contained in the plaint. The statement shall be in such form and shall contain such particulars as may be prescribed by the Local Government by notification in the Calcutta Gazette. In every such suit the plaintiff shall also, if the Court so directs, file a duplicate copy of the plaint and of the said statement.

8-B. (1) In every suit in which a court-fee is ‘payable under this Act on the plaint or memorandum of appeal the Court shall, as soon as may be after the registration of the plaint or memorandum of appeal, and in every case before proceeding to deliver judgment, record a finding whether a sufficient court-fee has been paid.

(2) If the Court records a finding that an insufficient court-fee has been paid on the plaint or memorandum of appeal the Court shall—

(a) stay all further proceedings in the suit until it has determined the proper amount of such Court-fee payable and the plaintiff or the appellant, as the case may be, has paid such amount or until the date referred to in clause (b), as the case may be :

Provided that if the plaintiff or appellant gives, within such time as the Court may allow, security, to the satisfaction of the Court, for the payment of any additional amount for which he may be found liable the Court may proceed with the suit,

(b) fix a date before which the plaintiff or appellant shall pay the amount of court-fee due from him, as determined by the Court under clause (a).

(3) If the plaintiff or appellant fails to give the security referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (2) or to pay the amount referred to in clause (b) of that sub-section within the time allowed, or before the date fixed by the Court, as the case may be, the suit shall be dismissed.

8-C. If the Court is of opinion that the subject-matter of any suit has been wrongly valued it may revise the valuation and determine the correct valuation and may hold such inquiry as it thinks fit for such purpose.

8-D. (1) For the purpose of an inquiry under section 8-C the Court may depute, or issue a commission to, any suitable person to make such local or other investigation as may be necessary and to report thereon to the Court. Such report and any evidence recorded by such person shall be evidence in the inquiry.

(2) The Court may, from time to time, direct such party to the suit as it thinks fit to deposit such sum as the Court thinks reasonable as the costs of the inquiry, and if the costs are not deposited within such time as the Court shall fix, may, notwithstanding anything contained in any other Act, dismiss the suit if such party is the plaintiff or the appellant and in any other case, may recover the costs as a public demand.

8-E. (1) The Court, when making an inquiry under section 8-C and any person making an investigation under section 8-D shall have, respectively, for the purposes of such inquiry or investigation, the powers vested in a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, in respect of the following matters, namely :—

- (a) enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath or affirmation ;
- (b) compelling the production of documents or material objects ; and
- (c) issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses.

(2) An inquiry or investigation referred to in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to be a judicial proceeding within the meaning of sections 193 and 228 of the Indian Penal Code.

8-F. If in the result of an inquiry under section 8-C the Court finds that the subject-matter of the suit has been undervalued the Court may order the party responsible for the undervaluation to pay all or any part of the costs of the inquiry.

If in the result of such inquiry the Court finds that the subject-matter of the suit has not been undervalued the Court may, in its discretion, order that all or any part of such costs shall be paid by Government or by any party to the suit at whose instance the inquiry has been undertaken, and if any amount exceeding the proper amount of fee has been paid shall refund the excess amount so paid."

Repeal of sections 9 and 10.
Substitution of new section
for section 11.

9. Sections 9 and 10 of the said Act are hereby repealed.
10. For section 11 of the said Act the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

" 11. Where in any suit for mesne profits or for land and mesne profits or for an account, the fee which would have been payable if the suit had comprised the whole of the relief to which the Court finds the plaintiff to be entitled exceeds the fee actually paid, the Court shall require the plaintiff to pay an additional fee equal to the amount of the excess, and if such additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court may fix, the suit, or if a decree has previously been passed therein, so much of the claim as has not been so decreed, shall be dismissed :

Procedure in suits for mesne profits or accounts when amount found due exceeds amount claimed.

Provided that, where the additional fee is payable in respect of a portion of the claim which can be relinquished, that portion only shall be dismissed."

Amendment of section 12.

11. In paragraph ii of section 12 of the said Act, for the words and figures "and the provisions of section 10, paragraph ii shall apply" the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"and thereafter :—

(a) if the party required to pay is the appellant or petitioner, the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3) of section 8-B shall, so far as may be, apply ;

(b) if the party required to pay is the respondent or the opposite party, the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8-B shall, so far as may be, apply, and, if such party fails to pay the fee required before the date fixed by the Court, the Court shall recover the amount of such fee from him as a public demand :

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section a question relating to the classification of any suit for the purpose of section 7 shall not be deemed to be a question relating to valuation."

for section 17.

12. For section 17 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

" 17. (1) In any suit in which two or more separate and distinct causes of action are joined and separate and distinct reliefs are sought in respect of each, the plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be chargeable with the aggregate amount of the fees with which the plaints or memoranda of appeal would be chargeable under this Act in separate suits instituted in respect of each such cause of action :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to affect any power conferred by or under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, to order separate trials.

(2) Where more reliefs than one based on the same cause of action are sought either jointly or in the alternative, the fee shall be paid according to the value of the relief in respect of which the largest fee is payable."

Amendment of section 19.

13. In section 19 of the said Act,—

(a) in paragraph i, after the words "Power-of-attorney" the words "or other written authority" shall be inserted ; and

(b) after paragraph xxiv the following paragraph shall be added, namely :—

"xxv. Petitions of appeal by Government servants or servants of a Court of Wards against orders of dismissal, reduction or suspension ; copies of such orders filed with such appeals, and applications for obtaining such copies."

Insertion of new sections 34-34-A.

14. After section 34 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

" 34-A. Where any period is fixed or granted by the Court for the doing of any act prescribed or allowed by this Act, the Court may, in its discretion, from time to time, enlarge such period, even though the period originally fixed or granted may have expired."

Enlargement of time.

Substitution of new section
for section 35.

15. For section 35 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

" 35. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time subject to such conditions or restrictions as it may think fit to impose, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, suspend the payment of or reduce or remit, in the whole of Bengal or in any part thereof, all or any of the fees mentioned in the first and second schedules to this Act annexed and may in like manner cancel or vary such order.

Power to suspend, reduce or remit fees.

(2) The Local Government may, from time to time by rules, prescribe the manner in which any fee the payment of which is suspended under sub-section (1) may be realised and for this purpose direct that such fee may be recovered as a public demand."

Amendment of schedule II.

16. In Schedule II to the said Act,—

(1) in Article 17, after entry v the following entry shall be inserted, namely :—
“ v-A, for partition and separate possession of a share of joint family property or of joint property, or to enforce a right to a share in any property on the ground that it is joint family property or joint property if the plaintiff is in possession of the property of which he claims to be a co-parcener or co-owler :
Fifteen rupees.”

(2) after Article 18 the following article shall be inserted, namely :—

“ 18-A. Application under paragraph 20 of the second Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, to file an arbitration award, and memorandum of appeal from a decree passed under paragraph 21 of the said Schedule.
Fifteen rupees.”

(3) after Article 21 the following article shall be inserted, namely :—

Fifteen rupees.”

THE BIHAR AND ORISSA COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT (II OF 1922).

An Act to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Province of Bihar and Orissa in the manner hereinafter appearing ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called THE BIHAR AND ORISSA COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1922.

(2) It extends to the whole of Bihar and Orissa including the Sontal Parganas.

(3) It shall come into force on the twenty-fourth day of August, 1922.

2. In paragraph 3 of S. 4 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, as amended by subsequent legislation, and hereinafter called the principal Act, for the word “ two ” shall be substituted the word “ one.”

3. In clause (a) of S. 7 (v) of the principal Act, for the word “ ten ” shall be substituted the word “ twenty ” and in clause (b) of the said section for the word “ five ” shall be substituted the word “ ten.”

4. In S. 17 of the principal Act, after the words “ of appeal ” in both places where they occur the words “ or of cross-objection ” shall be inserted.

5. In S. 18 of the principal Act, for the words “ a fee of eight annas ” the words “ a fee of twelve annas ” shall be substituted.

6. In item viii of S. 19 of the principal Act, for the words “ One thousand rupees ” the words “ Two thousand rupees ” shall be substituted.

7. (1) In Art. 1 of Schedule I of the principal Act, for the entry in the first column the following entry shall be substituted, namely :—

“(1) Plaint, written statement pleading a set-off or counter-claim or memorandum of appeal or of cross-objection, not otherwise provided for in this Act, presented to any Civil or Revenue Court except those mentioned in S. 3.”

(2) For the “ proper fees ” set out in the third column of the said Schedule I and shown opposite Art. 1 in the Schedule A of this Act, the “ proper fees ” shown against them in the second column of said Schedule A shall be substituted.

(3) The proviso in Art. 1 of the said Schedule I shall be omitted.

8. For the “ proper fees ” set out in Schedule I of the principal Act for Articles 6, 7, 8 and 9 shown in Schedule A of this Act, the “ proper fees ” shown against them in the second column of the said Schedule A shall be substituted.

9. For the entries above the proviso in the second column and for the entries in the third column, in Art. 11 of Sch. I of the principal Act, the following shall be substituted, namely :—

“ When the amount or value of the property in respect of which the grant of probate or letters is made exceeds two thousand rupees, on such amount or value up to ten thousand rupees,
Two per centum.

and
when such amount or value exceeds ten thousand rupees, on the portion of such amount or value which is in excess of ten thousand rupees up to fifty thousand rupees, Three per centum.

and
when such amount or value exceeds fifty thousand rupees, on the portion of such amount or value which is in excess of fifty thousand rupees up to one lakh of rupees,

Four per centum.

and
when such amount or value exceeds a lakh of rupees, on the portion of such amount or value which is in excess of one lakh of rupees.

Five per centum.

10. For the entry in the second column of Art. 12 of Sch. I of the principal Act, and for the first paragraph in the third column of the said Article, the following shall be substituted, namely :—
“When the amount or value of any debt or security specified in the certificate under section 8 of the Act exceeds one thousand rupees, on such amount or value up to ten thousand rupees,

Two per centum and on the amount or value of any debt or security to which the certificate is extended under section 10 of the Act, three per centum.

and

Three per centum, and on the amount or value of any debt or security to which the certificate is extended under section 10 of the Act, four and a half per centum.

and

Four per centum, and on the amount or value of any debt or security to which the certificate is extended under section 10 of the Act, six and a half per centum.

and
when such amount or value exceeds a lakh of rupees, on the portion of such amount or value which is in excess of one lakh of rupees.

Five per centum, and on the amount or value of any debt or security to which the certificate is extended under section 10 of the Act, seven per centum.

11. For the table of rates of ad valorem fees annexed to Sch. I of the principal Act, the table set forth in Sch. B of this Act shall be substituted.

12. (1) In the first column of the said Sch. II after the words “memorandum of appeal” in Arts. 5, 11, 17, 20 and 21 the words “or of cross-objection” shall be inserted.

(2) For the “proper fees” set out in the said Sch. II and shown in Sch. C of this Act, the “proper fees” shown against them in the second column of the said Sch. C shall be substituted.

13. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any probate, letters of administration or certificate under the Succession Certificate Act, 1889, in respect of which the fee payable under the law for the time being in force has been paid prior to the commencement of this Act, but which have not issued.

² These words were inserted and added by the Berar (Provincial) Laws Act, 1911 (XV of 1911).

6. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any probate, letters of administration or certificate in respect of which the fee payable under the law for the time being in force has been paid prior to the commencement of this Act but which have not been issued.

C. P. & BERAR ACT No. IX OF 1938.

THE CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1938.

[Published in the Central Provinces and Berar Gazette, dated the 29th April, 1938.]

An Act further to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Central Provinces and Berar.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Central Provinces and Berar, in the manner hereinafter appearing;

Preamble.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be cited as THE CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1938.

Insertion of section 28-A in Act VII of 1870.

2. After section 28 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following section shall be deemed to be inserted, namely:—

“28-A. (1) If, on examination of the records of a civil, criminal or revenue case which has been disposed of, a public officer finds that the fee payable under the Act or the rules made thereunder on any document filed, exhibited or recorded therein has not been paid or has been insufficiently paid, he shall report the fact to the presiding officer of the Court or to the revenue officer concerned.

(2) Such presiding officer or revenue officer, after satisfying himself of the correctness of such report, shall record a provisional finding that the proper fee has not been paid and determine the amount of the fee payable and the person from whom the fee or the difference thereof, if any, shall be recoverable.

(3) After recording a finding under sub-section (2), the presiding officer or revenue officer shall issue a notice to the person referred to in that sub-section to show cause why he should not be ordered to pay the fee determined thereunder, and, if sufficient cause is not shown, the presiding officer or revenue officer shall confirm the finding and make an order requiring such person to pay the proper fee before a date to be specified in that notice.

(4) If such person fails to pay the fee in accordance with the notice issued under sub-section (3), it shall, on the certificate of such presiding officer or revenue officer, be recoverable as an arrear of land revenue.”

C. P. and BERAR ACT No. IX of 1941.

THE CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

[Received the assent of the Governor on the 30th April, 1941; assent first published in the Central Provinces and Berar Gazette on the 19th May, 1941.]

An Act further to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Central Provinces and Berar.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Central Provinces and Berar, for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

AND WHEREAS the Governor of the Central Provinces and Berar has assumed to himself under the Proclamation, dated the 10th November, 1939, issued by him under S. 93 of the Government of India Act, 1935, all powers vested by or under that Act in the Provincial Legislature;

NOW, THEREFORE, in exercise of the said powers, the Governor of the Central Provinces and Berar is pleased to make the following Act:—

1. This Act may be cited as THE CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

2. After section 1-A of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Central Provinces and Berar (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Definition of “memorandum of cross-objection.”

Substitution of section 17, Act VII of 1870.

3. For section 17 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

“17. (1) In any suit in which two or more separate and distinct causes of action are joined and separate and distinct reliefs are sought in respect of each, the plaintiff shall be chargeable with the aggregate amount of the fees chargeable under this Act if separate suits were instituted in respect of each such cause of action:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to affect any power conferred by or under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, [1* *] to order separate trials.

(2) Where more reliefs than one based on the same cause of action are sought jointly in any suit, the plaintiff shall be chargeable with the aggregate amount of the fees with which the plaintiff would be chargeable under this Act if separate suits were instituted in respect of each such relief:

LEG REF.

¹ The words “or the same Code as applied to “Berar” were omitted by the Berar (Provincial) Laws Act, 1941 (XVI of 1941.)

Provided that if a relief is sought only as ancillary to the main relief the plaint shall be chargeable only in respect of the main relief.

(3) Where more reliefs than one based on the same cause of action are sought in the alternative in any suit, the plaint shall be chargeable with the largest of the fees with which the plaints would be chargeable under this Act if separate suits were instituted in respect of each such relief.

(4) The provisions of this section shall apply mutatis mutandis to appeals and cross-objections." Amendment of schedule I, 4. In the first column of Arts. 1 and 1-A of Sch. I, to the Act VII of 1870. said Act, the words "or of cross-objection" shall be omitted.

THE MADRAS COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT (V OF 1922).

[Amended by Act Madras Act XVII of 1945.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, in its application to the Presidency of Madras; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and application. 1. (a) This Act may be called THE MADRAS COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1922.

(b) It extends to the whole of the Presidency of Madras.

Interpretation clause. 2. (1) In this Act "the principal Act" shall mean "the Court-Fees Act, 1870."

(2) In this Act, and in the principal Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, 'Memorandum of Appeal,' shall include memorandum of cross-objection.

Amendment of section 5 of the Principal Act.

3. In the second paragraph of section 5 of the principal Act, the words 'Registrar' and 'Chief Judge' shall be substituted for 'clerk of the Court' and 'first Judge,' respectively.

4. In section 7 of the principal Act the words "except suits for relief under section 14 of the Religious Endowments Act, 1863, or under section 91 or section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908," shall be added between the words 'mentioned' and 'shall.'

Amendment of section 7.

Amendment of section 7 (ii).

5. In section 7 (ii) of the principal Act, after the words "shall be deemed to be" the words "in suits for maintenance, the amount claimed to be payable for one year and in other suits" shall be added.

Addition of a proviso to section 7 (iv).

6. The following shall be added after the words 'Memorandum of appeal' in section 7, paragraph (iv) of the principal Act:—

"Provided that in suits coming under sub-clause (c), in cases where the relief sought is with reference to any immovable property, such valuation shall not be less than half the value of the immovable property calculated in the manner provided for by paragraph (v) of this section."

Addition to section 7.

7. In section 7 of the principal Act between paragraphs (iv) and (v) the following paragraph shall be added as (iv-A):—

"In a suit for cancellation of a decree for money or other property having a money value, or other document securing money or other property having such value, according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit, and such value shall be deemed to be—

if the whole decree or other document is sought to be cancelled, the amount or the value of the property for which the decree was passed, or the other document executed, if a part of the decree or other document is sought to be cancelled, such part of the amount or value of the property."

Amendment of section 7 (v).

8. In section 7 (v) of the principal Act,— in (a) for the word 'ten' the word 'twenty' shall be substituted;

in (b) for the word 'five' the word 'ten' shall be substituted; and after clause (d) the following proviso shall be substituted for the existing proviso:—

"Provided that if rules are framed under section 3 of the Suits Valuation Act, 1887, for determining the value of land for the purposes of jurisdiction, the value so determined shall be deemed to be the value of the land for the purposes of this paragraph."

Amendment of section 11.

9. For the second paragraph of section 11 of the principal Act, the following paragraphs shall be substituted:—

"Where a decree directs an inquiry as to mesne profits which have accrued on the property during a period prior to the institution of the suit, if the profits ascertained on such inquiry exceed the profits claimed, no final decree shall be passed till the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable, had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so ascertained is paid. If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the claim for the excess shall be dismissed, unless the Courts for sufficient cause, extends the time for payment.

Amendment of section 18.

10. In section 18 of the principal Act for the words 'Eight annas' the words 'One rupee' shall be substituted.

Amendment of Schedules I and II.

THE ORISSA COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT (V OF 1939).

[31st October, 1939.]

An Act to amend the law relating to court-fees in its application to the Province of Orissa.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to court-fees in its application to the Province of Orissa ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :

Short title and commencement.

1. (i) This Act may be called THE ORISSA COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1939.

(ii) It extends to the whole of Orissa.

(iii) It shall come into force on such date as the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Gazette, appoint.

2. The Acts mentioned in Schedule A to this Act, so far as they apply to the whole or any part of the Province of Orissa, are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule.

Repeal of enactments.
Amendment of section 2 of Act VII of 1870.

3. For section 2 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, hereinafter called the principal Act, the following section shall be substituted :—

Definitions.

"2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in subject or context,—

(1) 'appeal' includes a cross objection ;

(2) 'suit' includes an appeal from a decree except in section 8-A."

Amendment of section 6 of Act VII of 1870.

4. Section 6 of the principal Act shall be renumbered as sub-section (1) of section 6 and, after the said sub-section, the following sub-section shall be inserted :—

"(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-S. (1), the Provincial Government may, by notification, direct that a copy of a document, specified as chargeable in Schedules I and II to this Act annexed, shall be furnished by a public officer without payment of the fee indicated by either of the said Schedules as the proper fee for such copy and the copy so furnished shall be chargeable with the requisite fee only when it is filed, exhibited or recorded in any Court of justice or received by a public officer as mentioned in sub-S. (1)."

Amendment of section 7 of Act VII of 1870.

5. In S. 7 of the principal Act, for the words "in the suits next hereinafter mentioned" the words "in the suits next hereinafter mentioned except suits for relief under S. 14 of the Religious Endowments Act, 1863, or under S. 91 or S. 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908," shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 7 (ii) of Act VII of 1870.

6. In S. 7 (ii) of the principal Act, after the words "shall be deemed to be" the words "in suits for maintenance five times and in other" shall be inserted.

Omission of clause (b) of section 7 (iv) of Act VII of 1870.

7. Clause (b) of S. 7 (iv) of the principal Act shall be omitted.

Insertion of new paragraph (iv-A) in section 7 of Act VII of 1870.

8. In S. 7 of the principal Act, after paragraph (iv) the following paragraph shall be inserted :—

"(iv-A) In a suit for cancellation of a decree for money or other property having a money-value, or other document securing money or other property having such value, according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit, and such value shall be deemed to be—

if the whole decree or other document is sought to be cancelled, the amount or the value of the property for which the decree was passed or the other document executed ;

if a part of the decree or other document is sought to be cancelled such part of the amount or value of the property.

Explanation.—In any case where a suit for the cancellation of a whole decree for money or other property having a money value, or other document securing money or other property having such value has to be instituted, but the substantial relief claimed is only in respect of a part of the amount or the value of the property for which the decree was passed or the other document was executed, the value of the subject-matter of the suit shall be deemed to be such part of the amount or value of the property in respect of which the relief is sought."

Amendment of paragraph (v) of section 7 of Act VII of 1870.

9. In paragraph (v) of S. 7 of the principal Act—

(1) In clause (a), for the word "ten" the word "twenty" shall be substituted ;

(2) in clause (b), for the word "five" the word "ten" shall be substituted ;

(3) the following proviso shall be inserted after the existing proviso :—

"Provided further that in suits for possession of land if rules are framed under S. 3 of the Suits Valuation Act, 1887, for determining the value for the purposes of jurisdiction, the value so determined shall be deemed to be the value of the land for the purposes of this paragraph ; and

(3) the existing Explanation shall be re-numbered as Explanation I, and, after the Explanation so re-numbered, the following Explanation shall be added, namely :—

"Explanation II.—In this paragraph 'building' includes a house, outhouse, stable, privy, urinal shed, hut, wall, and any other such structure whether of masonry, bricks, wood, mud, metal or any other material whatsoever."

Insertion of new paragraph (vi-A) in section 7 of Act VII of 1870.

10. In S. 7 of the principal Act after paragraph (vi) the following paragraph shall be inserted :—

"(vi-A) In suits for partition and separate possession of a share of joint family property or of joint property, or to enforce a right to a share in any property on the ground that it is joint family property or joint property—

if the plaintiff alleges that he has been excluded from possession of the property of which he claims to be a coparcener or co-owner—according to the market value of the share in respect of which the suit is instituted.

Explanation.—The word 'possession' for the purposes of this paragraph includes constructive possession."

Insertion of new section 8-A in Act VII of 1870.

11. After S. 8 of the principal Act, the following section shall be inserted :—

"8-A. In every suit in which an ad valorem Court-fee is payable under this Act on the plaint, Statement of particulars of subject-matters of suits and plaintiff's valuation thereof.

the plaintiff shall file with the plaint a statement of particulars of the subject-matter of the suit and his own valuation thereof unless such particulars and the valuation are contained in the plaint. The statement shall be in such form and shall contain such particulars as may be prescribed by the Provincial Government by notification in the Gazette. In every such suit the plaintiff shall also, if the Court so directs, file a duplicate copy of the plaint and of the said statement."

Amendment of section 11 of Act VII of 1870.

12. For the second paragraph of S. 11 of the principal Act the following paragraph shall be substituted :—

"Where a decree directs an enquiry as to mesne profits which have accrued on the property during a period prior to the institution of the suit, if the profits ascertained on such inquiry exceed the profits claimed, no final decree shall be passed till the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so ascertained is paid. If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the claim for the excess shall be dismissed, unless the Court, for sufficient cause, extends the time for payment.

Amendment of section 12 of Act VII of 1870.

13. (i) In S. 12 of the principal Act, for paragraph (ii) the following paragraph shall be substituted :—

"(ii) But whenever any such suit comes before a Court of appeal, reference or revision, if such Court considers that the said question has been wrongly decided, it shall—

(a) in any case in which the decision is to the detriment of revenue, require the party by whom such fee has been paid, to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the question been rightly decided and thereafter—

(i) if the party required to pay is the appellant or petitioner, the appeal or petition shall be stayed until the additional fee is paid. If the additional fee is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the appeal or petition shall be dismissed ;

(ii) if the party required to pay is the respondent or the opposite party, the Court shall fix a date before which such party shall pay the amount of court-fee due from him and, if such party fails to pay the fee required before the date fixed by the Court, the Court shall recover the amount of such fee from him as if it were an arrear of land revenue. Where the Court considers that the amount of such fee should be paid to the respondent or the opposite party by the appellant or the petitioner, as the case may be, the Court may provide for such payment in the order as to cost in the said appeal or petition ; and

(b) in any case in which the decision is that any excess fee has been levied, direct the refund of so much excess fee to the party who paid it as would not have been payable had the question been rightly decided.

Amendment of section 18 of Act VII of 1870.

14. In S. 18 of the principal Act, for the words "eight annas" the words "one rupee" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 35 of Act VII of 1870.

15. For S. 35 of the principal Act, the following section shall be substituted :—

"35. (i) The Provincial Government may from time to time subject to such conditions or restrictions as it may think fit to impose, by notification in the Gazette suspend the payment of or reduce or remit, in the whole of Orissa or in any part thereof, all or any of the fees mentioned in Schedules I and II to this Act annexed and may in like manner cancel or vary such order.

(a) The Provincial Government may from time to time by rules prescribe the manner in which any fee the payment of which is suspended under sub-S. (i) may be realised and for this purpose direct that such fee may be recovered as if it were an arrear of land revenue."

Amendment of Article 1 of Schedule I of Act VII of 1870.

16. For Article 1 of Schedule I of the principal Act the following Article shall be substituted :—

U. P. COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT (XIX of 1938).

[Assented by Governor-General on 9th January, 1939, and published in U. P. Gazette, dated 14th January, 1939.]

An Act further to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870 (as amended by the United Provinces Court-Fees Amendment Act, 1936) in its application to the United Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Court-Fees Act, 1870, as (amended by the United Provinces Court Fees Amendment Act, 1936), in its application to the United Provinces in the manner hereinafter appearing ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE UNITED PROVINCES COURT-FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1938.

(2) It extends to the whole of the United Provinces.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Provincial Government may by notification direct, and shall remain in force up to the thirtieth day of June, 1941.

Amendment of Section 1 (3), United Provinces Act II of 1936.

2. In sub-section (3) of section 1 of the United Provinces Court-Fees (Amendment) Act, 1936, for the words 'April, 1939,' the words 'June, 1941,' shall be substituted.

Amendment of Section 2, Act VII of 1870.

3. For section 2 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

"Definitions.—2 In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(i) "Appeal" includes a cross-objection.

(ii) "Collector" includes any officer, not below the rank of a Deputy Collector, appointed by the Collector, with the previous sanction of the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, to perform the functions of a Collector under this Act.

(iii) "Revenue" means land revenue as recorded in the Collector's register and does not include cases of any kind.

(iv) "Suit" includes a first or second appeal from a decree in a suit."

4. The existing section 6 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, (as amended by section 2 of the United Provinces Court-Fees Amendment Act, 1936), shall be numbered as sub-section (1) of section 6, from the first proviso thereto the words "the document is of any of the kinds specified as chargeable in the first schedule and" shall be omitted, and the following sub-sections shall be added to it as sub-sections (2), (3), (4), (5) and (6), namely :—

"(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of sub-section (1), a Court may receive a plaint or memorandum of appeal in respect of which an insufficient fee has been paid but no such plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be acted upon unless the plaintiff or the appellant, as the case may be, makes good the deficiency in Court-fee within such time as may from time to time be fixed by the Court.

(3) If a question of deficiency in Court-fee in respect of any plaint or memorandum of appeal is raised by an officer mentioned in section 24-A the Court shall, before proceeding further with the suit or appeal record a finding whether the court-fee is sufficient or not. If the Court finds that the Court-fee paid is insufficient, it shall call upon the plaintiff or the appellant as the case may be, to make good the deficiency within such time as it may fix, and in case of default shall reject the plaint or memorandum of appeal :

Provided that the Court may, for sufficient reasons to be recorded proceed with the suit or appeal if the plaint or the appellant, as the case may be, gives security, to the satisfaction of the Court, for payment of the deficiency in court-fee within such further time as the Court may allow. In no case, however, shall judgment be delivered unless the deficiency in court-fee has been made good, and if the deficiency is not made good within such time as the Court may from time to time allow, the Court may dismiss the suit or appeal.

(4) Whenever a question of the proper amount of court-fee payable is raised otherwise than under sub-section (3), the Court shall decide such question before proceeding with any other issue.

(5) In case the deficiency in court-fee is made good within the time allowed by the Court the date of the institution of the suit or appeal shall be deemed to be the date on which the suit was filed or the appeal presented.

(6) In all cases in which the report of the officer referred to in sub-section (3) is not accepted, by the Court, a copy of the finding, of the Court shall forthwith be sent to the Chief Inspector of Stamps."

Insertion of new section 6-A, 5. After section 6 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following sections shall be inserted as sections 6-A, 6-B, and 6-C, namely :—

"6-A. (1) Any person called upon to make good a deficiency in court-fee may appeal against such order as if it were an order appealable under section 104 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The party appealing shall file with the memorandum of appeal, a certified copy of the plaint together with that of the order appealed against.

(2) In case an appeal is filed under sub-section (1), and the plaintiff does not make good the deficiency, all proceedings in the suit shall be stayed and all interim orders made, including an order granting an injunction or appointing a receiver, shall be discharged.

(3) A copy of the memorandum of appeal shall be sent forthwith by the appellate Court to the Chief Inspector of Stamps.

(4) If such order is varied or reversed in appeal, the appellate Court shall if the deficiency has been made good before the appeal is decided, grant to the appellant a certificate, authorizing him to receive back from the Collector such amount as is determined by the appellate Court to have been paid in excess of the proper court-fee.

(5) The Court may such order for the payment of costs of such appeal as it deems fit and, where such costs are payable to the Government, they shall be recoverable as arrears of land revenue.

"6-B. (1) If the order of the Court passed under sub-section (3) of section 6 is at variance with the opinion of the officer by whom the question of deficiency in court-fee has been raised, the Chief Inspector of Stamps may, within three months from the date of receipt of such order, move, by an application in writing, the Court to which an appeal lies from a decree in the suit or appeal in which such order has been passed, for revision of such order.

(2) If such Court is of opinion that the proper court-fee has not been paid on the plaint or the memorandum of appeal to which such order relates, it shall record a declaration to that effect and determine the amount of deficiency in court-fee. No appeal shall lie from such order :

Provided that no such declaration shall be made until the party liable to pay the court-fee has had an opportunity of being heard.

(3) The Court, while recording a declaration under sub-section (2) may make such order for the payment of costs as it deems fit. Where such costs are payable to the Government, they shall be recoverable in the manner laid down in sub-section (4) for the recovery of deficiency in court-fee.

(4) When a declaration has been recorded under sub-section (2), the Court recording the same shall, unless the suit or appeal has come up in appeal before such Court, in which case the deficiency in court-fee shall be recovered in the manner laid down in sub-section (2) of section 12, send forthwith a copy of such declaration to the Court which passed the order under sub-section (3) of section 6. Such Court shall, if the suit or appeal is still pending before it, follow the procedure prescribed in sub-section (3) of section 6. If the suit or appeal has already been disposed of, the Court shall forward a copy of such declaration to the Collector who shall recover the deficiency from the party concerned as if it were an arrear of land revenue.

"6-C. (1) When the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority is of opinion that the court-fee paid on any document filed in any Civil Court in a pending suit, appeal or other proceeding is insufficient, and that the question is one of general importance and no action under section 6-B has been taken, it may refer the case, with its own opinion thereon, to the High Court to which such Civil Court is subordinate.

(2) Every such case shall be decided by not less than two Judges of the High Court to which it is referred.

(3) The High Court upon the hearing of any such case shall decide the question raised thereby and shall deliver its judgment thereof containing the grounds on which the decision is founded.

(4) If the High Court finds that the court-fee paid was insufficient, the procedure prescribed by sub-section (4) of section 6-B for realization of the deficiency shall be followed as if the decision of the High Court were a declaration under that section."

Amendment of S. 7 (iv), Act VII of 1870.

6. For sub-section (ii) of section 7 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870 the following shall be substituted—

"(ii) (a) In suits for maintenance and annuities or other sums payable periodically :—

according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit and such value shall be deemed to be ten times the amount claimed to be payable for one year ;

Provided that in suits for personal maintenance by females and minors, such value shall be deemed to be the amount claimed to be payable for one year.

(b) In suits for reduction or enhancement of maintenance and annuities or other sums payable periodically—according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit and such value shall be deemed to be ten times the amount sought to be reduced or enhanced for one year."

Amendment of S. 7 (iv), Act VII of 1870.

7. For sub-section (iv) of section 7 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(iv) In suits—

(a) to obtain a declaratory decree or order, where consequential relief is prayed ; and

(b) for accounts ;

according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint of memorandum of appeal :

Provided that in suits falling under clause (a), where the relief sought is with reference to any immovable property such amount shall be the value of the consequential relief and if such relief is incapable of valuation, then the value of the immovable property computed in accordance with sub-section (v), (v-A) or (v-B) of this section as the case may be :

Provided further, that in suits falling under clause (b), such amount shall be the approximate sum due to the plaintiff and the said sum shall form the basis for calculating (or determining) the valuation of an appeal from a preliminary decree passed in the suit.

"(iv-A) In suits for or involving cancellation of or adjudging void or voidable a decree for money or other property having a market-value, or an instrument securing money or other property having such value.

(1) where the plaintiff or his predecessor-in-title, was a party to the decree or the instrument, according to the value of the subject-matter, and

(2) where he or his predecessor-in-title was not a party to the decree or instrument, according to one-fifth of the value of the subject-matter, and such value shall be deemed to be—if the whole decree or instrument is involved in the suit, the amount for which or value of the property in respect of which the decree was passed or the instrument executed, and if only a part of the decree or instrument is involved in the suit, the amount or value of the property to which such part relates.

Explanation.—"The value of the property," for the purposes of this sub-section, shall be the market-value, which in the case of immovable property shall be deemed to be the value as computed in accordance with sub-sections (v), (v-A) or (v-B) as the case may be.

"(iv-B) In suits—

(a) for a right to some benefit (not herein otherwise provided for) to arise out of land ;

(b) to obtain an injunction ;

(c) to establish an adoption or to obtain a declaration that an alleged adoption is valid ;

(d) to set aside an adoption or to obtain a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid or never, in fact, took place ;

(e) to set aside an award not being an award mentioned in section 8 ;

according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint :

Provided that in the case of (a), (b) and (c) such amount shall be not less than one-tenth of the market-value of the property involved in or affected by the relief sought or Rs. 50 whichever is greater, and in the case of the remaining classes of suits not less than one fifth of such value or Rs. 200 whichever is greater :

And provided further that in the case of (a) and (b), the amount of court-fee leviable shall in no case exceed Rs. 200.

Explanation 1.—When the relief sought is with reference to any immovable property the market-value of such property shall be deemed to be the value computed in accordance with sub-section (v), (v-A) or (v-B) of this section as the case may be.

Explanation 2.—In the case of suits—

(i) falling under clauses (a) and (b) the property which is affected by the relief sought, and where properties of both the plaintiff and defendant are affected the property of the plaintiff so affected ;

(ii) falling under clauses (c) and (d) the property to which title by succession or otherwise may be diverted or affected by the alleged adoption ; and

(iii) falling under clause (e) the property which forms the subject-matter of the award, shall be deemed to be the property involved in or affected by the relief sought within the meaning of the proviso to this sub-section.

“(iv-C) In suits—

(a) for the restitution of conjugal rights ;

(b) for establishing or annulling or dissolving a marriage ;

(c) for establishing a right to the custody or guardianship of any person such as minor, including guardianship for the purpose of marriage ;

according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint but in no case shall such amount be less than Rs. 200.

Explanation.—Clauses (a) and (b) do not include petitions or suits under any special Act relating to the dissolution of marriage.”

Amendment of sub-Section

(v) of Section 7, Act VII of 1870, as amended by Section 3, U. P. Act II of 1936.

8. For sub-section (v) of section 7 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following shall be substituted namely :—

“(v) In suits for the possession of land, buildings or gardens—

according to the value of the subject-matter ; and such value shall be deemed to be—

(I) where the subject-matter is land, and

(a) where the land forms an entire estate or a definite share of an estate paying annual revenue to Government, or forms part of such an estate, and is recorded in the Collector's register as separately assessed with such revenue and such revenue is permanently settled, thirty times the revenue so payable ;

(b) where the land forms an entire estate or a definite share of an estate paying annual revenue to Government, or forms part of such estate and is recorded as aforesaid and such revenue is settled but not permanently, ten times the revenue so payable ;

(c) where the land pays no such revenue or has been partially exempted from such payment or is charged with any fixed payment in lieu of such revenue, and net profits have arisen from the and during the three years immediately preceding the date of presenting the plaint, twenty times the annual average of such net profits ;

but when no such net profits have arisen therefrom, the market-value which shall be determined by multiplying by twenty the annual average net profits or similar land for the three years immediately preceding the date of presenting the plaint ;

(d) where the land forms part of an estate paying revenue to Government, but is not a definite share of such estate and does not come under clauses (a), (b) or (c) above— the market-value of the land, which shall be determined by multiplying by fifteen the rental value of the land including assumed rent on proprietary cultivation, if any ;

(II) where the subject-matter is a building or garden—

according to the market-value of the building or garden, as the case may be.

Explanation.—The word “estate” as used in this sub-section, means any land subject to the payment of revenue for which the proprietor or farmer or raiyat shall have executed a separate engagement to Government or which, in the absence of such engagement shall have been separately assessed with revenue.”

Insertion of new sub-sections after sub-section (v) of section 7, Act VII of 1870, as amended by the foregoing clause.

9. After sub-section (v) of section 7 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following shall be inserted as sub-sections (v-A) and (v-B), namely :—

(v-A) In suits for possession—

(i) of superior proprietary rights where under-proprietary or sub-proprietary rights exist in the land—according to the market-value of the subject-matter, and such value shall be determined by multiplying by fifteen the annual nett profits of the superior proprietor ;

(a) of under-proprietary or sub-proprietary land as such—according to the value of the subject-matter, and such value shall be determined by multiplying by ten the annual under-proprietary or sub-proprietary rent, as the case may be, recorded in the Collector's register as payable for the land for the year next before the presentation of the plaint.

If no such rent is recorded in the Collector's register, the value shall be determined in the manner laid down in clause (c) of sub-Section (c) of this section save that the multiple will be ten.

Explanation.—Land held by any permanent lessees shall be treated for the purposes of this sub-section as under-proprietary or sub-proprietary land.”

"in every suit the plaintiff shall file with the plaint a statement, in such form as may be prescribed for the purpose, of particulars and valuation of the subject-matter of the suit, unless such particulars and valuation are contained in the plaint itself."

Amendment of section 11, Act VII of 1870.

17. For the second paragraph of section 11 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following paragraphs shall be substituted, namely :—

"Where a decree directs an inquiry as to mesne profits which have accrued in respect of the property during a period prior to the institution of the suit, if the profits ascertained on such inquiry exceed the profits claimed, no final decree shall be passed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so ascertained is paid. If such difference is not paid within such time as the Court shall fix, the claim for the excess shall be dismissed, unless the Court, for sufficient cause, extends the time for payment."

18. For sub-section (ii) of section 12 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(ii) But whenever any such suit comes before a Court of appeal reference or revision, if such Court considers that the said question has been wrongly decided to the detriment to the revenue it shall require the party by whom such fee has been paid to pay, within such time as may be fixed by it, so much additional fee as would have been payable had the question been rightly decided. If such additional fee is not paid within the time fixed and the defaulter is the appellant, the appeal shall be dismissed, but if the defaulter is the respondent, the Court shall inform the Collector who shall recover the deficiency as if it were an arrear of land revenue."

Amendment of section 17, Act VII of 1870.

19. For section 17 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

"17. (1) In any suit in which two or more separate and distinct causes of action are joined, the plaint or memorandum of appeal shall be chargeable with the aggregate amount of the fees with which the plaints or memoranda of appeal would be chargeable under this Act if separate suits were instituted in respect each such cause of action :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to affect any power conferred by or under the Code of Civil Procedure, to order separate trials.

(2) When more reliefs than one based on the same cause of action are sought in the alternative the fee shall be paid according to the value of the relief in respect of which the largest fee is payable."

Amendment of section 19 (iii), Act VII of 1870.

20. For clause (iii) of section 19 of the Court-Fees Act, 1870, the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"(iii) Written statement not being one mentioned in Article 2-A, Schedule I, nor one containing a counter-claim, set-off, or a prayer other than a prayer for instalments or relating to costs of the suit."

THE CROWN GRANTS ACT (XV OF 1895)).¹

[10th October, 1895.

An Act to explain the Transfer of Property Act, 1882,² so far as relates to grants from the Crown, and to remove certain doubts as to the powers of the Crown in relation to such grants.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen as to the extent and operation of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882,² and as the power of the Crown to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers of land made by it or under its authority, and it is expedient to remove such doubts; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Title, extent and commencement.

SEC. 1: CONSTRUCTION OF CROWN GRANTS.

—A Crown grant is to be construed by its own terms and not by reference to the previous or subsequent act of the parties. 86 Bom.L.R. 761=1934 B. 434. The Crown Grants Act applies to grants by Government of Sunderbans lands. The Crown has unfettered discretion to impose any condition, limitation, or restriction in its grants. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 1=42 C.W.N. 239. The grants or leases of Sunderbans lands, which are lands vested in the Crown by sec. 39 of 21 and 22 Vic., c. 106, executed by the Sunderbans Commissioner on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council are Crown grants and to these grants the Crown Grants Act applies. whomsoever; but every such grant and transfer shall be construed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed.

LEG. REF.

² This Act was declared in force in Upper Burma (except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act, 1898 (XIII of 1898), Bur. Code.

the possession of the family of E must be declared released in perpetuity to heirs general under Mahomedan Law of descent, with a distinct proviso that no tenure now declared released in perpetuity can be alienable by an incumbent for any period longer or beyond his individual life" it was held that the grant created a succession of independent life estates in the sense of an estate which is only enjoyed by the holder thereof during his life and which could not be transferred by him for any period beyond his life and that each successive life estate holder derived title, not from or through the previous holder, but directly from the grant. Where one of the incumbents alienated certain property and such alienation remained unquestioned during his lifetime as well as by the incumbents of the next generation and was questioned by the latter's heirs, on a question whether the claim was barred, it was held that it was not, and that if any such descendant does not within 12 years of his becoming entitled to possession on the death of the last preceding incumbent attack such a transfer his right to recover the property for himself would be barred, but that would not bar the right of any of those coming after him. 1942 A.W. R. (H.C.) 266=1942 A.L.J. 430=A.I.R. 1942 All. 402. A grant of a village to S.S. by the Governor-in-Council of Fort St. George on behalf of the East India Company, recited, inter alia: "(a) The Governor-in-Council confirms to you and your heirs the village of E. C. as shrotriem so long as you discharge the rent and are obedient to the laws and regulations established or to be established, under the authority of the Governor-in-Council for the time being. (b) In confirming to you and your heirs as shrotriem the village of E.C., you are to understand that the said village is not assignable by gift, sale or otherwise, but in default of legal heirs, that the said village shall revert to the Hon'ble Company". Some of the successors in interest of S.S. created a usufructuary mortgage over the village.

Held, on a construction of the grant, (1) that the grant was a Crown grant governed by the Crown Grants Act, and the condition in Cl. (b) was perfectly valid, though such a condition would be invalid if the grant were by a private individual; (2) that had the document ended with Cl. (a), the estate created would not be anything other than an absolute estate of fee simple, and the clause against alienation in Cl. (b) did not make the estate created one of a series of life-estates; (3) that revert to the grantor or his heirs on failure of the heirs of the grantee did not prevent an alienation, and the alienee would be entitled to enjoy the property at any rate, as long as the line of the grantee continued; (4) that the effect of an alienation was not merely to enable the grantor to resume on failure of legal heirs but also to enable the successors of the alienee to avoid the alienation on his death. 1945 M.W.N. 614=58 L.W. 486=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 307. In Bengal, Crown has conferred no market franchise or right of holding markets. Therefore, a proprietor cannot acquire such a right by prescription, as the right is treated as an incident to the ownership of land; and he has no remedy at law if any competitor holds a market in his proximity. 24 C.W.N. 800=58 I.C. 879=47 C. 1079. A trader usually haunting one market for the sale of his goods, can take the same to another without committing any unlawful act. (Ibid.)

As to priority of Crown debts, see 11 B. 467; 1933 S. 568 (1931 S. 164; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 429; (1938) 1 M.L.J. 351; 5 Bom.H.C.R.O. C. 23, Ref.) It is the duty of the Crown and of every branch of executive to abide by and obey the law. Scope and effect of—Mining licence—Registration—Necessity. See (1945) 2 M.L.J. 400.

SECS. 2 AND 3.—Transfer of Property Act has no application to grants of Crown lands. 10 P. 203=1931 P. 268=131 I.C. 811. It is not only the T.P. Act, that is affected by the Crown Grants Act. Sec. 3 of the Act declares the unfettered discretion of the Crown to impose such conditions and limitations as it thinks fit, no matter what the general law of the land be, a restrictive clause in a Crown lease which compels the lessee to refer any boundary dispute with the adjoining lessee, only to revenue authorities, is not affected by sec. 28 of the Contract Act. But such a clause cannot be availed of by a lessee of an adjoining lot, to oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Court, for the reason that his predecessors in interest were not parties to the contract entered into between the Secretary of State in Council and the other lessees' predecessors in interest. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 626=42 C.W.N. 81=1938 Cal. 211. See also 1939 All. 263. The provisions of secs. 2 and 3 do not include all leases executed by or on behalf of Government from the operations either of sec. 107, T.P. Act or of the Registration Act which provides for the cases of documents exempt from registration when executed by or on behalf of Government. 36 A. 176=22 I.C. 932=12 A.L.J. 219. A provision in a lease granted by Government of land situate in Malabar that the lessee will not erect buildings, on the ground, is not consistent with sec. 19 of the Malabar Compensation for Tenants Improvements Act and is saved by sec. 3 of the Crown Grants Act. 43 M. 65=53 I.C. 345=37 M.L.J. 532. The expression "grant" in sec. 2 denotes not only the transfer of prerogative rights possessed by the Crown but also transfers of land of every description. (Ibid.) Where a Crown grant consists of a lease of land in the Malabar District containing a reservation of the right to terminate the tenancy on six months' notice and the lessee expressly covenanted to surrender, held, that under sec. 3, the lease must take effect according to its tenor and the Government is entitled to a decree for ejectment without paying for improvements. 41 M.L.J. 494=69 I.C. 475. The exemption of waste lands from payment of land revenue does not ipso facto exempt such land from Land Revenue Act and Tenancy Act. 28 N.L.R. 169=1932 N. 75 (F.B.). Where certain property which had been acquired by the Secretary of State under the Land Acquisition Act was sold in Court auction. Held, that the sale was immune from a claim for pre-emption in view of the provisions of sec. 3 of the Crown Grants Act. 8 Luck. 322=10 C.W.N. 113=1933 O. 134 (F.B.).

SEC. 3.—An inam which is a Crown grant will be governed by sec. 3 of the C.G. Act which excludes the application of the personal law. If there is any ambiguity in the inam certificate, the question would have to be decided in accordance with the Inam Rules of 1859. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 244=1940 N.L.J. 78=1940 Nag. 129. The effect of sec. 3 is that when a grant has been made by the Crown, the Crown is not with reference to that grant, bound by any of the sections of either the Tenancy Act or the Transfer of Property Act or the Contract Act. 181 I.C. 584=1939 A.L.J. 164=1939 All. 263. See also 1931 Pat. 258; 1938 Cal. 211; (1938) 1 M.L.J. 656. All that sec. 3 means is that the Crown is entitled to put such conditions in a grant which a private individual could not but the only advantage to the grantee is that the grant to him is not invalid if given by the Crown when it might be invalid if given by an individual. It cannot be said to confer the right to sue on the grant if he had no such right, had the grant in his favour been made by an individual. 1938 O.A. 353=1938 O.W.N. 462=1938 Oudh 175. It is competent to the Crown to make a heritable grant of a village, conferring on the grant not an absolute estate, but a limited interest to enjoy the rents and profits of the village for his life and a similar interest on his heirs who will succeed him; it is open to the Crown to create successive life estates or limited interests, and prohibition as to alienation may be imposed by the Crown either by virtue of an enactment or by a grant. Sec. 3 is clear and expressly mentions that all limitations contained in a Crown grant shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor notwithstanding any statute or enactment of the Legislature, which would take in sec. 60, C.P. Code. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 767=1938 Mad. 623=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 686. See also 1937 A.L.J. 567=1937 All. 533. A tenure was created in 1842, by the proprietor of an estate, and granted in consideration of services to be rendered as barkandaz. The estate was subsequently forfeited to Government, and in 1881, there was a formal dispensation with the services which the jagirdar had to render as barkandaz, and a new grant was created of the tenure freed of those services at an annual rent. The new grant created a jagir for the descendants of an earlier jagirdar to enjoy so long as any of his descendants should survive. There was a stipulation that the jagirdar had no power to transfer by sale or by creation of mokkarrari tenures any part of the tenure with a liability to resumption if unauthorised trans-

CUTCHI MEMONS ACT, SEC. 3.—The Cutchi

Memons Act applies not only to wills made after the passing of the Act but also to wills made before it was passed. A will speaks only from the death of the testator and a will made in 1933 by a Cutchi Memon who died in 1941, is not saved. The right which is intended to be saved by sec. 3 is a right acquired before the passing of the Act. After the passing of the Act, the will of every Cutchi Memon has to be construed and looked at from the point of view of Mahomedan law. 44 Bom.L.R. 792=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 328 (2). 4. For the purpose of facilitating the application to the territory mentioned in Schedule A or any part thereof of any enactment passed before the commencement of this Act or of any notification, order, scheme, rule, form or by-law issued, made or prescribed under any such enactment—

(1) Any Court may, subject to the other provisions of this Act, construe the enactment, notification, order, scheme, rule, form or by-law with such alterations not affecting the substance as may be necessary or proper to adapt it to the matter before the Court, and

(2) the Provincial Government may, subject to the other provisions of this Act by notification in the Official Gazette, direct by what Officer any power or duty shall be exercised or discharged, and any such notification shall have effect as if it enacted in this Act.

Vesting of powers of separate Officers in single Officer.

5. (1) A notification issued under S. 4, sub-section (2), may direct that any powers or duties vested in separate Officers may be consolidated and vested in, and discharged by, a single Officer.

(2) Where by such a notification appellate powers are consolidated and vested in a single Officer, the period of limitation for the consolidated appeal shall be the longest period provided in the case of an appeal to any of the Officers whose powers are so consolidated.

Pending proceedings.

6. Nothing in this Act shall affect any proceeding which at the commencement thereof is pending in respect of any of the territory mentioned in Schedule A, and every such proceeding shall be continued as if this Act had not been passed:

Provided that all proceedings which at the commencement of this Act are pending before the Commissioner of the Division or any other authority within the territory mentioned in Schedule A shall be transferred to, and disposed of by, such authorities in the Province of Delhi as the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct.

Power to extend enactments in force in other parts of British India with modifications and restrictions.

7. The [Provincial Government] may, by notification in the Official Gazette, extend with such restrictions and modifications as ¹[it] think fit to ²[the Province of Delhi] or any part thereof, any enactment which is in force in any part of British India at the date of such notification.

THE DELHI LAWS ACT (VII OF 1915).

Year.	No.	Short title	Amendment.
1915	VII	The Delhi Laws Act, 1915	Am. Act XVIII of 1919, Rep. in part, Act X of 1927.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill.—

"Owing to the issue of the proclamation cited in the preamble, adding certain territory, previously included in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, to the Province of Delhi, it has become necessary to take steps to declare the law in force in the territory so added.

Save in respect of a few enactments which are referred to below, the law in force in the Province of Delhi is declared to be in force in the territory now added to that province.

The enactments in force in the province of Delhi which are declared not to be in force in this territory are set forth in Schedule II.

In place of them the enactments specified in Schedule III, which are already in force in this area, are continued in force there. It is clearly undesirable to make any change in these laws, which mainly relate to land, if such a course can be avoided".—Fort St. George Gazette, Part III, 1st March, 1915.

[22nd March, 1915.]

An Act to declare the law in force in certain territory added to the Province of Delhi.

WHEREAS by Proclamation published in Notification No. 984-C, dated 22nd day of February, 1915, the Governor-General in Council, with the sanction and approval of the Secretary of State for India, has been pleased to take under his immediate authority and management the territory mentioned in Schedule I, which was formerly included within the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and to include the said territory in the Province of Delhi with effect from the 1st April, 1915;

And whereas it is expedient to declare the law in force in the said territory;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE DELHI LAWS ACT, 1915.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of April, 1915.

Application to added area of law in force in existing Province of Delhi.

2. All enactments (except the enactments specified in Schedule II) for the time being in force in the territory specified in Schedule A to the Delhi Laws Act, 1912, and all notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and by-laws issued, made or prescribed under such enactments shall be deemed to be in force in the territory specified in Schedule I in the same manner and subject to the same modifications as they are for the time being in the territory specified in the said Schedule to the said Act.

Continuance in added area of certain laws now in force in the United Provinces.

3. The enactments specified in Schedule III, and all notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and by-laws issued, made or prescribed under those enactments shall continue to be in force in the territory specified in Schedule I:

Provided that in the enactments so continued and in all notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and by-laws issued, made or prescribed thereunder, reference to a Provincial Government, the Provincial Government of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, or the Board of Revenue for the United Provinces shall be read as referring to the ¹[Provincial Government] of Delhi; references to a High Court or the High Court of Judicature of the North-Western Provinces as referring to the ²[High Court of Judicature at Lahore,] and references to the Official Gazette for the United Provinces as referring to the Official Gazette.

Provision for facilitating application of certain enactments.

Exclusion of certain enactments from the added area.

4. For the purpose of facilitating the application to the territory mentioned in Schedule I of the enactments referred to in section 3, the powers conferred by sections 4 and 5 of the Delhi Laws Act, 1912, shall be exercisable in respect thereof.

5. Save as provided in sections 2 and 3 no enactment which is in force in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh or any part thereof shall continue to be in force in the territory specified in Schedule I.

6. Nothing in this Act shall affect any proceedings which at the commencement thereof is pending in respect of any of the territory mentioned in Schedule I or of anything arising in such territory and every such proceeding shall be continued as if this Act had not been passed:

Pending proceedings.

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that any proceeding, criminal, civil or revenue, other than a proceeding pending before the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces, shall be transferred to, and disposed of, by the corresponding authority of the Delhi Province.

7. Amendment of S. 7 of Act XIII of 1912. [Repealed by the Repealing Act, 1938 (I of 1938), S. 2 and Sch.]

THE DELHI RESTRICTION OF USES OF LAND ACT (XII OF 1941)

[8th April, 1941.

An Act to regulate in the Province of Delhi the use of land for purposes other than agricultural purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate in the Province of Delhi the use of land for purposes other than agricultural purposes;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

LEG. REF.

1 The entry relating to the Punjab Alienation of Land Act (XIII of 1900) was repealed by Act X of 1927.

S. 3] THE DELHI RESTRICTION OF USES OF LAND ACT (XII OF 1941). 2113

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE DELHI RESTRICTION OF USES OF LAND ACT, 1941.

(2) It extends to the Province of Delhi.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) “agriculture” includes horticulture and the planting and upkeep of orchards;

(2) “building” has the same meaning as in clause (2) of section 3 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911;

(3) “Chief Commissioner” means the Chief Commissioner of Delhi;

(4) “Deputy Commissioner” means the Deputy Commissioner of Delhi and includes any authority, not being an officer employed by the Delhi Improvement Trust, appointed by the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the Official Gazette, to perform all or any of the functions of the Deputy Commissioner under this Act;

(5) “place of worship” includes an imambara, dargah, karbala or takya;

(6) “prescribed” means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(7) “road” means a metalled road maintained by the Central Government or by a local authority; and

(8) the expression “to erect or re-erect” in relation to any building has the same meaning as in clause (5) of section 3 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911.

3. (1) The Chief Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare any land adjacent to and within a distance of four hundred and forty yards from the centre line of any road to be a controlled area for the purposes of this Act.

(2) Not less than three months before making a declaration under sub-section (1) the Chief Commissioner shall cause to be published in the Official Gazette and in at least two newspapers printed in a language other than English a notification stating that he proposes, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, to make such a declaration and specifying therein the boundaries of the land in respect of which the declaration is proposed to be made, and copies of every such notification or of the substance thereof shall be published by the Deputy Commissioner in such manner as he thinks fit at his office and in every revenue estate of which any part is included within the said boundaries.

(3) Any person interested in any land included within the said boundaries may, at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the last date on which a copy of such notification is published by the Deputy Commissioner, object to the making of the declaration or to the inclusion of his land or any part of it within the said boundaries.

(4) Every objection under sub-section (3) shall be made to the Deputy Commissioner in writing, and the Deputy Commissioner shall give to every person so objecting an opportunity of being heard either in person or by pleader, and shall after all such objections have been heard and after such further enquiry, if any, as he thinks necessary, forward to the Chief Commissioner the record of the proceedings held by him together with a report setting forth his recommendations on the objections.

(5) If before the expiration of the time allowed by sub-section (3) for the filing of objections no objection has been made, the Chief Commissioner may proceed at once to the making of a declaration under sub-section (1). If any such objections have been made, the Chief Commissioner shall consider the record and the report referred to in sub-section (4) and shall hear any parties applying to be heard and may either—

(a) abandon the proposal to make a declaration under sub-section (1), or

(b) make such a declaration in respect of either the whole or a part or parts of the land included within the boundaries specified in the notification under sub-section (2).

(6) For the purposes of sub-section (3) a person shall be deemed to be interested in land if he is a "person interested" as defined in clause (b) of section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, for the purposes of that Act or, where the land is land occupied by or for the purposes of a mosque, imambara, dargah, karbala, takya or Muslim graveyard, if he is a Muslim.

(7) A declaration made under sub-section (1), unless and until it is withdrawn, be conclusive evidence of the fact that the area to which it relates is a controlled area.

4. (1) The Deputy Commissioner shall deposit at his office and at the office of the Municipal Committee, New Delhi, and at such other places as he considers necessary, plans showing all lands declared to be controlled areas for the purposes of this Act, and setting forth the nature of the restrictions applicable to the land in any such controlled area.

Plans of controlled areas to be deposited at certain offices.

(2) The plans so deposited shall be available for inspection by the public free of charge at all reasonable times.

5. No person shall erect or re-erect any building, or make or extend any excavation, or lay out any means of access to a road in a controlled area except with the previous permission of the Deputy Commissioner in writing.

Restrictions on building, etc., in a controlled area.

6. (1) Every person desiring to obtain the permission referred to in section 5 shall make an application in writing to the Deputy Commissioner in such form and containing such information in respect of the building, excavation or means of access to which the application relates as may be prescribed.

Application for permission to build, etc., and the grant or refusal of such permission.

(2) On receipt of such application the Deputy Commissioner, after making such enquiry as he considers necessary, shall, by order in writing, either—

(a) grant the permission, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the order; or

(b) refuse to grant such permission.

(3) When the Deputy Commissioner grants permission subject to conditions under clause (a) of sub-section (2) or refuses to grant permission under clause (b) of sub-section (2), the conditions imposed or the grounds of refusal shall be such as are reasonable having regard to the circumstances of each case.

(4) The Deputy Commissioner shall not refuse permission to the erection or re-erection of a building, not being a dwelling house, if such building is required for purposes subservient to agriculture, nor shall the permission to erect or re-erect any such building be made subject to any conditions other than those which may be necessary to ensure that the building will be used solely for the purposes specified in the application for permission.

(5) The Deputy Commissioner shall not refuse permission to the erection or re-erection of a building which was in existence on the date on which the declaration under sub-section (1) of section 3 was made, nor shall he impose any conditions in respect of such erection or re-erection unless it involves the addition of one or more storeys to the building or the extension of the plinth area of the building by more than one-eighth of the original plinth area, or there is a probability that the building will be used for a purpose other than that for which it was used on the date on which the said declaration was made.

(6) If at the expiration of a period of three months after an application under sub-section (1) has been made to the Deputy Commissioner no order in writing has been passed by the Deputy Commissioner permission shall be deemed to have been given without the imposition of any conditions.

(7) The Deputy Commissioner shall maintain a register with sufficient particulars of all permissions given by him under this section and the register shall be available for inspection without charge by all persons interested and such persons shall be entitled to take extracts therefrom.

7. (1) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Deputy Commissioner under sub-section (2) of section 6 granting permission subject to conditions or refusing permission may within thirty days from the date of such order prefer an appeal to the Chief Commissioner.

Right of appeal.

(2) The order of the Chief Commissioner on appeal shall be final.

8. (1) No person shall be entitled to claim compensation under this or any other Act for any injury, damage or loss caused or alleged to have been caused by an order—

Compensation.

(a) refusing permission to make or extend an excavation, or granting such permission but imposing conditions on the grant, or

(b) refusing permission to lay out a means of access to a road, or granting such permission but imposing conditions on the grant, or

(c) granting permission to erect or re-erect a building but imposing conditions on the grant.

(2) When an order has been made refusing permission to erect or re-erect a building any person who has exercised the right of appeal given by sub-section (1) of section 7 may, within three months of the date of the order of the Chief Commissioner, make to the Chief Commissioner a claim for compensation on the ground that his interest in the land concerned is injuriously affected by the said order:

Provided that no claim for compensation may be made under this sub-section in respect of any land situated in a controlled area adjoining a road which has been constructed after the commencement of this Act or which was not at the commencement of this Act a road within the meaning of clause (4) of section 2.

(3) On receipt of a claim under sub-section (2) the Chief Commissioner shall either proceed to acquire the land concerned under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, or transfer the claim for disposal to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under the said Act:

Provided that in case the Chief Commissioner decides to acquire the land, the claimant shall be entitled to be repaid by the acquiring authority the amount of expense which he may have properly incurred in connection with the preparation and submission of his claim for compensation under this section, and in default of agreement such amount shall be determined by the authority deciding the value of the land in the proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the settlement of a claim by mutual agreement.

9. If the Chief Commissioner decides to acquire the land under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, then, notwithstanding anything contained in that Act,— Compulsory acquisition.

(i) proceedings under section 5-A of that Act shall not be required;

(ii) the notification under section 6 of that Act shall be published within six months from the date of institution of the claim, failing which the claim shall be transferred for disposal to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under that Act;

(iii) the market value of the land shall be assessed as though no declaration under section 3 (1) had been made in respect of the area in which it is situated and no restrictions upon its use and development had been imposed, any compensation already paid to the claimant or to any of his predecessors in interest for injurious affection being deducted from the market value as so assessed.

10. (1) When a claim is transferred for disposal under section 8 or section 9 to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, such officer shall make an award determining the amount of compensation, if any, payable to the claimant.

Amount of compensation
how determined.

(2) The amount of compensation awarded under sub-section (1) shall in no case exceed—

(a) the amount that would have been payable if the land had been acquired under section 9 or

(b) the difference between the market value of the land in its existing condition having regard to the restrictions actually imposed upon its use and development by the order refusing permission to erect or re-erect a building thereon, and its market value immediately before the publication under sub-section (2) of section 3 of the notification in pursuance of which the area in which it is situated was declared to be a controlled area, and no compensation shall be awarded under sub-section (1)—

(i) unless the claimant satisfies the officer making the award that proposals for the development of the land which at the date of the application under sub-section (1) of section 6 are immediately practicable, or would have been so, if this Act had not been passed, are prevented or injuriously affected by the restrictions imposed under this Act, or

(ii) if and in so far as the land is subject to substantially similar restrictions in force under some other enactment which were so in force at the date when the restrictions were imposed under this Act; or

(iii) if compensation in respect of the same restrictions in force under this Act or of substantially similar restrictions in force under some other enactment has already been paid in respect of the land to the claimant or to any predecessor in interest of the claimant.

(3) The provisions of Parts III, IV, V and VIII of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, shall so far as may be apply to an award made under sub-section (1) as though it were an award made under that Act.

11. Nothing in this Act shall affect the power of any authority to acquire land or to impose restrictions upon the use and development of land under any other enactment for the time being in force.

Saving for other enactments.

12. (1) No land within a controlled area shall be used for the purposes of a charcoal-kiln, pottery-kiln or lime-kiln and no land either within or outside a controlled area shall be used for the purposes of a brick-field or brick-kiln except under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a licence from the Chief Commissioner which shall be renewable annually.

Prohibition of use of any
without a licence.

(2) The Chief Commissioner may charge such fees for the grant and renewal of such licences and may impose such conditions in respect thereof as may be prescribed.

(3) No person shall be entitled to claim compensation under this or any other Act for any injury, damage or loss caused or alleged to have been caused by the refusal of a licence under sub-section (1).

Offences and penalties.

13. (1) Any person who—

(a) erects or re-erects any building or makes or extends any excavation or lays out any means of access to a road in contravention of the provisions of section 5 or in contravention of any conditions imposed by an order under section 6 or section 7, or shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees and, in the case of a continuing contravention, with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day after the date of the first conviction during which he is proved to have persisted in the contravention.

(b) uses any land in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 12,

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (1), the Deputy Commissioner may order any person who has committed a breach of the provisions of the said sub-section to restore to its original state or to bring into conformity with the conditions which have been violated, as the case may be, any building or land in respect of which a contravention such as is described in the said sub-section has been committed, and if such person fails to do so within three months of the order may himself take such measures as may appear to him to be necessary to give effect to the order, and the cost of such measures shall be recoverable from such person as an arrear of land-revenue.

14. No Court inferior to that of a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence punishable under this Act.

Protection of persons acting under this Act.

15. No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

Savings.

16. Nothing in this Act shall apply to—

(a) the erection or re-erection of buildings upon land included in the inhabited site of any village as defined in the revenue records;

(b) the erection or re-erection of a place of worship or a tomb or cenotaph or of a wall enclosing a graveyard, place of worship, cenotaph or samadhi on land which is at the time a notification under sub-section (2) of section 3 is published by the Chief Commissioner occupied by or for the purposes of such place of worship, tomb, samadhi, cenotaph or graveyard;

(c) excavations (including wells) made in the ordinary course of agricultural operations;

(d) the construction of an unmetalled road intended to give access to land solely for agricultural purposes.

Power to make rules.

17. (1) The Chief Commissioner may make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the form in which applications under sub-section (1) of section 6 shall be made and the information to be furnished in such applications;

(b) the regulation of the laying out of means of access to roads;

(c) the fees to be charged for the grant and renewal of licences under section 12 and the conditions governing such licences.

(3) All rules made under this section shall be subject to the condition of previous publication, which publication shall be made in the Official Gazette and in at least two newspapers printed in a language other than English; and the date to be specified under clause (3) of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, shall not be less than two months from the date on which the draft of the proposed rules was published.

1917	V	The Destruction of Records Act, 1917.	Repealed in part, XII of 1927.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill :—

“In present conditions documents are required to be placed in the custody of Government officers under a large number of enactments. In many of these Acts no provision exists for the destruction of such of them as have become valueless. For example there is no provision for the destruction of documents lodged with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under the Registration of Societies Act (XXI of 1860), the Provident Insurance Societies Act (V of 1912), the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act (VI of 1912), and the Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913); nor could such papers be dealt with under the Destruction of Records Act (III of 1879), as it stands. It is accordingly proposed to repeal and re-enact the Act of 1879 so as to make it conform to modern requirements. The principal feature of the draft Bill is that it empowers certain authorities to frame rules for the disposal by destruction or otherwise of documents which they may consider not of sufficient public value to justify preservation, and provides for the delegation to subordinate officers of the rule-making powers vested in the Local Government. The rule-making powers already vested in the High Courts and the Chief Controlling Revenue authorities by Act III of 1879 will not be affected by this Bill. To avoid overlapping, it is proposed to repeal the provisions of the enactments mentioned in this Schedule.”—(Fort St. George Gazette, Part III, 20th February, 1919, p. 2.)

REPEAL OF ENACTMENTS.²

[Rep. in part by Act XXV of 1942.]

[17th March, 1939.

An Act to consolidate and clarify the provisions of Muslim law relating to suits for dissolution of marriage by women married under Muslim law and to remove doubts as to the effect of the renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman on her marriage tie.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and clarify the provisions of Muslim law relating to suits for dissolution of marriage by women married under Muslim law and to remove doubts as to the effect of the renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman on her marriage tie; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE DISSOLUTION OF MUSLIM MARRIAGES ACT, 1939.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. A woman married under Muslim law shall be entitled to obtain a decree for the dissolution of her marriage on any one or more of the following grounds, namely:

(i) that the whereabouts of the husband have not been known for a period of four years;

(ii) that the husband has neglected or has failed to provide for her maintenance for a period of two years;

SEC. 2: DISSOLUTION OF MARRIAGE—DECISION BY OATH OF WITNESS OR ARBITRATION—LEGALITY.—In a suit for dissolution of marriage under the Dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act, it is the Court which has to perform the function of a Qazi and it is the pronouncement of the Court made on a consideration of the evidence led in the case which dissolves the marriage, and that function cannot be delegated by the Court to anyone else either by arbitration or by accepting the statement of a witness on oath even with the consent of a party at least on an immaterial point in the case. 47 P.L.R. 119—A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 183.

Ground for divorce—Wife hating husband—Husband contracting debts. The fact that the wife has begun to hate the husband as he has been leading a shameful life is not a ground for divorce. Nor is the fact that the husband has been contracting debts or that he has taken any debts from the wife's mother deceitfully a ground. 46 P.L.R. 343.

SEC. 2 (ii): RETROSPECTIVE EFFECT.—When an Act is intended to provide a remedy for what is considered to be an existing unsatisfactory state of affairs, the intention is clearly that the remedy should be applied even though this may involve giving retrospective effect to some of its provisions. Consequently, S. (2) (ii) must be taken as intended to apply with retrospective effect. 194 I.C. 567=1941 Lah. 167. See also 1941 Lah. 292=43 P.L.R. 394=196 I.C. 139.

FAILURE TO MAINTAIN—IF MUST BE WILFUL.—There is nothing in the wording of S. 2 (ii) to suggest that the failure to maintain the wife must be wilful. Divorce can be granted on grounds which do not necessarily involve any deliberate default on the part of the husband. It is absolutely immaterial whether the failure to maintain is due to poverty, failing health, loss of work, imprisonment or to any other cause whatsoever. 194 I.C. 567=1941 Lah. 167. See also 1944 Lah. 336.

The maintenance contemplated is Cl. (11) of S. 2 is adequate maintenance—the provision of food, raiment and lodging, adequate for the wife; the statute cannot be defeated by half-hearted attempts at providing maintenance or providing maintenance which is not reasonably adequate. It is further absolutely immaterial whether the failure to maintain is due to poverty, failing health, loss of work, imprisonment, or any other cause whatsoever. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 327.

SEC. 2 (ii).—Husband's failure to maintain wife.—When entitles her to divorce. A Mahomedan husband is not legally bound to provide maintenance for his wife if the latter without reasonable cause refuses to live with her husband, disobeys his instructions and declines to co-habit with him and the husband's failure to maintain his wife in such circumstances cannot entitle the wife to a divorce under S. 2 (ii). A Mahomedan wife cannot compel her husband to divorce his other wife and if she refuses to live with her husband unless he divorced his other wife, there is no liability on the husband to maintain the wife and his failure to do so would not entitle the wife to a divorce under S. 2 (ii). A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 336=216 I.C. 194. If the wife is not ready and willing to perform her part of marital duties during the period in which she is living separately, the husband is under no obligation to maintain her, and his failure to maintain her in such circumstances does not bring the case within the ambit of S. 2 (ii). 46 P.L.R. 343=1945 Lah. 56. Where a Mahomedan husband refuses to pay the prompt dower due to his wife and the wife is forced to file a suit against him for it, she can refuse to stay with the husband and the latter is bound to maintain her even when she is staying apart from him for non-payment of her dower. No blame can attach to the wife as it is the failure of the husband to carry out his contract that gives her a right under the Mahomedan Law to refuse to go and live with him. Where the husband in such circumstances fails to maintain his wife, and never makes any attempt to induce his wife to go and live with him and does not send any one to fetch her to him in a proper and decent manner recording to the prevalent social custom of the parties, the husband must be held to have deliberately neglected to maintain his wife, and the latter is entitled to a dissolution of her marriage under S. 2 (ii) of the Act. 12 Cut.L.T. 5. See also 1941 Sind 23. The word 'neglect' implies wilful default or failure. Hence where a wife, through her own conduct in going away to her parent's house and not returning to the husband's

(iii) that the husband has been sentenced to imprisonment for a period of seven years or upwards;

(iv) that the husband has failed to perform, without reasonable cause, his marital obligations for a period of three years;

(v) that the husband was impotent at the time of the marriage and continues to be so;

(vi) that the husband has been insane for a period of two years or is suffering from leprosy or a virulent venereal disease;

(vii) that she, having been given in marriage by her father or other guardian before she attained the age of fifteen years, repudiated the marriage before attaining the age of eighteen years;

Provided that the marriage has not been consummated;

(viii) that the husband treats her with cruelty, that is to say—

(a) habitually assaults her or makes her life miserable by cruelty of conduct even if such conduct does not amount to physical ill-treatment, or house, leads the husband to stop her maintenance, the Court will not allow dissolution of marriage for that would be giving her a benefit—if benefit it can be called—arising from her own wrongful acts. 1943 A.L.J. 540=1943 A.L.W. 582=1943 A.W.R. (H. C.) 264. Act VIII of 1939 does not lay down that its provisions shall be subject to the principles of Mahomedan law. The Act is complete in itself and crystallizes a portion of Mahomedan Law which before it came into force was not codified and consisted of principles only. All that has to be decided is whether the husband has maintained his wife for two years preceding the suit, irrespective of the fact whether the woman was entitled to maintenance or not under Muslim law. The Act does not make any difference between a rich wife and a poor wife. The responsibility of the husband to provide for his wife will continue even if she has her own personal property of great value. 209 I.C. 248=1943 Pesh. 73. Act is not subject to Mahomedan law.—The fact that the dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act, 8 of 1939, repealed S. 5 of N.W.F.P. Muslim Personal law ((Shariat) Application Act, 26 of 1937, clearly shows that the Legislature intended that the general provisions of Mahomedan law should not control the operation of Act 8 of 1939. The inference is clear that Act 8 of 1939 was expected to be complete by itself. The question whether a woman was entitled to maintenance under Mahomedan law would, therefore, be absolutely foreign to the inquiry under Act 8 of 1939, as to whether a marriage should be dissolved for failure on the part of the husband to pay maintenance. S. 2 (ii) has been deliberately couched in very wide terms so that a woman should be protected in any case, and there was no intention whatsoever that the Courts should find out whether the woman was entitled to maintenance or not under the Muslim law before they considered her claim to dissolution of marriage on the ground of failure to pay maintenance. A.I.R. 1945 Pesh. 51. See also 1943 Pesh. 73. "Period of two years"—Meaning and computation of S. 2 (ii) contemplates an unbroken period of two years next before the suit and not periods aggregating to two years, and the period must be that immediately preceding the suit and not a period of at least two years which has been followed by a period during which the wife has been maintained. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 327. A Muslim husband neglected and failed to provide maintenance for his wife for a period of ten years. In pursuance of a Magistrate's order, however, he had been paying maintenance allowance to his wife for some months during two years preceding the suit by the wife for the dissolution of the marriage. Held, that the payment of maintenance during two years preceding the suit did not debar the wife from relying on S. 2 (ii) in respect of the earlier period of ten years as a good ground for the dissolution of her marriage. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 114=193 I.C. 347=13 R. S. 237=A.I.R. 1941 Sind 23.

SEC. 2 (vii).—S. 2 (vii) cannot be construed as allowing a woman who has been given in marriage by her father before she attained the age of puberty to repudiate the marriage in the same way as if she had been given in marriage by her uncle. All that S. 2 (vii) provides is that if a woman who has been given in marriage by her father before she has attained the age of 15 years repudiates the marriage before she has attained the age of 18 years, she is entitled to obtain a decree for dissolution of the marriage. Until she has obtained a decree that the marriage has been dissolved, the marriage must be regarded as subsisting. Where the woman concerned has not obtained a decree for the dissolution of marriage, she is not under the Mahomedan law as it stands, since she was given in marriage by her father, entitled to repudiate the marriage as if she had been given in marriage by her uncle. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 3=15 R.S. 10=43 Cr.L.J. 647=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 92.

S53. 2 (viii) (a).—The wife was forced to live away from her husband for about 12

- (b) associates with women of evil repute or leads an infamous life, or
- (c) attempts to force her to lead an immoral life, or
- (d) disposes of her property or prevents her exercising her legal rights over it, or
- (e) obstructs her in the observance of her religious profession or practice, or
- ((f) if he has more wives than one, does not treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran;
- ((ix) on any other ground which is recognised as valid for the dissolution of marriages under Muslim law:

Provided that—

- (a) no decree shall be passed on ground (iii) until the sentence has become final;
- (b) a decree passed on ground (i) shall not take effect for a period of six months from the date of such decree, and if the husband appears either in person or through an authorized agent within that period and satisfies the Court that he is prepared to perform his conjugal duties, the Court shall set aside the said decree; and years on account of his ill-treatment and her life was being made miserable by reasons of the fact that a return to her husband's house was out of the question as it meant submission to conditions impossible to a self-respecting woman. She was compelled to do without the society of her husband and could not marry any other person. She was forced to the degrading position of having to live with and be a burden upon her parents. Held, that it was reasonable in the circumstances to say that the husband was making her life miserable by cruelty of conduct within the meaning of S. 2 (viii) (a). I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 114=A.I.R. 1941 Sind 23.

Sec. 2 (viii) (d) —S. 2 (viii) (d) read as a whole seems to convey that the property must have been disposed of with the object or intention of preventing the wife from exercising her rights without her wishes or consent. The word "property" in the sub-clause should be interpreted in the sense of a substantial portion of a wife's property and its disposal in the sense of getting rid of that property not for the wife's benefit but for the selfish ends of the husband not with the object of meeting a pressing need but more in the sense of waste and this also done with the object of depriving the wife of her property and not with her consent or for things in and from which her consent might have been reasonably and legitimately presumed, implied or inferred. 46 P. L.R. 343=1945 Lah. 56. Where certain articles were left by the wife in her husband's house when she went to her parent's house with a view to their being used after her return, and she never came back to her husband's house where they remained, it cannot be said that the husband has prevented her from exercising her legal rights over such property within the meaning of S. 2 (viii) (d) of the Act. 1943 A.L.J. 540=1943 A.L.W. 582=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 264.

Sec. 2 (viii) (f).—A wife is entitled to a decree for dissolution of marriage, if her husband fails to provide for her maintenance for a period of two years, marries another wife and does not treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran. 45 P.L.R. 336=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 310. Under the Act a Mahomedan husband has to treat all his wives equitably in accordance with the injunctions of Quran. Where a husband marries a second wife when his first wife either of her own accord or because of her parents' fault fails to live with her husband, she cannot claim dissolution of marriage on the ground that she has not been treated equitably. In fact the husband has had no chance of treating her at all equitably or otherwise. 1943 A.L.J. 540=1943 A.L.W. 582=1943 O.A. (H.C.) 264=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 264. It is only a very gross failure to render to a wife her just rights that could be considered by a Court as a ground for dissolution of the marriage. Where there has never, after the separation of the wife due to ill-treatment, been any real intention on the part of the husband or positive effort to treat the wife as a wife at all, much less to treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran, or even on a footing which, having regard to human imperfections and to the circumstances of the husband, could be considered as an honest effort in that direction, the case falls within the purview of S. 2 (viii) (f), I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 114=A.I.R. 1941 Sind 23.

Sec. 2 (ix).—The words 'Muslim Law' in S. 2 (ix) of the Act were employed by the Legislature to convey that divorce could be granted by the Courts for reasons for which it could have been granted under the shariat regardless of the fact whether that reason had been recognized by the British Indian Courts or not. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 51.

(c) before passing a decree on ground (v) the Court shall, on application by the husband, make an order requiring the husband to satisfy the Court within a period of one year from the date of such order that he has ceased to be impotent, and if the husband so satisfies the Court within such period, no decree shall be passed on the said ground.

Notice to be served on heirs of the husband when the husband's whereabouts are not known.

3. In a suit to which clause (i) of section 2 applies—

(a) the names and addresses of the persons who would have been the heirs of the husband under Muslim law if he had died on the date of the filing of the plaint shall be stated in the plaint,

(b) notice of the suit shall be served on such persons, and

(c) such persons shall have the right to be heard in the suit:

Provided that paternal uncle and brother of the husband, if any, shall be cited as party even if he or they are not heirs.

4. The renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman or her conversion to a faith other than Islam shall not by itself operate to dissolve her marriage:

Provided that after such renunciation, or conversion, the woman shall be entitled to obtain a decree for the dissolution of her marriage on any of the grounds mentioned in section 2:

Provided further that the provisions of this section shall not apply to a woman converted to Islam from some other faith who re-embraces her former faith.

5. Nothing contained in this Act shall affect any right which a married woman may have under Muslim law to her dower or any part thereof on the dissolution of her marriage.

6. Section 5 of the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937, is hereby repealed. —(Repealed by Act XXV of 1942).]

Repeal of section 5 of Act XXVI of 1937.

SECTION 4: SEC. NOT RETROSPECTIVE.—S. 4 is not retrospective in its operation, and it applies only to renunciations or conversions which take place after the Act came into force. If the renunciation took place before the Act came into force, the marriage would be dissolved automatically without any decree of Court. 43 P.L.R. 394—A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 292. See also 191 I.C. 420. The words “the renunciation. . . shall not by itself operate to dissolve the marriage,” are incapable of the interpretation “never has had the effect of dissolving the marriage.” Indeed, the words of the statute are capable of only one meaning, namely, in future the renunciation will not dissolve a marriage. The enacting words being unambiguous, there is no occasion to resort to the preamble for aid in construing the statute, the Act is therefore not retrospective. Before the passing of the Act the law was that a marriage between Muslims became, under the texts, null and void, on either party apostatizing. 196 I.C. 127—A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 291.

THE DIVORCE ACT (IV OF 1869).¹

[26th February, 1869.

An Act to amend the law relating to Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the divorce of persons professing the Christian religion, and to confer upon certain Courts jurisdiction in matters matrimonial ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

SEC. 1.—Jurisdiction in matrimonial causes was not based on a so-called matrimonial domicile when the Indian Councils Act was passed in 1861. 47 B. 843=25 Bom.L.R. 945=1923 B. 321. See also 143 I.C. 618=1933 Sind 70; 1933 A.L.J. 8=1933 A. 39. Act does not confer jurisdiction on the Court to dissolve the marriages of non-domiciled parties. 47 B. 843. Relief not involving the status of the parties may be granted under the Act if the conditions of residence are satisfied. 47 B. 843. Municipal Law of a country may lay down its own test for creating jurisdiction within its own boundaries even in cases where the status of the parties is involved. 47 B. 843. Whether Act applies to British subjects in Native States, see 10 B. 422. Relief under the Act cannot be granted to Jews. 34 C.W.N. 319=57 C. 1089=1930 C. 558. On this section, see also 38 B. 125; 8 Bom.L.R. 856; 17 M. 235. As to the jurisdiction of Indian Courts under the Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act, 16 & 17 Geo. (3 Mys.C.C.R. 78, Foll.). Divorce Act is and always has been within the legislative powers conferred upon the Indian legislature by the Indian Councils Act, 1861. 47 B. 843. There is a definite established practice in the Court for divorce and matrimonial causes in England that the evidence of the husband or the wife alone is never to be accepted without corroboration either by witnesses or at least by strong surrounding circumstances. This salutary rule will be followed. 1935 O.W.N. 103=1935 Oudh 133. Wild rumour and baseless suspicious cannot take the place of legal testimony which is required to substantiate an allegation of unchastity or immorality. Vague and indefinite evidence is insufficient for the

DUTY OF COURT IN EX PARTE PROCEEDINGS.

—When in an application for divorce neither the respondent nor the co-respondent seek to resist the petition, the duty of special circum-spection is thrown upon the Court. The Court has discretion in certain specified events either to pronounce a decree for divorce or to dismiss the petition. The exercise of that discretion must be regular and systematic. For this purpose the Judge should make free use of his power to look into all the necessary circumstances even though his attention is not called to them by the party. The danger of collusion between the parties must always be borne in mind especially when there has been a long delay in applying to the Court for relief. 143 I.C. 618=1933 S. 70; 26 S.L.R. 423=1933 S. 27. Undefended divorce action—Trial of—Necessity for hearing in open Court—Trial held in breach of rule of publicity—Effect on decree—Principles—Setting aside—Time for. 40 C.W.N. 448=70 M.L. J. 385 (P.C.).

SEC. 2: EFFECT OF AMENDING ACT OF 1926.

—By the Amending Act the jurisdiction of the Indian Courts under sec. 2 of the Act has been taken away only in respect of making decrees of dissolution of marriage between parties who are not domiciled in India. The other reliefs under the Act and the power to make decrees of nullity of marriage remain unaffected, the only requirements in the latter case being that the parties profess the Christian religion, the marriage has been solemnized in India and the petitioner is resident in India at the time of presenting the petition. 130 I.C. 524=1931 L. 245. As a result of the amendment in 1926 of sec. 2 of the Act, Courts in India are permitted to make decrees of nullity of marriage even though the parties presenting the petition are not domiciled in India. I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 417=41 C.W.N. 268. The effect of sec. 2 of the Act is that so far as a suit for dissolution of marriage is concerned a domiciled British subject resident beyond British India, i.e., in Mysore can invoke the jurisdiction of the Madras High Court, but as regards a suit for nullity of marriage, any person resident in India who has been married in India can bring such a suit in the High Court. 59 M. 509 and 518=1936 M. 324=70 M.L.J. 321 (F.B.). Defect in the Act pointed out and amendment of the Act suggested. See 62 C. 82=39 C.W.N. 95.

JURISDICTION.—To grant relief under the Act, it must be proved that the conditions of sec. 2 are strictly complied with. See 29 C. W.N. 350=62 C. 379=1925 C. 585 (F.B.). See also 52 C. 566=89 I.C. 611=1925 C. 874.

Courts in India are not empowered to decree dissolution of the marriage between persons not domiciled within their jurisdiction. 1923 R. 223. The provisions of sec. 2 as to the residence apply to cases when the parties are domiciled in India but where the parties are domiciled in England, they cannot override the express provisions in sec. 7. (Ibid.). See also 143 I.C. 618=1933 Sind 70. Sec. 2 makes it clear that unless the parties to the marriage are domiciled in India at the time when the petition is presented, there is no jurisdiction in a District Court to dissolve the marriage and a decree, even if confirmed, would not be effective. If a decree for dissolution of marriage is granted by a Court having no jurisdiction, the marriage would subsist and either of the parties going through a subsequent form of marriage would be guilty of bigamy and any issue from such subsequent union would be illegitimate. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 765=45 P.L.R. 313=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 260 (S.B.). But as a result of the amendment of 1926, Courts in India are permitted to make decrees of nullity of marriage even though the parties preventing the petition are not domiciled in India. 169 I.C. 948=41 C.W.N. 268=I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 417. The proper form of a decree to be passed in the first instance in a suit on the original side of the High Court for declaration of nullity of a marriage is that of a decree nisi and not a decree absolute. 59 M. 509 and 518=1936 M. 324=70 M.L.J. 321 (F.B.). Court should enquire and set out in the judgment facts relied on as conferring jurisdiction. 32 A. 293=5 I.C. 871=7 A.L.J. 193.

DOMICILE.—In a case of divorce, it is important to consider the question of domicile from the outset, because it goes to the very root of jurisdiction. 58 C. 1332=135 I.C. 455=1932 C. 161. See also 138 I.C. 611=1932 L. 468 (S.B.). It is necessary to see that there is proper proof of Indian domicile before giving a decree under the Act. The fact that the petitioner is shown to have been born in India and residing there is not sufficient to prove Indian domicile. 60 C. 601=144 I.C. 827=37 C.W.N. 255=1933 C. 524 (S.B.). Domicile in India at the time of the presentation of the petition for divorce is an absolute necessary condition of jurisdiction so far as regards divorce. The domicile of the parties means in practice the domicile of the husband. The burden of proving that a person has changed the domicile is on the person who alleges it. Where the petitioner was shown to have come to India to earn a living and intended to remain there so long as an opportunity to obtain a livelihood was open to him but he had formed no intention to settle in any one place. Held, that there being no intention to reside and establish himself in India for the rest of his days it could not be said that the petitioner was domiciled in India. 56 C. 530=1929 C. 599. The question of domicile should be treated with care, for unless the parties to the marriage are domiciled in India at the time when the petition is presented there is no jurisdiction in a District Court to dissolve the marriage. Residence alone, for however long a period, is by no means the test, and a safer guide is to enquire where the person, whose domicile is in question, intends to end his days. Every independent person can acquire a domicile of choice by the combination of residence and intention of permanent or indefinite residence but not otherwise. To these may be added the further propositions that the presumption of law is against a change of domicile, which must be proved by the person alleging it, and that a wife's domicile is the domicile of her husband. Where a European claims to be domiciled in India, it will be pertinent to enquire where his father lived and died or resides as the case may be, where he and his father were born, the circumstances in which he came to and resides in India, which will assist in ascertaining whether there exists an animus revertendi or an animus manendi, his object in residing in India, and generally as to the conditions under which he lives and his habits of life. 58 C. 259=1931 C. 383 (S.B.). See also 1943 Lah. 360. The presumption of law is that the domicile of origin continues and is against change of domicile. A change of domicile has to be strictly proved and evidence of a mere expression of intention to change is not sufficient. To prove a change of domicile it is necessary that the evidence should establish the intention of a person permanently to settle down in the country of his choice and to abandon forever the country of his origin as his residence. 223 I.C. 637=48 P.L.R. 72. A change of domicile from that of origin to one of choice—apart from any statutory declaration—has to be strictly proved and a very heavy onus lies on any person alleging such change. To establish such change the most cogent evidence is necessary and mere evidence of an expression of intention, supported by nothing else, is not sufficient. It is necessary that the evidence should establish the intention of a person permanently to settle down in the country of his choice and to abandon forever the country of his origin as his residence. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 765=45 P.L.R. 313=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 260 (S.B.). Sec. 11, Succession Act, merely provides a means for acquiring an Indian domicile for the purposes of succession under that Act. The making of a declaration under that section will not, therefore, affect the declarant's domicile for purposes of divorce. For the latter purposes the domicile of origin can only be changed when a person abandons the country of his origin and adopts the country of his choice as his permanent home. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 765=45 P.L.R. 313=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 260 (S.B.). See also 1945 Sind 153; 1945 Sind 171 (S.B.); I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 489=45 P.L.R. 186=1943 Lah. 62.

Domicile must be decided on the facts as they exist and not on future possibilities. Every person must have a domicile and until the petitioner abandons his present domicile in India and becomes domiciled in some other country, he will remain within the jurisdiction of the Indian Courts. 1931 O. 126=8 O.W. N. 177. Where the petitioner alleged that he had been in India for 15 years and that the had no intention of returning to England and the respondent also stated that the intended to settle in India and it was proved that they had lived in India since the date of their marriage. Held, that their statements that they had made India their domicile could be accepted and the petition for divorce be entertained. 7 R. 313=119 I.C. 220=1939 R. 216 (S.R.). The mere statement of the petitioner, who is 42 years old and is in this country, because he is in the service of the Railway that he intends to continue to reside here is not proof of his domicile in India. 174 I.C. 992=1938 Lah. 292. Domicile is of two kinds: domicile of origin and domicile of choice. The domicile of origin is irrevocably ascertained at the parties' nativity. A domicile of choice, he can indeed acquire; but the domicile of origin remains in abeyance and is at any moment ready to revive. Every presumption is to be made in favour of the original domicile. It is for the party who relies on a change of domicile to prove a double intention: the intention of abandoning his domicile of origin and the intention of adopting the domicile of choice. A domicile of choice is not established by mere assertion. The petitioner left his native land under orders and not of his own free will. He came to India in obedience to other authority and not in the exercise of any choice of his own. Being thus transplanted he did not strike root. The petitioner, moreover was neither a householder, nor any member of any club in India, nor was he permanently employed. Held, that the petitioner was not domiciled in India. 1933 Sind 70=143 I.C. 618. If the domicile of the parties be English the Courts in India have no jurisdiction to dissolve their marriage notwithstanding that it was solemnized in India and that the adultery was committed in India. 1933 S. 70=143 I.C. 618.

RESIDENCE.—Residence in India is sufficient to give the Court jurisdiction under the Act, though the party retains a foreign domicile. 40 C. 215=17 C.W.N. 491; 53 C. 282=1926 C. 871. See also 5 L. 147 (161) (F.B.). Intention has nothing whatever to do with the question of residence. Whether or not a person resides in a particular district is a question of fact depending upon the evidence. Mere casual or temporary visits do not constitute "residence" within the meaning of the Act. C, a Railway employee, had official quarters provided for him by the Railway Company at Gondia, in the C.P. He had a bungalow there, and in the same compound an office. C had himself furnished the bungalow allotted to him. His position as Inspector entailed a good deal of travelling over the Railway line, and in every month he used to be for several days away from Gondia. But when in Gondia he lived at the quarters assigned to him. Shortly before the petition was filed, C came to Allahabad for two days and thereafter every month for the same period, and on each occasion he saw his counsel in connection with his case. It was also alleged that he busied himself in trying to discover some portion of land which might be suitable for carrying on farming operations when he would retire from the Railway and set up business as a farmer and as a breeder of dogs. Held, that C had failed to establish that he was residing in Allahabad and his residence within the meaning of sec. 3 (1) was in Gondia. 1933 A. 385=1933 A. L.J. 579; 144 I.C. 136=1933 A.L.J. 8=1933 A. 39. See also 37 Bom.L.R. 55=1935 B. 121; 1942 Cal. 42. There will be a valid divorce in India though the marriage may be valid in the country of the domicile of origin. 40 C. 215=17 C.W.N. 491. Residence of the petitioner must be bona fide and not casual or as a traveller. 38 B. 125=15 Bom.L.R. 593. See also 32 A. 293. The High Court has no jurisdiction to grant a decree for restitution either against a Parsi respondent or a respondent not within Presidency. 38 B. 125=15 Bom.L.R. 593. In a divorce case before a final decree is passed the Court must definitely come to a finding on the question whether the marriage was solemnized in India and on what date. 57 I.C. 43=31 C.L.J. 340. Where in a petition for dissolution of marriage, the petitioner stated that her husband went to and fro from India and cohabited with her at various places and the last place of cohabitation was at some definite place in India. Held, that at the time of cohabitation both parties were domiciled in India and thus it conferred jurisdiction on Courts in India to hear the petition. 167 I.C. 743=1937 P. 82=18 Pat.L.J. 686.

RESIDENCE IN INDIA AS MEMBER OF ARMY—WHETHER CONFERS INDIAN DOMICILE.—An Englishman or Scotsman serving in His Majesty's Forces in India cannot acquire an Indian domicile by reason of his residence in India, as such residence is not voluntary but is due to the terms of his service. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 765=45 P.L.R. 313=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 260 (S.B.). While the chief or principal domicile of a party may remain unaltered, namely, the domicile which affects the status of marriage, there may be by a statutory enactment a qualified limited domicile added as it were to and qualifying the chief and principal domicile. Such a domicile is contemplated by the Indian Legislature in sec. 11, Succession Act, 1925. The domicile to be acquired under sec. 11 is to be acquired only for the purpose of the Act in which the section itself occurs and by the provisions of this Act, it is domicile only for succession to imovable property for which sec. 11 provides. A member of the Armed Forces of the United States, having not the very least intention of residing permanently in India cannot by a year's enforced residence in India and by a mere declaration of a desire to acquire domicile, acquire such a domicile as would give jurisdiction to the Indian Court in the dissolution of his marriage. 1945 Sind 171.

Per O'Sullivan, J.—A domicile of choice is acquired by residence accompanied by the Extent of power to grant relief generally. ¹[Nothing hereinafter contained shall authorise any Court to grant any relief under this Act, except where the petitioner (or respondent)² professes the Christian religion.]

and to make decrees of dissolution. [or to make decrees of dissolution of marriage except where the parties to the marriage are domiciled in India at the time when the petition is presented, or of nullity. [or to make decrees of nullity of marriage except where the marriage has been solemnized in India, and the petitioner is resident in India at the time of presenting the petition, animus manendi or intention to remain. A person may express, whether by a statutory declaration or otherwise, an intention which he does not in fact have. Expressions of intention whether written or oral may be given as evidence of the intention but they can never be conclusive evidence. They are to be weighed and even if the expressions are clear and consistent they cannot prevail against a course of conduct leading to an opposite inference. A.I.R. 1945 Sind 171 (S.B.).

RIGHT TO INTERVENE.—In a suit for divorce under this Act by a wife against her husband on the ground of adultery with a named woman, the latter has no right to intervene, whereas in a similar suit under the Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act she can so intervene. This defect in the Indian Act has to be removed by legislation. 62 C. 82=1935 C. 456.

PROFESSION OF CHRISTIANITY.—Relief under the Act can be granted only to Christians and not to non-Christians as Jews. 57 C. 1089=34 C.W.N. 319. Words 'or respondent'—Effect—One of the parties being Christian and other Parsi—Petition for restitution of conjugal rights—Maintainability. See 32 Bom.L.R. 1046=54 B. 877=1930 B. 385. A person does not cease to profess Christianity within the meaning of sec. 2 merely because she has been ex-communicated by the sect or the Church to which she belongs. 46 M. 839=45 M.L.J. 208=1924 M. 18. The question of profession of Christianity is a question of the party's own action and not of the action of the Church. (Ibid.) The conversion to Christianity of one of two married Hindus does not dissolve the marriage. (Ibid.)

SECS. 2 AND 7: MARRIAGE ACCORDING TO ARYA SAMAJ RITES—ONE OF PARTIES CHRISTIAN AT TIME OF PETITION—APPLICABILITY OF

ACT.—By virtue of sec. 2 of the Divorce Act as amended by Act XXX of 1927, the Act is applicable to a case where the parties had been married according to the Arya Samaj rites, if one of them is a Christian at the time when the petition for dissolution of marriage is presented. There is nothing in sec. 7 of the Act to bar relief in such a case. The effect of this latter section is that the Indian Courts may be deprived of jurisdiction if and only if the principles on which the Divorce Court in England acts would exclude relief. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 340=47 C.W.N. 251=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 146.

SEC. 3 (1): JURISDICTION—RESIDENCE.—As to jurisdiction of Chief Court (now High Court) Punjab, see 10 I.C. 487=47 P.R. 1911. As to residence conferring jurisdiction, see 36 C. 964=4 I.C. 419. See also 53 C. 282; 59 B. 570=37 Bom.L.R. 55=1935 Bom. 121; 39 Bom.L.R. 1182. To constitute residence it is not essential that the persons should have a house of their own. It is sufficient to find the place where both parties lived together. 44 Bom. 924; 29 Bom.L.R. 308=100 I.C. 388=1927 B. 230. Per Marten, C.J.—The word 'reside' in sec. 3 does not mean sexual intercourse; the word 'together' in that section does not govern the word 'reside' but only the words 'last resided'. (Ibid.) See also 10 I.C. 487. Intention has nothing whatever to do with the question of residence. Whether or not a person resides in a particular district is a question of fact and depends in each case upon the evidence. Mere casual or temporary visits do not constitute "residence" within the meaning of the Act. 1933 A.L.J. 8=1933 A. 39=144 I.C. 136. See also 154 I.C. 900=37 Bom.L.R. 55=1935 B. 121. See also 1942 Cal. 42=201 I.C. 470.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where a husband and wife had no permanent residence but they last lived together in a Hotel in Bombay for the greater portion of the month the husband then being on leave from active service in Mesopotamia, it was held the Bombay Court had jurisdiction. 45 B. 547=22 Bom. L.R. 1077. See also 38 C.W.N. 347=1934 C. 570=152 I.C. 32. Though both parties to a petition for divorce are residing separately,

"High Court."

(1) ['High Court' means with reference to any area—
 (a) in Bengal, Assam and the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, the High Court at Calcutta;
 (b) in the Provinces of Madras and Coorg, the High Court at Madras;
 (c) in the Province of Bombay and in Panth Piploda, the High Court at Bombay;
 (d) in Agra and Ajmer-Merwara, the High Court at Allahabad;
 (e) in Oudh, the Chief Court of Oudh;
 (f) in the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, British Baluchistan and Delhi, the High Court at Lahore;
 (g) in Bihar and Orissa, the High Court at Patna;
 (h) in the Central Provinces and Berar, the High Court at Nagpur;
 (i) in Sind, the Court of the Judicial Commissioner in Sind; and
 (j) in any Indian State, the Court which is a High Court for the purposes of the Government of India Act, 1935, and exercises original criminal jurisdiction in respect of European British subjects in that area.]

In the case of any petition under this Act, "High Court" means the High Court for the area where the husband and wife reside or last resided together.]

"District Judge."

(2) 'District Judge' means—

(a) in a Province, a Judge of a Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, however designated; and

(b) in any area in an Indian State, such officer as the Central Government shall from time to time appoint in his behalf by notification in the Official Gazette, and in the absence of such an officer the High Court for the area].

(3) "District Court" means, in the case of any petition under this Act, the Court of the District Judge within the local limits of whose ordinary jurisdiction, or of whose jurisdiction under this Act, the husband and wife reside or last resided together :

from each other, the Court has jurisdiction if they lived within the jurisdiction of the Court at the time of the presentation of the petition. 44 B. 924=59 I.C. 931=22 Bom. L.R. 361; but not otherwise; see 76 P.R. 1916=36 I.C. 367=139 P.L.R. 1916. Petition by the wife for judicial separation. The husband was a railway employee. He had no permanent place of residence. Shortly before the petition, he went to Calcutta and lived with his wife and her parents for five days and then separated. Held, that the High Court had jurisdiction to entertain the petition for judicial separation. 152 I.C. 32=38 C.W.N. 347=1934 C. 570. See also 3 O.W. N. 306=1926 O. 319. As to the necessity for residence of husband and wife in order to confer jurisdiction on District Court or Divisional Court, see 7 L.B.R. 5=20 I.C. 399. The resident at Aden is not a District Judge. 37 B. 57=17 I.C. 215=14 Bom.L. R. 872; 130 I.C. 240=1931 C. 121. Judges of Divisional Courts throughout Burma are District Judges under the Act. No appeal, however, lies to the Chief Court from their decision. 6 Bur.L.T. 10=19 I.C. 53 (F.B.).

SEC. 3 (2) (a) AND (1) (d).—Under Divorce Act, sec. 3 (2) (a), 'District Judge' means a Judge of a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction. The Court of the Judicial Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara, has no original civil jurisdiction and the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction is therefore the Court of the District Judge. The High Court for Ajmer is the High Court of Allahabad according to sec. 3 (1) (d). Hence it follows that a petition under sec. 3 of the Divorce Act cannot be entertained by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, Ajmer, as it has no jurisdiction. 1940 A.M.L.J. 1.

SEC. 3 (2) (b), 3 (3) AND 10.—The Deputy Commissioner of the Khasi and Jaintia Hills who has been vested with the powers and duties of a District Judge under the Indian Divorce Act under sec. 6 (a) of the scheduled Districts Act, has jurisdiction and power as a District Judge only within the scheduled District of Khasi and Jaintia Hills which is within British territory. He is not a District Judge in any area in Myllyam State, which is an Indian State, not being an officer appointed by notification in the Official Gazette under s. 3 (2) (b) of the Divorce Act and his Court cannot be regarded as a District Court within the meaning of s. 3 (3) of that Act. Consequently he has no jurisdiction to entertain a petition under s. 10 of the Divorce Act when the parties do not reside within his jurisdiction and they last resided together in Myllyam State. 47 C.W.N. 707.

SEC. 3 (3).—The word "together" in the definition only qualifies the words "last resided" and not the word "reside". (44 B. 924, Foll.) 130 I.C. 240=1931 C. 121. See also 47 P.R. 1911=10 I.C. 487; 1926 O. 319=94 I.C. 952; 1941 A.L.J. 710. Where the husband and wife who lived in various places never had any permanent residence but changed their residence very frequently and last resided together at a certain place for a week, the last residence is sufficient to give the District Court of that place jurisdiction to entertain

"Court."

(4) "Court" means the High Court or the District Court, as the case may be :

(5) "minor children" means, in the case of sons of Native fathers, boys who have not completed the age of sixteen years, and, in the case of daughters of native fathers, girls who

"Minor children." have not completed the age of thirteen years ; in other cases, it means unmarried children who have not completed the age of eighteen years :

(6) "incestuous adultery" means adultery committed by a husband with a woman with whom, if his wife were dead, he could not lawfully contract marriage by reason of her being within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity (whether natural or legal) or affinity :

"Incestuous adultery."

(7) "bigamy with adultery" means adultery with the same woman with whom the bigamy was committed :

"Bigamy with adultery."

(8) "marriage with another woman" means marriage of any person, being married to any other person, during the life of the former wife whether the second marriage shall have taken place within the dominions of Her Majesty or elsewhere ;

"Marriage with another woman."

"Desertion."

(9) "desertion" implies an abandonment against the wish of the person charging it ; and

(10) "property" includes, in the case of a wife, any property to which she is entitled for an estate in remainder or reversion or as a trustee, executrix, or administratrix ; and,

"Property." the date of the death of the testator or intestate shall be deemed to be the time at which any such wife becomes entitled as executrix or administratrix.

II.—JURISDICTION.

4. The jurisdiction now exercised by the High Court in respect of divorce a petition for dissolution of marriage. 50 O.W. N. 442. A person who was a resident of Delhi for about six years and was a Government servant liable to transfer and who came only for the purposes of prosecuting a criminal proceeding in Calcutta and put up at his brothers who also was liable to transfer was held not to "reside" within the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court. 1931 C. 121=180 I. C. 240. A person cannot be said to reside at a place where he spends only a day or two when he has got a fixed place of residence elsewhere ; but where a person has no fixed place of residence the place where he actually lives must be taken to be the place where he resides. The parties, husband and wife, belonged to Mangalore in South Kanara, were married in Mangalore, and were living there on more than one occasion. They last resided together at Mangalore until the husband left for Raugoon where he was employed, but he had no fixed place of residence in Raugoon. Held, that the husband must be deemed to be residing in the place where he actually lived, i.e., in Mangalore, and the District Court of South Kanara had therefore jurisdiction to entertain an application presented by the wife under secs. 7, 18 and 19 of the Divorce Act for a declaration that the marriage was null and void and for maintenance. 1940 Mad. 584=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 651.

SEC. 3 (5).—As to the necessity for amendment of this section so as to give greater power to Courts to provide for the maintenance and custody of minor children, see 58

M.L.J. 29=31 L.W. 97=1930 M. 154 cited under sec. 42.

SECS. 3, 22 AND 23.—The words "portions of the G state occupied by the G.I.P.Ry." in the notification issued under the Government of India Act, sec. 109 (1) can only refer to those portions of the soil of the G. state and of any buildings attached thereto which are in the possession or occupation of the G.I. P. Ry. for whatever purpose and upon whatever form of tenure. The word 'occupy' must be given its ordinary grammatical meaning. That cannot include a building in the compound of a mill in G. state which is merely 'served' by the G.I.P. Ry. in the sense that it has a siding running into and through the mill premises. Hence a petition for judicial separation under sec. 22 against a person living in such a place cannot be filed in the High Court of Allahabad. I.L.R. (1942) All. 98=(1942) F.L.J. (H.C.) 163=1941 A. L.J. 710=A.I.R. 1942 All. 129.

SEC. 4.—[See also under sec. 7.] The jurisdiction of the Patna High Court in matters matrimonial is only such jurisdiction as is comprised within the provision of the Divorce Act. 72 I.C. 657=1923 P. 301. A suit for a mere declaration that the plaintiff's marriage with her deceased husband's brother is valid and legal is not sustainable on the matrimonial side of the Patna High Court. (Ibid.) As to jurisdiction of High Court, prior to passing of this Act, see 38 B. 125=20 I.O. 492=15 Bom.L.R. 593. As to jurisdiction of Oudh Chief Courts, see 94 I.C. 952.

Matrimonial jurisdiction of High Court to be exercised subject to Act. Exception.

a mensa et toro, and in all other causes, suits and matters matrimonial, shall be exercised by such Courts and by the District Courts subject to the provisions in this Act contained, and not otherwise; except so far as relates to the granting of marriage-licenses, which may be granted as if this Act had not been passed.

5. Any decree or order of the late Supreme Court of Judicature at Calcutta, Madras or Bombay sitting on the ecclesiastical side, or of any of the said High Courts sitting in the exercise of their matrimonial jurisdiction, respectively, in any cause or matter matrimonial, may be enforced and dealt with by the said High Courts, respectively, as hereinafter mentioned, in like manner as if such decree or order had been originally made under this Act by the Court so enforcing or dealing with the same.

6. All suits and proceedings in causes and matters matrimonial, which, when this Act comes into operation are pending in any High Court, shall be dealt with and decided by such Court, so far as may be, as if they had been originally instituted therein under this Act.

7. Subject to the provisions contained in this Act, the High Courts and District Courts shall, in all suits and proceedings hereunder, act and give relief on principles and rules which in the opinion of the said Courts, are as nearly as may be conformable to the principles and rules on which the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England for the time being acts and gives relief:

=1926 O. 319. Sec. 4 does not preclude the Court from considering whether a marriage was duly solemnized and from declaring a marriage null and void on grounds other than those contained in sec. 18. 47 I.C. 544=11 Bur.L.T. 69.

Sec. 7.—[See also notes under secs. 4, 17, 18 and 19.]

SCOPE OF SECTION.—Sec. 7 is a residuary section intended to provide for any matters which by inadvertence or otherwise are not expressly dealt with in the Act. It is not unusual in statutory drafting to insert provisions of this nature ex majora cautela more especially where an attempt is being made to codify in this country an unfamiliar branch of English Law. 47 B. 843=25 Bom. L.R. 945=77 I.C. 654. The expression “rules and principles” points rather to the rules and principles on which the Courts deal with matrimonial cases in requiring a certain degree of evidence and other cognate matters. (Ibid.) The words “rules and principles” in sec. 7 have reference to rules that are quasi-substantive rather than mere adjective law. 7 Bur.L.T. 121=23 I.C. 242. “Principles and rules” in sec. 7 of the Divorce Act do not include the law of procedure prevailing in England for the time being. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 258=219 I.C. 354=1945 Cal. 75; (1945) 2 M.L.J. 389. A marriage to be recognized as such by the Courts of a Christian country must be a voluntary union for life of one man with one woman to the exclusion of all others although it need not necessarily have been celebrated in accordance with Christian rites or ceremonies. A marriage contracted in a country where polygamy is lawful, between a man and a woman who profess a faith which allows polygamy is not a marriage as understood in England and the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes under sec. 7, will not recognize such a marriage as valid. Therefore a marriage contracted between parties according to Buddhist Law which recognizes polygamy, is not such a marriage as entitles the parties to relief under the Divorce Act, although they may have become Christians subsequently to the marriage. 1940 Rang.L.R. 417=1940 Rang. 67 (S.B.). See also I.L.R. (1939) 2 C. 60=1940 C. 75 (Marriage between Mahomedan husband and Roman Catholic wife—Consent of wife obtained by fraud).

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—Though an Indian Act should not ordinarily be constructed in the light of statutes enacted by another legislature, yet sec. 7 of the Act makes it abundantly clear that the legislative authority in enacting the Indian Divorce Act had in view the principles and rules upon which the Court in England then acted and gave relief. It is therefore not irrelevant to enquire into the English practice with a view to the resolution of any question arising under the Act. 54 M. 774=35 C.W.N. 1185=1931 P.C. 234=61 M.L.J. 367 (P.C.).

APPLICABILITY.—Sec. 7 applies not only to the grant of relief but also to questions of procedure. 55 I.C. 269=12 Bur.L.T. 199. See also 52 C. 566=1925 C. 874; 53 C. 282=1926 C. 871. The words “principles and rules” in sec. 7 of the Act mean principles and rules of the law of evidence, of interpretation, of practice and procedure but not statutory provisions or rules. The principles and rules to be applied are subject to the provisions of the Act and they consequently cannot run counter to it. They can neither cut down the provision of the Act nor supply any form of relief not provided by it. It is impossible to hold that 'rules' in the section means the statutory rules in force for the time being in England. See on appeal. 31 L.W. 97=1930 M. 154=58 M.L.J. 29. See also 13 P. 129=1934 P. 475; 57 A. 884=1936 A. 488. Under sec. 7, the provisions of which must be strictly complied with, Courts in India are required to give relief on principles and rules which are as nearly as may be conformable to the principles and rules on which the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial cases in England for the time being, acts and gives relief. One of these principles is that a decree for dissolution cannot be made merely on admission and without recording evidence. Even if the Court is satisfied that the petitioner has established his case by evidence, it is necessary for it to go further and find whether there has been collusion; and whether the petitioner has been in any manner accessory to or conniving at the adultery or has condoned the same. Having found on these questions, in favour of the petitioner, the Court is not bound to give a decree if it finds that the petitioner has been guilty of adultery or has been guilty of unreasonable delay in presenting the petition or of having wilfully separated himself from the other party before the adultery complained of. 130 I.C. 401=31 P.L.R. 1008=1931 L. 2 (S.B.).

[Provided that nothing in this section shall deprive the said Courts of jurisdiction in a case where the parties to a marriage professed the Christian religion at the time of the occurrence of the facts on which the claim to relief is founded.]

1 Proviso was added to this section by Act X of 1912.

AGE OF CONSENT.—There is nothing either in the Divorce Act or in the Christian Marriage Act as regards the age of consent for a Christian marriage. Under sec. 7, the Indian High Courts have to act according to the principles and rules of English Courts. Therefore in India the age of consent for a Christian marriage will be determined according to the law in England at the time of the marriage. 55 A. 243=1933 A.L.J. 168=1933 A. 135.

DOMICILE.—See notes under secs. 1 and 3, supra.

ENGLISH LAW.—There is the possibility of reading into sec. 7 an intention on the part of Legislature to adopt whatever test the Court of Divorce in England might from time to time lay down upon the matter of divorce but that is a forced and unnatural construction. 47 B. 843=25 Bom.L.R. 945=1926 B. 321. See also 48 C. 636 under sec. 57; 42 M.L.J. 562=1922 M. 350 (F.B.); 3 B. 125=20 I.C. 492; 32 C.W.N. 179. The rule of law in England that the non-publication of the banns is only a ground of declaring the marriage void if the lack of due publication is within the knowledge of both the parties to the marriage is no guide to an Indian Court. 55 A. 185=144 I.C. 906. In considering a divorce suit in India, the question whether a previous marriage of one of the parties is or is still subsisting, the Court must apply the law in India applicable to that marriage at the time. 36 Bom. L.R. 1021; 1933 A. 122.

DISCRETION OF COURT, EXERCISE OF.—In exercising the discretion with which Courts in India have been entrusted, they should be guided by the principles and rules upon which the Divorce Division of the High Court in England acts and gives relief. The discretion is unfettered; though it should be exercised not capriciously but cautiously and carefully not only in regard to the parties themselves but also with reference to the interest of public morality and of decent society. 10 B. 299=139 I.C. 479=1932 R. 172.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE—EVIDENCE.—In all divorce cases the petitioner must prove his case because among other things, the Judge has to satisfy himself whether there is any collusion between the parties and as to the complete truth and honesty of the petition. Where this procedure had not been followed, the High Court would set aside the decree nisi. 44 A. 728=1923 A. 43 (F.B.). Divorce suits when undefended are peculiarly difficult because the Court is under the obligation of detecting for itself deficiencies which there is no interested party to point out. That obligation is however inoperative. Decrees for dissolution of marriage are not made without strict proof, and the fact that both parties are equally anxious to be divorced is in itself a reason why the Judge should be strict as to proof. 1933 S. 70=143 I.C. 618. In ex parte cases, the Judge should ask sufficient questions to make it clear what the facts are. 29 Bom.L.R. 308=1927 B. 230. It is almost impossible to administer the law on principles and rules laid down by the Divorce Court in England if the parties do not conform to the rules of procedure both under the Civil Procedure Code which applies to cases under the Divorce Act and to the principles and rules upon which the Court in England acts. The rules must be complied with. A petition which does not comply with the rules and which does not contain all the particulars ought not to be admitted. In divorce cases the parties must first establish the fact of marriage. The Divorce Court in England does not act upon the evidence of the petitioner only to prove the factum of marriage, but it is necessary to produce a statutory certificate of marriage. But the practice, though universal, is not necessarily a rule of law, and if the circumstances warrant it, the Court may still hold the marriage proved even in the absence of a certificate. 13 P.

8. The High Court may, whenever it thinks fit, remove and try and determine as a Court of original jurisdiction any suit or proceeding instituted under this Act in the Court of any District Judge within the limits of its jurisdiction under this Act.

129=15 Pat.L.T. 353=1934 P. 475. A decree for dissolution cannot be made merely on admissions and without recording evidence. (17 B. 624, Ref.) 1930 L. 771=12 L. 22=126 I.C. 68 (S.B.). See also 13 P. 129=1934 P. 475; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 210. As to admission of additional evidence after decision, where advocate omits to call evidence, see 11 I.C. 779=4 Bur.L.T. 161. Admissions as to cruelty and adultery are not conclusive proofs. 38 C. 907=13 I.C. 491. In proceedings for divorce the evidence of the husband or wife alone ought never to be accepted without corroboration either by witness or at least by strong surrounding circumstances. 43 M.L.J. 441=45 M. 982=68 I.C. 931 (F.B.). See also 42 M.L.J. 562=1922 M. 350=70 I.C. 43. Procedure as to service of petition. See 55 I.C. 269=12 Bur.L.T. 199. Attachment before judgment not to be made in a divorce suit. 7 I. C. 792=37 C. 693.

CO-RESPONDENT.—Where charges of adultery are made against a person, he ought to be made a co-respondent unless the Judge should otherwise direct. 45 M. 982=43 M. L.J. 441=1923 M. 9 (F.B.). Claim for damages against co-respondent—Points to be considered in assessing damages. 3 O.W.N. 296. See also 38 M. 466=25 M.L.J. 594; 47 I.C. 510=45 C. 525. Proceedings by wife for divorce—Joinder of adultery as a party, not proper. 10 R. 115=137 I.C. 426=1932 R. 73.

COSTS.—Even although a wife's defence fails or her counter charges break down or she has been proved guilty of adultery the husband has to pay her costs. 1922 A. 243. On the question of costs, see also 57 C. 1350=130 I.C. 246=1931 C. 206. Petitioner's costs have to be given priority in respect of amounts deposited by the co-respondent into Court over the rights of an attaching creditor. 57 C. 1350=130 I.C. 246=1931 C. 206. An order of the trial Court against the husband for security for the wife's costs in prosecuting her suit for divorce does not bind the hands of the appellate Court when it comes to make an order as to whether the wife should be given her costs of the appeal. 130 I.C. 246=57 C. 1350=1931 C. 206. In the matter of ordering security for costs under sec. 7, the Courts in India act and give relief on principles and rules which as merely as may be conform to the principles and rules observed in England under the Matrimonial Causes Act and Rules. The discretion given to the Courts in India is completely unfettered, and the Courts should endeavour to exercise their discretion cautiously and carefully not only with regard to the parties themselves but to the interests of society and public morality in general. The Court will be justified in passing an order for security for costs where there is a claim for damages and the petitioner is out of the jurisdiction of the Court and has no property within its jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 510=(1948) 1 M.L.J. 360. There is no practice which requires the Court to make the husband pay the costs of an unsuccessful appeal by an unsuccessful wife. 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 388. Secs. 7 and 19 (4)—Applicability and scope—Application for declaration of nullity of marriage on ground of first spouse being alive—Burden of proof—Evidence Act, sec. 107—Application of—If excluded. See (1945) 2 M.L.J. 389.

SECS. 7 AND 45: MATRIMONIAL JURISDICTION OF HIGH COURT—LAW AND PROCEDURE APPLICABLE.—The substantive law to be applied by the Calcutta High Court in the exercise of its matrimonial jurisdiction is (1) the provisions of Divorce Act; (2) the principles and rules on which the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England acts; (3) the principles and rules of Ecclesiastical Law as were used and exercised in the Diocese of London in 1774. The proceedings in matrimonial causes are to be regulated by the provisions of C.P. Code and the Rules made by the High Court in conformity therewith. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 258=1945 Cal. 75.

SEC. 8.—The husband filed a divorce petition in the District Court. The wife applied to the High Court for the transfer of the case to its own file as the parties were both serving in Calcutta and it was convenient for them both, if the case was tried at Calcutta, and stated that in case the divorce proceedings were tried in the District Court, she might lose her employment if often required to go there. It was found that on the transfer of the case to the High Court, the costs payable by the husband were very excessive so much so that he would have to go in insolvency for them. Held, that though there was convenience to both parties if the case was tried in the High Court, it was an expensive task for the husband which might make him apply in insolvency and the application for transfer should, therefore, be refused. 1937 C. 303=171 I.C. 930. The expression "High Court" as used in sec. 8 of the Divorce Act does not mean either the original or the appellate side of the High Court, but means the High Court as one whole. But the litigant, when he wants to have an order under that section, would have to approach that particular department of the High Court which is empowered to deal with this matter by its rules framed under s. 13 of Act. 24 and 25 Vict., Chap. 104, which is substantially repeated in sec. 108 of the Government of India Act, 1919 and sec. 223 of the Government of India Act, 1935. I. L. R. (1941) 2 Cal. 373=45 C. W. N. 910=1942 Cal. 32.

The High Court may also withdraw any such suit or proceeding, and transfer it for trial or disposal to the Court of any other such District Judge.

subsequent stage of such suit, or in the execution of the decree therein or order thereon, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, draw up a statement of the case and refer it, with the Court's own opinion thereon to the decision of the High Court.

If the question has arisen previous to or in the hearing, the District Court may either stay such proceedings, or proceed in the case pending such reference, and pass a decree contingent upon the opinion of the High Court upon it.

If a decree or order has been made, its execution shall be stayed until the receipt of the order of the High Court upon such reference.

on the ground that his wife has, since the solemnization thereof, been guilty of adultery.

R. 44 of Chap. 35-A of the Original Side Rules, Calcutta, framed under sec. 62 of the Divorce Act applies to all applications for transfer made under sec. 8 of that Act, whether under the first or second part of that section. Consequently, a Judge sitting singly on the Original Side, duly empowered in this behalf by the Chief Justice, has jurisdiction to transfer a divorce suit from one District Court to another and an application need not be made to a Bench on the appellate side. S. 24, C.P. Code, has no application to the case. The same Judge has also jurisdiction to issue a writ of commission authorizing the District Court before which the suit was pending to examine witnesses and his order would be governed by the rules relating to commissions contained in Chap. 22 of the Original Side Rules. 46 C.W.N. 790; A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 546—I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 461.

SEC. 9.—See 1943 Lah. 62 (S.B.).

SEC. 10: SCOPE—GROUNDS OF DIVORCE.—Sec. 10 of the Divorce Act sets out the grounds on which marriage may be dissolved by the Court. If the Legislative had intended that other grounds and other methods should be available to the parties, one would expect a proviso saving the operation of the personal law. 36 Bom.L.R. 1021. That the marriage had been induced by some sort of fraud is no ground for divorce under the Indian Divorce Act. 152 I.O. 1007=1934 P. 670 (F.B.). Where a Hindu after marrying a Christian wife marries a Hindu wife in Hindu form, though the second marriage does not amount to bigamy it amounts to a second marriage and if that marriage is consummated the consummation vis a vis the first wife amounts to adultery and forms a ground for divorce on the petition of the first wife. I. L.R. (1941) Nag. 260=1940 N.L.J. 391=1940 Nag. 195 (S.B.).

JURISDICTION.—In a case under the Divorce Act it is the duty of a Court, apart from the objections taken by one or other of the parties, to enquire into and set out in judgment facts, which show clearly that it possesses jurisdiction to pronounce a decree for dissolution of marriage. 12 L. 214=1930 L. 916. Under sec. 16, Bombay Civil Courts Act, the District Judge cannot transfer to the Assistant Judge a suit under the Divorce Act and the Assistant Judge cannot try the suit. 39 B. 136=26 I.O. 599=16 Bom.L.R. 754. Irish woman and Englishman married in Ireland living in India—Husband temporarily serving in British regiment—Court has got power to grant divorce. 106 I.O. 481=5 O.W.N. 163. Scope of the Indian and Colonial Divorce Act pointed out. (Ibid.) As to jurisdiction of Oudh Chief Court, see 1926 O. 319=94 I.O. 952=3 O.W.N. 406.

DOMICILE.—Before granting a decree for divorce under sec. 10, a clear finding as to domicile of parties should be arrived at, and where the petitioner has claimed divorce on the ground that her husband committed an unnatural offence upon her, there should be some evidence and a finding as to the unnatural offence alleged. 13 I.O. 611=1932 L. 468 (1) (S.B.).

“RESIDE”—MEANING.—A person who has an abode elsewhere, but who comes to a place for a short period and with a fixed purpose for being within the jurisdiction of a Court cannot be said to “reside” there. 12 L. 214=1930 L. 916. In this section the word “together” governs only the words “last resided” and not the word “reside.” The Act therefore gives the petitioning spouse the choice of selecting his forum either as (1) the district where the parties had last resided together or (2) the district within the local limits of which, both the husband and the wife, though living separately “reside” at the date of the presentation of the petition. 1930 L. 916=12 L. 214.

CHANGE OF RELIGION.—Under this section change of religion by the husband and his subsequent re-marriage entitle his first wife to dissolution of the marriage. 14 I.C. 192.

ADULTERY.—In a suit for dissolution of marriage the Court may presume adultery if it is satisfied that guilty attachment subsisted between the parties and that they had opportunities to have guilty intercourse. 62 I.C. 782. See also 55 A. 597=1933 A. 427. The direct fact of adultery need not be proved. In a divorce case, the correspondence between the respondent and the co-respondent is very important evidence. 62 I.C. 782. See also 31 N.L.B. 184=156 I.C. 1008=1935 N. 49 (S.B.). It is a fundamental rule that it is not necessary to prove the direct fact of the adultery. In every case almost, the fact is inferred from circumstances that lead to it by fair inference as a necessary conclusion, and unless this were so held, no protection whatever could be given to material rights. But the circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded discretion of a reasonable and just man to the conclusion. 55 A. 597=1933 A.L.J. 1108=1933 A. 427; 8 O.W.N. 168=132 I.C. 773=1931 O. 259. See also 1935 N. 49 (S.B.). Admission in a letter from the husband of adultery is not a sufficient proof of adultery. 31 I.C. 264 (F.B.). See also 49 B. 368=27 Bom.L.R. 251; 51 B. 1026 (1030, 1032). Wife's admission of adultery—Caution to be exercised. If a husband or wife contracts a venereal disease during the marriage but fails to show that the origin of the disease was innocent, adultery is established if it is proved that the wife or husband was free from that disease and could not possibly have communicated the same to him or her. 12 L. 95=1930 L. 828. See also 1933 L. 507. In India, in proceedings for divorce instituted by a wife, a Court has no power to allow the alleged adulteress to be made a party. 10 R. 115=1932 R. 73. In a divorce suit filed by the husband on the ground of adultery the miscarriage took place long after the filing of the petition, and the evidence of non-access was offered by the husband. Held, that the evidence of the husband of non-access was admissible against his wife. 150 I.C. 445=1934 A. 618 (S.B.). A husband praying for the dissolution of his marriage on the ground that his wife had been guilty of adultery, is entitled to rely upon adultery committed by her outside India. 45 C.W.N. 249.

DELAY IN APPLYING FOR DIVORCE.—When a charge of adultery is proved the first thing to which a Court directs its attention is the delay which has occurred since the husband became aware of the fact. Delay is not by itself a bar to the suit but it is a most material matter which, unexplained, would lead the Court to conclusions fatal to the petitioner's relief. 26 S.L.R. 423=1933 S. 27.

"BIGAMY WITH ADULTERY" AND "MARRIAGE WITH ANOTHER WOMAN WITH ADULTERY".—Bigamy with adultery is specifically defined in the Act as meaning adultery with the same woman with whom the bigamy was committed, but marriage with another woman with adultery is not defined. The definition contained in s. 2 (2) merely deals with marriage with another woman which is defined as meaning marriage of any person being married to any other person during the life of the former wife, whether the second marriage shall have taken place within the Dominion of His Majesty or elsewhere. Therefore, if a man after such second marriage cohabits with such woman, the first wife is entitled to apply for dissolution of marriage, just as she would have been entitled to apply if the husband would have been guilty of "bigamy" with adultery. 136 I.C. 262=1932 L. 116.

CRUELTY.—Though cruelty in its popular sense is undoubtedly a ground for divorce, yet that is not the only kind of cruelty which will be a ground for divorce. There may be a case of cruelty in which either bodily injury has occurred or there may be cases in which the evidence is such as to lead to an inference of reasonable apprehension that bodily injury would result; and in case of cruelty it is necessary that the evidence of the petitioner should be corroborated. 13 P. 129=15 Pat.L.T. 353=1934 P. 475. Repeated acts of cruelty by a husband taken together, entitle the wife to a decree for divorce, though each act by itself may not be sufficient ground, and no formal complaint or threat of divorce proceedings was made as regards each of them. 36 I.C. 982=10 Bur.L.T. 228. Cruelty is conduct of such a character as to have caused danger to life, limb or health (bodily or mental), or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such danger. In order to establish a case of cruelty against her husband, a wife must prove more than isolated acts of violence. No doubt the degree of violence varies in accordance with the status of the parties. 107 I.C. 184=1928 O. 114. See also 139 I.C. 618=1932 O. 231. The cruelty must be dangerous to life, limb or health (bodily or mental), or a reasonable apprehension of it. 36 I.C. 381=10 Bur.L.T. 182; 139 I.C. 618=1932 O. 231. Isolated assaults that arise on the spur of the moment on some real or fancied provocation do not constitute cruelty. 1928 O. 114=107 I.C. 184; 1933 L. 728. A single severe assault resulting from a dispute as to jewellery would not amount to such cruelty but adultery of the husband affords ground for judicial separation. 107 I.C. 184. Threat of physical force to a pregnant wife amounts to legal cruelty. 47 A. 50=83 I.C. 167=1925 A. 237. See also 1933 L. 728; 53 O. 436. Subsequent cruelty may operate to revive condoned adultery. See 39 C. 395=15 I.C. 886; 47 A. 50=83 I.C. 167; 53 O. 436 96 I.C. 932=1936 C. 864. As to the amount of cruelty to be proved, see 11 I.C. 784, supra. Where a husband who has a loathsome disease compels his wife to sexual intercourse with him against her will even though the forcible intercourse might not result in communicating the disease, cruelty must be held to be proved. 1930 L. 828=12 L. 95=126 I.C. 527. See also 1933 L. 507.

DESERTION.—To constitute desertion there must be a cessation of co-habitation and an intention on the part of the guilty party to praying that her marriage may be dissolved on the ground that, since the solemnization thereof, her husband has exchanged his profession of Christianity for the profession of some other religion, and gone through a form of marriage with another woman ; or has been guilty of incestuous adultery, or of bigamy with adultery, or of marriage with another woman with adultery, or of rape, sodomy or bestiality, or of adultery coupled with such cruelty as without adultery would have entitled her to a divorce a mensa et toro, or of adultery coupled with desertion, without reasonable excuse, for two years or upwards.

Every such petition shall state, as distinctly as the nature of the case permits, the facts on which the claim to have such marriage dissolved is founded.

desert the other. Where a husband brings a concubine into the house where his wife is living and the wife has to leave the house in consequence, the husband, under the circumstances, is guilty of deserting the wife, so as to constitute a good ground for divorce at her instance. 155 I.C. 553=41 L.W. 534=68 M.L.J. 606. Desertion implies an abandonment against the wish of the person charging it. 5 Bur.L.T. 85=15 I.C. 353. There is no abandonment against the wish of the wife where she herself left owing to intemperate habits of her husband. 31 I.C. 264=8 L.B. R. 106 (F.B.). A wife who seeks to prove desertion must give evidence of conduct on the part of the husband showing unmistakably that such desertion was against her wish actively expressed. The husband must be proved to have wilfully absented himself from her in spite of her wish. Subsequent conduct cannot transform what was a voluntary separation into desertion by the husband. 31 I.C. 264. No decree can be passed on a petition for divorce made before the two years' period of desertion is over, as it is premature and without a cause of action. 6 Bur.L.T. 177=21 I.C. 250. The desertion required to be proved under sec. 10 of the Act must be desertion within the meaning of sec. 3 (9) of that Act, viz., a wilful abstention by the husband against the wish of the wife. 165 I.C. 392=1936 O.W.N. 938. When there has been desertion by the husband of his wife for a long time, a subsequent association between the parties, during which the parties, though living under the same roof live as strangers, cannot amount to a break in the desertion. Desertion is not broken unless the husband offers to the wife a home on terms which a self-respecting wife can accept. 177 I.C. 940=40 Bom.L.R. 900=1938 Bom. 425.

ADULTERY AND CRUELTY.—In order that a wife can have a marriage dissolved, it is necessary that there should be proof of adultery and cruelty on the part of the husband. 1933 L. 728. In a suit for dissolution of marriage, it was proved that the husband had contracted gonorrhoea and had communicated it to the wife and that the husband was guilty of cruelty. Held, that the husband was guilty of adultery and that with the charge of cruelty was sufficient for the wife to obtain a decree nisi for the dissolution of the marriage. 1933 L. 507. See also 12 L. 95. A wife who has obtained a judicial separation on the ground of her husband's adultery is entitled to a dissolution of the marriage on proof that her husband has been guilty of adultery after the separation and that he has been guilty of cruelty to her after separation. 45 I.C. 914=11 Bur.L.T. 227. See also 1927 O. 34=98 I.C. 1019. The fact that a husband has communicated venereal disease to his wife is in law sufficient evidence of adultery. It also amounts to legal cruelty. 1933 A.L.J. 14=1933 A. 56=55 A. 134.

ADULTERY AND DESERTION.—For a decree for divorce, adultery of the husband together with desertion without reasonable cause for two years or upwards or with such cruelty as without adultery would entitle the wife to divorce, must be proved. 36 I.C. 381=10 Bur.L.T. 182. As to condonation of adultery, see 1928 O. 114=107 I.C. 194. Marriage with another woman and adultery. See 33 P.L.R. 339=1932 Lah. 116.

DISCRETION OF COURT.—Court has a discretion to grant dissolution on a petition by the wife even though the petitioner had been, subsequent to desertion by the husband, leading a life of prostitution for some time, if the Court comes to the conclusion that such prostitution was necessitated by destitution and that her conduct was otherwise free from blame. 57 C. 891=1930 C. 729. Condonation in art. of matrimonial offences is impliedly conditioned upon the future good behaviour of the offending spouse. If thereafter the offences are repeated the right to make the condoned offences a ground for divorce revives. To constitute such revival the same offence need not be repeated, and misconduct is sufficient. Where the husband condoned the wife's adultery and subsequently the latter was guilty of desertion, held, that the husband's right to claim divorce revived. 7 R. 313=1929 R. 216 (S.B.). See also 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 388. JOINDER OF PARTIES.—In proceedings by wife for divorce, the alleged adultery is not a proper party. 10 R. 115=1932 R. 73.

PLEADINGS AND PROOF.—Evidence in divorce proceedings to prove the case of the petitioner must be confined to the pleas set out in the petition. Consequently it is essential, as laid in sec. 10 to insist that the petition for divorce shall state distinctly, as the nature of the case permits, the facts upon which the claim to have the marriage dissolved is founded. 193 I.C. 301=1941 Bang. 110. Before the Court can grant a decree for dissolution of marriage it must be satisfied that the marriage did take place and the marriage is a valid one. A bare statement of the petitioner that he was married is not sufficient evidence of marriage and he must produce the marriage certificate. (1933 R. 93, Rel. on.) 164 I.C. 712=1936 R. 398; I.L.R. (1940) All. 99=1940 A.L.J. 228=1940 All. 308 (F.B.). As divorce affects the status of the parties it is of importance that the necessary conditions to justify a decree for dissolution of marriage should be complied with. It is specifically laid down that certain facts must be averred and proved before a Court has jurisdiction to pass a decree for dissolution of marriage. Where there was no averment or direct evidence that the parties to the marriage was domiciled in India at the time when the petition was presented. Held, that the omission would justify the Court in returning the petition. 11 R. 68=1934 R. 93. It is no doubt extremely difficult, if not impossible, to prove the actual fact of adultery, but no sensible man familiar with the common course of human conduct would ever persuade himself that when a man turns away his wife and lives with another woman in the same room for days and months that their relations could be altogether innocent. Where therefore, a woman shares a room with a stranger and her undue familiarity with him leads to the latter's wife being turned out of doors and the woman behave indifferently towards her own husband, the circumstances throw a sinister light on her relations with the stranger, and any man of common sense would irresistibly come to the conclusion that she was living in adultery with him. 1935 N. 49 (S.B.). See also 26 S.L.R. 423. Adultery requires direct proof either by that of eye-witnesses or irresistible inference and direct proof is required of the identity of persons charged with adultery. Where it is proposed to prove the alleged adultery by calling evidence as to the birth of a child since the separation of the husband and the wife, the evidence should be directed to the maternity of the mother in relation to the child and the mere statement that a child has been found or seen living in the same house with the wife is not ordinarily sufficient to establish that that child is her child. 11 P. 627=1932 P. 345 (S.B.). Where in a petition for dissolution by a wife, the petitioner stated that the person with whom her husband committed adultery was unknown to her, but in evidence she and her witnesses identified a particular woman with whom her husband committed adultery: Held, even though no amendment in the petition was made as to the name, the identification by the petitioner and her witness was sufficient to grant a decree nisi for dissolution. 167 I.C. 743=1937 P. 82=18 Pat.L.T. 686. A woman named in the petition for divorce as an adultery has no right to intervene in the proceedings and need not, therefore, be served with notice of such proceedings. 46 C.W.N. 842.

SECS. 10, 11 AND 12: PETITION FOR DISSOLUTION—FACTS TO BE PROVEN.—In a petition for dissolution petitioner has to allege and prove that he professes Christian religion, that marriage was solemnised in India, that the parties to marriage were domiciled in India when the petition was presented, and that husband and wife reside or last resided together within local limits of ordinary jurisdiction of Court of the District Judge to whom the petition was presented. These must be proved by evidence, and petitioner is not excused from proving them merely because respondent admits them. A divorce Court has always to bear in mind the possibility of collusion and must insist on strict proof of all the facts alleged. The Judge should come to a distinct finding as to whether the marriage has been solemnised in India and upon what date. A certificate of marriage is not the only way of proving marriage but it is usually the best way. 31 N.L.R. (Supp.) 174=1936 N. 26 (S.B.).

SECS. 10 AND 14.—Where the petitioner the husband had also been guilty of adultery, it is for the Court to consider whether it should refuse to give him a decree or should exercise its discretion in his favour. The discretion should no doubt be exercised with due care and strictness. Where there was nothing to suggest that the petitioner was a man of loose and profligate character and where the parties were living apart and the respondent had given birth to an illegitimate child and there was no collusion or connivance between them, held, that a decree for dissolution of marriage should not be refused upon the ground of the petitioners' misconduct. I.L.R. (1939) All. 573=1939 A.L.J. 478=1939 All. 522.

SECS. 10 AND 22.—If on a petition by the wife for dissolution of her marriage, a case for judicial separation alone is made out and not for dissolution, the Court can grant a decree for judicial separation. If it dismisses the petition without considering the question of judicial separation a review application is competent. 41 P.L.R. 337=1939 Lah. 404. Petition for dissolution by wife—Charge of adultery not proved—Crucity proved—Right to decree for judicial separation. 165 I.C. 12=1936 O.W.N. 918.

SECS. 10 AND 34.—Where on a petition for divorce and for damages against the co-respondent, a divorce is refused on the ground that the adultery had been condoned, the petitioner is not entitled to a judgment against

11. Upon any such petition presented by a husband, the petitioner shall make the alleged adulterer a co-respondent to the said petition, unless he is excused from so doing on one of the following grounds, to be allowed by the Court :—

(1) that the respondent is leading the life of a prostitute, and that the petitioner knows of no person with whom the adultery has been committed ;

(2) that the name of the alleged adulterer is unknown to the petitioner although he has made due efforts to discover it ;

(3) that the alleged adulterer is dead.

12. Upon any such petition for the dissolution of a marriage the Court shall satisfy itself, so far as it reasonably can, not only as to the facts alleged, but also whether or not the petitioner has been in any manner accessory to, or conniving at, the going through of the said form of marriage, or the adultery, or has condoned the same, and shall also inquire into any counter-charge which may be made against the petitioner.

the co-respondent and the claim for damages which is ancillary to or dependent on the petition for divorce must be dismissed. 222 I.C. 396=1946 N.L.J. 104=A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 69 (S.B.).

SEC. 11.—Court should not lightly excuse a party from making any enquiry which he can reasonably be expected to make as to the adulterer. See 49 B. 368=27 Bom.L.R. 251=1925 B. 231. Sec. 11 of the Act makes it obligatory on a husband when he petitions for dissolution of marriage on the ground of adultery to make the alleged adulterer a co-respondent, unless he is excused from doing so on one of three grounds. The section excuses him from doing this when his wife is leading the life of a prostitute and also when the alleged adulterer is dead. The third case in which he can be excused is 'when the name of the alleged adulterer is unknown to the petitioner, although he has made due efforts to discover it. A suit without the co-respondent cannot proceed until leave to dispense with his presence he has actually been obtained. It is not sufficient merely to apply for leave at the trial. A formal application has to be made before the trial and it has to be supported by proper evidence that the conditions of sec. 11 of the Act have been complied with. I.L.R. (1942) All. 395=1942 A.L.J. 355=A.I.R. 1942 A. 223. Indian Courts do not have the same discretion to dispense with the name of a co-respondent as English Courts have. The three grounds stated in sec. 11 are the only ones on which leave can be so granted to proceed with the petition for dissolution. The fact that the petitioner had well grounded suspicions against two men is no sufficient reason. 107 I.C. 667=1928 N. 117. Where the husband did not name the co-respondent living in a distant place and it appeared that he did not know the name and that he could not find it, out. Held, that the Court could excuse him under sec. 11. 7 R. 313=1929 R. 216 (S. B.). In a petition for divorce by the husband the petitioner has to make the alleged adulterer or adulterers a co-respondent or co-respondents to the petition unless he is excused from doing so by the Court on certain grounds. The father and mother of the wife cannot be made parties to such a petition. 1930 L. 771=12 L. 22=126 I.C. 68 (S.B.).

SECS. 12 TO 14: CONNIVANCE.—It is obligatory on a Court entertaining a petition under the Divorce Act to consider all the aspects of the case which are mentioned in secs. 12 and 14 and that obligation is not extinguished by the mere fact that the case is an undefended one. 195 I.C. 325=1941 Rang. 193 (S.B.). The proceedings under the Act are not a civil suit which can be compromised and under sec. 12 it is for the Court to satisfy itself, so far as it reasonably can, not only as to the facts alleged, but also whether or not petitioner has been in any manner accessory to or conniving at adultery or has condoned same and Court has to enquire into any counter-charge which may be made against petitioner. 1930 L. 771=12 L. 22=126 I.C. 68 (S.B.). A mere refusal by husband without reasonable cause of matrimonial bed, does not constitute desertion or such wilful neglect or misconduct as conduces to wife's adultery, and is not a sufficient ground for dissolution. 44 C. 1001=41 I.C. 447=21 C.W.N. 717. A decree for dissolution cannot be legally granted merely on the ground that respondent does not oppose petition. Court must satisfy itself that there was good reason for delay in suing, and that connivance or condonation is absent. 25 P.R. 1919=51 I.C. 235 (F.B.). Husband's conduct, partly cause of wife's adultery, can be considered against husband. 54 C. 80=30 C.W.N. 820=1926 C. 1014. A wife petitioning for dissolution of marriage is not in the absence of a fresh matrimonial offence, entitled to a decree for dissolution of marriage upon precisely the same grounds as those on which she obtained a judicial separation previously. The Courts cannot possibly countenance a petitioner who had material for dissolution, refraining from claiming it in his or her petition and obtaining only a decree for judicial separation, and then later on when he or she thought it convenient to come to the Court to repeat the same evidence all over again and asking for a decree for dissolution. But where in a case there is, be-or finds that the petitioner has, during the marriage, been accessory to, or conniving at, the going through of the said form of marriage, or the adultery of the other party to the marriage, or has condoned the adultery complained of, or that the petition is persented or prosecuted in collusion with either of the respondents, then and in any of the said cases the Court shall dismiss the petition.

sides the decree for judicial separation, entirely fresh evidence of adultery, the wife would be entitled to a decree nisi for dissolution on such evidence without adducing fresh evidence of cruelty which had already been proved in the previous case. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 319=1940 Mad. 510=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 210.

COLLUSION.—Collusion is an illicit secret understanding by which parties who are jointly furthering a common purpose, assume semblance of hostility. 1933 S. 70=143 I.C. 618. Collusion under sec. 13 exists where initiation of proceedings for dissolution is procured or its conduct provided for by agreement between spouses or their agents. 44 C. 1091=41 I.C. 447=21 C. W. N. 717. If Court is satisfied that there is no collusion between parties, it may act on an uncorroborated confession of adultery by a party to the proceedings. 49 I.C. 305=11 Bur.L.T. 197. See also 9 L. 116.

ADMISSION OF ADULTERY — CORROBORATION — NECESSITY.—Confession or admission by one of the parties in a matrimonial suit has to be taken with great caution. It may be accepted as evidence of adultery without corroboration only in most exceptional cases; usually the Court must demand corroboration of such admission or confession. But if Court is satisfied that there is no collusion, there is nothing in law to prevent Court from acting on what in substance is a confession by one of the parties. 13 P. 129=15 Pat. L.T. 353=1934 P. 475.

CONDONATION.—Resumption or continuance of co-habitation with complete knowledge of wife's adultery amounts to condonation. 57 I.C. 216=31 C.L.J. 435. Condonation is a question of fact and not of law. See 41 B. 36=36 I.C. 800=18 Bom.L.R. 818. Condonation is forgiveness of a conjugal offence with full knowledge of all circumstances and is purely a question of fact. It is a blotting out of the offence imputed so as to restore the offending party to the position which he or she occupied before commission of offence. 44 C. 1091=21 C.W.N. 717. See also 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 388; 7 R. 813=1929 R. 216. (S.B.). Mere forgiveness is not condonation; condonation means completely restoring offending party and must be followed by co-habitation. 57 I.C. 216=31 C.L.J. 435=47 C. 1068; 44 C. 1091. Condonation of past matrimonial offences is however impliedly conditioned upon future good behaviour of offending spouse; and it follows that, if after condonation, offences are repeated, right to make condoned offences a ground for divorce revives. 57 I.C. 216=31 C.L.J. 435=47 C. 1068. If adultery is condoned, but subsequently wife commits an offence less than adultery with another person, it does not revive offence of adultery which has already been condoned; but if subsequent offence committed is adultery itself, forgiveness is cancelled and old cause of complaint is revived even if offence be ejusdem generis with original offence. 1928 O. 114=107 I.C. 184; 51 B. 1026=29 Bom.L.R. 1336=105 I.C. 871.

DELAY.—Unreasonable delay in instituting proceedings will generally be excused if it is really due to poverty. 57 I.C. 216=31 C.L.J. 435. But delay may also be a ground for dismissal of petition for dissolution. 1921 L. 320=107 I.C. 273 (2). Disinclination from religious motives cannot be regarded as sufficient excuse for not taking action for obtaining the remedy which the law provides for an injured wife and for delaying the presenting of a petition. 31 I.C. 264=8 I.L.R. 106 (F.B.). See also 31 N.L.R. 184=1935 N. 849 (S.B.).

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—High Court should not make a decree nisi absolute without a motion made to that effect. 31 A. 511=3 I.C. 969=6 A.L.J. 793, following 10 A. 559. A decree for divorce may be obtained even if the petitioner be guilty of adultery during marriage. Under very peculiar circumstances, adultery by the petitioner is no bar to a decree. But the Court is bound by the rules binding English Courts under the English Divorce Act. 70 P.R. 1911=12 I.C. 960. Misconduct of wife before confirmation of decree nisi on her application—Court's discretion. See 88 I.C. 1009=1925 R. 257. Wife's adultery—Husband's adultery proved—Application may be dismissed. 41 B. 36=36 I.C. 800=18 Bom.L.R. 818. Points to be considered in assessing damages against co-respondent. See 1927 O. 34.

SEC. 13.—If a petition for divorce by a wife is unopposed, the evidence that the husband committed adultery and had been cruel to his wife, is by itself not sufficient basis for a decree nisi. It is essential to prove want of connivance on part of the wife at the alleged adultery and if there is delay in fil-

Power to Court to pronounce decree for dissolving marriage.

14. In case the Court is satisfied on the evidence that the case of the petitioner has been proved, ing petition, delay must be explained. It is also essential that necessary facts should be stated and recorded with precision. 1930 A. 322=124 I.C. 465 (S.B.).

SEC. 14.—In a suit under the Act provisions of Act must be strictly complied with and particularly a decree for dissolution cannot be made on admissions alone, without recorded evidence. 1931 L. 1=12 L. 266 (S.B.).

ADULTERY OF WIFE—HUSBAND'S CONDUCT REPREHENSIBLE.—Husband of the petitioner had ill-treated her and subsequently deserted her with no means to provide for herself and her child. For providing for the education of the child, she was obliged to resort to a life of prostitution for some time and subsequently she gave up that life. It was found the husband was leading a life of adultery. The wife applied for dissolution. Held, that having regard to the fact that the petitioner did not make any attempt to keep material facts from the Court and that she has been maintaining her child in a very satisfactory manner, the discretion under sec. 14 ought to be exercised in favour of the petitioner and decree nisi for dissolution made. 57 C. 891=1930 C. 729. In dealing with divorce cases it should be remembered that the woman is the weaker vessel, that her habits of thought and feminine weakness are different from those of the man and that what may perhaps be excusable in the case of woman would not be excusable in the case of man. Where it is found that the woman has been guilty of adultery and that her adultery has resulted from the husband's conduct towards her, the Court should make allowance in treating her case with leniency. Where there is sufficient evidence to prove cruelty and adultery on the part of the husband who deserts his wife without making any provision for maintenance of his wife and the wife who was living in her father's house after her desertion by the husband, cohabits with a person living as a guest in the father's house, the conduct of the husband in deserting his wife and making no provision for her conduces greatly to wife's adultery and it is a fit case in which Court should exercise its discretion by granting to the wife a decree nisi. 1936 I.C. 764=1932 S. 18. See also 1939 A. L.J. 478=1939 All. 522=I.L.R. (1939) All. 573. Where proceedings for the dissolution of marriage on the ground of adultery are instituted promptly on the discovery and there is no collusion or connivance between the parties, a decree for dissolution of the marriage should be pronounced. 34 P.L.R. 893=145 I. 974=1933 L. 255. Where it is proved that the wife's adultery with the respondent was with the connivance of the husband, her adultery with him does not revive her previous adultery with another person. 165 I.C. 392=1936 O. W. N. 938. In a divorce case four points require consideration. They are: (1) Is the petitioner resident in India within the meaning of the Act? (2) Has the petition been presented or prosecuted in collusion with either of the respondent? (3) Has the petitioner been guilty of any such wilful neglect towards his wife as has conduced to the adultery? and (4) Has there been adultery between respondent and co-respondent? 1933 S. 70=143 I.C. 618. See also I.L.R. (1939) All. 573=1930 A.L.J. 478=1939 All. 522; 143 I.C. 122=1933 L. 356. Where a woman who has been treated with gross cruelty and has been deserted by a husband guilty of habitual adultery, and who, after her husband had left the place married a Mahomedan husband according to Islamic law believing that by so doing and by herself becoming a Mahomedan, her marriage with her Christian husband would ipso facto be dissolved, it cannot be said, merely because, she was wrongly advised as to the law, that exercising discretion in her favour and granting her decree nisi would encourage immorality. Hence, discretion under sec. 14 should be exercised in her favour. 177 I.C. 167=A.I. R. 1938 Sind 162.

CONDONATION.—Condonation means forgiveness of a conjugal offence with full knowledge of all the circumstances. The best evidence of condonation is the continuance or resumption of sexual intercourse by the husband after he has discovered the misconduct of his wife. For the revival of the offence committed before the condonation, there must be clear evidence of a fresh matrimonial offence of a grave character such as adultery. 1946 N.L.J. 104=A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 69 (S. B.). Condonation of matrimonial offences means the complete forgiveness of all such offences as are known to, or believed by, the offended spouse so as to restore between the spouses the status quo ante. Mere forgiveness is not condonation. Forgiveness is condonation when it results in completely restoring the offending party and is accompanied by cohabitation. 1935 N. 49 (S.B.). Condonation is not absolute, but is only conditional and if there is a subsequent matrimonial offence, then the condonation goes and the original offence is revived. 1935 N. 49 (S. B.); 156 I.C. 247=29 S.L.R. 83. A deed of separation between a husband and wife contained the following clause: "No proceedings shall be taken by or on behalf of . . . in respect of any misconduct or alleged misconduct previous to the date of these presents and any offence which may have been committed or permitted by either of them against the other is hereby condoned". The wife having filed a petition for dissolution of marriage grounded on allegation of adultery by the husband subsequent to the separation deed coupled with allegation of cruelty charged to have taken place prior to the execution of that deed, held, that the clause in the deed operated as an absolute release and not by and does not find that the petitioner has been in any manner accessory to, or conniving at, the going through of the said form of marriage, or the adultery of the other party to the marriage, or has condoned the adultery complained of, or that the petition is presented or prosecuted in collusion with either of the respondents, the Court shall pronounce a decree declaring such marriage to be dissolved in the manner and subject to all the provisions and limitations in sections 16 and 17 made and declared :

Provided that the Court shall not be bound to pronounce such decree if it finds that the petitioner has, during the marriage, been guilty of adultery, or if the petitioner has, in the opinion of the Court, been guilty of unreasonable delay in presenting or prosecuting such petition, or of cruelty towards the other party to the marriage, or of having deserted or wilfully separated himself or herself from the other party before the adultery complained of, and without reasonable excuse, or of such wilful neglect or misconduct of or towards the other party as has conduced to the adultery.

No adultery shall be deemed to have been condoned within the meaning of this Act unless where conjugal cohabitation has been resumed or continued.

way of conditional condonation and that cruelty antecedent to the deed could not be relied on. 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 388. Upon the commission of a subsequent matrimonial offence the forgiveness of the prior offence is cancelled and the old cause of complaint is revived; furthermore, the subsequent offence need not be necessarily ejusdem generis as the original offence. Subsequent cruelty would, therefore, revive previously condoned adultery. 1939 Rang.L.R. 267=1939 Rang. 352.

DELAY IN PRESENTING PETITION—DUTY OF COURT.—Although the provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to suits or proceedings under the Divorce Act one of the first things which Court should look to when a charge of adultery is preferred is whether there has been such delay as to lead to the conclusion that petitioner has either connived at the adultery or was wholly indifferent to it. Poverty is almost always a sufficient excuse for delay, subject of course to delay not being inordinate. 1935 Sind 112 (F.B.); 156 I. C. 247=29 S.L.R. 88. Where delay is accounted for by the honest efforts made by petitioner to prevail on his spouse to abandon her evil ways, it would not be an unreasonable delay so as to deprive the petitioner of his legal right to secure a divorce. 1935 N. 49 (S.B.); 31 N.L.R. (Supp.) 174=161 I. C. 409=1936 N. 26 (S.B.). Under sec. 14, delay in presenting a petition for dissolution of marriage is not an absolute bar to relief; the Court has a discretion either to grant or refuse a decree. Having regard to the conditions of Indian society, the statement of the husband that for the sake of the children and the honour of the family he wished to avoid publicity and therefore put off seeking redress, is a sufficient explanation of any delay there has been on his part. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 340=47 C.W.N. 251=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 146. A petitioner for dissolution of marriage who has relied on several acts of adultery with regard to some of which there has been delay, is not disentitled to relief merely on that ground, when he has proved the latest adultery of all regarding which there has been no question of delay. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 340=47 C.W.N. 251=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 146. Before a Court can exercise the discretion to excuse the delay there should be some evidence explaining it, to make clear that there was no connivance or indifference to the adultery. 193 I.C. 301=1941 Rang. 110 (F.B.). In a petition for divorce by the wife on the ground of her husband's adultery and cruelty, when she makes out her case of adultery, the respondent should not be allowed to avoid the consequences of proved misconduct by putting forward acts of misconduct on the part of the petitioner for which the respondent was himself responsible, and when it is found that it was the conduct of the husband (respondent) in forcing the wife to leave the home that has conduced to the adultery which she confesses, the respondent should not be allowed to take advantage of that; held, further, on the facts that a delay of three years was not, under the circumstances, unreasonable and should be condoned by the Court; and that discretion should be exercised in the wife's favour by granting the divorce, notwithstanding the delay and her admitted adultery. 13 P. 129=15 Pat.L.J. 353=1934 P. 474. Courts in Burma, like the High Court in England, are entitled to pronounce a decree based on adultery committed by the respondent after the presentation of a petition for dissolution of marriage. But the petitioner desiring the Court to do so should, with the leave of the Court, file a duly verified supplemental petition supported by an affidavit setting out the facts, testifying to non-collusion and non-connivance, and should also serve such petition on the respondent and on all persons affected by it. This is the English practice which applies equally in Burma. 1938 Rang.L.R. 267=1939 Rang. 352.

15. In any suit instituted for dissolution of marriage, if the respondent opposes the relief sought on the ground in case of such a suit instituted by a wife, on the ground of her adultery and cruelty, the Court may in such suit give to the respondent, on his or her application, the same relief to which he or she would have been entitled in case he or she had presented a petition seeking such relief, and the respondent shall be competent to give evidence of or relating to such cruelty or desertion.

16. Every decree for a dissolution of marriage made by a High Court, not being a confirmation of a decree of a District Court, shall, in the first instance, be a decree nisi, not to be made absolute till after the expiration of such time, not less than six months from the pronouncing thereof, as the High Court by general or special order from time to time directs.

PRACTICE.—There are no rigid rules as to the exercise of the discretion of Court to grant a petition for divorce. All relevant facts are to be considered as well as the welfare of the parties themselves and the principles of morality. If the wife's adultery has been condoned by the conduct of her husband, she is entitled to ask the Court to exercise its discretion in her favour and to grant her a divorce; in the event of deliberate suppression by a petitioner the Court will be disinclined to give him or her the assistance that it might have given, had full disclosure been made at the outset. Subject to these guiding principles, the Court will naturally take a large and merciful view, considering the interests of possible children who might otherwise be born out of lawful wedlock, and the probability of one party to the proceedings marrying the third party involved if enabled to do so by being accorded freedom from the marriage tie. 165 I.C. 392=12 Luck. 697=1937, O. 116. Before passing a decree nisi what the Court has to see is not that the petitioner has given prima facie proof of his case but that the justice of the case demands that the decree should be pronounced. The facts on which the exercise of the discretionary power is sought should be set out in the petition. The Court should also consider that delay in filing petition is a point against him. 1934 P. 38=146 I.O. 798 (F.B.). In petitions for dissolution there is nothing in the Act as regards the exercise of the discretion of Court, and in this matter the practice in English Courts must be followed. There is no doubt that discretion of Court in these matters ought to be used with care. The main consideration is interest of the community at large. There is one ground however on which the discretion of the Court is invariably exercised and that is where the wilful neglect or misconduct of the respondent husband caused or conduced to his wife's adultery. Further there must be complete candour and disclosure on the part of the petitioner who wishes the Court to exercise its discretion in his or her favour. 151 I.C. 827=1934 A. 782.

Sec. 15.—Speaking generally, a guilty party cannot obtain relief by way of judicial separation any more than she can obtain relief by way of divorce. 47 B. 657=25 Bom. L.R. 289=1923 B. 284. Desertion to justify judicial separation must be a wilful abstention by the husband against the wish of the wife. 47 B. 657. Where a wife sues her husband for divorce on the ground of his adultery it is open to the husband in his written statement to counter-petition for a divorce on the ground of wife's adultery. It is not necessary that the husband should take an independent proceeding. 47 B. 657. Where a husband alleges adultery on the part of the wife with a foreigner the Court has jurisdiction to add such foreigner as a co-respondent to the proceeding. (Ibid.) See also 46 M. 133 under S. 37.

Sec. 16.—A High Court alone is competent to pronounce a decree nisi under sec. 16. 45 I.C. 519. A decree for dissolution of marriage, made by the High Court under the Divorce Act whether in its appellate or in its original jurisdiction, should be a decree nisi and not a decree subject to the confirmation by the High Court under sec. 17. 175 I.C. 408=1938 Rang. 204 (F.B.). If in a matrimonial suit the petitioner husband being ordered to give security for the wife's costs, fails to do so, his petition should be stayed and not dismissed. 47 B. 664=25 Bom.L.R. 339. Where wife is petitioner, husband's defence should not be struck out, but he should be proceeded against for contempt if he is proved to be able to pay, but contumaciously refuses to do so. 47 B. 664. Where, in a divorce case, the decree is referred to the High Court for confirmation, it is not necessary that petitioner himself should be present personally before the High Court. 29 M.L.J. 269=29 I.C. 178 (F.B.). A witness in a divorce case is not precluded from showing cause why decree nisi should not be made absolute. 108 I.C. 512=1927 O. 310. As to effect of resumption of marital relations after decree nisi and before decree absolute, see 34 M. 339=21 M.L.J. 528. On this section, see also 84 I.C. 71=1924 B. 132.

"During that period" means period from the date of decree nisi to the date of decree absolute. 108 I.C. 512=1927 O. 310. Where a decree for dissolution of marriage has been made absolute, it is not open to a third party

During that period any person shall be at liberty in such manner as the High Court by general or special order from time to time directs, to show cause why the said decree should not be made absolute by reason of the same having been obtained by collusion or by reason of material facts not being brought before the Court.

On cause being so shown, the Court shall deal with the case by making the decree absolute, or by reversing the decree nisi or by requiring further inquiry, or otherwise as justice may demand.

The High Court may order the costs of counsel and witnesses, and otherwise arising from such cause being shown, to be paid by the parties or such one or more of them as it thinks fit, including a wife if she have separate property.

Whenever, a decree nisi has been made, and the petitioner fails, within a reasonable time, to move to have such decree made absolute, the High Court may dismiss the suit.

Confirmation of decree for dissolution by District Judge.

17. Every decree for a dissolution of marriage made by a District Judge shall be subject to confirmation by the High Court.

to seek the aid of the Court under sec. 151, C.P. Code, to set it aside on the ground that one of the parties to the divorce proceedings was a minor and has not been represented by a guardian ad litem. Nor is there any provision in the Divorce Act to set aside a decree absolute in the manner in which a decree nisi could be attacked. 15 Luck. 350=1939 O.W.N. 139=1940 O. 279.

INTERVENOR.—In India, any person, with the exception of the respondent and the co-respondent and any person acting at the instance of either of these persons, may proceed by way of intervention proceedings. The mere fact of relationship of intervenor to respondent is not sufficient to disentitle intervention. 10 R. 115=137 I.C. 426=1932 R. 73; 103 I.C. 512=1927 O. 310. The words “not being brought before the Court” in sec. 16 means, “not being brought before the Court at any time up to the date of intervention.” 103 I.C. 512=1927 O. 310. It is the duty of every petitioner to place the facts of his or her case before the Court, and on intervention a decree nisi may be rescinded if there is failure to deal with the Court, with the utmost good faith. 10 R. 115=137 I.C. 426=1932 R. 73. There can be no collusion in mere prosecution as distinct from initiation of a true case. But it is very necessary to be careful before imputing collusion between parties from ordinary acts which a solicitor would naturally regard as inoffensive and unobjectionable. The mere fact that the wife’s attorney had furnished certain documents to the petitioner’s attorneys or that they had subpoenaed co-respondent is a very narrow ground for supposing that any collusion had taken place. 56 O. 530=1929 C. 599. Where after the passing of a decree nisi, a third party intervened alleging collusion and though notices and warrants were issued to the parties service was deliberately avoided. Held, the Court should dismiss the application for dissolution, set aside the decree nisi, and direct that a complaint be instituted against the husband under sec. 193, Penal Code. 145 I.C. 253=1933 L. 98. That the motive of the intervenor was not to expose the conduct of the petitioner but only to obtain custody of the child is immaterial; if the charges or guilty conduct on the part of the petitioner are made out, the Court can refuse to make the decree absolute, irrespective of the motive prompting the intervention. 10 R. 115=137 I.C. 426=1932 R. 73. Petition for making decree nisi absolute—Court-fee payable. See 1945 O.A. (C.C.). 91 (1).

SECS. 16 AND 17.—Owing to the adultery, cruelty and desertion on the part of the husband, the wife was compelled to leave his house. Subsequently she committed adultery with another man whom she wanted to marry and files a petition for divorce. The Judge viewed the case leniently and even though she was guilty of adultery granted a decree nisi. Held, that the discretion exercised was proper and that the decree should be made absolute. 27 S.L.R. 322=1933 S. 38.

SECS. 16 AND 17-A.—Decree nisi—Right of respondent to intervene—Duties of Government Advocate as King’s Proctor. Sec. 16 does not give the right to the respondent to object to a decree nisi being made absolute. The words “any person” do not apply to parties to the proceedings, and, therefore, cannot include the respondent. The right of the petitioner to have the decree nisi made absolute can only be challenged by a third party, or by the Government Advocate who is placed in the position of King’s Proctor by a notification of the Governor-General in Council under sec. 17-A. The Government Advocate cannot leave the matter in the hands of the respondent, and the correct course is for him to consider the respondent’s allegations and what may be placed before him in connection therewith and then decide whether he should intervene. 14 R. 322=1936 R. 499.

SEC. 17: GENERAL.—The obvious intention of the Legislature as expressed in sec. 17 is that the High Court, upon a reference for confirmation, should review the entire evidence and come to its own conclusion whether facts sufficient to justify a decree for dissolution are or are not established by that evidence. 1922 A. 504=44 A. 745=79 I.C. 133.

Cases for confirmation of a decree for dissolution of marriage shall be heard (where the number of the Judges of the High Court is three or upwards) by a Court composed of three such Judges, and in case of difference the opinion of the majority shall prevail, or (where the number of the Judges of the High Court is two) by a Court composed of such two Judges, and in case of difference, the opinion of the senior Judge shall prevail.

Case where dissolution was refused for want of evidence of misconduct. See 1930 L. 360 (S.B.). See also 40 B. 109=17 Bom.L.R. 948 under S. 37; 91 I.C. 99=1926 S. 58 (F.B.). Only the innocent party can move the High Court for a decree absolute under sec. 17. The Court will not entertain application to that effect from guilty party. 150 I.C. 543 (1)=1934 A. 634 (1) (S.B.). Where husband himself had been living for a number of years in a state of adultery with another woman that fact in itself is sufficient justification for High Court not to exercise its discretion in the matter of confirmation of the decree nisi passed for dissolution specially when circumstances on which he relies in proof of his wife's misconduct, are highly improbable and fall considerably short of the high standard of proof required under the law. 149 I.C. 1009=36 P.L.R. 66=1934 L. 334 (S.B.). The High Court has power to act on a reference under sec. 17 by the District Judge without any further application by and in the absence of the parties. The High Court therefore can proceed under sec. 17 with the confirmation of the decree for dissolution of marriage passed by the District Judge even when the petitioner under sec. 17 is absent and has not obtained a motion for the confirmation of the decree and the co-respondent who was the only person present at the hearing does not wish to contest the proceedings. 213 I.C. 173=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 162 (S.B.). Notice of confirmation proceedings to the respondent and co-respondent may be dispensed with in an appropriate case, e.g., a case in which they did not before the decree nisi was passed deny the petitioner's allegation regarding adultery and were quite willing for the dissolution of the marriage and there is nothing that they can contest in the High Court. I.L.R. 1945 Lah. 332=47 P.L.R. 1=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 67 (F.B.).

JURISDICTION.—In order that the Court may have jurisdiction to grant a decree for dissolution, the parties must profess the Christian religion, and they must also be domiciled in India at the date of the presentation of the petition. The domicile of the wife is the same as that of the husband, and it is his domicile which has to be considered. The domicile of origin remains until it is changed and a domicile of choice is acquired, and the burden of proving a change of domicile is upon the person who asserts it. Where the domicile of origin of the husband is Indian, the only question is whether there is any evidence that domicile has been changed. But where the domicile of origin is not Indian, then it is necessary to ascertain whether there is any evidence that that domicile had been changed in favour of an Indian domicile at the date of the presentation of the petition. Domicile depends on two things, the fact of residence and the intention to reside permanently. 36 Bom.L.R. 492=58 B. 502=1934 B. 230 (S.B.). Sec. 20 does not make the proviso to sec. 17 applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of nullity made by a District Judge. Such a decree may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncing thereof. Apart from this the scheme of the Act generally shows that it makes a distinction between decrees for dissolution and decrees annulling marriage. 151 I.C. 471=36 P.L.R. 137=1934 L. 636 (S.B.).

No notice to the respondent is necessary in proceedings for confirmation of a decree for dissolution of marriage. 10 P.L.R. 1921=59 I.C. 89. The High Court will not confirm a decree for the dissolution if it is not satisfied that the respondent was in fact served with a petition for divorce. 42 M.L.J. 562=1922 M. 350 (F.B.). Whether relationship of husband and wife subsists after decree nisi, and before it is confirmed. See 41 C. 714=18 C.W.N. 484.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—Where in divorce proceedings the petitioner charged his wife with adultery but did not mention the adulterer's name and the Judge added his name as co-respondent on his initiative, the Judge was in error in adding his name without amending the petition accordingly. 38 M. 466=25 M.L.J. 594. See also 29 I.C. 178=29 M.L.J. 269 (F.B.). The decree of the District Court cannot be confirmed by the High Court unless the co-respondent who had been impleaded in the District Court is also impleaded in the High Court. 12 L. 266=1931 L. 1 (S.B.). In a suit for dissolution brought by the husband on the ground of adultery by his wife an ex parte decree was granted, but the High Court returned the case for enquiry to the District Judge. He found that the act of adultery, though first condoned, was revived by subsequent matrimonial offence. The wife raised the counter-allegation of petitioner's alleged adultery with another woman subsequent to the decree. Held, that it was a matter which the wife could not raise; it could only be examined upon the intervention of a third party or of a King's Proctor. (14 R. 322; 1936 Rang. 499. Rel. on.) 167 I.C. 735=1937 R. 79 (S.B.). Where a divorce decree obtained by the wife comes before the High Court for its confirmation, the husband cannot object to the confirmation of the decree on the ground that the wife has married since the passing of the decree by the District Judge. 170 I.C. 200=1937 Rang. 333 (F.B.). A petition was made for

The High Court, if it thinks further enquiry or additional evidence to be necessary, may direct such enquiry to be made or such evidence to be taken.

The result of such enquiry and the additional evidence shall be certified to the High Court by the District Judge, and the High Court shall thereupon make an order confirming the decree for dissolution of marriage, or such other order as to the Court seems fit :

Provided that no decree shall be confirmed under this section till after the expiration of such time, not less than six months from the pronouncing thereof, as the High Court by general or special order from time to time directs.

During the progress of the suit in the Court of the District Judge, any person, suspecting that any parties to the suit are or have been acting in collusion for the purpose of obtaining a divorce, shall be at liberty, in such manner as the High Court by general or special order from time to time directs, to apply to the High Court to remove the suit under section 8, and the High Court, shall thereupon, if it thinks fit, remove such suit and try and determine the same as a Court of original jurisdiction, and the provisions contained in section 16 shall apply to every suit so removed ; or it may direct the District Judge to take such steps in respect of the alleged collusion as may be necessary to enable him to make a decree in accordance with the justice of the case.

judicial separation. But the petitioner in her evidence asked for a decree for dissolution of marriage. There was no evidence on record disclosing whether the petitioner was a Christian at the time of marriage, nor was there any evidence as to the religion of the respondent. There was no proof that the pastor who purported to solemnize the marriage was a person authorised under sec. 5, Christian Marriage Act, to do so and no marriage certificate was filed. But a decree for dissolution was granted. Held, that the decree granting the dissolution of marriage could not be confirmed and the record should be returned to the District Court for the amendment of the petition and for proof that a valid marriage had taken place. 164 I.C. 974=1936 R. 429 (S.B.).

REOPENING OF CLOSED PROCEEDINGS NOT ALLOWED.—Under sec. 17, the High Court has full power to confirm or not to confirm the decree nisi and an order not confirming it would amount to an order dismissing the suit. The petitioner sued in the District Court for dissolution of his marriage with his wife. He was granted a decree and he then applied to the High Court for confirmation of the decree. Later on he applied to the effect that his wife had agreed to come back to him and he accordingly prayed that the case should be consigned to the record room. The order passed was that the parties had settled their differences and the application for confirmation was withdrawn. On a later date the petitioner applied once again for confirmation of the decree nisi. Held, that though the order on the prior occasion merely stayed further proceedings, the parties meant thereby to have the matter finally disposed of and that the proceedings could not be reopened at petitioner's instance. 13 L. 47=1932 L. 279.

EVIDENCE.—It is contrary to the principles and rules on which the Divorce Court acts and gives relief, to act on the uncorroborated testimony of a petitioner either to establish adultery or cruelty. 42 M.L.J. 562=1922 M. 350 (F.B.). Under sec. 7, the Courts in this country should follow the same rule. (Ibid.) Where the wife has made allegations before the District Judge that her husband was committing adultery by keeping a mistress, the decree against her ought not to be made absolute without further enquiry. And where the allegations made by the wife are denied by the husband, and the wife though given an opportunity to prove the truth of her allegations, declines to cite witnesses and there is in fact no evidence to support her allegations the decree may be made absolute. 196 I.C. 412=1941 Rang. 249 (S.B.); 175 I.C. 21=1938 L. 301. Admission of an adultery by a husband may form the ground for granting a divorce even though it is not corroborated by other evidence. 1927 L. 491=9 L. 116. Condoned adultery may be revived by a subsequent matrimonial offence. 53 C. 436=96 I.C. 932=1926 C. 864. In proceedings for divorce taken out by the husband the onus of proof of the marriage is on the husband and unless such proof of the marriage is forthcoming in strict form the Court has no jurisdiction to enter into the matter. 146 I.C. 798 (F.B.).

DEATH OF HUSBAND DURING PENDENCY OF INTERVENER'S APPEAL—EFFECT.—The fact that at the date of the death of the husband the intervenor's appeal was pending does not prevent the decree absolute operating so as to deprive the widow of her status as the wife of the deceased. The decree absolute dissolves the marriage from the moment it was pronounced. The fact that neither spouse could re-marry until the time for appealing had expired in no way affects the full operation of the decree. It is a judgment in rem and unless and until a Court of Appeal reversed it, the marriage was for all purposes at an end. A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 188.

DECREE NISI—INTERVENTION—TIME LIMIT.—That the intervention had not taken place within six months of the decree nisi is immaterial. Intervention can always take place at any time before the decree is made absolute. However, it is within the discretionary

IV.—NULLITY OF MARRIAGE.

18. Any husband or wife may present a petition to the District or to the High Court, praying that his or her marriage may be declared null and void.

19. Such decree may be made on any of the following grounds:

INTERVENTION—AFFIDAVIT — NATURE OF.—The affidavit under r. 36 of the Rules framed under the Divorce Act must be of some one prepared to swear of his own knowledge to some relevant fact, or at least one which sets out the sources of information and swears to a belief therein. A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 188.

SECS. 17 AND 55.—A decree for dissolution of a marriage was passed and the co-respondent was ordered to pay damages to the petitioner and respondent. The co-respondent did not appeal from the order regarding damages but when the petition for confirmation of the decree was filed in the High Court, he sought to attack the order regarding damages. Held, that he was entitled to do so even though he had not appealed against the order. Sec. 17-A.—See 14 R. 322=1936 R. 499.

SECS. 18 AND 19.—The word "solemnized" in sec. 5 of the Christian Marriage Act means "celebrated" and deals with the ceremony only; and the words "rules, rites, ceremonies and customs of the church" mean only the rules, etc., as to the capacity of the parties. 47 I.C. 544=11 Bur.L.T. 69. Suit for declaration of nullity of marriage—Questions to be considered by Court. (Ibid.) "Fraud" means fraud practised upon the other party to the marriage and does not include fraud upon a third party. (Ibid.) See also I.L.R. (1939) 2 C. 60=1940 C. 65. A ceremony of marriage constituting a binding marriage between the parties subsists until set aside on one or other of the grounds which justify annulling or setting aside a marriage. Before a valid marriage can be celebrated both parties must be either single or divorced or a widow or a widower. If at the time of the marriage ceremony one or other of the parties had a spouse living, the earlier marriage not having been set aside, the later marriage is void ab initio; in other words it is no marriage at all. The law in England that a party to a marriage of which the other party is incompetent to join in the celebration because of the existence of a previous husband or wife, is entitled without any recourse to any Court to marry any one else applies equally well to marriages between Christians in India inasmuch as no Christian can marry another person in the life-time of an earlier spouse unless the previous marriage has been set aside. This position cannot be interfered with in regard to a marriage celebrated in India as provided by sec. 88, Christian Marriage Act. Unless therefore the marriage is a valid marriage it cannot be a marriage which is in force within the meaning of sec. 19. 46 L.W. 602=1937 M. 565. A decree of nullity must be passed when the marriage is effected within six months of the confirmation of a decree of dissolution of a former marriage of either party where the former husband or wife is living at the time of the latter. 29 P.R. 1913=19 I.C. 778. See also 38 I.C. 413=38 M. 452. Hereditary syphilis—Impotency—Consent obtained by fraud—Held, marriage should be annulled. 67 I.C. 949=25 C.W.N. 706. In the absence of an express allegation and strict proof that the party was impotent, i.e., physically unfit for consummation both at the date of marriage and at the date of the institution of the suit, a suit for declaration of nullity on the ground of impotency is not maintainable. 30 I.C. 565=29 M.L.J. 183. In a petition under sec. 18 a prayer for custody of children may also be inserted. 27 A. L.J. 65=1928 A. 677.

SECS. 18 TO 20 AND 45: DECREE FOR NULLITY OF MARRIAGE—FORM OF.—The decree to be passed by the Calcutta High Court in exercise of its matrimonial jurisdiction in a suit for nullity of marriage must be one plain, simple, absolute decree, and it should not be in the form of a decree visi to be followed by a decree absolute. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 258.

Sec. 19.—Where there is a wilful refu-

- (1) that the respondent was impotent at the time of the marriage and at the time of the institution of the suit ;
- (2) that the parties are within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity (whether natural or legal) or affinity ;
- (3) that either party was a lunatic or idiot at the time of the marriage ;
- (4) that the former husband or wife of either party was living at the time of the marriage, and the marriage with such former husband or wife was then in force.

Nothing in this section shall affect the jurisdiction of the High Court to make decrees of nullity of marriage on the ground that the consent of either party was obtained by force or fraud.

sal of sexual intercourse due to incapacity arising from nervousness or hysteria or from an inherent repugnance to act of consummation thus making consummation practically impossible, Court can declare marriage null and void on the ground of impotence. 1931 A.L.J. 267=1931 A. 207. If every attempt on the part of the husband to consummate the marriage immediately reduces his wife to a state of hysteria and the conduct of his wife is such that it is impossible to obtain consummation short of using force and being brutal and virtually raping her, the law regards this as impotency on the part of the woman within the meaning of sec. 19. It does not enjoin cruelty and brutality on the part of the man. It does not direct him to force the woman to his will. It respects her body and, provided her conduct is not just wilfulness or spite and if due to true incapacity, it grants release from an impossible situation which should never have arisen. Incapacity in the woman is possible vis a vis a particular man even when the woman is shown to have had previous sexual experience. That the incapacity need not be physical is now well established. It can be due as well to mental as to physical causes. All that is required is an invincible repugnance to the act of intercourse either generally or with the particular man. The rules of evidence are not different in these cases and there is no minimum standard of proof necessary. The uncorroborated testimony of the petitioner is sufficient, if it can be believed. His testimony cannot be discarded solely because the case is an unusual one. The mere fact that the wife also wants the marriage to be annulled does not necessarily import collusion. I. L.R. (1943) Nag. 474=1943 N.L.J. 296=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 185. Incapacity in wife of consummating marriage; consisting of a nervous and psychic disorder and of invincible repugnance in relation to the act of coitus, at all events in so far as the petitioner husband is concerned, which renders her incapable of submitting to sexual intercourse with him, is sufficient to satisfy the requirements of sec. 19, as it constitutes a permanent physical disability. The burden of proving his allegation is on the petitioner and he must remove all reasonable doubts. If there be a direct conflict of testimony between the two parties who alone know the truth, the difficulties are much increased. The delay on the part of the petitioner increases the burden of proof and is an important factor in deciding whether his story is true. The law requires sincerity in the complainant, i.e., real sense of grievance complained of, unmixed with any other subsidiary motive, and, as a necessary proof of such sincerity, requires all reasonable promptitude to be exhibited by complainant in seeking legal redress. Delay in itself is not an absolute bar to success in a suit of such nature unless the respondent has suffered in any way by reason of it; but it has an important bearing on the evidence by which the charge of impotency is sought to be established and upon the measure of proof required. 1938 C. 684. Where the wife was suffering from some curable form of venereal disease and it appeared that the only mistake was that the husband was under the impression that girl was not diseased at the time of marriage, held, that the lady was not impotent, that there was no fraud and that it was not a proper case to pass a decree of nullity. Per Curiam.—It would be proper to hold that incurable syphilis is equivalent to impotence. 6 O.W.N. 244=117 I.C. 450=1929 O. 238. The existence of venereal disease in a woman does not constitute impotence within the meaning of sec. 19 of the Act. Per Hasan, J.—Whether, when a wife suffers from a disease which might or might not be venereal and the husband has reasonable and well-founded apprehension of infection in case he has sexual intercourse with such a wife, in such circumstances the Court would be justified to record a finding that the wife was impotent. 5 Luck. 484=7 O.W.N. 17=1930 O. 83.

Idioty.—The term "idiot" in sec. 19 must be read as a word used in its ordinary significance and means a person deficient in mental or intellectual faculty as to be incapable of ordinary acts of reasoning or rational conduct. The petitioner who has a licence to hold a gun for shooting, who goes about shooting, who rides a horse, who sometimes goes about fishing, who can compose a letter for himself and write it in a tolerably good hand, who reads books to pass time, who is invited to tea parties, who knows the nature of the transaction of marriage in which he entered with the opposite party and indeed who arranged for it with the Bishop cannot be called an idiot in the ordinary acceptance of the word. 56 A. 428. Per Sulaiman, C.J.—In order to find that a person is an idiot, it is not sufficient to find that he is a mere imbecile. One cannot be an idiot unless his faculties have not at all been developed and he has not acquired any appreciable intelligence. 56 A. 428. Any state of mind which falls short of lunacy or idiocy cannot be allowed to be a ground for annulment. Persons differ from one another in the degree of intelligence possessed by them. It would be a dire calamity if it could be said as a matter of law that a marriage, entered into by a person who is neither a lunatic nor an idiot, is void, simply because one of the parties lacks in intelligence, although he is able to understand the nature of the bonds of matrimony into which he is entering. Want of consent as such does not find a place in sec. 19 as one of the grounds for declaring a marriage null and void. 1934 A.L.J. 1127=56 A. 428=1934 A. 273. The Judge has to satisfy himself regarding the idiocy of a person. Doctor's opinion in such matters is not conclusive. It is at the most a guide. The mere fact that the person is feeble-minded and that he has the intelligence of a child of about eight or nine years of age is not sufficient to declare that person an idiot within the meaning of sec. 19 (3) which classes lunatics and idiots together. 1933 A. 122=55 A. 185.

20. Every decree of nullity of marriage made by a District Judge shall be subject to confirmation by the High Court, and the provisions of section 17, clauses 1, 2, 3 and 4, shall mutatis mutandis apply to such decrees.

The various grounds on which the Court can give a decree of nullity under the Divorce Act refer to cases where there has been a marriage validly performed. Questions arise under secs. 4 and 5, Christian Marriage Act, when the marriage has not been validly performed. There is a clear distinction between a decree of nullity of a valid marriage and a declaration that the marriage itself is illegal and void. There can therefore be no doubt there is jurisdiction in the High Court to hear and decide questions under the Christian Marriage Act. 55 A. 185.

CONSENT TO MARRIAGE—QUESTION OF FACT.—In a suit for declaring marriage null and void on ground of want of free consent, the question of consent is one of fact and not of law. Hence an issue and evidence for it is necessary for decision. 56 A. 428. Inducing consent to marry cannot upset a marriage. The position in law is that the party imposed upon must be deceived to such an extent that there is in reality no consent at all to the marriage. Such consent cannot be given by a child of nine years of age and consequently a person who though 54 years old, is found by the Court to be very feeble minded and to have the mentality of a child of nine years of age is incapable of giving his consent. 1933 A. 122=55 A. 185.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—Where a petition to declare a marriage null and void is made under sec. 19 (4), the burden of proof lies upon the petitioner that the previous marriage of the opposite party was in full force and effect and was not set aside at the time when his marriage took place with the opposite party. 169 I.C. 516=1937 Mad. 565. A, a Hindu, who was already married according to Hindu rites to a Hindu woman, B, falsely represented to C, a Christian woman, that he was a Christian and a bachelor and married her. On the petition for dissolution of the marriage by C, held, that the onus was on A to prove that he was converted to Christianity and that he was a Christian on the date of his marriage to B and therefore his marriage to B not being legal, marriage with C was legal. A having failed to discharge that onus, C was entitled to a decree of nullity under sec. 19 (4). Held, further, that C would be entitled to a divorce on the ground of fraud even if a decree of nullity was denied to her. 205 I.C. 290=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 51 (S.B.).

DISCRETION OF COURT—ADMISSIONS OF PARTIES—VALUE OF.—Divorce proceedings and proceedings for nullity are not like ordinary civil suits in which the parties are litigating their own rights and seeking decrees to which they are indisputably entitled if the facts they allege are proved. There is no right of divorce. No one is indisputably entitled to a decree of nullity. The Courts have a discretion in every case even when all the necessary facts are clearly proved. The slightest bad faith, any suspicion of collusion, the least want of candour, entitles the Court to stay its hand. The State is vitally concerned in the institution of marriage and insists on strict proof and a close investigation before it will permit the tie to be dissolved. Provision is made for a loosening up of the normal procedure to prevent injustice in extreme cases but such cases must be extreme and should be very rare, and always, adequate reasons for any departure from the normal should be given by the Court. The mere fact that the other side admits the facts, or does not contest, is not in itself enough though that may be taken into consideration along with other matters. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 474=1943 N.L.J. 296=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 185.

SECS. 19 AND 20.—The policy of the Divorce Act does not contemplate a valid marriage between a Christian and a person professing a religion which is not monogamous. Where prior to and also at the time of their marriage, the husband who was a Mahomedan represented to the wife that he was a Roman Catholic, and the wife, who was a Roman Catholic would not have married him if she had known that he was a Mahomedan, the marriage is void, the wife's consent to it having been obtained by fraud. The High Court has accordingly power to annul that marriage on the ground of fraud under S. 19 of the Act. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 60=1940 Cal. 75.

SEC. 20.—S. 20 does not make the proviso

21. Where a marriage is annulled on the ground that a former husband or wife was living, and it is adjudged that the subsequent marriage was contracted in good faith and with the full belief of the parties that the former husband or wife was dead, or when a marriage is annulled on the ground of insanity, children begotten before the decree is made shall be specified in the decree, and shall be entitled to succeed, in the same manner as legitimate children, to the estate of the parent who at the time of the marriage was competent to contract.

V.—JUDICIAL SEPARATION.

to S. 17 applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of a nullity of marriage made by a District Judge. Such a decree may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncing thereof. Apart from this the scheme of the Act generally shows that it makes a distinction between decrees for dissolution of marriage and decrees annulling a marriage. 36 P.L.R. 137=1934 L. 636 (S. B.). As to form of decree in suit for nullity of marriage. See I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 258.

SEC. 22.—The mere fact that the husband and wife cannot agree is not a sufficient ground for judicial separation. 1932 O. 231=9 O.W.N. 447. Desertion under the Divorce Act implies an abandonment against the wish of the person charging it, but it is not a universal rule that the abandonment must be against expressed wish of that person. 8 Bur.L.T. 32=27 I.C. 604. As to what constitutes "cruelty" "adultery", "desertion", see note under S. 10, supra. To constitute 'cruelty' there must be danger to life, limb and health, bodily or mental, or a reasonable apprehension of it. 1932 O. 231=9 O.W.N. 447. A decree for judicial separation and payment of alimony to the wife is annulled by subsequent resumption of co-habitation by the parties and the wife cannot claim any rights under the decree even if the husband had executed an agreement that the decree ordering payment should remain in force and that she should have the right to live separate if she had any fresh grievance against him. 137 I.C. 737=1932 O. 142 (8 Q.B.D. 778 and 2 R. 163 Foll.).

CRUELTY—IMPUTATION OF MISCONDUCT TO WIFE—IF AMOUNTS TO.—A false imputation of misconduct made by the husband in the course of an acrimonious correspondence between himself and his wife is not sufficient to make out a case of cruelty justifying a decree for judicial separation, especially when there is no evidence that he made any such imputation against his wife to any third person and it is not even suggested that the wife has suffered any mental injury or injury to health by reason of such imputation. 1935 O.W.N. 103=1935 O. 133. Where the husband has been guilty of beating his wife on several occasions and on one of them her hands were tied with a chain and her feet with a rope and she was kept hanging in a door way until another person came to her rescue, the acts of the husband amount to legal cruelty sufficient to justify the Court to pass a decree for judicial separation under S. 22 of the Act. 165 I.C. 12=12 Luck. 526=1937 O. 52. As to jurisdiction, see 1941 A.L.J. 710.

DESERTION.—A false imputation of misconduct made by the husband in a letter written by him to his wife during the period of desertion by her when his feelings were greatly exasperated on account of the attitude adopted by his wife, does not constitute "reasonable cause" for her deserting him, especially when, during that period, the husband wrote to her several times asking her to return to him and offering to take her back without any conditions on either side but the wife persisted in her desertion. The husband, in such circumstances, is entitled to a decree for judicial separation on the ground of desertion by his wife without reasonable cause. 1935 O.W.N. 103=1935 O. 133. Where in a petition by the wife praying for the dissolution of her marriage with her husband on the ground of her husband's adultery, the wife fails to prove the charge of adultery but succeeds in proving cruelty by the husband towards her, the Court can pass a decree for judicial separation under S. 22 although she has not specifically prayed for such a decree either in her original petition or in her memorandum of appeal. 165 I.C. 12=12 Luck. 526=1937 O. 52. In an application for judicial separation under S. 22, where adultery is alleged, it is difficult to produce evidence of witnesses who may have seen the guilty party in flagrante delicto

23. Application for judicial separation on any one of the grounds aforesaid may be made by either husband or wife by petition to the District Court or the High Court; and the Court, on being satisfied of the truth of the statements made in such petition, and that there is no legal ground why the application should not be granted, may decree judicial separation accordingly.

24. In every case of a judicial separation under this Act, the wife shall, from the date of the sentence, and whilst the separation continues, be considered as unmarried with respect to property of every description which she may acquire, or which may come to or devolve upon her.

Such property may be disposed of by her in all respects as an unmarried woman, and on her decease the same shall, in case she dies intestate, go as the same would have gone if her husband had been then dead :

Provided that, if any such wife again cohabits with her husband, all such property as she may be entitled to when such cohabitation takes place shall be held to her separate use, subject, however, to any agreement in writing made between herself and her husband whilst separate.

25. In every case of a judicial separation under this Act, the wife shall

whilst so separated, be considered as an unmarried woman for the purposes of contract, and wrongs and injuries, and suing and being sued in any civil proceeding; and her husband shall not be liable in respect of any contract, act or costs entered into, done, omitted or incurred by her during the separation :

Provided that where, upon any such judicial separation, alimony has been decreed or ordered to be paid to the wife, and the same is not duly paid by the husband, he shall be liable for necessities supplied for her use :

Provided also that nothing shall prevent the wife from joining, at any time during such separation, in the exercise of any joint power given to herself and her husband.

REVERSAL OF DECREE OF SEPARATION.

26. Any husband or wife, upon the application of whose wife or husband, Decree of separation obtained during absence of husband or wife may be reversed.

as the case may be, a decree of judicial separation has been pronounced, may, at any time thereafter, present a petition to the Court by which the decree was pronounced, praying for a reversal of such decree; on the ground that it was obtained in his or her absence, and that there was reasonable excuse for the alleged desertion, where desertion was the ground of such decree.

The Court may, on being satisfied of the truth of the allegations of such petition, reverse the decree accordingly; but such reversal shall not prejudice or affect the rights or remedies which any other person would have had, in case it had not been decreed, in respect of any debts, contracts or acts of the wife incurred, entered into or done between the times of the sentence of separation and of the reversal thereof.

and at most circumstantial evidence can be led from which a reasonable inference may be drawn of the guilty party having committed adultery. 39 P.L.R. 556=1937 Lah. 395.

VI.—PROTECTION ORDERS.

27. Any wife to whom section 4 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865¹ does not apply, may, when desired by her husband, present a petition to the District Court or the High Court, at any time after such desertion, for an order to protect any property which she may have acquired or may acquire, and any property of which she may have become possessed or may become possessed after such desertion, against her husband or his creditors, or any person claiming under him.

28. The Court, if satisfied of the fact of such desertion, and that the same was without reasonable excuse, and that the wife is maintaining herself, by her own industry or property, may make and give to the wife an order protecting her earnings and other property from her husband and all creditors and persons claiming under him. Every such order shall state the time at which the desertion commenced, and shall, as regards all persons dealing with the wife in reliance thereon, be conclusive as to such time.

29. The husband or any creditor of, or person claiming under him, may apply to the Court by which such order was made for the discharge or variation thereof, and the Court, if the desertion has ceased, or if for any other reason it think fit so to do, may discharge or vary the order accordingly.

30. If the husband, or any creditor of, or person claiming under, the husband seizes or continues to hold any property of the wife after notice of any such order, he shall be liable at the suit of the wife (which she is hereby empowered to bring), to return or deliver to her the specific property, and also to pay her a sum equal to double its value.

31. So long as any such order of protection remains in force, the wife shall be and be deemed to have been, during such desertion of her, in the like position in all respects, with regard to property and contracts and suing and being sued, as she would be under this Act if she obtained a decree of judicial separation.

VII.—RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.

32. When either the husband or the wife has, without reasonable excuse, withdrawn from the society of the other, either wife or husband may apply by petition to the District Court or the High Court, for restitution of conjugal rights, and the Court, on being satisfied of the truth of the statements made in such petition, and that there is no legal ground why the application should not be granted, may decree restitution of conjugal rights accordingly.

SEC. 32.—In a suit by a Christian brought in an ordinary way on the original side of the High Court, and not under the Matrimonial jurisdiction, praying for a declaration that the marriage between the

VIII.—DAMAGES AND COSTS.

34. Any husband may, either in a petition for dissolution of marriage or for judicial separation, or in a petition to the District Court or the High Court limited to such object only, claim damages from any person on the ground of his having committed adultery with the wife of such petitioner.

Husband may claim damages from adulterer.

Such petition shall be served on the alleged adulterer and the wife unless the Court dispenses with such service, or directs some other service to be substituted.

The damages to be recovered on any such petition shall be ascertained by the said Court, although the respondents or either of them may not appear.

After the decision has been given, the Court may direct in what manner such damages shall be paid or applied.

35. Whenever in any petition presented by a husband, the alleged adulterer has been a co-respondent, and the adultery has been established, the Court may order the co-respondent to pay the whole or any part of the cost of the proceedings :

Sec. 36.—A Court has discretion to give alimony pendente lite if it thinks it reasonable and just, especially where the wife avers that she had been forced to prostitution by her husband. 49 I.C. 203=12 S.L.R. 89. As to quantum of alimony, see 132 I.C. 771=1931 O. 365. Where a petition by the wife for the dissolution of her marriage has been dismissed, Appellate Court has power to continue the order of alimony on the presentation of an appeal by her till the disposal of the appeal and till such time as the Court directs, unless the appellate Court considers that the conduct of the wife has been such as to disentitle her to an order of maintenance. 40 I.C. 503=1933 L. 5. On this section, see also 36 C. 1018=4 I.C. 699. Where a petition for the dissolution of marriage on the ground of adultery is made and is filed by the husband and the wife enters an appearance and denies the allegations against her, she has an absolute right to require her husband to furnish her with funds sufficient to enable her to make a full and satisfactory defence and to obtain such assistance from counsel, as is reasonable under the circumstances. 44 A. 745=1922 A. 504 (F.B.). A husband may, in a proper case on the wife's application, be ordered by the appellate Court to provide for the costs of the wife's appeal against a decree nisi for divorce, but such a procedure should be adopted only after careful scrutiny and should be refused when facts do not justify it. 44 C. 35=37 I.C. 216=21 C.W.N. 711. Where a husband seeks dissolution of the marriage on the ground of the wife's adultery the latter should ordinarily be allowed costs from her husband to enable her to defend herself upon the charge, unless there are special reasons to the contrary. When an order for such payment is made, but the amount is not paid, the petition should be made to stand out till such costs are paid. 1940 All. 93=1940 A. L.J. 737=1940 O.A. 1058=I.L.R. (1940) All. 802=1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 568. Net income merely means income after allowing for the cost of collection, income-tax and similar deductions. Net income does not mean any sum which is left over after the husband has spent all that he considers necessary for his maintenance. 1939 Cal. 753.

Sec. 37.—S. 37 gives the Court discretion to give an order for permanent alimony on any decree of judicial separation obtained by the wife, but it does not strictly negative the power of the Court to make similar provision for a wife against whom a decree of judicial separation has been passed at the instance of the husband. A decree of judicial separation does not dissolve the tie of marriage, and while and the District Judge may, if he thinks fit, on the confirmation of any decree of his declaring a marriage to be dissolved, or on any decree of judicial separation obtained by the wife, order that the husband shall, to the satisfaction of the Court, secure to the wife such gross sum of money, or such annual sum of money for any term not exceeding her own life, as having regard to her fortune (if any), to the ability of the husband, and to the conduct of the parties, it thinks reasonable, and for that purpose may cause a proper instrument to be executed by all necessary parties.

In every such case the Court may make an order on the husband for payment to the wife of such monthly or weekly sums for her maintenance and support as the Court may think reasonable :

Power to order monthly or weekly payments.

Provided that if the husband afterwards from any cause becomes unable to make such payments, it shall be lawful for the Court to discharge or modify the order, or temporarily to suspend the same as to the whole or any part of the money so ordered to be paid, and again to revive the same order wholly or in part, as to the Court seems fit.

It is the District Court whose order for dissolution of marriage was confirmed by the High Court, that has got jurisdiction in a petition for alimony. 40 B. 100=31 I.C. 331=17 Bom.L.R. 948. As to the quantum of alimony to be awarded, see 132 I.C. 771=1931 O. 365. A decree nisi for divorce for adultery having been obtained against a wife, it is left to the discretion of the Court to grant alimony to her under the particular circumstances of the case. 38 A. 688=37 I.C. 143=14 A.L.J. 786. A wife who was held to be innocent at the time of divorce is not disentitled to alimony by her alleged misconduct after the divorce. There is no rule that in granting maintenance to a wife who has obtained a divorce the "dum sola et casta" clause should invariably be inserted. 25 S.L.R. 458=1931 S. 112. The dum sola et casta clause must be inserted in an order granting alimony; it will never be inferred. If there is no such clause in the order granting alimony to the wife, the order could not be varied or discharged on the ground of subsequent unchastity. 1939 A.L.J. 572=I.L.R. (1939) All. 819=1939 All. 696. Under S. 37 the Court has power to make an order for payment of a lump sum for maintenance. 39 B. 182=27 I.C. 494=17 Bom.L.R. 56. The words "for any time not exceeding her own life" qualify "annual sum" and not "gross sum." The word "secure" would ordinarily include "pay". (Ibid.) Under S. 37 the power to make any order on the husband to secure a gross sum or annual income for the wife can only be exercised on the passing of the decree. An order directing the husband to furnish security made four years after the decree for judicial separation is, therefore, without jurisdiction. If such an order is not drawn up and filed, the Court has power to vacate it without an application for review being made to it. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 22=42 C.W.N. 317=1938 Cal. 321. Under S. 37 the Court has power to make an order on the husband to secure a gross sum or annual income for the wife. In addition it has also the power to order him to pay to the wife such monthly or weekly sums for her maintenance and support as it may think reasonable. There is however no power given by the section which enables the Court to compel the husband to secure such monthly or weekly payments. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 22=42 C.W.N. 317=1938 Cal. 321. Where the husband is gaining his income by his own personal exertions, the Court as a general rule will not give the wife more than one-third of his income as alimony, no matter how gross the misconduct of the husband has been. As a general rule half of the husband's income is only allotted in those cases where a wife has on marriage brought the husband a considerable sum of money or other property. 1931 O. 365=8 O.W.N. 851. Where the income of the husband was proved to be something over Rs. 1,000 a month, held, that it was reasonable to fix the alimony of the separated wife at Rs. 260 a month. 58 M. L.J. 29=1930 M. 154. SEC. 37, PARAS. 3 AND 4: SCOPE OF—POWER TO SUBSTITUTE ORDER UNDER PARA. 3 FOR PRIOR ORDER UNDER PARA. 4.—The provisions of paras. 3 and 4 of S. 37 are alternatives at the discretion of the Court. They are merely alternative methods of protecting the successful petitioner, the wife. The proviso to the section in terms relates only to the provisions in para. 4 for monthly and weekly payments, and it does not in terms provide for any increase in the amount of the payments. Though a prior order has been made under para. 4, a Court has power on a fresh application to pass an order under para. 3. The correct interpretation of the third para. of S. 37 is that the husband is to secure to the wife a gross sum of money which is to be at her disposal in the same way as the annual sum of money. The section does give power to direct a money payment. 1938 O.W.N. 513=1938 Oudh 171. See also 1938 Cal. 321=42 C.W.N. 317=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 321. (Jurisdiction of Court to order husband to furnish security some years after decree for judicial separation).

SEC. 37, PROVISIO: DISCRETION—EXERCISE OF—DELAY.—The power given to the Court under the proviso to S. 37 to discharge, modify or suspend an order for alimony is discretionary, and should not be exercised by the Court in favour of applicant who has unreasonably delayed his application. I.L.R. (1938) All. 213=1937 A.L.J. 1363=1938 All. 121. Under the proviso to S. 37 the Court has jurisdiction only to discharge, modify or suspend an order for alimony in so far as it concerns future payments, that is, as to payments which are to become due in future. The Court has no power to remit arrears and has no jurisdiction to declare that the husband should not be liable to make good sums of alimony which have already accrued due under the decree in execution proceedings or otherwise. I.L.R. (1938) All. 213=1937 A.L.J. 1363=1938 All. 121.

SEC. 38.—Alimony should usually be allowed from the date of service of summons upon the respondent; but where no summons has been served it should be from the time the latter entered appearance. Income-tax and insurance premia can be deducted, but not the expenses of a son's education in calculating the net income of a person for granting alimony to his wife. 11 I.C. 813=4 Bur.L. T. 176. See also 14 M. 89.

SEC. 39.—There is no power under the Divorce Act to make any provision for the Inquiry into existence of ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlements. 40. The High Court, after a decree absolute for dissolution of marriage, or decree of nullity of marriage, and the District Court, after its decree for dissolution of marriage or of nullity of marriage has been confirmed, may inquire into the existence of ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlements made on the parties whose marriage is the subject of the decree, and may make such orders, with reference to the application of the whole or a portion of the property settled, whether for the benefit of the husband or the wife, or of the children (if any) of the marriage, or of both children and parents, as to the Court seems fit :

Provided that the Court shall not make any order for the benefit of the parents or either of them at the expense of the children.

orders, and may make such provision in the decree, as it deems proper with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of such suit, and may, if think fit, direct proceedings to be taken for placing such children under the protection of the said Court.

42. The Court, after a decree of judicial separation, may upon application (by petition) for this purpose make, from time to time, all such orders and provision, with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of the decree, or for placing such children under the protection of the said Court, as might have been made by such decree or by interim orders in case the proceedings for obtaining such decree were still pending.

maintenance of children who are no longer minors under the Act. 58 M.L.J. 29=1930 M. 154.

SEC. 40.—The power given to the Court under S. 40 is a discretionary one; the discretion must be exercised judicially. It is of course open to a guilty party to make an application under S. 40, but such an application should not be readily acceded to; unless special circumstances exist which make it just and proper to make an order upon the application of a guilty party varying a settlement, the status quo should remain undisturbed. The Court should not ordinarily deprive an innocent party of any interest which he or she takes under a settlement, even though it be for the benefit of the children of the marriage. I.L.R. (1938) All. 95=1937 A.L.J. 1368=1938 All. 126.

SEC. 41.—Appeal lies from order of Court fixing amount of maintenance under S. 41. 1937 Lah. 862.

SECS. 41 AND 43.—The order passed by the District Judge about maintenance under S. 41 terminates when a final order is passed under S. 43, and S. 41 gives the Court a very wide discretion to fix such maintenance as it thinks fit. High Court will not therefore ordinarily interfere with an order fixing the amount of maintenance unless it appears to have been passed in disregard of the evidence and is clearly unreasonable. 1937 Lah.

SEC. 42: DECREE OF JUDICIAL SEPARATION—CUSTODY OF CHILDREN—CONSIDERATION.—It cannot be contended that in cases of judicial separation, the custody of daughters as a rule should be given to the mother in preference to the father. No hard and fast rule can be laid down in this matter. The paramount consideration must always be the welfare of the children. Where the father is held entitled to a decree of judicial separation and he has not been found guilty of any conduct which could disentitle him from the custody of his children and he holds a respectable position in life and is in a better position to give them a decent education and to provide and look to their upbringing and the mother's past conduct shows that if the children are left with her, she is sure to alienate their affections from the father, the Court would exercise a wise discretion in allowing the father who is in law the natural guardian of his minor children to have their custody. 1935 O.W.N. 103=1935 O. 133. Per Phillips, J.—It seems to me most improper that a Court of Matrimonial jurisdiction should not have power to pass orders as to the custody and maintenance of unmarried girls above the age of 13 or of boys over 16. Since 1869 great strides have been made on education and it cannot now be said that education always ceases in the case of girls at 13 and in the case of boys at 16,

43. In any suit for obtaining a dissolution of marriage or a decree of nullity of marriage instituted in, or removed to a High Court, the Court may from time to time before making its decree absolute or its decree (as the case may be) make such interim orders, and may make such provision in the decree absolute or decree, and in any such suit instituted in a District Court, the Court may from time to time, before its decree is confirmed, make such interim orders, and may make such provision on such confirmation, as the High Court or District Court (as the case may be) deems proper with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of the suit ; and may, if it think fit, direct proceedings to be taken for placing such children under the protection of the Court.

Power to make orders as to custody of children in suits for dissolution or nullity.

nor are they usually in a position to find for themselves at that age. In my opinion the definition of minor children in S. 3 (5) requires amendment. 58 M.L.J. 29=1930 M. 154.

SEC. 43.—It is no doubt true that prima facie the innocent party is entitled to the custody of the children of the marriage. But there is no hard and fast rule on the subject. The matrimonial offence which justified the divorce is not always sufficient to disentitle the mother to the custody of her daughter. The paramount consideration is the interest of the children. Where a child of tender years had been living with her mother all along, the mother was extremely devoted to her, it would be a great shock for the child to be separated from the mother, as the father was practically a stranger to the child, and the child could be better maintained by the mother than by father. Held, that the mother was entitled to custody of her daughter in preference to the father, though the former was the 'guilty' party. 9 O.W.N. 362=1932 O. 182. In cases coming under the Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act when an order is made for the custody of a minor child, the order is not to be expressly limited in point of time to any particular period. 1940 Rang.L.R. 674=1940 Rang. 303. Provision for children who are not minors cannot be ordered under the Act. English law cannot be invoked to widen the discretion of the Courts in India. A.I.R. 1943 All. 25=(1942) A.L.J. 688=1943 All. 8. The power of Court to make any order for the custody of a minor child, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of a suit for obtaining a dissolution of that marriage, is limited to making an order in respect of such child only so long as that child remains a minor child within the meaning of the Divorce Act. The proper practice to be followed in Burma is to limit the order for custody to the age which is fixed by S. 3 (5) of the Act and also to direct that the person to whom is given the custody should not remove the child outside the jurisdiction of the Court without its sanction. 1939 Rang.L.R. 267=1939 Rang. 352. An order under S. 43 regarding the custody and maintenance of children is an ad interim order liable to terminate upon the confirmation of decree by the High Court, and hence such an order should not form part of the decree nisi by a District Judge for dissolution of marriage. 54 I.C. 943=142 P.R. 1919 (S.B.) As to the circumstances to be considered, see 27 A. L.J. 65=111 I.C. 627=1928 A. 677. See also 1937 Lah. 862.

SECS. 43 AND 44.—Where a person had obtained a decree nisi for dissolution of marriage and custody of the children and dies before its confirmation by the High Court, the Court has no jurisdiction to confirm the decree for dissolution of the marriage or to make any order as regards the custody of the children. 50 C. 153=1923 C. 426.

The C. P. Code, by S. 45, Divorce Act, applies to petitions under the Divorce Act and under the C. P. Code, a next friend is not required over the age of 18. Therefore a girl over 19 is not a minor within the meaning of S. 49 and can file a petition under S. 49, Divorce Act. 55 A. 243=1933 A.L.J. 168=1933 A. 135 (2). The Divorce Act provides that the question of damages shall be ascertained by the Court and under S. 45 the procedure subject to the provisions of the Divorce Act is to be regulated by the C.P. Code. It is therefore incumbent on the Court in a suit for dissolution of marriage to frame issues and among those issues there should be an issue for damages. The Court should also state its grounds for assessing the damages at a particular figure. 1933 S. 134 (1)=143 I.C. 829. A party should not be lightly excused from effecting personal service of the petition. See 49 B. 368=27 Bom.L.R. 251=1925 B. 231. See same case as to when service by registered post is proper. In India, in divorce proceedings instituted by a wife, the Court has no power to allow the alleged adulteress to be made a party, and so to cross-examine the witnesses for petitioner, give evidence and call witnesses herself. But in intervention proceedings the person with whom the petitioner is said to have committed adultery may be called as a witness. 10 R. 115=1932 R. 73. Petition for divorce—Co-res-

Power to make such orders after decree or confirmation. 44. The High Court, after a decree absolute for dissolution of marriage or a decree of nullity of marriage, and the District Court, after a decree for dissolution of marriage or of nullity of marriage has been confirmed, COSTS OF UNSUCCESSFUL APPEAL BY WIFE.—There is no practice which requires the Court to make the husband pay the costs of an unsuccessful appeal by an unsuccessful wife. 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 388.

SEC. 44.—Where a decree for dissolution of marriage granted by a District Judge is confirmed by the High Court, the jurisdiction to entertain an application for the custody of the child or for arrears of maintenance lies with the District Judge. The High Court has in such a case no jurisdiction to hear the application. 187 I.C. 272=1940 Lah. 82 (S.B.).

SEC. 45.—It is clearly in the interests of justice that a party who is named in a divorce plaint as being one of the persons with whom the respondent is alleged to have committed adultery should be allowed to intervene and defend his or her character against the aspersions which have been levelled against her. There is very grave doubt as to whether the person so named has the right under the law as it stands at present, to claim to be added as a party to the divorce proceedings. Hence amendment of Divorce Act suggested. 57 A. 884=163 I.C. 802=1936 A. 488. See also 1935 C. 456. O. 7, R. 10, C.P.C. applies to Divorce proceedings under S. 45 of this Act. 47 C.W.N. 707. 52. On any petition presented by a wife, praying that her marriage may be dissolved by reason of her husband having been guilty of adultery coupled with cruelty, or of adultery coupled with desertion without reasonable excuse, the husband and wife respectively shall be competent and compellable to give evidence of or relating to such cruelty or desertion. SEC. 50.—Held, that in a petition for divorce the co-respondent is a necessary party, that sufficient steps should be taken to serve notice on the respondent and co-respondent before an ex parte decree is passed and that an order should be announced in the village by beat of drum and that the proper notice should be put up at the Court-house. The Commissioner, has a discretion under S. 50, Divorce Act, to dispense with notice but it ought not to be exercised when a proper case has not been made out by the petitioner. 56 C. 29=1929 C. 276.

SECS. 50 AND 51.—Under S. 50 the manner in which service of petition is to be effected is to be regulated not by the C. P. Code, but by general or special orders of the High Court. 55 I.C. 269=12 Bur.L.T. 199. In the absence of general orders on the subject the proper course when service cannot be effected on the respondent is to apply to the Court for a special order as to how it is to be effected. The Court will act on the principles laid down by the English decisions. 55 I.C. 269. As to the practice of use of evidence by affidavit in Divorce proceedings, see 1943 N.L.J. 296=1943 Nag. 185.

SEC. 51.—See 38 C.W.N. 969, cited under S. 45, supra. SEC. 55.—The language of S. 55 provides expressly for an appeal from all orders passed by the District Judge. It is one of the sections dealing with 'procedure' and must apply only to the procedure to be followed and the Court to which appeals lie. 2. In answer to the second paragraph of the said petition, I say that I am possessed of plate, furniture, linen and other chattels and effects at my said house aforesaid, of the value of Rs. 7,000, but as I verily believe of no larger value. And I say that a portion of the said plate, furniture and other chattels and effects of the value of Rs. 1,500, belonged to my said wife before our marriage, but the remaining portions thereof, I have since purchased with my own moneys. And I say that, save as hereinbefore set forth, I am not possessed of the plate and other effects as alleged in the said paragraph in the said petition, and that I did not acquire the same as in the said petition also mentioned.

3. I admit that I am entitled under the will of my father, subject to the life-interest of my mother therein, to property of the value of Rs. 5,000, that is to say, I shall be entitled under my said father's will, upon the death of my mother, to a legacy of Rs. 7,000, out of which I shall have to pay to my father's executors the sum of Rs. 2,000, the amount of a debt owing by me to his estate, and upon which debt I am now paying interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

4. And in further answer to the said petition, I say that I have no income whatever except that derived from my aforesaid business, that such income, since my said wife left me which she did on the _____ day of _____ last, has been considerably diminished, and that such diminution is likely to continue. And I say that out of my said income, I have to pay the annual sum of Rs. 100 for such interest as aforesaid to my late father's executors, and also to support myself and my two eldest children.

5. And, in further answer to the said petition, I say that, when my wife left my dwelling house on the _____ day of _____ last, she took with her, and has ever since withheld and still withholds from me, plate, watches and other effects in the second paragraph of this my answer mentioned, of the value of, as I verily believe, Rs. 800 at the least; and I also say that, within five days of her departure from my house as aforesaid, my said wife received bills due to me from certain lodgers of mine, amounting in the aggregate to Rs. _____, and that she has ever since withheld and still withholds from me the same sum.

SEC. 2 (a).—Where a part of the sources of irrigation for a ryotwari village is a Government tank, Mirasdars who have from time immemorial cultivated their wet lands with the tank water have a preferential right to irrigate from the tank over assignees of waste land from the Government. 51 I.C. 734. A ryotwari proprietor can claim a supply of water for irrigation of his lands from a Government channel. But it is for the Government to distribute water in any way it thinks fit. 34 M.L.J. 425=45 I.C. 80. No one has any right to interfere with the Government's exercise of its general power of distributing and limiting the supply of water for irrigation in ryotwari villages. But if the Government dams up water and prevents it from going to plaintiff's land there is a right of suit. 26 I.C. 18=1914 M.W.N. 788. Government is no doubt bound to supply water to wet fields, but the ryots have no vested interest in the maintenance of any particular channels for their supply. The ryots cannot claim as against Government any right to take water to their fields by any particular channel. 1930 M. 621=125 I.C. 74. A ryotwari tenant has no right of easement in respect of water supply from any particular channel. 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M. L.J. 563. Where the evidence was to the effect that when the land is undulating only the lower lands were cultivated and the higher lands were regarded as catchment areas but it was not proved that the unoccupied waste lands from the higher levels had ceased to be Government property, held, that under those circumstances it should not be said that the cultivator of the lower lands had acquired an easement as against the Government for the surface water on the higher lands. 7 R. 487=1929 R. 300. The construction and control of works and sources of irrigation is the special function and duty of the Government in India. 24 M.L.J. 36=14 I.C. 261. See also 28 M. 72=15 M.L.J. 32; 1 M.L.J. 47; 16 M. 333; 7 B. 209; 28 B. 105. A ryot in respect of ryotwari lands is entitled to receive from the Government a supply of water necessary and sufficient for the irrigation of his registered wet fields. The Government have got the right to regulate the method and manner of supply. But as an incident to the tenure there is a right in the ryot to receive the said water. Where the water of a natural stream which was until 1893 falling into Thangal and exclusively used by the ryots of a village, was diverted by them in 1893 into a tank and for over 30 years it has been the customary method to take the water of the stream to augment the supply of the tank without which it would be impossible to cultivate registered wet lands under the ayacut of the tank, the Government must be taken to have impliedly recognised this as the customary method of supply for the time being for the irrigation of the wet fields. The fact that the stream is not shown as the source of irrigation in the settlement register cannot curtail the rights of the ryots. If with the consent and approval of Government water had been diverted from 1893, and Government chose to permit wet cultivation on a large extent knowing full well that without the aid of such water it would not be possible for the ryots to do so, the ryots must be deemed to have a right conferred on them by Government, a right to the said water, and any interference of such right by any one is actionable. The ryots can sue for a declaration of their rights and for an injunction restraining interference with such rights by the ryots of another village. 46 L.W. 472=1937 Mad. 957. Where the Government as upper riparian owner seeks to use the waters of a public stream not for a riparian tenement, but for the purpose of filling a tank situate at a long distance, by putting up a permanent dam across the river, the right to divert water to such a tank in such manner is in the nature of easement and not a riparian right. The lower riparian owner is therefore entitled to insist that there should be no excessive user and that the easement should be enjoyed in a manner consistent with his rights and without increasing the burden of the easement. If the Government claims the easement by prescription, it is for the Government to show the extent of the prescriptive right. The burden is not on the lower riparian owner in an action by him against the Government on the ground of excessive user, to prove that he has suffered damages as a result of any specific act of the Government. The suit cannot be regarded as one between two riparian proprietors. If it is proved that silt has accumulated over or near the dam in a way calculated to obstruct the natural flow of water over the dam, the plaintiff (lower riparian owner) is entitled to relief against the defendant (Government) unless the latter can show that the plaintiff's remedy is barred by limitation. The obstruction caused to the free flow of water in the river by such accumulation amounts to a "nuisance," and the riparian owner who is injured thereby may take steps to abate it even by going on the other person's land, if only he can do it peacefully. If this is not permitted, his remedy is to sue for an injunction and damages. The position is the same even when natural causes combine with the existence of the dam to bring about the obstruction. The fact that the Government has acquired a right by prescription to maintain the dam would not give the Government any immunity in respect of all other obstructions that may arise in the natural course of things by reason of the existence of the dam. Nor can a plea of limitation be raised in respect of the removal of such obstruction. The injury caused to the lower riparian owner by such obstructions is in the nature of a "continuing wrong" within the meaning of S. 23, Limitation Act, and the lower riparian owner would have a cause of action accruing de die in diem until the opposing party acquires a prescriptive right to maintain the obstruction. It is also very doubtful whether a prescriptive right could be acquired at all in respect of a shifting or changing mass like silt accumulation. The acquisition by the Government of a prescriptive right to maintain the dam will not of itself entitle them to all the waters intercepted by the dam, but only to such water as they have been accustomed to take. If they are entitled to draw water through a channel with certain dimensions, they cannot enlarge the dimensions of that channel. 174 I.C. 229=46 L.W. 862=1938 Mad. 180. Customary right proof of. SEC. 2 (b): CUSTOMARY RIGHT.—A custom in order to be valid must be ancient, invariable, reasonable and certain, whereas an easement need not be reasonable. 29 N. L.R. 85=142 I.C. 153=1933 N. 74. When it is found that the inhabitants of a village have certain legal rights arising out of immemorial user of certain land as a village gopat, which they have never surrendered, the Courts are bound to defend and enforce such rights. 60 C.L.J. 213=1935 C. 201. Customary rights—Right of pasturage by long user—Villagers' right to graze cattle over lands of adjacent village—Owner not their landlord—Enforceability of such rights. See 63 C. 851. Customary right and prescriptive right—Distinction. 71 M. L.J. 268; 66 C.L.J. 270. The customary right referred to in S. 2 (b) of the Easements Act must be one which is possessed irrespective of immovable property. The right for drainage, that is for the water, which is in or comes on to the land of a person to flow over certain other ground, is a right which is connected with the immovable property owned by him. Such a right, therefore, does not amount to a customary right, but amounts to an easement under S. 4 of the Easements Act. 1936 A.L.J. 1160=1936 A. 879. CHAPTER I.

OF EASEMENTS GENERALLY.

4. An easement is a right which the owner or occupier of certain land possesses, as such, for the beneficial enjoyment of that land, to do and continue to do something, or to prevent and continue to prevent something being done, in or upon, or in respect of, certain other land not his own.

ject-matter is a claim of right unknown to law and a custom alleged in its support is bad and unreasonable. Though this principle is not, perhaps, applicable to the case of a right in gross (fishery) vested in the inhabitants of a particular village the fact that the fish is to be taken for commercial purposes and the fact that under the custom alleged, any of the persons has the right to bring in as many others as he chooses on payment of a nominal fee are factors which stamp the custom with considerable uncertainty as regards the persons entitled to exercise the right and unreasonableness that stand in the way of its being pleaded as having created a right. Further, though the payment of a reasonable fee is not real objection to the validity of a custom if one such existed, the fact that the fee was paid per head of persons fishing was antagonistic to the idea of a right enjoyed without leave and licence. 37 C.W.N. 18=1933 C. 539. See also 61 C. 45=151 I.C. 813=1934 C. 461.

CUSTOMARY EASEMENT AND CUSTOMARY RIGHT, DISTINCTION BETWEEN.—A customary easement remains an easement and can exist only for the beneficial enjoyment of other land. It is merely appurtenant to the dominant heritage and cannot exist in gross. A right over property that exists in gross and not for the beneficial enjoyment of other property is not an easement, though it may be a customary right. Such rights exist independently of the Easements Act and are expressly excluded from its operation by S. 2 (b). Merely because the villagers have a right to graze in the C class forest land, they cannot be said to be occupiers of it, nor is the claim to go through a particular field in order to reach the C class forest a claim for the beneficial enjoyment of their houses in the abadi. A right of passage by the villagers through a particular field for going to the Government forest with their cattle is not an easement but a customary right. 29 N.L.R. 85=1933 N. 74. See also 71 M.L.J. 268.

OVER WHAT PROPERTY AND HOW CAN EASEMENTS BE ACQUIRED.—Easements can be acquired over artificial structures such as flat masonry, or roofs of shops. 45 I.C. 585=21 O.C. 78. Claim to property, or in the alternative to an easement over the same is competent. 41 C.L.J. 370=1925 C. 788; 1938 Nag. 415. See also 1939

Nag. 197; 1939 Sind 110; 1933 Bom. 122; 1939 Bom. 149. In order that a plaintiff should prove the right to an easement, he must show the exercise of that right with the necessary animus throughout the statutory period. The question of animus is a question of fact. Though a plaintiff in a case to establish right of easement may in his pleadings raise inconsistent pleas, yet if he leads evidence to show that he is the owner of the land over the statutory period or some part of it, he clearly destroys his case which is dependent upon his showing that he is not the owner of the land over the statutory period and has not claimed the rights of owner but the exercise of the rights over the land of another. In such a case the plaintiff must necessarily fail on both the grounds as one plea is fatal to the other. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 307=1939 Sind 110. Neither writing nor registration is necessary for the creation of easement. 96 I.C. 276, following 31 A. 612. The right of easement necessarily implies both the dominant and servient tenements belonging to different persons. No easement could be acquired in favour of one property as against another both owned by the same man. 24 S.L.R. 208=1930 S. 34; 1940 Rang.L.R. 93=1939 Rang. 421; 1937 Cal. 572=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 569. Easement and ownership—Distinction—Person exercising easement right—Cannot acquire title to the land by adverse possession. See A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 261. For the acquisition of an easement along with other things it is essential that the dominant owner must be a fixed or ascertained person or body of persons capable of acquiring the right. Where the evidence shows that Sindhis in general had been making use of the land in question, held, that this could not establish a right of easement as Sindhis in general are a variable body of persons who in law are incapable of acquiring any right. 1940 Mar.L.R. 122 (Civ.). A suit to enforce an easement can be brought not only by the owner of the land but also by the occupier. 123 I.C. 230=1930 S. 152. The right of person to go and take water from a well standing on a neighbouring land is a right of easement and the Court can grant an injunction restraining a stranger from interfering with the plaintiff's right. It is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that the servient tenement is the tenement of the particular defendant who has interfered with his right. 27 A.L.J. 1120=1929 A.

The land for the beneficial enjoyment of which the right exists is called the dominant heritage, and the owner or occupier thereof the dominant owner; the land on which the liability is imposed is called the servient heritage, and the owner or occupier thereof the servient owner.

779. Private persons who merely happen to reside in houses in a public lane cannot sue for alleged encroachments in that lane, for no right of easement can be acquired over a public lane. 118 I.C. 520=1929 A. 504.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—(1) WHAT ARE EASEMENTS.—The definition of easement applies to a projection of eaves in a dry country as well to a country having abundant rainfall, the purposes of the eaves being only to discharge rain water. 38 B. 1=21 I.C. 352=15 Bom.L.R. 876. See also 38 Bom.L.R. 264=1936 B. 219.

PRIVACY, RIGHT OF.—The law does not recognise the right of privacy unless it depends upon prescription, grant or local usage. 10 P. 280=133 I.C. 163=1931 P. 212; 159 I.C. 683=1935 A. 1062. See also 40 P. L.R. 483; 28 I.C. 674; 1934 All. 527; 22 Bom.L.R. 226; 1929 All. 809; 1935 A.L.J. 432 cited under S. 18 infra.

EASEMENT AND LICENCE.—See 29 Bom. L. R. 312. Easement necessarily connotes the existence of a dominant tenement and a servient tenement. Hence a concession given to villagers personally to enjoy the shamilat of another village is not a right of easement but a licence. 152 I.C. 141=1934 Pesh. 96. The possession of a punkh or eaves overhanging another's land is an easement and is no occupation of property. 37 B. 491=15 Bom.L.R. 551. See also 38 Bom.L.R. 264=1936 B. 219. Right of way for the use of the sweeper, who is also a Municipal servant can be acquired as an easement. 28 Bom.L.R. 601=95 I.C. 170=1926 B. 282.

QUASI EASEMENTS.—See 176 I.C. 966=1938 Sind 145, cited under S. 18, infra.

WHAT ARE NOT EASEMENTS.—Right to bury in another's land does not fall within the general definition of "easement". It cannot be deemed a right. 66 I.C. 640=34 C.L.J. 319. The right to bury or cremate the dead on land belonging to other persons cannot be acquired by prescription. 138 I.C. 325=33 P.L.R. 157=1932 L. 256. Such a right can be acquired by dedication or by prescription as a mode of acquisition or extinction of substantive or primary rights by lapse of time, described as acquisitive prescription. 60 C.L.J. 566=39 C. W.N. 387=1935 C. 357. Private rights of way, not appurtenant to a dominant tenement, like public rights of way, are not easements. They are rights in gross and can be enforced as such. 59 I.C. 319. A right of passage over a public road is not an easement. 48 A. 560=1926 A. 538. A right to go on to a neighbour's land to gather the fruits therefrom a portion of a tree alleged to belong to the plaintiff is not an easement. Such a right cannot be acquired by prescription. 43 M.L.J. 152=1922 M. 398 [(1895) A.C. 1 Foll.]. A general right of easement to use a roof as a place of setting or drying clothes or for other purposes can be acquired under the Act. User may be either by the dominant owner or by his tenants beyond the statutory period. User without permission is user as of right. 45 I.C. 585=21 O.C. 78. A person has no right to cut off the overhanging branches and the penetrating roots of a tree belonging to his neighbour when the tree is growing partly on his land and partly on his neighbour's land for many years past. 22 Bom.L.R. 790=44 B. 705. But see 114 I.C. 512. Where a soapnut bush which had taken root exclusively on the plaintiff's land was shown to have spread over largely on a tamarind tree on the land of the defendant and it was shown that the plaintiff alone had been enjoying the produce, held, that the adjoining owner was not entitled to claim the produce or prevent the owner from collecting the same. Quaere, whether when the fruits have fallen on the land of the adjoining owner from the overhanging branches the owner of the tree can go over the adjoining land without committing trespass to collect such fruits. 8 Mys.L.J. 136.

WHO CAN ACQUIRE EASEMENTS.—S. 4 of the Act shows that not merely the "owner" but even an "occupier" may acquire an easement. 52 L.W. 610=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 655 and there is no prima facie reason why the enjoyment of a person as an "occupier" should not be tacked on under S. 15 to his enjoyment as "owner" if there is no interruption in his user. 1934 M. 575=67 M. L.J. 262. See also 20 N.L.J. 99; I.L.R. (1937) All. 511=1937 A.L.J. 249=1937 All. 428. Where the easement of a right of way in respect of a stair case existed for the benefit of the dominant tenement, the upper storey of certain shops, and later on a right of way in respect of the same stair-case but for the benefit of a different dominant tenement altogether, namely a mosque, is claimed, it was held that the owner of a right of way was not entitled to transfer the right in such a manner. 1938 A.L.J. 1238=1939 All. 194. Where a person who has already completed 20 years user becomes a co-sharer, he cannot claim any right of easement. The position will be the same even if easement has been established in a previous suit. 23 Pat. 115=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 261.

NO RECIPROCAL EASEMENTS.—It is not possible to acquire a reciprocal easement for Explanation.—In the first and second clauses of this section, the expression “land” includes also things permanently attached to the earth: the expression “beneficial enjoyment” includes also possible convenience, remote advantage, and even a mere amenity; and the expression “to do something” includes removal and appropriation by the dominant owner for the beneficial enjoyment of the dominant heritage, of any part of the soil of the servient heritage or anything growing or subsisting thereon.

(b) A, as the owner of a certain house, has the right to go on his neighbour B's land, and to take water for the purposes of his household out of a spring therein. This is an easement.

(c) A, as the owner of a certain house, has the right to conduct water from B's stream to supply the fountains in the garden attached to the house. This is an easement.

(d) A, as the owner of a certain house and farm, has the right to graze a certain number of his own cattle on B's field, or to take, for the purpose of being used in the house, by himself, his family guests, lodgers and servants, water or fish out of C's tank, or timber out of D's wood, or to use, for the purpose of manuring his land, the leaves which have fallen from the trees on E's land. These are easements.

the benefit of the servient tenement by the exercise of an easement by the dominant owner. 22 I.C. 514=19 C.L.J. 45.

PROFIT A PRENDRE.—The right to hunt in a jungle and to appropriate the game is a right known in English law as a right to profit a prendre in gross. 2 P.L.J. 323=39 I.C. 868. A right in gross or profit a prendre may be established by the same sort of evidence as is used to establish either a profit a prendre appurtenant or an easement in the ordinary sense of the word. (5 C. 945; 19 C. 544 and 14 C.L.J. 572 Ref.) 61 C. 45=151 I.C. 813=1934 C. 461. The right which involves the total exclusion of the owner of the soil from its enjoyment, such exclusion not being physically for user by person claiming it cannot be claimed as an easement. 130 I.C. 546=1931 S. 1=25 S.L.R. 257. See also 37 C.W.N. 18=146 I.C. 427=1933 C. 539. There is no easement known to law which gives exclusive and unrestricted use of a piece of land. Hence there can be no easement which would prevent the owner of the servient tenement from making ordinary use of his land, and if the easement demanded would entirely oust the owner of a holding, such an easement cannot be claimed. 154 I.C. 468=1935 R. 56. The right of “lagan” attached to the ownership of the front part of the “ghat” to use the back part under certain conditions is a right of easement and is enforceable against a purchaser even if he had no notice of the right claimed. 1931 A.L.J. 267=1931 A. 207. The ordinary right of ryotwari, land-holders against Government to water sufficient to irrigate their fields is not an easement within the meaning of S. 4. It is an incident of ryotwari tenure whether it be regarded as having a contractual or proprietary origin. 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M.L.J. 563.

PERMISSIVE USER.—No question of easement could arise where the user of the defendant's land was permissive. 21 A.L.J. 436=1924 A. 50.

PARTY WALL.—Where a co-owner raises the height of a party wall with the consent or acquiescence of the other owner, the wall so raised is also joint unless the other co-owner has consented to the exclusive user of the wall by the party raising it. 1932 L. 48=32 P.L.R. 755. Where one of the joint owners of a party wall had made a hole therein and enjoyed light through the hole for more than 20 years, held, that he had acquired an easement and the other owner could not close the hole. 33 P.L.R. 930=1933 L. 28.

SEC. 4: (EXPL.).—A lessee of land who has taken it for building purposes cannot acquire a right of way by easement over other lands owned by his lessor. Such a lessee by reason of his being the owner of the materials of the house, would not become an owner within the meaning of S. 4 of the Easements Act, by virtue of the Explanation that “land” includes also things permanently attached to the earth. I.L.R. (1938) All. 538=1938 A.L.J. 436=1938 All. 293 (F.B.).

SECS. 4, 12 & 15.—An easement of light like any other easement, must be acquired, under S. 12 of the Act, by the owner or on his behalf, by the person in possession. Therefore, if a lessee acquires a right to light, he acquires it on behalf of the owner, i.e., the absolute owner; and he cannot acquire it on behalf of the owner as against such owner. A man cannot acquire an easement as against himself. Hence a lessee cannot, under the Easements Act, acquire a right to light by prescription over adjoining property which belongs to his landlord. A lessee who builds a house as a permanent

5. Easements are either continuous or discontinuous, apparent or non-apparent.

A continuous easement is one whose enjoyment is, or may be continual without the act of man.

A discontinuous easement is one that needs the act of man for its enjoyment.

An apparent easement is one the existence of which is shown by some permanent sign which, upon careful inspection by a competent person, would be visible to him.

A non-apparent easement is one that has no such sign.

(d) A right annexed to A's house to prevent B from building on his own land. This is a non-apparent easement.

6. An easement may be permanent, or for a term of years or other limited period, or subject to periodical interruption, or exercisable only at a certain place, or at certain times, or between certain hours, or for a particular purpose, or on condition that it shall commence or become void or voidable on the happening of a specified event or the performance or non-performance of a specified act.

Easements restrictive of certain rights. 7. Easements are restrictions of one or other of the following rights (namely) :—

structure on the land comprised in the lease does not become the owner of the house for more than the leasehold interest in the land. That is the ownership of a chattel and an easement cannot be annexed to a chattel. An easement of light cannot therefore be acquired on behalf of a house, apart from the land. 45 Bom.L.R. 795=1943 Bom. 443=I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 690. Where a person claims in a suit rights of ownership, possession and enjoyment in respect of certain properties and fails in it, he cannot subsequently bring a suit claiming rights of easement over the same properties. A person claiming rights as easement must be conscious of the fact that the property over which he was exercising his rights were not his own and that it belonged to another. He cannot be said to establish a right of easement, when it is shown that during part of the prescriptive period he has exercised the right now claimed by him as easement, not as a right over property of another, but as a right over property which at the time he considered to belong to himself. 48 Bom.L.R. 25 (F.B.).

Sec. 5.—The right to use a staircase is not a continuous easement as defined in S. 5 of the Act. 117 I.C. 381=1929 L. 848. Artificial water-courses or openings for taking water from a tank or bund are apparent and continuous easements. (34 M. 487; 2 M. 46 and 1924 M. 108, Ref.) 1930 P. 7=11 P.L.T. 637=124 I.C. 385. Right of repair being a discontinuous easement is not lost even though not enjoyed within 2 years next preceding suit. 1941 N.L.J.

SEC. 7: GENERAL.—NATURAL RIGHTS AND EASEMENTS.—The right incident to the ownership of land, in the nature of easement but not a right of easement as such, is called a natural right and is distinct from the right of easement. Where one is claimed, the other does not arise. 54 I.C. 504. As to water-course, the water of which is largely increased in volume by percolation see 64 I.C. 158. The ownership of free natural elements, such as air and water and of all wild animals living therein is obtained by occupancy or appropriation. 3 P.L.T. 53=64 I.C. 346. An occupier of abutting lands cannot be restrained in the exercise of his natural rights simply because he becomes a lessee of other lands not abutting. 24 I.C. 685=1914 M.W.N. 481. Where the water of a stream has been used for irrigating only abutting lands, the owner of abutting lands cannot be restrained from using more than a reasonable quantity by another to whom no material diminution is caused. 24 I.C. 685. The actual and not a mere threatened use of a stream which has been used for irrigating only near-by lands to irrigate lands other than those abutting on the stream gives a right to sue. 24 I.C. 685. A ryotwari tenant has no right of easement in respect of the water-supply from a particular channel. 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M.L.J. 563.

- (a) The exclusive right of every owner of immoveable property (subject to any law for the time being in force) to enjoy and dispose of the same and all products thereof and accessions thereto.

Exclusive right to enjoy.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—No one has power for the safety of his own property, to direct or interfere with a natural stream running a natural outlet, and if he does so, he will be liable in damages to any one who is injured by his act. 19 A.L.J. 736=43 A. 688. Where the rain water falling on plaintiff's land which is on a higher level, flows across defendant's land which is on a lower level, the plaintiff's right is a natural right not acquired by prescription, and it cannot be interfered with by the defendant. 24 I.C. 91=12 A.L.J. 685. See also 27 I.C. 268=19 C.W.N. 54. There is no easement of prospect or of privacy. 36 C.L.J. 406=1923 C. 256 (But see also cases under S. 18, infra.) Every one may build upon or otherwise utilise his own land regardless of the fact that his doing so involves an interference with the light which would otherwise reach the land and building of another person. 1923 C. 256. If windows are opened the neighbour may, by building on his own land, obstruct the light which would otherwise reach them. 1923 C. 256. Same principle has been applied to partition of joint properties. 36 C.L.J. 406=1923 C. 256. On a severance of tenements by a partition of joint property, and in the absence of a contrary intention, expressed or necessarily implied, all such easements as are apparent, continuous and necessary for enjoying any of the undivided shares when the partition was effected, pass to the co-parceners to whom such shares are respectively allotted in severalty. 1923 C. 256. Every person has a right to do anything on his own land with regard to the diversion, storage or the uses of water in any way he chooses provided that he does not allow or cause that water to go upon his neighbour's land so as to affect it in some other way than the way in which it had been affected before. 41 I.C. 47. Every one is entitled, in the absence of controlling rights of easement or servitude regarding his premises, to protect his premises against the flow of water from adjacent lands or houses. 243 P.L.R. 1912=16 I.C. 797 (29 M. 539 Rel.). The fact that the water discharged from a dominant tenement flows over the servient tenement without a definite channel, cannot prevent the acquisition of an easement. 40 C. 458=17 C.W.N. 306 (F.B.). (8 C.W.N. 244, Over.) Even the rights of the riparian owners may be acquired by easement. 1923 L. 594. A person has no right to obstruct the water of a stream except to the extent to which he has had prescriptive use. 41 I.C. 47.

MEANING OF WORDS.—"Owner" does not necessarily mean absolute owner. 42 M. 567=37 M.L.J. 28=50 I.C. 291. It includes limited owner such as lessees or persons having derivative interest in the property. 42 M. 567. An occupier of zemindari lands is an "owner" within the meaning of illustration (j) to the section. 24 I.C. 685=1914 M.W.N. 481. The term "natural right" to drain covers only the right to allow rain water falling on land of a naturally higher level to drain off by surface flow along whatever lines the water could find its way on the neighbouring land. The right to drain off water brought according to the custom and usages of the country along irrigation channels upon the land may also be said to be a natural right. 44 I.C. 500=1918 M.W.N. 167. Each upper owner in a system of connected tanks in different villages supplied with water by or through a permanent or artificial channel, is entitled in the flood season, to fill his tank, which is of sufficient storage capacity for Ayakut and they must, subject to this, allow the water to flow freely on to the lower tank till the last of them is supplied. 41 I.C. 24=6 L.W. 572. Whatever may be the means adopted to let out the surplus, the owner of the tank in such cases, cannot increase the storage capacity of his tank beyond its capacity at the beginning which, in many cases, can only be proved by the customary flow of water. 41 I.C. 24. An easement right to keep a latrine on another man's land is unknown to law and cannot be acquired by prescription. 29 I.C. 865=19 C.W.N. 864.

RIPARIAN RIGHTS.—The lower proprietor owns a natural servitude without claim to compensation to the higher, in respect of water naturally flowing upon it; but the higher land owner cannot exceed his natural right by sending water not going there naturally. Short of this the upper owner may interfere with the flow of water. 36 M. 149=25 M.L.J. 276. A riparian proprietor is entitled to use the water of the stream for irrigation of his lands without causing injury to other riparian proprietors. 18 I.C. 284=37 M. 369 (note). Natural stream—Interception of flow of water by upper riparian owner—Stream and feeding channels flowing in well defined courses—Lower owner is entitled to sue for mandatory injunction. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 510=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 216=1937 Mad. 210=45 L.W. 188. See also 1945 N.L.J. 80=1945 Nag. 106. Riparian right is a natural right and is not lost by non-user. Until some other person acquires a right of easement to substantially diminish the water available to the owner, the riparian right cannot be affected or lost. 104 I.C. 781=1927 M. 1167. It is a right incidental to the ownership of the land upon which the air or the water lies, just as much.

as is the right to make the silt deposited by rivers or the lava thrown up by a volcano or rain or snow falling from the sky. 3 P. L.T. 53=64 I.C. 316. Erecting a dam across the bed of the river is a common method of using the water of a stream by a riparian proprietor. 64 I.C. 316. Water of stream—Diversion of, for purposes of irrigation—Permanent masonry structures—Claim to right of—Evidence disproving but disclosing right to diversion by erection of temporary structures of. 34 C.W.N. 512=1930 P.C. 42=58 M.L.J. 285 (P.C.). A riparian proprietor should not take more water than he was taking before, but he can use the water to raise wet crop in lands in which it was customary to raise only dry crops. 18 I.C. 294=37 M. 369. An easement exists for the benefit of the dominant tenement alone and the servient owner cannot insist, on its continuance by the dominant owner or claim damages for abandonment. 65 I.C. 84. If water running through an artificial channel on a neighbour's land has all along been flowing to the plaintiff's land it is open to the plaintiff to insist on its continuance on the footing of a lost grant or old arrangement. 65 I.C. 84.

PERCOLATING WATER.—Water flowing in a known channel or percolating through the soil is not the subject of property or capable of being granted to any body. Two of the exceptions to this rule are (1) where the water flows to a person's property and there is no one to share with him the use of the water or to call him to account for any use he may make of it; (2) where flowing water is appropriated or taken into possession, but the right of property exists during such possession only. Where the source of a stream is not known and there is no natural flow of the water in a known and defined channel outside the limits of the land of a person, such person is the owner of the water collected on his land. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 273=1945 N.L.J. 80=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 106. Though according to the theory of decisions about percolating water, no one, not even the owner of the soil under which it flows, has any property in such water till it reaches a defined channel, and though there is therefore no infringement of any right of property by appropriating such percolating water yet an owner may be guilty of a breach of contract, if by appropriating underground percolating water from his land, he causes diminution of a supply which he is obliged by law to maintain. 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M.L.J. 563. The doctrine of percolating water flowing underground in undefined channels as settled by English decisions should not be applied to the water carried in sandy bed of an Indian river in dry months between monsoon to monsoon. Necessary modifications must be made in the English law of flowing water to make it applicable to the tropical countries 54 M. 793. As between owners of land no one has a right of property in water flowing underground in undefined and unknown channels by percolation. As a consequence of this, one owner has no right of action against another, who by sinking wells or by other works on his own land, draws off and appropriates the underground percolating water which would otherwise have flowed into his well or stream and makes it unavailable to him and this even when it is done from an improper motive or maliciously. But that other owner cannot go on his neighbour's land, dig there and take the underground water found there and justify his action because the water was running in undefined channels, as that would be trespass and be an actionable wrong. These things should be done on one's own property. 54 M. 793. The right to take from an irrigation channel such water as may be reasonably required for the cultivation of a second crop of the customary character upon the suit land and for this purpose to construct, whenever necessary, a chappakatu or temporary growing of the required length in the bed of the irrigation channel is not of too indefinite a character to be incapable of acquisition by prescription. 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=61 M. L.J. 1 (P.C.). So far as the right to build is concerned, the fundamental position is that every person is entitled to build right up to the limits of his own property. In doing so, he must not infringe the rights of the owner of adjoining property. But these rights have first to be acquired. If they are not acquired, then the fundamental position remains. If the fundamental position is that a man is entitled to build right up to the limits of his own property, then the mere fact that he exercises that right cannot be regarded as an actionable nuisance. The remedy of a person who does not want to be incommoded by such building is to refrain from building upto the edge of his own property. He should take care to leave such gap between his land and the other persons' as will, in his opinion, ensure him that privacy and comfort which he desires. As the ordinary law does not prevent a person from building as he pleases on his property provided it does not amount to an actionable nuisance, Municipal Corporations and Town Improvement Trusts are entrusted with special powers to regulate buildings. But those powers can only be exercised by those bodies. If those bodies are satisfied or decline to take action, no one else can claim the right to wield the powers with which those bodies have been specially endowed by statute. Where the plaintiff and the defendant are adjoining owners of land, and the Municipal Committee, after considering the objections of the plaintiff, gives sanction to the defendant to build on his land on certain terms agreed to by him, but the defendant does not fulfil those terms, it is not open to the plaintiff to sue the defendant complaining that the defendant has broken his agreement with the Municipal Committee. In the first place the agreement with the Municipal Committee cannot be looked upon as a contract, and in the second, the Municipal Committee is not the plaintiff's delegate or trustee. 1945 N.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 231.

(b) The right of every owner of immoveable property (subject to any law for the time being in force) to enjoy without disturbance by another the natural advantages arising from its situation.

Rights to advantages arising from situation.

Sec. 7 (b).—The owner of higher lands. is entitled to discharge surface water over adjacent lower land. 41 I.C. 863=22 C.W.N. 666. See also 205 I.C. 22; 1942 Cal. 261. Right to discharge surface water on land at lower level—Nature of—Such right if may be extinguished—Change in original disposition of lands—Effect of. See A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 261. Where owing to the silting up of a stream into which the water thus discharged ultimately flowed, the level of the bed of the stream became higher than the adjacent lower land to the inconvenience thereof, held, that dominant owners were still entitled to exercise their rights. 22 C.W.N. 666. A plaintiff cannot claim damages for injury caused to the crops on his land by the shade caused by trees standing on his neighbour's land. 19 N.L.B. 191=1924 N. 69. It cannot be said that every owner of a field has the right to have the sun's rays fall on it from every possible direction. 1924 N. 69. There cannot be such a right, for if it were allowed, the use and enjoyment of the adjoining fields by their owners would be very largely restricted. 1924 N. 69. Every owner has got the right to open apertures in his own wall and unless by doing so he invades the privacy of any other pre-existing and well established right vested in his neighbour, the latter cannot force him to close the apertures. The neighbour's remedy is to build on his own land or otherwise obstruct the apertures. 1933 L. 847.

Sec. 7. ILLUS. (d).—The right referred to in Ill. (d) to S. 7 is the right of every owner of land to so much light and air as pass vertically over the land. No one is entitled to light and air which pass laterally or at an angle to the vertical unless he has acquired such a right by prescription. Even when such a right has been acquired by prescription or agreement, a person cannot maintain a right of action unless he can show not only that the right has been infringed but that there has been a substantial nuisance to his comfortable and beneficial occupation of the premises. 1945 N.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 231.

LIGHT AND AIR—PREScriptive RIGHT —EXTENT TO WHICH IT MAY BE CLAIMED.—The owner of a dominant

tenement who has acquired a prescriptive right to the use of light and air through certain defined apertures can insist on the preservation to him of only such quantities of light and air as might be reasonably required for comfortable occupation. He is not entitled to the excess even if he had enjoyed it in the past. If there is an infringement he could sue the person guilty thereof only if the diminution amounted to an actionable nuisance. This principle applies at least in the Provinces where the Easements Act does not apply but the Limitation Act does. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 438. See also I. L.R. (1942) Kar. 225. The right to receive light across another's land is not a natural incident of property but can only be acquired as an easement either by grant or prescription. Unless and until such a right has been acquired in the manner of other easements, no amount or mode of obstruction is actionable. I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 488=46 C.W.N. 136=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 35. As to right to sue for infringement, see 44 Cr.L.J. 288; 207 I.C. 83; 204 I.C. 370. Obiter: Where a landlord is not himself in occupation of any premises affected by interference with easements of light and air connected with those premises, he is not entitled to relief unless he proves that by reason of the interference with the easements of light and air enjoyed by those premises he has been damaged apart from the damage or inconvenience caused to the tenant in occupation. The Court is not concerned with inconvenience caused to a tenant of the plaintiff who is not a party to the suit. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 306=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 17.

The user of a building has no materiality whatsoever in cases of the easement of light and air. Even a tenement which is vacant and unoccupied for the statutory period of 20 years or over can during the same period of non-occupation acquire easement rights over the servient tenement. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 438. Where the owner of a dominant tenement has acquired an easement right to light and air and his right is infringed in such a way as to amount to a nuisance he cannot be compelled to make structural alterations to provide ventilation, in order to enable the servient owner to commit nuisance. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 438. In order that the infringement of an easement of light and air may not amount to an actionable nuisance the balance of light and air left must be sufficient for comfortable occupation having regard to the ordinary notions of mankind, the word 'mankind' being understood to mean mankind of the locality or class to which the parties belong. It would be wholly contrary to the ordinary notions of people in India that

(a) The exclusive right of every owner of land in a town to build on such land, subject to any municipal law for the time being in force.

(b) The right of every owner of land that the air passing thereto shall not be unreasonably polluted by other persons.

(c) The right of every owner of a house that his physical comfort shall not be interfered with materially and unreasonably by noise or vibration caused by any other person.

(d) The right of every owner of land to so much light and air as pass vertically thereto.

(e) The right of every owner of land, that such land, in its natural condition, shall have the support naturally rendered by the subjacent and adjacent soil of another person.

Explanation.—Land is in its natural condition when it is not excavated and not subjected to artificial pressure; and the “subjacent and adjacent soil” mentioned in this illustration means such soil only as in its natural condition would support the dominant heritage in its natural condition.

(f) The right of every owner of land that, within his own limits, the water which naturally passes or percolates by, over or through his land shall not, before so passing or percolating, be unreasonably polluted by other persons.

(g) The right of every owner of land to collect and dispose within his own limits of all water under the land which does not pass in a defined channel and all water on its surface which does not pass in a defined channel.

they should sleep in a room at night with all the doors open. Moreover, occupation means occupation by all the members of the family and the occupation of a room with the doors open would not be appropriate in the case of females. Therefore, the habitability of a room from the point of ventilation cannot be judged on the hypothesis that the doors would be kept open. Hence in considering whether the ventilation had been affected to such an extent as to make the room unfit for comfortable occupation the doors cannot be taken into consideration. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 438. Both under the Limitation Act and the Easements Act the easement of light and air is acquired by a building and not by any particular room in a building. Therefore, if such an easement has been acquired and if it has been infringed, in judging whether the diminution has been such as to amount to a nuisance regard must be had not merely to the effect upon the particular room where the aperture or apertures are situated but to the entire building. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 438. An infringement of an easement right of light and air becomes actionable only when the obstruction amounts to a nuisance. Where the proof as regards the extent of obstruction is not definite or satisfactory, the test of the 45 degrees rule may be adopted as a valuable guide, though there is no rule of law or rule of evidence to that effect. The Court has to take into consideration the locality in which the tenement is situate as also the fact that the tenement has other sources of light and air. 23 Mys.L.J. 93. Merely because there is a change in the use to which the dominant tenement is put subsequent to the acquisition of the right to light and air by the dominant owner by prescription, it does not follow that that is interruption in the enjoyment of the right of free passage of light and air to the dominant tenement, and the dominant owner does not lose the right he has acquired. 23 Mys. L.J. 93.

SEC. 7, ILLUS. (e).—Where the defendant, who was the owner of the land adjoining that of the plaintiff, dug a drain at a distance of about 2 feet 2 inches from the plaintiff's wall to a depth which went below the foundation of the plaintiff's wall and the plaintiff's wall collapsed as a result of it and the plaintiff brought in a suit for damages, held, that as there was artificial pressure upon the building of the plaintiff and that artificial pressure had produced a greater stress than the stress which the soil was able to bear when deprived of the support of the subjacent soil of the defendant, the plaintiff could not succeed unless he proved the right of easement for 20 years. 1930 A.L.J. 340 = 1929 A. 885. The right of support of land in its natural condition by adjacent land is a natural right and incidental to the ownership of property. Any change in the land supported which converts its natural character into an artificial character such as would be caused by placing buildings upon it or excavating it would obviously impose a changed or increased burden on the adjoining land the effects of which would not alter or increase the previous obligation unless the existence of an easement could be proved. 1929 A. 885. The right to the support of land in its natural state vertically by the subjacent strata and laterally by the adjacent soil is a right to which the owner of the surface is of common right prima facie entitled. The right of an owner of land to the support from adjacent or subjacent soil is not that the substance supporting his soil shall not be removed, but that the enjoyment of his land be not disturbed by the removal of its support. 11 R. 47 = 143 I.C. 202 = 1933 R. 18. See also 1930 A.L.J. 340; 59 C. 363 = 131 I.C. 667 = 1932 C. 542.

(h) The right of every owner of land that the water of every natural stream which passes by, through or over his land in a defined natural channel shall be allowed by other persons to flow within such owner's limits without interruption and without material alteration in quantity, direction, force or temperature; the right of every owner of land abutting on a natural lake or pond into or out of which a natural stream flows, that the water of such lake or pond shall be allowed by other persons to remain within such owner's limits without material alteration in quantity or temperature.

(i) The right of every owner of upper land that water naturally rising in, or falling on, such land, and not passing in defined channels, shall be allowed by the owner of adjacent lower land to run naturally thereto.

(j) The right of every owner of land abutting on a natural stream, lake or pond to use and consume its water for drinking, household purposes and watering his cattle and sheep; and the right of every such owner to use and consume the water for irrigating such land, and for the purposes of any manufactory situate thereon, provided that he does not thereby cause material injury to other like owners.

Explanation.—A natural stream is a stream, whether permanent or intermittent, tidal or tideless, on the surface of land or underground, which flows by the operation of nature only and in a natural and known course.

SEC. 7. ILLUSTRATIONS. (g).—Indian Courts should be liberal in recognising irrigation rights as natural rights of as strong a character as any other, provided the lower riparian owners are not injured and the quality and the wide participation of the benefits of the natural stream are not interfered with. 34 M.L.J. 223=43 I.C. 113. In India a riparian owner must be confined to the land which is on the bank of the stream or which extends from that bank to a reasonable depth in land. 34 M.L.J. 223. A depth of more than half a furlong would usually be unreasonable. 34 M.L.J. 223. The right of a riparian owner is not restricted to lifting up of water from a natural stream and carrying it at once to the land but extends to the temporary storage of water in wells before carrying it on to the irrigated lands. 34 M.L.J. 223. Every land owner has a natural right to collect and retain upon his own land the surface water not flowing in a defined channel and put it to such use as he may desire. 4 P.L.T. 81=2 P. 110. He may also allow it to flow away in the usual course of nature upon the lower lands of his neighbour and cannot be bound to prevent it from so doing. 2 P. 110. He cannot do this, however, by an artificial discharge upon his neighbour's land unless he has acquired an easement which his neighbour is bound to submit to. 2 P. 110. If he should acquire such an easement the owner of the servient tenement acquires no reciprocal rights as against the owner of the dominant tenement with regard to the surface water, that is, water not passing through a defined channel. 2 P. 110. But see also 65 I.C. 84. Lost grant—Presumption of—Artificial water course—Channel constructed by person owning three villages—Channel having source in first village and passing that and second village and then to third village—Water intended solely for benefit of third village—Villages passing into hands of different owners—Right of owner of third village to bed and bunds—No presumption of lost grant. Held: that the presumption of a lost grant or legal origin could not be applied to the circumstances of the case and the first and second of these and not the owner of the third village was entitled to the bed and bunds of the channel in the villages belonging to them; the fact that those two villages had previously belonged to the same proprietor would not justify any presumption of a grant to the same person as owner of third village P; and all that the Court could say in such a case was that the proprietor of those two villages had parted only with such rights as were necessary for allowing the channel to pass through their lands. 1945 M.W.N. 71. 165=58 L.W. 71=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 176=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 9.

SEC. 7, ILLUSTRATIONS. (h), (i) AND (j).—No riparian owner is entitled to obstruct a public river. 21 Cr.L.J. 55=54 I.C. 407. Riparian owner has a right to the usufruct of the river or stream which passed through his land. This is not an absolute or exclusive right to the flow of the water but to the reasonable enjoyment of the same. 10 I.C. 181. The right which an upper owner has to allow rain water on his land to flow out to the adjacent tenement is a natural right under the Easement Act. 125 I.C. 529=1930 M. 676. See also 1938 A.L.J. 486=1938 All. 363. A riparian owner is not entitled to impound the water flowing in defined and natural channels, but is entitled only to use it as it passes. The rights of a riparian owner are subject to the right of a lower riparian owner to have the water of the channels or streams flow in the customary manner down to him. Interference with such flow is an actionable wrong especially where the flow is totally cut-off. 1937 M. 310=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 216 (F. B.); I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 510=45 L.W. 188. There is a natural right of drainage from higher lands to lower lands of water flowing in the usual course of nature and in undefined channels. This principle is embodied in Ill. (i) to S. 7 of the Easements Act. But the right of the superior proprietor is not quite absolute. It would not for instance be within his right to introduce water which was foreign to the land. Further there is no obligation upon the owner of the lower land to submit to an artificial discharge of water from his neighbouring lands. When land is so located that water naturally or in the course of ordinary agricultural operations descends from the estate of the superior proprietor to the inferior estate, the owner of the latter cannot do anything to prevent the course of such water. The upper proprietor may drain his land and the proprietor below must receive the water so drained; but the upper proprietor may not by adopting a particular system of drainage or by introducing alteration in the mode of drainage cause the drainage water to flow to his neighbour's land in an injurious manner. The upper owner further, is not entitled to do anything that will throw on the inferior tenement any water which would not naturally come there. The upper proprietor has no doubt the right to collect the water falling from the higher ground in one body in the course of draining the land. But that right is again not absolute. That can only be done without hurting the inferior tenement. 47 L.W. 564=1938 Mad. 649=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 108. See also 18 Pat.L.T. 806=1938 Pat. 71; 1938 Pat. 73=174 I.C. 710. A person who rightfully possesses land on a higher level has the right to discharge the surplus rain water which falls on his land on to the land on the lower level when it has a natural drainage in that direction. The owner of the lower land is bound to accept this water, and cannot raise artificial barriers on his land which will cause the water to accumulate on another's property. He cannot do this even if it is necessary to protect his own property. Of course such a right can be acquired in special ways, which must be pleaded and proved. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 750=1945 N.L.J. 452. It is now well settled that the right of an upper land-owner to throw his surface water on to land at a lower level is a natural right, and not in the strict sense of the word 'an easement'. In other words, it is a right which is not acquired, but is an incident of property owing its origin to the disposition and arrangements of nature. It is incapable, therefore, of being lost by non-user or extinguished permanently, and the maxim "tantum prescription quantum possessum" has no application. But these natural rights and liabilities may be altered by contract or grant, express or implied, as well as by enjoyment of an adverse easement obstructing the flow of the water from the higher to the lower ground. It follows, therefore, that if any artificial alteration is made in the configuration or disposition of the lands or any conditions are otherwise created affecting the exercise by the upper owner of his natural right to discharge his surface water to the lower level such as by excavating a khal or channel between the two tenements then this fact alone will not be sufficient to determine whether the natural right is thereby merely suspended for the time being or finally extinguished. The purposes for which, and the circumstances in which the altered conditions are brought into existence as well as the subsequent mode of user or enjoyment will all have to be looked into. 74 C.L.J. 95. See also 205 I.C. 22; 1942 Cal. 261. In India the right of an agriculturist to drain off into the lower lands the water brought into his land for ordinary agricultural operations, is a customary right and not a natural right. (Dictum of Sadasiva Aiyar, J. to the contrary in 1913 M.W.N. 167 not approved.) Every landowner has a natural right to deal with his surface drainage water as he pleases; he can collect it and use it on his own land or he can let it find its way by gravitation to his neighbour's land if that is at a lower level than his own land; but the owner of the lower land may acquire by prescription, as an easement restricting this natural right, the right to throw water back to the land at a higher level. Hence where the owner of the lower land has acquired an easement to restrict the natural flow to such an extent as it may be restricted by a bund which has been in existence for over 25 years, the owner of the higher land cannot claim to breach the bund at a particular point to let out the water unless he has acquired such a right as an easement. (Wright v. Howard, 24 R.R. 169; 1 M. 335 and 24 O. 865, Rel. on.) 14 R. 544=163 I.C. 453=1936 R. 282. See also 17 Mys.L.J. 123=44 Mys.H.O.R. 105. The owner can exercise this right to drain off the water that collects on his land or that is brought into his land, by opening vents in the bund which he has put up along the boundary between his land and the adjoining land lower down, so long as no damage is caused to the owner of the adjoining land. 52 M. 426=1929 M. 337=56 M. L.J. 311. The right of a riparian owner to use the water of a stream either for irrigation or manufacture is an extraordinary use of water and is subject to the condition that the use of the water by other proprietors should not be affected. 51 I.O. 949. Natural stream—Riparian owners—Rights of—Interception of flow of water by upper riparian owner—Stream and feeding tributaries flowing in well-defined channels—Right of lower owner to sue for mandatory injunction. 168 I.C. 337=1937 M. 810=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 216. It is not rightful to a higher riparian owner to use the water for irrigation in such a way as to interfere with an easement acquired by prescription by a lower riparian owner. 44 I.C. 19. Where through his own fault flood-water accumulates on a man's land, his neighbour is entitled to put up bunds to protect his land.

Where a stream, having a continuous flow at the beginning, subsequently diverts itself, it is a natural stream and the owners of the land below cannot put a dam across it to the damage and injury of upper owners. 28 M. L.J. 98=26 I.C. 800. Where there is a competition between the rights of the owner of land on a higher level to allow water to pass in its natural flow without obstruction and the rights of the owner of the lower land to use it as he pleases, the latter's right must give way to the former. In such a case, the owner of the lower land cannot erect a bund to obstruct the flow of water. 52 I.C. 128. An owner of land through which a river or other natural channel flows is not bound to clean it though he is bound within certain limits as between himself and other riparian owners not to do anything which will obstruct the flow of water or materially interfere with their rights. 33 A. 619=8 L.L.J. 640. A riparian proprietor can only take for the purpose of irrigation so much water as is necessary without materially diminishing what is allowed to descent. 52 I.C. 276=20 Cr. L.J. 612. Under certain circumstances, and provided the flow of water in the stream is not materially prejudiced and interfered with, an upper riparian owner may have a right to divert water for the purposes of irrigation even by the putting up of a bund. 1934 M. 583=40 L.W. 373=67 M.L.J. 373. The quantity of water that can be abstracted and used without infringing that essential condition must in all cases be a question of circumstances, depending mainly upon the size of the stream and the proportion which the water bears to entire value. 52 I.C. 276. Riparian proprietors can permanently divert water for agricultural purposes and irrigation. The question is whether the use was reasonable having regard to the custom of the adjoining country. 43 I.C. 235=3 Pat.L.J. 51. Where a riparian owner has made a diversion for the irrigation of his own tenement, the surplus water which would otherwise be wasted may be taken in a channel by another riparian owner to irrigate his land. 43 I.C. 235. The policy of law should be to encourage and protect all beneficial use of the water. 43 I.C. 235. As to limitation for suit, see ibid. Natural lake or maduga belonging to Government bounded by Zamindari villages—Riparian rights—Right of Zamindar to use lake water for irrigation of lands abutting on the lake free of charge—Right of Government to levy water cess. 163 I.C. 87=1936 M. 550.

proprietors complaining that the putting up of a dam by the defendants higher up interfered with the flow of water in the stream and claimed a declaration that the defendants had no right to use the water for irrigation, a direction for the demolition of the dam put by the defendants and for a permanent injunction prohibiting the defendants from ever putting up a dam across the river. The defendants in their written statement claimed that what they did was in the exercise of their riparian rights as upper owners and did not plead any special rights founded on contract, custom or prescription. The lower appellate Court framed the injunction in the form, that the defendants be prohibited from putting up such a dam as will cause diminution to the flow of water to which plaintiffs would be entitled. Held, that in the light of the rights declared by illus. (h) and (j) of S. 7 of the Easements Act, the proper decree to be passed was to declare that the defendants are entitled to such rights in the stream as belong to an upper riparian owner and that they are not entitled to put up the dam complained of in the plaint, and to restrain them, their agents and servants by an injunction from interfering with the stream in such a way as to diminish materially the flow of the stream. 1934 M. 583=67 M.L.J. 373. All that the decided cases lay down is that the rule in Bylands v. Fletcher about the absolute liability for damage, negligence or no negligence, when water which is stored on land escapes, does not apply in the case of irrigation tanks in India which have been used from time immemorial as storing places for water for the convenience and benefit of surrounding areas of land. That, however, does not entitle a person to enlarge his store of water by flooding land on a higher level belonging to somebody else, or if he is permitted for one reason or another to do this during certain periods of the year, it does not entitle him to travel further and enlarge either the period or the area of inundation beyond that which was originally permitted. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 750=1945 N.L.J. 452.

PRECARIOUS SUPPLY OF WATER.—No RIGHT OF EASEMENTS.—Where there has been no continuous and consistent use of the water by the owner of lands lower down, by the aid of which he could raise his crops and which could be deemed beneficial, in some years the water was insufficient and in some years it was excessive, he cannot be held to have obtained any prescriptive right to the supply of water in sufficient quantity. 56 M. 696=1933 M. 646=65 M.L.J. 179.

PRIVACY, RIGHT OF.—There is no inherent right to privacy, and such a right, if it can arise at all, can arise only by prescription, grant or local usage. 10 P. 280=133 I.C. 163=1931 P. 212. See notes under S. 18, infra. It cannot be said that the custom of

THE IMPOSITION, ACQUISITION AND TRANSFER OF EASEMENTS.

8. An easement may be imposed by any one in the circumstances, and to the extent, in and to which he may transfer his interest in the heritage on which the liability is to be imposed.

privacy which exists in the United Provinces protects the apartments of men as well as women. The custom and law as to privacy is that new constructions should not be made to overlook apartments which are generally occupied and used by women and have been so occupied and used for a period sufficiently long to establish a right of privacy. It would be stating the custom too widely to lay down that any portion of any house used and occupied by men should be protected. I.L.R. (1945) All. 607=1945 A.L.J. 213=A.I.R. 1945 All. 335. The owners of a house which has been exposed to the view of their neighbours cannot claim a greater right of privacy than they had in fact enjoyed, merely because some new construction has been put on at a place from where the identical portion of the house of the complaining party had been visible. A plaintiff cannot be granted any relief in a case where there has been no fresh invasion of his right of privacy but merely a more restricted view has been brought about, by an alteration in the house of the defendant and by this restricted view a suspicion has been created in the mind of the plaintiff that some one might unobserved look into that part of the house which was always open to the same view. 1945 O.W.N. 313=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 308. Sec. 8.—An easement right can be conferred by the owner of the servient tenement for cash consideration and whether it takes the shape of a sum paid in cash once for all or paid from time to time cannot make any difference in the legal nature of the right conferred on the owner of the dominant tenement. 27 I.C. 920=2 L.W. 27. Uninterrupted enjoyment to raise a presumption of right, must have been acquiesced in, by the owner of the servient tenement where from continued user the Court is asked to presume a grant of a right of way. 54 I.C. 936. Knowledge of such user on the part of the servient owner is an essential condition to the acquisition of an easement. 54 I.C. 936. The presumption of lost grant is allowed only when the enjoyment of easement cannot be otherwise accounted for. 50 I.C. 933; 1927 C. 363. A right of way can be created by a verbal agreement. 9 Bur.L.T. 222=34 I.C. 95. Whether a grant of an easement arises by implication on a conveyance of land depends on the intent of the parties, which must clearly appear, in order to determine the intent the Court will take into consideration the circumstances attending the transaction, the particular situation of the parties and the state of the thing granted. This principle holds only where there is no express contract relating to the matter. 36 C.L.J. 406=1923 C. 256. Right to lagan in a river ghat can be acquired as an easement by prescription. 1931 A.L.J. 267=1931 A. 207. Where a Zamindar has been using the water of a channel for irrigating his lands from the time of the permanent settlement, the Court may presume from the long possession and enjoyment a right to use the water free of charge. Though an actual grant of an easement is not discovered or proved it will be presumed. 45 I.A. 302=37 M.L.J. 724=24 C.W.N. 446 (P.C.). 118 I.C. 225=1929 A. 862. A tenant can acquire a right of easement to take water from a well standing in the adjoining land held by another tenant under the same landlord. 118 I.C. 225=1929 A. 862. The nature of a permanent tenure is such that it permits of the creation of easements by its holder. 115 I.C. 884=1929 P. 124. The public, as such, cannot acquire the ownership of immovable property or an easement on such property by prescription. But the user by the public may be evidence of a dedication. 44 M.L.J. 638=47 M. 116=1923 M. 624. A dedication to be valid must be to the public at large and not to any section of it. 47 M. 116. As to construction of deeds granting easement, see 19 B. 799; 60 P.R. 1888. Where there is an express grant of a private right of way to a particular place, to the unrestricted use of which the grantee of the right of way is entitled, the grant is not to be restricted to access to the land for the purpose for which the access would be required at the time of the grant. Where by an award the defendants were given a right of way to their house (without any qualifications) over a courtyard belonging to the plaintiffs and subsequently built a new privy in their house, the right of way granted to them includes a right of passage for the privy cleaner. 34 Bom.L.R. 1150=1932 B. 574. The mere finding that a pornala is old is no finding in law that easement has been established with respect thereto. 66 I.C. 922=3 L.L.J. 58.

(b) A is a tenant for his life of certain land with remainder to B absolutely. A cannot, unless with B's consent, impose an easement thereon which will continue after the determination of his life-interest.

(c) A, B and C are co-owners of certain land. A cannot without the consent of B and C, impose an easement on the land or on any part thereof.

(d) A and B are lessees of the same lessor, A of the field X for a term of five years, and B of a field Y for a term of ten years. A's interest under his lease is transferable; B's is not. A may impose on X, in favour of B, a right of way terminable with A's lease.

9. Subject to the provisions of section eight, a servient owner may impose on the servient heritage any easement that does not lessen the utility of the existing easement. But he cannot without the consent of the dominant owner, impose an easement on the servient heritage which would lessen such utility.

Servient owners.

(a) A has, in respect of his mill, a right to the uninterrupted flow thereto, from sunrise to noon, of the water of B's stream. B may grant to C the right to divert the water of the stream from noon to sunset: provided that A's supply is not thereby diminished.

(b) A has, in respect of his house, a right of way over B's land. B may grant to C, as the owner of a neighbouring farm, the right to feed his cattle on the grass growing on the way: provided that A's right of way is not thereby obstructed.

10. Subject to the provisions of section eight, a lessor may impose, on the property leased, any easement that does not derogate from the rights of the lessee as such, and a mortgagor may impose, on the property mortgaged, any easement that does not render the security insufficient. But a lessor or mortgagor cannot, without the consent of the lessee or mortgagee, impose any other easement on such property, unless it be to take effect on the termination of the lease or the redemption of the mortgage.

Explanation.—A security is insufficient within the meaning of this section unless the value of the mortgaged property exceeds by one-third, or, if consisting of buildings, exceeds by one-half the amount for the time being due on the mortgage.

11. No lessee or other person having a derivative interest may impose on the property held by him as such an easement to take effect after the expiration of his own interest, or in derogation of the right of the lessor or the superior proprietor.

SEC. 10: MORTGAGOR.—Mortgagor has no right to create any easement over the mortgaged land, to the detriment of the mortgagees without their consent. (85 P.E. 1902, Rel. on.) 149 I.C. 949 (2)=1934 L. 199.

SEC. 11.—Although a tenant cannot acquire a prescriptive right of easement in land belonging to his lessor, he may claim a right of easement based on immemorial user. 36 C.L.J. 161=50 C. 356=1923 C. 8. Where the enjoyment of a right to take water from the landlord's tank was continued uninterrupted for a long series of years, such enjoyment should be attributed to a legal origin and the Court should presume a grant or an agreement. 50 C. 356. A tenant can establish his right to irrigate his field from his landlord's tank by proof of open and continuous user from time immemorial. 50 C. 356. If the user of the easement had actually commenced before the property over which it was claimed passed into the possession of the lessee, the mere fact of the intervention of such tenancy should not be sufficient to defeat the right acquired by the lapse of time unless, indeed it is further shown that the landlord, up to the time he granted the lease was in ignorance that any such right was claimed. 36 C.L.J. 161=50 C. 356.

SEC. 12.—Tenant in the dominant tenement enjoying an easement as of right, acquires it for the landlord. 81 I.C. 540=19 C.W.N. 1211. See also 1938 A.L.J. 436=1938 All. 293 (F.B.); 1943 Bom. 443=45 Bom.L.R. 795. He cannot acquire it as against the landlord. 29 C. 363=9 C.W.N. 856; 14 A. 185 (F.B.). See also 1 C.W.N. 151. Where a person is in possession of the property on behalf

One of two or more co-owners of immovable property may, as such, with or without the consent of the other or others, acquire an easement for the beneficial enjoyment of such property.

No lessee of immovable property can acquire for the beneficial enjoyment of other immovable property of his own, an easement in or over the property comprised in his lease.

Easements of necessity and quasi easements.

13. Where one person transfers or bequeaths immovable property to another,— of the owner and enjoys the easement, he can claim easement under S. 12. 151 I.C. 141=1934 A. 527. See also 1943 Bom. 443. A tenant can acquire by prescription the right to irrigate his field from the landlord's tank by open and continuous user. 18 I.C. 597. A tenant of land having even a permanent tenancy cannot acquire an easement by prescription in other lands of his lessor. 38 M.L.J. 28=54 I.C. 948. Where a common third person is a tenant of both the plaintiff's and defendant's shops and the plaintiff through his shop claims a right of way over the land of the defendant, it is not open to the defendant to contend that the period during which the said third person was a tenant of the defendant and the plaintiff should be excluded from the period of 20 years during which the plaintiff claims to have enjoyed the right of way. 1939 A.L.J. 68=1939 All. 339.

SECS. 12 AND 15.—According to S. 12, it is the owner of the immovable property who alone can acquire an endorsement. A right of way or other easement mentioned in S. 15 must have been enjoyed in the manner laid down therein by the owner or occupier of the dominant heritage. As such, the user of a particular pathway by the visitors to the dominant heritage could not confer a right of way in respect of it on the owner of the dominant heritage. 1939 A. 90=1938 A.L.J. 1142. The lessee is not in the position of an owner of immovable property under S. 12 for the purpose of a right of way. Though he may be an owner of immovable property for purpose of acquiring easements under the first and second paragraphs of S. 15, when a case of right of way arises, he comes under the third paragraph of S. 15 and anything which he would acquire would be as the person in possession of the land which is the site and he would acquire for the benefit of the owner of the site. I.L.R. 1938 All. 538=1938 A.L.J. 436=1938 All. 293 (F.B.). See also 19 C.W.N. 1211=31 I.C. 549; 1943 Bom. 443. In the case of a lessee of a site, who is also the owner of the house which he has built thereon, so far as the use of light or air or support for his buildings is concerned, he is an owner of the building and may, under the first two paragraphs of S. 15, acquire such easements, and he would not acquire them for any one except himself under S. 12. But when the question arises of a right of way or a right to flow of water he comes under paragraph 3 of S. 15 and anything which he would acquire, would be as the person in possession of the land which is his site, and he would acquire on behalf and for the benefit of the owner of the site. 179 I.C. 884=1930 Sind 39.

SEC. 13. WHAT ARE EASEMENTS, OF NECESSITY.—Easement of necessity means an easement absolutely necessary for the use of the dominant tenement and not merely one necessary for the more convenient enjoyment. 38 A. 467=9 I.C. 628; 17 A.L.J. 672=50 I.C. 646; 48 I.C. 670; 30 I.C. 756. See also 167 I.C. 414=1937 O.W.N. 252=1937 O. 263; 1937 Pat. 589; 154 I.C. 468=1935 B. 56; 90 I.C. 900=1925 M. 680. An easement of necessity is one which the law creates according to the doctrine of implied grant in a particular case. 60 I.C. 504. It is one without which the dominant tenement cannot be used at all. (Ibid.) 1923 O. 250 (15 A. 270; 33 A. 467; 19 B. 79; 28 M. 495, Ref. to). The scheme of S. 13 is perfectly clear. It provides for six different situations which may arise where one person transfers or bequeaths immovable property. Cls. (c) and (d) deal with the effect on the transferor's rights. The dominant heritage is only entitled to the quasi-easements if they are apparent and continuous; where property was originally in the ownership of two brothers and after partition one of the brothers sells certain of his plots to another and the latter obstructs the irrigation of the transferor's lands from the lands transferred, the transferor can claim such a right even though the deed of transfer is silent on the point. The easement claimed is an apparent and continuous easement and it must be deemed to have been reserved by the transferor when he parted with the other fields. 1941 N.L.J. 415=1941 Nag. 287. If for the enjoyment of the agricultural plots, the possession of which has been transferred by the Zamindar to the tenant, it is necessary for the tenant to enjoy for agricultural purposes certain easements in the land of the village site which belongs to the Zamindar, under S. 13 of the Act, the tenant is entitled to those easements. 1924 A.L.J. 662=150 I.C. 1117=1934 A. 802. An easement of necessity means an easement without which the property retained

(a) if an easement in other immovable property of the transferor or testator is necessary for enjoying the subject of the transfer or bequest, the transferee or legatee shall be entitled to such easement; or cannot be used at all and not one merely necessary to the reasonable enjoyment of that property. 1930 P. 7; 1923 O. 250. The mere fact that it is absolutely necessary for a person to use a way does not constitute an easement of necessity. 26 I.C. 485. It is a question of fact from the circumstances of each case as to whether an easement of a claim is an easement of necessity or not. There can be an easement of necessity to take water from other's land. 103 I.C. 862=1927 M. 963; 17 I.C. 966=16 C.L.J. 417. See also 1941 Nag. 287. A right of way of necessity ceases of the dominant owner can approach the place through his own land. 60 I.C. 504. See also 1923 O. 250. An easement of necessity cannot arise in any other way than by severance of tenements. 46 I.C. 327=4 L.B.R. 246. See also 14 B. 452; 26 C. 510=3 C.W.N. 409=24 M.L.J. 552. There is ordinarily no reservation by implication of easement in favour of the grantor except in the case of an easement of necessity. 17 I.C. 966=16 C.L.J. 417. See also 45 Bom.L.R. 491=1943 Bom. 265. As a right of easement of necessity arising out of a severance by partition arises from a presumed grant, no grant can be presumed where the rights of parties have been definitely settled in a partition suit. 59 I.C. 89. As to quasi-easements, see 1928 L. 497=115 I.C. 753; 96 I.C. 913=1926 L. 473. The doctrine of implied grant does not confer any title to any easement which is not non-apparent. 1930 P. 7=11 P.L.T. 637=124 I.C. 385.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where the owner of one of two tenements originally held by a common owner, claims a right of way over the other tenement, it was held, that having regard to the enjoyment of the right of way for twenty years, there was a grant of the right to the plaintiff at the time of the severance of the tenements. 49 I.C. 798=29 C.L.J. 51. There is a presumption of easement of necessity both in respect of the portion granted as well as the portion retained by the grantor. 65 I.C. 22=34 C.L.J. 518; 31 I.C. 541=19 C.W.N. 1211. Plaintiff and defendant owned a common courtyard. Before partition of the courtyard, plaintiff had the right to pass his water through the drainage which existed in the yard. The onus lay on the defendant to show that the right which plaintiff possessed prior to the partition had been extinguished by some agreement or rule of law. 53 I.C. 584=101 P.R. 1919. The mere fact that plaintiff had acquired another tenement through which he could pass his water did not deprive the easement in questions of the character of an easement of necessity. 53 I.C. 584. Quasi-easement—

Property on slope—Partition—Person holding dominant position possesses easement to drain water through the lower portion. See 115 I.C. 758. Where two houses situated on opposite sides of a land were connected by a bridge which had been destroyed and which plaintiff wanted to re-build but the defendant objected and the Municipality also refused permission, the re-building of the bridge could not be allowed as the houses had passed to different persons. 9 P.L.R. 1911=9 I.C. 402. A person who builds on the extreme limit of the boundaries of his land has no legal right to compel his neighbour to allow him or his workmen to pass through his courtyard or to carry on building operations from there without his permission, unless he has acquired an easement by 20 years' uninterrupted user. No easement of necessity could possibly be acquired by him, if the two tenements were never owned by one person. 39 P.L.R. 66=1937 L. 320.

RIGHT OF PASSAGE FOR SWEEPER.—No easement of necessity can be granted unless the easement is necessary for the enjoyment of the property. Sweepers passing through residential houses would give rise to such a state of inconvenience as to make the houses for all practical purposes uninhabitable for people of ordinary decency and cleanly habits. Where plaintiff's houses were solely dwelling-houses and the locality was one in which respectable people dwell and the part over which the right of sweepers to carry buckets after cleaning plaintiff's latrine was claimed, was already being used by the sweepers who carried buckets from the defendant's latrine. Held, that to compel the plaintiff to have his night soil buckets carried out through the houses would destroy as residential dwellings the houses which were the properties sold by the original owner of the whole plot of land as dwelling-houses and as such it was an easement of necessity. Held, further, that the hardship inflicted on the owner of the servient tenement was not very great because the sweepers who served the plaintiff's latrines would only pass along the path already used to a great extent by the sweepers who cleaned defendant's latrine, and they would walk along the path with two buckets instead of only one. 1935 B. 127.

SEC. 13 (a).—The words "If an easement is necessary" in S. 13 (a) imply an absolute necessity and not a mere convenience. It is not enough to show that, in the absence of an easement, there would be inconvenience felt, but it should be shown that there is absolute necessity of the easement for the enjoyment of the pro-

(b) if such an easement is apparent and continuous and necessary for enjoying the said subject as it was enjoyed when the transfer or bequest took effect, the transferee or legatee shall, unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, be entitled to such easement ;

(1939) Nag. 580=1939 Nag. 197=1939 N.L.J. 297. Under S. 13 (a) a person is entitled to get a way for enjoying his barwarchi khana. He is entitled to a way up to the public road. 194 I.C. 859=1941 Oudh 585. A plaintiff who claims a right of passage through the field of another under S. 13 (a) has to prove that he has no alternative means of access, however inconvenient, to his field. He cannot be said to have an alternative way unless he had the lawful right to use that way. The grant which arises by implication of law in the case of such easements is a grant of a right of way until such time as the grantee may acquire the power from some other source of reaching the quasi-dominant tenement without using the quasi-servient tenement. 1942 N.L.J. 441. Where a purchaser can otherwise provide for a passage, he has no easement of necessity of passage over the property of his transferor. 1930 A.L.J. 1070=123 I.C. 762=1930 A. 560. See also 1923 O. 250; 72 I.C. 199; 50 I.C. 756. But see 1924 C. 363 (alternative route extremely inconvenient). A house-owner in order to repair his wall on his neighbour's side of the premises can go to the other side of the wall on the land of his neighbour. 16 I.C. 893. See also 28 Bom.L.R. 403=94 I.C. 673=1926 B. 323. But the easement does not extend to going over the neighbour's roof for that purpose. 16 I.C. 893. A person is also entitled to enter his neighbour's house or land to protect his eaves which project over the neighbour's house. 16 I.C. 893. A pankh or projection of a roof of a house over the neighbouring land is an easement and not a trespass or occupation of property giving rise to any rights to the property covered by the projection by adverse possession. Such a right has to be acquired like any other easement by grant or prescription, and once it is acquired by prescription, it becomes absolute under S. 15 of the Easements Act. 163 I.C. 293=33 Bom.L.R. 264=1936 B. 219. On a severance of tenements the transferee of plots sold for building purposes acquires as an easement under the provisions of S. 13 (a) of the Easements Act the right of lateral support for the building which is intended to be constructed on the plots sold, against the adjoining plots of the severed property. 164 I.C. 1025=1936 O.W.N. 865.

Sec. 13 (b).—In order to bring a case within S. 13 (b), it must be established inter alia that the easement claimed is apparent and continuous. 117 I.C. 381=1929 L. 848. Under S. 13 (b) the necessity need not be absolute. Even a qualified necessity such as has been described with reference to the previous enjoyment is quite enough. Rule applied to claim for the flow of water from the roof through a spout. 7 O.W.N. 652=125 I.C. 840. The existence of vents through which adjoining lands were being irrigated is evidence of an apparent, continuous and necessary easement which passes to the transferee under S. 13 (b). 45 M.L.J. 724=1924 M. 108. Under S. 13 (b) read with S. 5 of the Act, a right of way, though apparent, if it is formed way, is a discontinuous easement, and therefore it does not fall under S. 13 (b); it cannot be regarded as an easement of qualified necessity, or a quasi-easement. There is no warrant for holding that a formed way must be regarded as a continuous easement. Having regard to the provisions of the Indian Easements Act it is not open in India in cases where the Easements Act applies to follow the English decisions subsequent to the Act and to hold that a formed and metalled pathway would be an apparent and continuous easement for the purpose of determining the rights of parties under S. 13 (b) which also applies to a continuous easement. Even if it be a formed way, it does not pass an easement of qualified necessity under S. 13; it can only pass as an easement of absolute necessity, that is to say, where it is not possible to have any other way for passage. 44 Bom.L.R. 673=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 305. See also 1941 O.W.N. 1410. An act done for the proper enjoyment of an easement such as closing the vents after irrigation or in the course of the enjoyment of an easement which is continuous would not render the easement a non-continuous easement. 45 M.L.J. 724. The Easement Act does not apply in the Punjab and any question of easement arising in that province will have to be answered in accordance with the principles of English Law as embodying the principles of equity, justice and good conscience. Easements under English Law can only be, in the absence of custom, created either by a grant, express, implied or presumed or by statute. An easement of necessity like a right of way cannot therefore be held to exist in the Punjab when not only does a vendor not reserve that right in the portion of the premises retained by him either expressly or impliedly but expressly authorises the vendee on the other hand to close it if it were not otherwise closed within a certain period mentioned in the sale deed. 46 P.L.R. 236=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 417.

(c) if an easement in the subject of the transfer or bequest is necessary for enjoying other immovable property of the transferor or testator the transferor or the legal representative of the testator shall be entitled to such easement; or .

(d) if such an easement is apparent and continuous and necessary for enjoying the said property as it was enjoyed when the transfer or bequest took effect, the transferor, or the legal representative of the testator, shall, unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, be entitled to such easement.

Where a partition is made of the joint property of several persons,—

(e) if an easement over the share of one of them is necessary for enjoying the share of another of them, the latter shall be entitled to such easement, or

(f) if such an easement is apparent and continuous and necessary for enjoying the share of the latter as it was enjoyed when the partition took effect, he shall, unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, be entitled to such easement.

The easements mentioned in this section, clause (a), (c) and (e) are called easements of necessity.

SEC. 13 (c) AND (d).—Right to submerge adjacent lands cannot be claimed as an easement falling under Cls. (c) and (d) of S. 13. 1931 M. 561=60 M.L.J. 662.

SEC. (d).—See 29 I.C. 695.

SEC. (e) AND (f).—Cls. (e) and (f) must not be confused. Under Cl. (e) plaintiff has to prove that the easement claimed was necessary for the enjoyment of the property allotted to him by partition. Under Cl. (f) he has to prove that the easement was apparent, continuous and necessary for enjoying share as it was enjoyed when the partition took effect and that no different intention was expressed or necessarily implied in the partition. 25 O.C. 251=1923 O. 57. See also I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 580=1939 Nag. 197. Under S. 13 (e) there is no question of what was the practice at the time of partition, but what were the necessities of the case at the time of partition. So where a piece of land is partitioned into two contiguous plots A and B and before partition owner of A was using B land to pass over to a public road, but there was also another passage for the owner of A to do so without passing over B land, the owner of A cannot claim an easement of necessity against B under S. 13 (e). 165 I.C. 81=1936 N. 182. No right of way by easement can be acquired by a person who builds an osara on another man's land even though with his acquiescence. 9 I.C. 813. Where lands which were originally enjoyed in common were divided at a partition and the common well situate in one of the fields was the source or irrigation for all the lands and one of the persons sued for a right of easement to take the water from the well across the other person's lands, held, that S. 13 (e) of the Easements Act applied. 127 I.C. 520=1930 A. 313 (1). Right to use water from well. See 22 Bom. L.R. 415=45 B. 80; 100 I.C. 939=1927 L. 383. Where a well was in existence before the partition and the question was raised whether after partition the owner of the higher plot was entitled to let, the well water flow on to the adjacent lower plot. Held, that the right accrued to the owner of the higher plot as a quasi-easement and not easement of necessity. 1930 M. 676=125 I.C. 529. There cannot be an easement of necessity in respect of a right of way, if there is an alternative route or way. But where the alternative route is extremely inconvenient there may exist an easement of necessity in respect of a more convenient pathway. 1924 O. 363=70 I.C. 173. Under S. 13 of the Easements Act in case of partition if an easement is one of necessity, a person to whose share certain property falls is entitled to the easement apart from any question of its being apparent or continuous. An easement of necessity can however only arise when the property cannot be used at all without the easement and not where the easement is merely necessary for the reasonable or more convenient enjoyment of the property. Thus a right of way over a road cannot be claimed as an easement of necessity when there is another means of access to the property. 53 M. 449=1930 M. 609=59 M.L.J. 956. In considering questions of easement of necessity convenience is not the test but absolute necessity, and in this matter S. 13 (e) is the same as the law in England. A right of way of necessity only arises when there is no other possible legal mode of getting at the land and an easement of necessity which arises by implication of law is a grant of a right of way until such time as the grantee may acquire the power from some other source of reaching the quasi-dominant tenement. Where he acquires by purchase the property though which he can reach the several portions of the dominant tenement the old easement ceases to exist. 127 I.C. 646=1930 M. 789. Right to light when easement of necessity. 1897 Bom.P.J. 471. Decree for room implies right of access thereto. 1887 Bom.P.J. 113. As to use of well and privy, see 1886 Bom.P.J. 128. Grant of right of way in general terms includes right of way for privy cleaner. 34 Bom.L.R. 1150=1932 B. 574. Where there is a grant of right of way over

Where immovable property passes by operation of law, the persons from and to whom it so passes are, for the purpose of this section, to be deemed, respectively, the transferor and transferee.

(a) A sells B a field then used for agricultural purposes only. It is inaccessible except by passing over A's adjoining land or by trespassing on the land of a stranger. B is entitled to a right of way, for agricultural purposes only, over A's adjoining land to the field sold.

(b) A, the owner of two fields, sells one to B, and retains the other. The field retained was at the date of the sale used for agricultural purposes only and is inaccessible except by passing over the field sold to B. A is entitled to a right of way, for agricultural purposes only, over B's field to the field retained.

(c) A sells B a house with windows overlooking A's land, which A retains. The light which passes over A's land to the windows is necessary for enjoying the house as it was enjoyed when the sale took effect. B is entitled to the light, and A cannot afterwards obstruct it by building on his land.

(d) A sells B a house with windows overlooking A's land. The light passing over A's land to the windows is necessary for enjoying the house as it was enjoyed when the sale took effect. Afterwards A sells the land to C. Here C cannot obstruct the light by building on the land, for he takes it subject to the burdens to which it was subject in A's hands.

(e) A is the owner of a house and adjoining land. The house has windows overlooking the land. A simultaneously sells the house to B and the land to C. The light passing over the land is necessary for enjoying the house as it was enjoyed when the sale took effect. Here A impliedly grants B a right to the light, and C takes the land subject to the restriction that he may not build so as to obstruct such light.

(f) A is the owner of a house and adjoining land. The house has windows overlooking the land. A, retaining the house, sells the land to B, without expressly reserving any easement. The light passing over the land is necessary for enjoying the house as it was enjoyed when the sale took effect. A is entitled to the light, and B cannot build on the land so as to obstruct such light.

(g) A the owner of a house, sells B a factory built on adjoining land. B is entitled, as against A, to pollute the air, when necessary, with smoke and vapours from the factory.

(h) A, the owner of two adjoining houses, Y and Z, sells Y to B and retains Z. B is entitled to the benefit of all the gutters and drains common to the two houses and necessary for enjoying Y as it was enjoyed when the sale took effect, and A is entitled to the benefit of all the gutters and drains common to the two houses and necessary for enjoying Z as it was enjoyed when the sale took effect.

LANDS NOT BEING CONTIGUOUS—RIGHT OF DRAINAGE—PROOF.—The case of a plaintiff who was merely acquired the right to discharge his water on to the intervening land and the case of a plaintiff who, has acquired the right of carrying it across that intervening land and discharging it upon the land further away are quite different. In the former case he is not entitled to sue the person who is on the other side of the intervening land whereas in the latter he may be entitled to do so. Plaintiff was held, entitled to carry his water by means of a syphon sluice under the Government channel up to the boundary of the defendant's land and there discharge it into a channel over that land. 40 L.W. 483=1934 M. 632.

SECS. 13, 24, 25 AND 27.—A house was originally partitioned between two brothers, one of whom got the ground floor and the other the first floor. Subsequently the ground floor became vested in the defendant and the first floor in the plaintiff. The plaintiff claimed that as owner of the first floor he was entitled to the right of support from the ground floor and other attendant rights. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to support to his first floor from the ground floor of the defendant, but that the defendant was not liable to keep the ground floor in repair, in order to make this right of support effective; that the plaintiff could enter upon the ground floor for the purpose himself of doing the necessary repairs and the Court would grant an injunction to protect those rights. This right of support is an easement and not a natural right. There cannot be a natural right of support for something which itself has no natural existence. (j) A, the owner of two adjoining buildings, sells one to B, and the other to C. C is entitled to lateral support from B's building, and B is entitled to lateral support from C's building.

(k) A grants lands to B for the purpose of building a house thereon. B is entitled to such amount of lateral and is subjacent support from A's land as is necessary for the safety of the house.

(l) Under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, a Railway Company compulsorily acquires a portion of B's land for the purpose of making a siding. The Company is entitled to such amount of lateral support from B's adjoining land as is essential for the safety of the siding.

(m) Owing to the partition of joint property, A becomes the owner of an upper room in a building, and B becomes the owner of the portion of the building, immediately beneath it. A is entitled to such amount of vertical support from B's portion as is essential for the safety of the upper room.

(n) A lets a house and grounds to B for a particular business. B has no access to them other than by crossing A's land. B is entitled to a right of way over that land suitable to the business to be carried on by B on the house and grounds.

SEC. 15: NATURE OF PRESCRIPTIVE RIGHTS. —The law relating to the acquisition of easements under this Act appears to be the same as under the English Prescription Act. 35 I.C. 749=4 L.W. 128. Section not exhaustive and does not preclude other titles or modes of acquisition as by grant. 96 I.C. 317=1926 M. 788. See also 1929 M.W.N. 528; 56 B. 82=34 Bom.L.R. 92=1932 B. 130; 48 I.C. 962=14 N.L.R. 35. There is nothing to prevent a claim to title by lost grant being made under the Indian law apart from S. 15 of the Easement Act. The Act is remedial and is neither prohibitory nor exhaustive. 59 M. 979=1936 M. 682=71 M. L.J. 187. See also 1929 M.W.N. 528. Easements are not capable of being possessed and unless such rights have ripened into prescriptive rights recognized by law, mere enjoyment for anything less than the statutory period does not confer on the enjoyer a right to maintain an action against a trespasser interfering with his enjoyment. 1940 Oudh 111=1939 O.W.N. 992. One of the necessary conditions of a right of easement is that it must be certain. Thus, where only a right of way is claimed and allowed, the decree must state the limits of the pathway. 188 I.C. 431=1934 P. 420. Easements are not capable, in an exact sense, of being possessed. The enjoyment which may in time ripen into an easement is not possession and gives no possessory right before the expiry of twenty years. 29 I.O. 255=38 M. 280. When user is proved, the presumption is that it is of right. 86 I.C. 595 (2)=1925 L. 344. There is no reason why the expression "as of right" which appears both in S. 26, Limitation Act, and S. 15, Easements Act, should not receive the same interpretation as in English Law. 30 S.L.R. 32=163 I.C. 137=1936 S. 61. "Claiming title thereto" —Meaning See 46, Mys. H.C. Rep. 621. Where a person makes a payment for the use of land, such user is by license and is not a user by right. 1933 A.L.J. 516=1933 A. 623. Long continued user would be ascribed to lawful origin. 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=61 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). The person claiming easement must show that his user was as of right but the law presumes that it is as of right, that is to say it has a lawful origin, if he proves open and notorious user. On proof of the fact of enjoyment from time immemorial there must arise a presumption of a legal origin for the right claimed. Hence where a person had been exercising his right of way for himself, for his servants and for his carts from remote past as appurtenant to his shop and relations between the parties were not such as to indicate that the user was attributable to leave or license, it must be presumed that his user was as of right.

I.L.R. 1939 Nag. 580=1939 Nag. 197. That presumption is, however, rebuttable, and the defendant may show that the facts are such that the user was not as of right, e.g., he can show that the user was under license not amounting to a grant, or he can show fraud or force, or secrecy. Those would show that it was not as of right. 20 N.L.J. 12=171 I.C. 121. See also 1939 Sind 110. Ineffectual opposition to the exercise of what is claimed to be a right of easement is evidence rather in support of the right than of its non-existence. 58 I.A. 195. While the mere putting forward of a wider claim in legal proceeding is not conclusive against a right of easement, yet the question quo animo egerit, to what purported character are the acts of user to be ascribed is one which the Court must answer. The question in each case is one of fact as to whether the acts of user are referable to a purported character of owner or to the claim to an easement. Even in the case of an enjoyment from time immemorial, it would be equally necessary for the plaintiff to prove a user as of right as an easement as distinguishable from a right of ownership. 1930 P. 7. The mere claim of the higher right of ownership does not prevent a person from acquiring the lesser right of easement, provided he could show that he asserted certain rights over the servient tenement for the benefit of the dominant tenement belonging to him. 1930 P. 7. An easement is a restriction in favour of one owner or occupier of the immovable property of the rights of ownership of the immovable property of another owner. The restriction cannot be built up or asserted without consciousness of the rights which are restricted. 23 N.L.R. 117=104 I.C. 431=1927 N. 334. Right of easement can be established not only by terms of the grant but also by circumstantial evidence and presumptions. 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=35 C.W.N. 605=61 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). Where there is evidence of long enjoyment in a particular way, it is the duty of the Court, to clothe the fact with right. 148 I.C. 215=1934 Pat. 11. It is open to the Court to infer a grant from immemorial user alone when such user is open, as of right and without interruption. But a grant will not be inferred if the user may be explained in some other way than by a grant. 155 I.C. 719=60 C.L.J. 321=1935 C. 253. See also 30 S.L.R. 32=163 I.C. 137=1936 S. 61. See also 22 Pat.L.T. 699=1941 Pat. 260. User from time immemorial may no doubt give rise to a presumption of a lost grant or public dedication of a right of way. But user short of that may also be the foundation of such a presumption. For the purpose of presuming dedication, there can be no hard and fast rule as to the length of time for which the user must be proved. Whether or not dedication may be presumed really depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. The mere fact that user has not been proved for a long series of years may not always be a conclusive reason for shutting out such a presumption. 44 C. W.N. 1029. It is open to the Courts to recognise acquisition of the easement by the claimant if he could prove continuous enjoyment for the requisite period by himself or his immediate predecessor in occupation of the property. 168 I.C. 921=1937 Nag. 38. Under S. 15 there are two requirements to be fulfilled: first the enjoyment must be up to within two years of the date of suit and secondly that up to that time it must have been enjoyed for 20 years and without interruption. The period of enjoyment up to within two years of the suit need not be a period of actual user up to the last moment, provided the absence of user does not amount to absence of enjoyment; whether it does or not is a question which depends on the facts of each case. The onus is on the person claiming the easement to prove the user. If there is not merely non-user but actual abandonment, then the person claiming the easement cannot succeed. 15 Luck. 509=1940 O.W.N. 267=1940 Oudh 197. This Act does not contemplate any acquisition of easement against an occupier of land and not against an owner. An easement is acquired in the land and not against one or more of the persons interested in the land. Under S. 15 the right acquired by prescription is absolute; it is not possible to hold that such a right exists only against the occupier and not against the owner. The right which is absolute is a right in the land itself and an absolute right against all persons connected with the land whether as owners or as occupiers. Where an easement of light and air is claimed on the ground of 30 years' user over land held by a Railway Company, but it is found that the land is the property of the Government, the claim must fail and cannot succeed when there is no allegation or proof of 60 years' user; the plaintiff cannot claim on the basis of 30 years' user, a right as against the Railway company as occupier as distinct from the Government as owner. 1937 A. 428=1937 A.L.J. 249. See also 1937 N. 38; 1939 Sind 110. Land appurtenant to a residential house need not be actually adjoining the house. Where a tenant uses certain land opposite to his house but on the other side of a public way for the purposes of tethering his cattle, such land can be regarded as appurtenant to his house. 1936 O.W.N. 536=1936 O. 324. The user over a land purported to be exercised as owner cannot be made the basis of an easement. 104 I.C. 503. See also 1930 P. 7; 56 B. 427=34 Bom. L.R. 1015=1932 B. 513. A person cannot acquire an easement unless he acts with the knowledge that it is a case of a dominant and a servient tenement and that he is exercising a right over property which does not belong to him. Where the defendant has consistently claimed ownership in the land, he cannot claim to have acquired an easement as the user has not been with the animus of enjoying the easement as such in the land of another. The question of immemorial user has nothing to do with it. 56 B. 427=34 Bom.L.R. 1015=1932 B. 513. S. 4 of the Easements Act shows that not merely the "owner" but even an "occupier" may acquire an easement and there is no prima facie reason why the enjoyment of a person as an "occupier" should not be tacked on under S. 15 to his enjoyment as "owner", if there is no interruption in his user. 152 I. C. 216=1934 M. 575=67 M.L.J. 262. See also 1937 A. 428=1937 A.L.J. 249. To support a claim to a prescriptive right of way over a pathway, the pathway must be enjoyed peaceably and openly as an easement without interruption for more than 20 years. It is not necessary that it should be used every moment to constitute enjoyment. Cessation of user is not inconsistent with the continuance of the enjoyment of the right. Cessation of user for a time while the right is being acquired does not stand on a different basis from that where the right has already been acquired by 20 years' user. But an enjoyment physically incapable of interruption would not confer any right of easement by prescription. 60 C.L.J. 412=1935 C. 282. In calculating the period of twenty years, as provided in S. 15 it is not sufficient to take into account a period of less than 20 years before a suit in which the plaintiff's right is contested, and the rest of the twenty years during the continuance of, and after, the suit. Where before the expiry of the period of 20 years the plaintiff files a suit which is contested by the defendant and decided against the plaintiff, his inchoate right comes to an end, and no period subsequent to the filing of that suit can be added to the period before the filing of that suit to make up the period of 20 years of peaceable enjoyment without interruption. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 306=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 17=207 I.C. 83. The presumption of constructive enjoyment can no more be made in favour of a person acquiring easement by prescription than the presumption of constructive possession made in favour of a trespasser acquiring prescriptive title. If there is a grant, it is construed against the grantor but in case of prescriptive right, its extent must be measured and determined by the accustomed user. It is on this principle that a servitude acquired for one purpose cannot lawfully be used for another. Hence where a person has by prescription acquired a right of way on other's land for himself, his servants and carts, the right of way cannot be presumed to include the passage for sweepers. Nor can such a presumption be based on the circumstances that the houses occupied by the parties had at one time belonged to a common owner unless the way was necessary for enjoying the tenement which was purchased by the person claiming easement. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 580=1939 N.L.J. 297=1939 Nag. 197. Beaumont, C.J.—There is no reason why if the owner of a piece of land proves that for 20 years he has in fact exercised right of passing and re-passing over adjoining land nec vi, nec clam, nec precario, he should be unable to establish an easement of way over such adjoining land merely because when he exercised that right he believed he had a right of ownership in the adjoining land which right he was unable to establish in a Court of law. 144 I.C. 998=35 Bom.L.R. 144=1933 B. 122. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 168=1939 Bom. 149=I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 140; 1939 Sind 110. A customary right differs from a prescriptive right in the sense that no fixed period for its enjoyment is necessary. 20 I.C. 467 (20 M. 389 and 2 Beng. L.R. 454 and 459, Rel.). See also 71 M.L.J. 268; 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=61 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.); 142 I.C. 153=1933 N. 74. A prescriptive right or easement is a right existing in a particular individual, while a customary right belongs to no particular individuals but attaches to a locality and is capable of being enjoyed by all who, for the time being, own land in the locality. 20 I.C. 467. A prescriptive right to light and air cannot be acquired as an easement for limited period, e.g., when the servient heritage is in the occupancy of a tenant. 42 M. 567=37 M.L.J. 28. The word "imposition" of an easement does not necessarily mean imposition by some act, such as grant, but includes imposition by omission to prevent acquisition by prescription. 42 M. 567. Government land in the management of Municipal Board—Proof of user for 60 years essential—Land leased out to tenant whether makes any difference. 1928 O. 17=4 O.W.N. 1035. When a person prays the Court to presume a lost grant as against Government, it is reasonable to infer that such a grant cannot be presumed, unless there is evidence of a user which would be sufficient to establish a right by prescription and against Government, that is to say, unless there is evidence of sixty years' user. At any rate, it is impossible to infer a lost grant on the basis of immemorial user when the evidence shows positively that fifty years ago no such grant had been made. 162 I.C. 97=1936 M. 692. See also 71 M.L.J. 187=59 M. 979. If it is found that for a sufficiently long time, covering a period of over 30 years, all the water, both rain water as well as water brought on to the upper land by artificial means for agricultural purposes, is allowed to pass into the lower land without any interruption by the proprietor thereof, the Court will easily infer a custom and that the customary conditions of the locality require such user. The doctrine of lost grant can be invoked for the purpose of inferring such a custom. It is not necessary that the words "lost grant" or "customary user" should in so many words be pleaded. All that is necessary to be alleged in order to infer a doctrine of lost grant or a claim based on prescription is long, continual and peaceful possession. The fact that both the proprietors are ryotwari owners holding under the Government, a common landlord, is no bar to the acquisition of a title by prescription or lost grant, by one against another. The estate of the ryotwari proprietor is an estate in the soil and is heritable and alienable, and he has sufficient estate to support a grant of an easement. 59 M. 979=1936 M. 682=71 M.L.J. 187. The approval of any person's plan for building does not necessarily imply that the Municipality intended to grant an easement over an adjoining lane belonging to it. 160 I.C. 955=1936 M. 142. Where a compromise confers upon the defendant a right to construct a bundh on the plaintiff's land the defendant cannot set up adverse possession with regard to the land and can claim nothing more than a right of easement to maintain a bundh on the land. The right to repair the bundh must be presumed in defendant's favour, such right being incidental to the existence of the bundh. 22 Pat.L.T. 699=1941 Pat. 260.

What rights can be acquired.—A prescriptive right is acquired if plaintiff's privies are cleaned by scavengers passing over the land of the defendant for twenty years to the knowledge of the defendant without obstruction by defendant. 50 I.C. 34. All that a defendant whose eaves project over plaintiff's land can acquire after 20 years is an easement imposing the burden on the servient tenement of having that projection over it. 46 B. 827=24 Bom.L.R. 305. Where one of the joint owners of a party wall had made a hole therein and enjoyed light through that hole for more than twenty years, the acquires a right of easement of light and the other owner cannot close the whole. 33 P.L.R. 930. Removal of support of a wall before accrual of right of easement by prescription to neighbour is not actionable. See 1928 N. 91. See also 59 C. 363=138 I.C. 667=1932 C. 542; 11 R. 47=1933 R. 18. A suit for perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from removing the necessary lateral support to which the plaintiff's land is entitled is a suit in the nature of a quia timet action and the plaintiff, in order to succeed, must prove imminent danger of a substantial kind, or that the apprehended injury, if it does occur, will be irreparable. Therefore excavation and removal of the earth on his own land by a defendant, without leaving sufficient support to the adjoining plaintiff's land to enable it to remain in its natural state, does not per se constitute an actionable invasion of the latter's right; and such an act to constitute a valid foundation for a claim by the adjoining plaintiff for damages must be coupled with actual damage or injury to his property. 11 R. 47=143 I.C. 292=1933 R. 18. See also 63 C. 441=62 C.L.J. 283=1936 C. 564. A prescriptive right to dam up a stream is acquired by the continued exercise of the right for twenty-five or thirty years. 26 M.L.J. 385=24 I.C. 547. In the case of shrotriem grant the right of Government over the minerals is not lost by limitation. 23 I.C. 144=15 M.L.T. 277. Mere non-user for not less than two years before suit independent of any adverse act on the part of the owner of the servient heritage does not amount to cessation or abandonment of the right of easement within the meaning of S. 15. Expl. II clearly relates not to the period after which the easement has ceased to be enjoyed but to any interval of non-user within the 20 years of enjoyment. 98 I.C. 886=1927 M. 238. The term "interruption" refers to an adverse obstruction and not a mere discontinuance of user. 60 C.L.J. 412=1935 C. 282.

What Right cannot be acquired.—The right to drive cattle to the grazing ground through the jungle of another village is not a right which can be acquired as an easement though enjoyed for any length of time. 43 A. 345=19 A.L.J. 126. As to right of way for agricultural purposes, see 50 B. 635=28 Bom.L.R. 1158=1926 B. 537. Right to store manure by non-agriculturist, see 5 O.W.N. 296. A right to bury or cremate the dead on land belonging to another cannot be acquired by prescription. 138 I.C. 325=32 P.L.R. 157=1932 L. 256. See also 1934 A.L.J. 809=1934 A. 868. An easement of light and air through apertures of windows in a wall cannot be acquired by prescription, when the wall in question is a joint wall belonging to both the parties, because it is the essence of an easement that it should be a right over property not belonging to the claimant but to some one else. I.L.R. 1938 Bom. 53=40 Bom.L.R. 115=1938 Bom. 215. The principle that easement of light and air through windows opened in a joint wall cannot be acquired by prescription cannot apply where the whole wall to its full height is not proved to be joint. The party who wants the whole wall to be treated as a joint wall must establish that there was a party wall in the beginning and that it had been subsequently raised by the other co-owner or that there was an agreement to treat the whole wall as joint. If the wall exists from the beginning and there are ancient apertures in it before the other house is built, they cannot be blocked up unless there is an agreement to close them when the other house is raised and the agreement to treat the lower part of the wall as joint would not have the effect of extinguishing the already-acquired easement of light and air through the windows in the upper wall. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 140=42 Bom.L.R. 186=1940 Bom. 153.

Water Rights.—Where the plaintiff had been enjoying the water by means of channels through which water passed to a tank, for a certain number of years, no prescriptive right was asquired to receive the water through the channels unobstructed. 23 Bom. L. R. 1004=46 B. 115. See also 43 L.W. 330. A prescriptive right of easement to discharge surplus water on the defendant's land through a channel across the public road cannot be acquired. 19 C.L.J. 42=21 I.C. 857=18 C.W.N. 378. Where an underground channel had been in existence between the lands of the plaintiff and defendant across a public pathway, for over twenty years to the knowledge of the public authorities, and the plaintiff had been accustomed to discharge the water from his land through this channel on to the defendant's land, and it appeared that the channel was a pucca one constructed with brick and chunam covered over with stone, and the public authorities actually approved of it as a public convenience. Held, though an easement in the strict sense of the term may not have been acquired against the Secretary of State—the enjoyment having been short of 60 years—the channel must be considered to have been used by the plaintiff in a lawful manner, and that the plaintiff can maintain an action against the defendant when the latter interfered with the plaintiff's user of the channel. 40 L.W. 281=1934 M. 543=67 M.L.J. 382. No easement or prescriptive right can be acquired by a ryotwari landholder in water in a Government channel irrigating the lands. 45 I.C. 80=34 M. L.J. 425. See also 71 M.L.J. 268; 43 L.W. 330. There can be no possessory rights in connection with incorporeal rights. (Ibid.) A right to irrigate his punja land through a channel in the adjoining nanja land of another ryot can be acquired by a ryot by prescription. If such right has been enjoyed for over 20 years, he can get a declaration of such right. It is not necessary that the plaintiff should establish a right to water against the Government for this purpose. 1937 M.W.N. 920. Under S. 15 a right of fishing cannot be acquired by prescription, but from uninterrupted user such a grant may be presumed. 43 I.C. 962=14 N.L.J. 35. See also 37 C.W.N. 18 (A claim of fishery without stint and for commercial purposes which might lead to the total distinction of the subject-matter is a right unknown to law and the custom alleged in its support is unreasonable). See also 46 L. W. 466=1937 Mad. 823=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 350 (Right to throw filthy water on another's land can be acquired by prescription).

Overhanging trees.—An owner or occupier of land has no right to allow his trees to overhang his neighbour's land, and he cannot acquire such a right by prescription. 40 L.W. 639=67 M.L.J. 442. No right of easement can be acquired in respect of a tree which gradually projects over his neighbour's land insensibly and by slow degrees. The owner of a tree has consequently no right to prevent a person lawfully in possession of land into which or over which its roots or branches have grown, from cutting away so much of them as project into or over his land. But it is a settled maxim that a grantor shall not derogate from his grant. Where an owner of two adjacent plots of land transfers or sells one of them together with a tree standing thereon, which is not a tiny plant or sapling, but an ancient tree of about 100 years old whose growth has practically ceased, it must be held that a right to project the existing boughs of the tree over the vendor's land is also transferred to the vendee. To allow the transferor to cut off the branches overhanging his land (which has not been transferred) would be to violate the maxim that the grantor shall not derogate from his grant. If he intends to reserve to himself the right to lop off the projecting branches, he should expressly reserve. It is not necessary that the vendee should be given under the sale deed an express right to project the branches, in order to entitle him to prevent the vendor from cutting off the branches. 47 L.W. 324=1938 Mad. 511=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 510. An owner of land can cut the branches of trees standing on his neighbour's land which overhang on his land. The fact that the two plots of land were once held in common ownership and the plot with the trees thereon with the branches overhanging on the other is transferred by partition or sale makes no difference so far as the application of the rule is concerned. To have the branches of a tree overhang on the land of another is not in the nature of a right of easement, and it cannot be acquired by prescription at common law or statute either under English law or Indian law. In other words, there is no right of easement or customary right to have the branches of a tree overhang on another man's land. To allow the branches of one's tree to overhang on another's land is to commit a nuisance which that another has a right to abate by cutting off the branches. 1936 M. 702=71 M.L.J. 296. A right to overhang the branches of one's trees over the land of his neighbour may, no doubt, by apt words be granted. But such a grant cannot be implied from a grant of the land with the trees on it, because the result of allowing the branches to overhang over an unlimited and indefinite area of the neighbour's land would subject that land to a burden which would virtually deprive him of his right to use his land as owner. But so long as the branches are allowed to overhang, the owner of the trees will also be the owner of the branches and the produce thereon, and it may be that the adjoining owner will have to permit the owner of the trees to take the produce. 1936 M. 702=71 M.L.J. 296.

Right of way.—One of the necessary conditions of a right of easement is that it must be certain. Where a right of way is claimed and allowed, the decree should state definitely the limits of the pathway. When the two termini are known, the right to the way does not fail merely for want of a defined track between them and if the owner of the servient tenement does not point out the line of such way, the dominant owner must take the nearest way he can. If the owner of the servient tenement wishes to confine him to a particular track, he must set out a reasonable way, and then the person is not entitled to go out of the way merely because the way is rough and there are ruts in it and so forth. 148 I.C. 431=1934 P. 420. A right of way once defined by the grant cannot be altered and the dominant owner is entitled to exercise his strict rights unless he can be induced to consent to a way of a deviation. There is no provision in the Easements Act enabling a servient owner to substitute, in the case of an easement by grant a new pathway in place of the old one. 56 L.W. 521=1943 M.W.N. 767=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 741=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 519. Where a passage has been found to have been used openly, uninterruptedly and peaceably for about 50 years, it can be presumed that the right had a legal origin and that those using it had a right to use it. 1939 A.L.J. 821=I.L.R. (1938) All. 754=1939 All. 586. A person who is in enjoyment of an easement, such as a right of way, but who has not acquired a title to it by prescription or otherwise, cannot ordinarily maintain an action to prevent its obstruction by a stranger. An action can only be maintained in very exceptional cases where access to his land would otherwise be cut off altogether or if the obstruction to the user of the right of way will have the effect of substantially depriving a person of the enjoyment of his property. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 367=53 L.W. 8=1941 Mad. 176=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 145 (F.B.). It is true that an owner can subject one part of his property to a quasi-easement in favour of another part and if afterwards he alienates a portion of his land, the purchaser takes the portion with all the convenience or quasi-easements which the proprietor has attached to it. But this applies only when the quasi-easements are continuous and apparent. There could be no implied grant where the easements are not continuous and non-apparent. A right of way is neither continuous, nor always an apparent easement, and hence would not ordinarily come under the above rule. Exception is no doubt made in certain cases where there is a "formed road" existing over one part of the tenement for the apparent use of another portion or there is "some permanence in the adaptation of the tenement" from which continuity may be inferred, but barring these exceptions an ordinary right of way would not pass on severance unless language is used by the grantor to create a fresh easement. Where, however, a deed of conveyance describes the property conveyed as bounded by a common passage, an implied grant of a right of passage may be presumed, and the extent of such right has got to be gathered from the language of the document, as well as from the surrounding circumstances of the case. Ordinarily such right of passage does not include the right to use it as a mehort passage for the cleansing of a privy. 41 C.W.N. 1169=1937 Cal. 661. See also 1939 N.L.J. 297=1939 Nag. 197. Who can acquire.—A claim of higher right of ownership does not prevent another person from acquiring a right of easement, if he can show that he converts certain rights of enjoyment over the land in question for the benefit of another land of his own. 62 I.C. 633. A right once established by immemorial user, is not extinguished by non-user or interruption for more than two years. 62 I.C. 633. As to what is immemorial user, see 56 B. 82=34 Bom.L.R. 92=1932 B. 130. The terms "immemorial user" and "from time immemorial" had a connotation in English Law which obviously could not be applied to Indian society and circumstances. 56 B. 82=1932 B. 130. A right of way cannot be acquired by a tenant over the lands of the landlord within his tenancy except by grant. 34 I.C. 450=20 C.W.N. 1158. See also 1936 S. 61=30 S. L.R. 32. It is true that a lessee of land cannot acquire a right of way or any other easement over land owned by his lessor as having been peaceably and openly enjoyed by a person claiming title thereto and of right within the meaning of the third clause of S. 15; in such a case the tenant's occupation is in the eye of the law that of his landlord. But where a lessee of land owns a building built upon land leased to him, he may, so far as the use of light and air or support for his building is concerned, acquire rights of easement in respect of such right, air or support under Cls. (1) and (2) of S. 15, and these rights cannot be objected to as being incapable of being acquired by him on behalf of his lessor as well as against him, for those rights are acquired by him for himself, and for none other than himself, as owner of the building. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 381=1941 Sind 211. See also 198 I.C. 418. The mere grant of leave and licence of a right of way by the landlord to his tenant, will not invest the latter with a right of way enforceable in suit. 20 C.W.N. 1158. A prescriptive right cannot be acquired by one tenant against another tenant of the same landlord. 31 I.C. 549=19 C.W.N. 1211. See also I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 569=1937 Cal. 572 (mukarrari lease holder); 1939 Rang. 421; 148 I.C. 215=1934 P. 11; 56 B. 427=34 Bom.L.R. 1015=1932 B. 513. Whether one permanent tenure-holder can acquire an easement against another permanent tenure-holder under the same landlord. 31 I.C. 540=19 C.W.N. 1211. A tenant in a zamindari cannot acquire the right to irrigate his land held by him as a tenant, with water from the tank belonging to the Zamindar. 56 I.C. 598=11 L.W. 600. Where the tenants of a zamindar have been using water from his tank for raising a second crop on their manyam lands for over 20 years openly and continuously and without interruption, their right to take water for a first crop being admitted by the zamindar, and it is found that at no time for considerably over 20 years has the Zamindar claimed or recovered compensation for the water taken by the tenants for the second crop, a presumption arises in favour of the tenants that they have been using the water as of right; and when no permission of the zamindar or any facts to negative the claim as of right, are proved the tenants have a prescriptive right to get an amount of water sufficient to irrigate their lands without any liability to pay for it. The fact that in some years there may not have been enough water to irrigate as large an area as in other years and that in some years there may have been an amount sufficient to irrigate a larger area will not make the right incapable of being prescribed for as being of a precarious nature. 1937 M.W.N. 895=46 L.W. 643=1937 Mad. 953. Where two persons hold adjoining plots of land under a temporary lease by the Government terminable at three months' notice and transferable only with the sanction of the Government, one of them cannot acquire a right of way by user over the land which is in possession of the other as he cannot be said to have enjoyed the alleged easement as of right. 30 S.L.R. 32=163 I.C. 137=1936 S. 61. The joint user of the water from a tank for the joint cultivation of a plot does not affect the nature of the right of easement which is a right over the servient heritage acquired by virtue of the joint ownership of the plot. The right prescribed for, is not a right to irrigate jointly but a right as part owners of a dominant heritage. 35 I.C. 749=4 L.W. 128. The essential requisite of prescription is that it should be acquired against specific individuals; prescription against one person cannot be tacked on to that acquired against others. 24 I.C. 519=28 M.L.J. 669. A dominant owner who is also a part owner of the servient tenement cannot acquire an easement over that tenement. In order to acquire an easement by prescription, it is necessary that the right must be enjoyed in the character of an easement, and if a dominant owner is a part owner of the servient tenement, he would enjoy as of "right", not the easement but the soil itself. 41 C.W.N. 769=1937 Cal. 355. The principle that one trespasser cannot tack on to his own possession the possession of another trespasser cannot apply to the acquisition of a right of easement. Ownership and easement rights cannot co-exist as they are mutually exclusive. The adverse possession spoken of in connexion with acquisition of ownership means total exclusion of the rightful owner; whereas the enjoyment and user necessary for the acquisition of easement is consistent with the possession as well as the enjoyment by the rightful owner. The adverse possession in reality extinguishes the title of the rightful owner, but the enjoyment by a person claiming the right of easement does not in the least affect either the possession or the title of the owner. The easement only restricts the owner's rights in some ways in regard to the enjoyment of his tenement. Moreover, the right of easement is annexed to the land or tenement and cannot be acquired in gross as a personal right. 1937 N. 38. See also 1937 A.L.J. 249=1937 A.W.R. 215. It is open to the Courts to recognise acquisition of the easement by the claimant if he could prove continuous enjoyment for the requisite period by himself or his immediate predecessor in occupation of the property. 1937 N. 38. A caste is a corporation with civil rights and can acquire by user, title to a right of way, even if the user be only of a few members of the caste provided it is exercised on behalf of and for the caste. 24 I.C. 467=28 M.L.J. 110. See also 24 I.C. 519=28 M.L.J. 669 (Suit by Stanom-holder). A right of way over a ridge between two paddy fields claimed by the residents of a village is not a right in the nature of an easement but a right in gross as it is enjoyed independently and not for the beneficial enjoyment of any land belonging to the persons claiming it. 10 Cut.L.T. 13=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 278.

Easements, how acquired.—A person to acquire the right of fishery by prescription, must show that he had an uninterrupted enjoyment of it openly, publicly and peacefully for over the statutory period; but where such an enjoyment was in exercise of a common right which he shared with others, he should show that his user was in assertion of a higher right than the general right, in himself, and for his exclusive benefit. 39 C. 53=11 I.C. 180. See also 37 C.W.N. 18. The right to establish and maintain a ferry over the property of another is a right of easement for which twenty years' user is necessary. 5 P.L.J. 500=1 P.L.T. 395. A person owning land on one bank of a river can acquire a right by easement which would entitle him to use the land belonging to another owner on the other side of the river for the purpose of embarking and disembarking passengers. There is, however, no law in this country which would entitle him to restrain competition. He cannot prevent the owner of the land on the other side of the river from starting a rival ferry which is run between lands owned by him on both banks of the river. In other words, there is no right to a monopoly. Such an exclusive right can be claimed only under a Crown grant. 1935 A.L.J. 444=1935 A. 481. To establish a right under this section, twenty years of uninterrupted user must be shown. 25 I.C. 405=12 A.L.J. 693. As to presumption from long user, see 91 I.C. 987=1926 O. 237. As to the effect of unreasonable user, see 92 I.C. 465=1926 M. 625. The period of user must be twenty years or more ending within two years before the institution of the suit, wherein the claims to which such period relates is contested. 24 I.C. 126=12 A.L.J. 415. A statutory prescriptive title to an easement is impossible to be acquired under S. 15 unless and until the claim thereto has been contested in a regular suit. 29 M.L.J. 685. See also 1923 O. 29; 17 I.C. 22=10 A.L.J. 227. An easement is acquired by a suit being brought and 20 years prior user as an easement being proved. Thus it differs in some respects from other rights in that the mere efflux of time does not create an easement. It is the action brought which turns the easement into an indefeasible right. 44 P. L.R. 116=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 124. In a case of a claim to a right of easement, the period of twenty years should end within two years of the suit. It is immaterial whether there was or was not a period of twenty years' user at some period beyond two years before the date of plaint. A period of twenty years' user in the fifteenth century, for instance, cannot have any bearing on a claim to easement. 1933 A.L.J. 516=1933 A. 623. A prescriptive right can be acquired only if the enjoyment of the easement ended 'before the beginning of the two years next' before the suit was instituted. 33 I.C. 503. See also 29 M.L.J. 685; 1923 O. 29. In a case not of prescriptive easement but of one arising from a grant, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to establish twenty years' exercise of the right of easement or its continuance till a time within two years before the institution of the suit. 150 I.C. 601=1934 A. 447. No minimum limit of time can be laid down to justify an inference of immemorial user. The question whether such an user is established depends on the circumstances of each case. 45 B. 1027=62 I. C. 65. Peaceable enjoyment means one without interruption or opposition by the servient owner sufficient to defeat the enjoyment. 49 I.C. 963=21 Bom.L.R. 709. The obstruction must find expression in something done on the servient tenement itself. 45 B. 1027=23 Bom.L.R. 422. Mere protest does not amount to such obstruction. 45 B. 1027. The mere fact that the land is waste does not necessarily show that no right can be acquired over such land. If that were so, the right of user over almost every pathway in the mofussil would be lost, inasmuch as almost every pathway lies over waste land. 65 I.C. 509. In determining the question whether an user of way over waste land was as of right or not, the Court would have to consider the character of the land, the relation between the parties and the circumstances under which the user took place. 65 I.C. 509. See also 56 B. 427=34 Bom.L.R. 1015=1932 B. 513. If an easement has been enjoyed for the statutory period peaceably and openly as of right, without interruption, the right becomes absolute. 26 I.C. 781. A long and uninterrupted user for a long series of years leads to the inference that the user had been as of right and that the right had a lawful origin. 35 I.C. 749=4 L.W. 128. Enjoyment may be peaceable notwithstanding oral disputes regarding it. 29 M.L.J. 685=31 I. C. 528. The adverb 'peaceably' indicates the manner in which the dominant owner must conduct himself in his use of the servient tenement, i.e., the person claiming a right of easement must not have deprived the servient owner of that right by use of force or secretly. 29 M.L.J. 685. See also 19 Mys.L.J. 339. Enjoyment for less than the prescriptive period if entitles the persons enjoying, to an injunction against trespasser. 30 I.C. 989=18 M.L.J. 515. The words "as an easement" do not mean that the enjoyment should be in the assertion of claim of an easement. III. (b) shows that the words were used in order to show that unity of title or possession makes the possession useless to create a right of easement. 38 M. 1=17 I.C. 112. See also 41 C.W.N. 769=1937 Cal. 355. Assertion of full ownership, which was however negatived by the evidence, may suffice to establish an easement, provided that the user was for the beneficial enjoyment of another land. 38 Mad. 1=17 I.C. 112. See also 49 M. 820=1926 M. 728 (F.B.); 56 B. 427=34 Bom.L.R. 1015=1932 B. 513. Mere acquiescence does not create an easement. 16 I.C. 893. When two houses originally owned by one and the same person have backyards opening into a lane which separates them, in the absence of evidence as to when the gates were opened the presumption is that they were so opened before severance, and the enjoyment of a right of way for over twenty years peaceably and as of right ending within two years before the suit creates a prescriptive right. 9 M.L.T. 274=9 I.C. 764. User which is neither physically capable of prevention by the owner of the servient tenement nor actionable, cannot support an easement. This principle applies both to affirmative, and negative easements. So long, therefore, as the two tenements were held in joint ownership there can be no acquisition of an easement by prescription in favour of one tenement against the other.

and where a right of way or any other easement has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto, as an easement, and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years.

the right to such access and use of light or air, support or other easement sha'l be absolute.

Each of the said periods of twenty years shall be taken to be a period ending within two years next before the institution of the suit wherein the claim to which such period relates is contested.

Explanation I.—Nothing is an enjoyment within the meaning of this section when it has been had in pursuance of an agreement with the owner or occupier of the property over which the right is claimed, and it is apparent from the agreement that such right has not been granted as an easement, or, if granted as an easement, that it has been granted for a limited period, or subject to a condition on the fulfilment of which it is to cease.

Sec. 15, Expl. 1.—Where, in the absence of a licence or agreement, the defendants were found to have been using a way over plaintiff's land openly, peaceably and as of right for over the statutory period, held, the defendants had acquired an easement in respect of that right. 9 I.C. 640=9 M.L.T. 350. Continuous and peaceable user of easement of light and air for more than twenty years may give rise to a presumption that it existed with the consent of the owner of the servient heritage. 71 I.C. 831=1923 N. 192. See also 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=61 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). The right to receive light across another's land is not a natural incident of property but can only be acquired as an easement either by grant or prescription. Unless and until such a right has been acquired in the manner of other easements, no amount or mode of obstruction is actionable. 46 C.W.N. 135. An easement of light and air need not be proved to have been enjoyed as of right. It is enough if there is enjoyment. 61 I.C. 569. An open user of road or path, without interruption, for a long time, not under permission or sufferance, is prima facie evidence of enjoyment as of right. 61 I.C. 569. The right to the lateral support to a wall from a neighbour's land, is acquired only by prescription. 68 I.C. 831=14 L.W. 728. See also 1929 M.W.N. 528. Where it was shown that the plaintiff's wall collapsed as a result of a deep drain cut close to the wall by the defendant, but it was not shown that any portion of the soil on the plaintiff's land had fallen into the drain and it was also not proved that the period of 20 years had expired before the alleged encroachment. Held, that S. 15 and not S. 7 applied to the facts of the case, and that the easement by prescription not having been established the plaintiff was not entitled to recover damages. 1930 A.L.J. 340. A right of way over one part may be acquired by grant, and over another, by prescription. 57 I.C. 852. Where a pathway has been used by all the residents of the village, and on both sides of it about houses of the residents of the village, the presumption is that the passage has been kept for the common use of the residents of the village and is, therefore, a public pathway. Under such circumstances there must be a presumption of dedication of the land under the passage for public pathway. User for any number of years is not necessary to establish a right to pass over the public pathway. User, on the other hand, is merely an evidence of original dedication in such cases. 38 P.L.R. 500=1936 L. 797. A right of easement is claimable on the land of another by the owner of land. It is not a personal right, but it attaches to land and is exercisable over another's land. A public pathway, however, may be on another's land but the exercise of a right of passage over it does not necessarily require that the person claiming it must prove that he is the owner of some land. In other words, the existence of a dominant tenement is not necessary. 38 P.L.R. 500=1936 L. 797. The fact that a passage leading from a public place is not proved to terminate also at a public place is no reason for holding that it is not a public passage. Where it does not stop at the land of a private owner but proceeds further to a great distance, that is, an important factor in support of the claim of the public, especially when it is not shown that it has terminated in private grounds. 39 C.W.N. 303=60 C.L.J. 556. See also I.L.R. 1937 N. 21=1937 Nag. 322. When a public right of way is claimed over lands belonging to a private owner, it is not legitimate to presume from long user an intention to dedicate the lands for public use and then to examine the evidence adduced on behalf of the private owner to see if the presumption has been rebutted by him. The evidence must be examined as a whole and then the inference either in favour of or against the dedication must be drawn. It is wrong to deal with the evidence in compartments. 39 C.W.N. 303=60 C.L.J. 556. An easement exercised by the defendant was merely one of access from the road, over the strip of land belonging to plaintiff, to the defendant's land for a limited and special purpose. A particular path left by the plaintiff for the exercise of the easement was blocked but another path was opened later on and had since been used; held, that the easement was a discontinuous, non-apparent, positive easement with nothing in its nature to limit it to a particular path and the creation of new path by the plaintiff did not constitute an interruption of the easement. 115 I.C. 884 = 1929 P. 124. The object of S. 15 of the Act in requiring that the user should be open is that it must be of a nature from which a presumption would arise that the owner of the land had knowledge that his land was being so used and that he had acquiesced in it. Where the evidence did not show that the cattle by using the defendant's land had formed any path on the land which would put the owner on inquiry and that the land was being continuously used for the purpose throughout the year and that a particular path was used but only showed that cattle simply strayed on the land, held, that no presumption as to constructive notice could arise and that the easement of the right of way for the cattle was not made out. 31 Bom.L.R. 120 = 1929 B. 144. Where the owner of a makwa tree complained of the construction of a wall by the defendant which prevented him from collecting the fruit of the tree, the branches of which overhang the wall, but it was found on the evidence that the wall was constructed three years before the suit was brought. Held, that assuming that the plaintiff had a right of easement, he could not enforce it because of S. 15 of the Easements Act. 114 I.C. 512.

Mode of Enjoyment.—The presumption of lost grant should not be made merely upon establishment of user for a period of 20 years or more. What has to be found as raising the presumption of lost grant is user from time immemorial, although the period for which such user need be proved must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. 57 C.L.J. 31; 1937 Cal. 661 = 41 C.W.N. 1169. No presumption of a lost grant can be made in the case of the right of fishery where the use of the fishery was in harmony with the right of the public to fish by stakes which is acknowledged method of public fishing on the West Coast of India. 23 Bom.L.R. 939. Possession of the dar (space between two fishing stakes) for over sixty years does not perfect into an easement by way of prescriptive right. 23 Bom.L.R. 939. As to presumption of lost grant, see also 96 I.C. 317 = 1926 M. 788. For the acquisition of a right of easement a person must not only prove the doing of the necessary physical acts over the period prescribed by law but he must also show that he was setting himself up as the person who was doing those acts over the property of another. Proof of physical acts accompanied by the requisite animus or intention is necessary. I.L.R.

(1943) A. 792 = 1943 A.L.J. 595 = A.I.R. 1943 A. 362. A plaintiff is entitled to have his right of way declared if he establishes the terminus to and from which the way runs. And the right would be enjoyed in the way the servient owners point out as the tract. If no tract is pointed out, the plaintiff can enjoy the nearest route. 46 I.C. 374 = 22 C.W.N. 922. No use of property which would be legal if due to a proper motive, would become illegal, if prompted by an improper or even a malicious motive. 42 C. 164 = 20 C.L.J. 97 = 18 C.W.N. 1296. The extent of a right acquired by prescription is measured by the extent of the use and enjoyment thereof during the prescriptive period. (Ibid.) It is not necessary to prove annual or continuous user, but only substantial enjoyment whenever the occasion required. The mere fact that the openings made were different in different years does not make the user indefinite when the channels through which the water was taken were the same. 15 C. W.N. 259 = 13 C.L.J. 670. The fact that the servient owner paid a certain sum for the repair of the embankment for his own benefit does not make the user permissive. 15 C.W.N. 259 = 13 C.L.J. 670. Period of twenty years to be completed prior to institution of suit—No right to protect inchoate right—Fact of servient owner of dominant owner suing in respect of easement immaterial. See 113 I.C. 525.

Easement against Government.—To claim 60 years' rule of easement, there must be Government ownership on the date when the easement is claimed and not at some antecedent period. 116 I.C. 806 = 1929 A. 382. See also 1936 M. 692. A plaintiff claiming a right of easement against Government must prove sixty years' peaceful and uninterrupted user and the rule of law that the burden of proof is shifted on to Government if the plaintiff proves possession for a sufficient number of years is not applicable if the plaintiff fails to prove the completion of even the prescriptive period necessary against a private individual. 26 I.C. 723 = 39 M. 304. See also 1928 O. 17 = 4 O.W.N. 1035; 45 I.C. 80 = 34 M.L.J. 425 (Acquisition of right in water in Government channel). If the plaintiff proves 30 years' possession, the Government must prove that he had no possession within 60 years. 16 I.C. 626 = 12 M.L.T. 159. The words "belongs to the Government" in S. 15 refer not to the time of the suit but to the duration of enjoyment. 41 M. 622 = 34 M.L.J. 395. When after 40 years' enjoyment against the Government, the latter transfers the land to a private person, the easement in order to become absolute must be enjoyed as against the transferee for a further period of 20 years. 41 M. 622. The period of 20 years must be computed from the time when the transfer was made to a private person. 41 M. 622.

Government land in occupation of person with limited right.—S. 15 of the Easements Act insists on a period of 60 years' user not merely when the easement is claimed as against the Government but over any property belonging to Government. The word "belongs" in the section should not be restricted to cases where possession and ownership continue to remain with the Government and the clause applies to cases where any person with a limited right is in occupation of land belonging to Government. 40 L.W. 514=1934 M. 575=67 M.L.J. 262. See also 71 M.L.J. 268; 43 L.W. 330. A person claiming an easement against a transferee from the Government would have an option of either basing his claim upon user for a period of sixty years against Government and the transferee as such of the Government, or if he so preferred, he could ignore the period of prescription against the Government and base his claim entirely upon user for a period of twenty years while the property was in the possession of the transferee. I.L.R. (1943) All. 792=1943 A.L.J. 595=A.I.R. 1943 All. 362. The last paragraph of S. 15 of the Easements Act gives a personal privilege to the Government when the Government is a party in the suit just in the same way as Art. 149 of the Limitation Act confers a privilege on Government. The result is that once a plaintiff established that he had exercised his rights as an easement against the predecessor in interest of the defendant whether the predecessor in interest was the Government or not, his rights at the time when they are claimed in a suit against a private person becomes absolute since that private person could not claim the privilege which is the personal privilege of the Government. 1942 A.L.J. 483=A.I.R. 1942 A. 405.

Property over which pathway lay belonging to Government—Rights of third Parties.—The plaintiff as the owner of a certain survey number in a village sued to restrain defendants 1 and 2, who claimed to be trustees of a temple, from interfering with the plaintiff's use of a pathway across suit survey number and the Government also was impleaded as a party. The lower appellate Court found that the suit survey number belonged to the Government who had allowed its use in favour of the temple. On the contention that though for want of 60 years' user, the plaintiff had not acquired an easement as against the Government, he had by reason of 20 years' user acquired a limited right which was sufficient to prevail as against any interest which private persons like defendants 1 and 2 might possess in that property. Held, assuming the possibility of acquisition of an easement against the holder of a limited interest, the acquisition was possible only to the extent to which a grant might be possible within the terms of S. 8 of the Easements Act and as no such grant by the temple would be possible having regard to the nature of its interest in the property, the plaintiff would not by 20 years' user acquire prescriptive right as against property which belonged to Government even to the extent of preventing defendants 1 and 2 from interfering with his user of the way. Held also, that though it might be a question whether a mere stranger could obstruct another person in the exercise of even what might be called an inchoate right of easement, the position of the defendants 1 and 2 could not be compared to that of a mere stranger or a licensee. 1934 M. 575=67 M.L.J. 262.

Village pathway.—A right of way claimed by the public or by a section of the public over lands described as a village pathway, is not a right of easement and is not governed by S. 26, Limitation Act. Such a right is a customary right and may also be traceable to dedication which may be inferred from user for a very long time. No fixed period of enjoyment is necessary in order to establish a customary right. 10 Cut.L.T. 78. See also 1942 O.W.N. 725.

Burden of Proof.—The onus of proving that a right of way has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right without interruption and for 20 years, lies upon the person asserting the right. 25 I.C. 409. See also 18 L.W. 404=1923 M. 674. The question in each case must be, what is the exact nature of the right which is shown by the evidence to have been acquired by the party? See 1923 M. 674, supra. S. 15 (1) applies both to continuous and discontinuous easements. 17 I.C. 22=10 A.L.J. 227. The question of animus is, in each case, a question of fact. Where enjoyment is proved, the person enjoying the right must be presumed to possess an animus which is manifestly to his advantage. 53 A. 16=1931 A. 877. Where it is a question of acquisition of an easement by prescription, the burden lies, entirely on the plaintiff to prove 20 years' enjoyment, and not mere possession for 12 years and then say the onus is shifted on to the defendant. 33 I.C. 503.

Defences.—When a right has begun to run under S. 15 and the servient holder sues to put an end to it, the defendant cannot plead in bar of it, Art. 32 of the Limitation Act. 33 I.C. 90. When the defendant has a right of support from the plaintiff's wall abutting on the defendant's property, for a roof of his adjoining house, it is an encroachment of that right if the defendant raises his wall and erects upon it another thatch resting on the plaintiff's wall. 33 I.C. 90. The limit of a party's right of support must be determined by his actual enjoyment up to the date of the encroachment complained of by the opposite party. 33 I.C. 90. As to right of support, see also 59 C. 363=1932 C. 542. If a man's ancient lights be interrupted, it is no answer to say that he can provide other sources of light for himself by making changes in his own tenement; for that defendant is willing to provide fresh light for him in another way. 36 M. 11=21 M.L.J. 742. Where a party causes injury to another, he cannot object to appropriate relief being granted to his opponent on the ground that he would suffer serious injury by being compelled to undo the mischief. 36 M. 11. There is no difference in the application of the law as regards the interference with ancient lights to buildings in cities and elsewhere. 36 M. 11. In order to establish a right of easement under S. 15, a plaintiff has to establish user for the statutory period. He has to establish that the user is as of right, but the law presumes that it is as of right, that is to say, that it has a lawful origin, if the plaintiff proves open and notorious user. That presumption is, however, rebuttable; and the defendant may show that, if he can, that the facts are such that the user was not as of right, e.g., he can show that the user was under license not amounting to a grant, or he can show fraud or force, or secrecy. Those would show that it was not as of right. 20 N.L.J. 12. See also 1936 S. 61.

Explanation II.—Nothing is an interruption within the meaning of this section, unless where there is an actual cessation of the enjoyment by reason of an obstruction by the act of some person other than the claimant, and unless such obstruction is submitted to or acquiesced in for one year after the claimant has notice thereof and of the person making or authorizing the same to be made.

Nature of Obstruction (Expl. II).—To constitute an actionable obstruction there must be substantial privation of light enough to render the occupation uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind. 9 I.C. 417=21 M.L.J. 313. Where the owner of the building is in the course of acquiring a right of easement by prescription when his house is burnt down, and he begins immediately to re-build his house and place the windows exactly in the same position as the old ones, he can be regarded as enjoying the access and use of light and air continuously, and he will be entitled to protection after twenty years from the first building. 46 B. 448=24 Bom.L.R. 83=1922 B. 3. If, however, there is any delay in re-building, then that might be evidence of an intention not to resume the user. 46 B. 448. Knowledge of the fact of enjoyment on the part of servient owner is essential to the acquisition of an easement where the Court is asked to presume a grant. 54 I.C. 936=16 N.L.R. 76. Active obstruction on the part of such owner would negative any such presumption. 54 I.C. 936. To negative submission to an interruption, the party interrupted need not have brought a suit. 54 I.C. 936. The question whether there has been submission to, or acquiescence in, an obstruction, is a question of fact, the burden of negating submission being on the party alleging that he did not submit. 54 I.C. 936. See also 116 I.C. 806=1929 A. 382. It is not enough, for supporting an action for obstruction of right, that there has been a diminution of light from what it was before. 49 I.C. 458=11 Bur.L.T. 109. The decrease in light should constitute a nuisance and make the house uncomfortable according to the ordinary standards or humanity or unfit for business. 49 I.C. 458.

Sec. 15, Expl. II.—Under Expl. II, S. 15, it is not sufficient to prove that there was obstruction for a period of one year, but it is also essential that such obstruction should be acquiesced in for the same period by the claimant. 116 I.C. 806=1929 A. 382. Where the plaintiff's father's vendor had used a particular courtyard for the purpose of his business, for a period of about 12 to 15 years and after his death his son had closed down the business and did not use the courtyard for a period of nearly 6 years for his business, and the plaintiff after purchase from the son had used it for a similar business of his own for a period of about 12 years, it could not be said that the plaintiff had acquired a right of easement for there had been an interruption, and an intention to cease to enjoy the right. I.L.R. 1938 All. 840=1938 A.L.J. 867=1938 All. 587.

Pleadings—Pleas of ownership and easement—Permissibility.—No doubt as a rule, a plaintiff should not be allowed to put forward contradictory pleas, but the pleas of ownership and easement, though inconsistent, are not contradictory and can be put forward in the alternative. The important point to be considered in such a matter is the question quo animo egerit with reference to the user allowed by the plaintiff; in other words, if the plaintiff had used a way on an assertion of title of owner, he could not put forward such user in support of a right of easement. That view however does not prevent the putting forward of alternative pleas in a suit, though, at the trial of the suit, the character of the user and the question of quo anima egerit would have to be decided, and, if the user is proved, one plea would have to be affirmed and the other rejected. 29 N.L.R. 330=1933 N. 257. See also I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 580=1939 N.L.J. 297=1939 Nag. 197; 1939 Nag. 415; 1925 Cal. 788. Where a person alleges that he had ownership over the disputed plot malikana wa mokhalifana but fails to establish his claim in the suit is not thereby prevented from claiming in a subsequent suit rights of easement over the same plot. 1942 A.L.J. 483=A.I.R. 1942 All. 405. But see 48 Bom.L.R. 25 (F.B.). It is not the law that a person cannot acquire an easement unless during the whole prescriptive period he acts with the conscious knowledge that it is a case of a dominant and servient tenement and that he is exercising a right over property which does not belong to him. A plaintiff may claim an easement and ownership in the alternative. If he shows that for the statutory period he has openly Explanation IV.—In the case of an easement to pollute water, the said period of twenty years begins when the pollution first prejudices perceptibly the servient heritage.

When the property over which a right is claimed under this section belongs to ¹[the Crown], this section shall be read as if for the words "twenty years," the words "sixty years" were substituted.

exercised certain rights which are in themselves sufficient to establish an easement, prima facie, he is entitled to the easement, and it is not necessary to show that during the whole of the prescriptive period he was consciously asserting a right to an easement. A right to an easement by prescription cannot be defeated merely by showing that during the whole or part of the period of prescription the plaintiff was not consciously claiming an easement. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 140=41 Bom.L.R. 168=1939 Bom. 149. See also 35 Bom.L.R. 144=1933 Bom. 122; 1939 Sind 110. The question of immemorial user or lost grant must be pleaded in every case before a person can be given relief on that head. Whether the action be brought against the servient owner or a stranger, a party cannot safely allege his right to an easement generally, but should state specifically the manner in which he claims title to the easement, whether by grant (actual or lost), prescription at Common Law, or under the Prescription Act. Where the plaintiffs did allege circumstances, namely, the user by themselves and by their ancestors of the land as pathway for 40 or 50 years, the plaint may on a liberal construction be taken to have relied upon long user leading to an inference of lost grant. 142 I.C. 458=1933 C. 215=56 C.L.J. 274. The presumption of lost grant should not be made merely upon establishment of user for a period of 20 years or more. What has to be found as raising the presumption of lost grant is user from time immemorial, although the period for which such user need be proved must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. 57 C.L.J. 31. Parties to suit in respect of Easement Right.—Dominant and servient tenements owned by several persons—One of them may sue—Other owners need not necessarily be made parties. 41 C.W.N. 769=1937 Cal. 355.

Secs. 15 and 16: Obstruction to ancient light—Remedy—Injunction or damages.—The law does not know of any natural right, apart from a right of easement with reference to a right of passage or right to light and air. No one can claim any natural right against another unless he establishes an easement to that effect. 160 I.C. 955=1936 M. 142. Where the defendant obstructs the ancient light of the plaintiff by erecting a building and plaintiff sues for injunction to have the building demolished or for damages the question whether an injunction or damages should be given must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. If damages will afford adequate relief to the injured party and the defendant has not been guilty of any high-handed action, or un-neighbourly conduct, damages are the appropriate remedy. If the property is still substantially useful to him, depreciation in value can be met by a decree for damages; but where the defendant's building deprives plaintiff to a very great extent of his best source of light and incidentally to a large extent of the beneficial use of his property, damages would not be adequate. 1933 R. 351. In order to constitute an actionable obstruction of ancient light, it is not sufficient that the light is less than before. There must be a substantial privation of light, enough to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind and in the case of business premises to prevent the plaintiff from carrying on his business as beneficially as before. The expression "carrying on the business beneficially" is not to be read as depending on the question whether or not the person carrying on the business is likely to lose a customer. The test is whether he would carry on the business less beneficially to himself, whether in discharging his duty to his customers on the one hand or in preserving his health and facility of transacting business on the other. 1933 R. 351.

Plaintiff seeking injunction—Power of Court to direct enquiry as to damages.—Where in a suit relating to an easement of light and air, the plaintiff seeks an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his right, the Court may order an enquiry as to damages, even though it holds that the plaintiff is not entitled to injunction. No such enquiry can however be ordered when the plaintiff has not proved any damage. 179 I.C. 884=1939 Sind 39.

(a) A suit is brought in 1883 for obstructing a right of way. The defendant admits the obstruction, but denies the right of way. The plaintiff proves that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption, from 1st January, 1862, to 1st January, 1882. The plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

(b) In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that for a year of that time the plaintiff was entitled to possession of the servient heritage as lessee thereof and enjoyed the right as such lessee. The suit shall be dismissed, for the right of way has not been enjoyed "as an easement" for twenty years.

(c) In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that the plaintiff on one occasion during the twenty years had admitted that the user was not of right and asked his leave to enjoy the right. The suit shall be dismissed as for the right of way has not been enjoyed "as of right" for twenty years.

A sues for a declaration that he is entitled to a right of way over B's land. A proves that he has enjoyed the right for twenty-five years; but B shows that during ten of these years C had a life-interest in the land; that on C's death B became entitled to the land; and that within two years after C's death he contested A's claim to the right. The suit must be dismissed, as A, with reference to the provisions of this section, has only proved enjoyment for fifteen years.

17. Easements acquired under section fifteen are Rights which cannot be said to be acquired by prescription, and are called acquired by prescription. prescriptive rights.

None of the following rights can be so acquired :—

ditions alleged to have been made by the judgment-debtor, the question is whether the owner of the servient tenement has infringed the restrictions imposed on him by the original decree. If he has, he must be made to comply with the decree passed against him. The questions whether the decree-holder has re-built his house and has increased the burden on the servient tenement are not material questions. 39 P.L.R. 712=1937 Lah. 419.

Secs. 15, 24 and 27.—A right of way ordinarily entails a point of arrival and a point of departure, both of which must be fixed. A blind lane which is blocked up by a wall on one side, cannot be subject to a right of way. Where a person claims neither a right to pass along a lane nor a right to carry materials over it, but a right to remain on it for hours at a time for a certain number of days in a year and to dump materials there and keep them there in order to repair his own wall, the right claimed is not a right of way as ordinarily understood. Nor can it be called an accessory easement, as the right is claimed by the party to repair his own wall standing on his own land. The easement is a miscellaneous easement, and all that the party can claim is a right to enjoy what he has prescribed for in a reasonable way. The Courts have always leaned

Secs. 15 and 47: Right of repairs.—The right of repairs being a discontinuous easement is not extinguished even though it was not enjoyed within two years next preceding the suit. 1941 N.L.J. 655.

Sec. 16.—The mere finding that a pargana is old is not sufficient to prove that an easement has been established with respect thereto. 66 I.C. 922. User against kanomdar.—Effect as against jenmi or melcharathdar. 24 L.W. 691=1927 M. 73.

Sec. 17, Cl. (a).—The phrase "tend to the total destruction" of the subject of the right of easement, means such an interference as would render the dominant owner's right largely inoperative. 130 I.C. 546=1931 S. 1. Sec. 17 is intended to apply not to rights of irrigation in natural stream, but to rights in the nature of profits a prendre which do not include a right to water. 7 Pat.L.T. 547=1926 P. 187. Mere possibility of destruction at some future date is not what is contemplated by Cl. (a). 23 B. 666. Right of way over land or water cannot be acquired in every direction. 7 C. 145; 8 Beng.L.R. (A.C.) 118. So also an unlimited right of fishery. 9 C. 698=12 C.L.R. 382. See also 37 C.W.N. 18 cited under sec. 2, Cl. (b). Private right of way and highway may exist over the same land. 18 C.W.N. 378=19 C. L.J. 42.

CL. (b).—Extent of right to light by prescription. See 3 B.L.R. (O.C.) 41; 14 C. 839. For the purposes of sec. 17 (c) what is required is that the surface water shall not simply be water flowing on the surface, it must be gathered up in some way either in a defined channel or by being collected in some other way. The word "and" in the clause must be construed as "or". The qualities are not conjunctive. I.L.R. (1937) N. 13=1937 Nag. 310.

A person may acquire a right to easement of water over artificial channels or water derived from artificial tank or pools. 33 M.L.J. 674=44 I.C. 625 (7 M. 530, Foll.). Also in respect of tanks fed by rain water as well as surface water from neighbouring lands. 33 M.L.J. 674. Considering the position of the lands and the conditions of agriculture in Bombay, it must be held that where the plaintiff had been enjoying the water by means of channels through which water passed to a tank, for a certain number of years, no prescriptive right was acquired to receive the water through the channels unobstructed so as to entitle the plaintiff to seek the removal of these obstructions caused by the defendants. 46 B. 115=1922 B. 378. The right to take water from a river running through an undefined channel over the neighbouring lands is not one coming under S. 17 (c), but is a right which, though perhaps it could not be acquired by prescription as an easement, could be inferred from long user. 42 B. 288=45 I.C. 448=20 Bom. L.R. 398. See also 7 M.H.C. 37 (46). A presumption of lost grant can be made if the usage is long and uninterrupted and if it could form the subject of grant. 42 B. 288. As to what is "immemorial user", see 56 B. 82=34 Bom.L.R. 92=1932 B. 130. See also 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=61 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). A right to the user of water flowing in undefined channels cannot be acquired by prescription. 64 I.C. 153. As to right to percolating water flowing under-ground in undefined channels, see 54 M. cited under S. 7.

Sec. 18.—A customary easement is not limited to easements of a kind which could not be recognized at all apart from official customs. 1924 A. 159. In order to establish a customary right it is not necessary to show that it has been exercised since time immemorial. It is sufficient to show that it has been openly enjoyed for such a length of time as suggests that, by agreement or otherwise, the usage has become a customary law of locality. It is not necessary to prove enjoyment of the right for a period of 20 years. Where therefore the Mahomedans have been immersing their tazias at Muharram in two ghats of a tank for such a length of time as to suggest that the usage has become the customary law of the place, they have a customary right to use the ghats for immersing their tazias. There is nothing unreasonable in the custom and it is sufficiently certain and invariable. The mere possibility that the number of tazias immersed may eventually increase so much as to prove a nuisance, is too remote to make the custom unreasonable. 1938 Nag. 177. The right to use the ghats of a tank for the purpose of immersing tazias at muharram is a customary right and not an easement. 1938 Nag. 177. To establish a customary easement, the custom must be reasonable, certain, and the user must not have been permissive or exercised by stealth or force and the right should have been enjoyed for such a length of time as to suggest that by agreement or otherwise the user had become the customary law of the locality. 1939 N.L.J. 246=1939 Nag. 193. See also 42 C.W.N. 1102. A customary easement can only be in favour of a class or community and cannot be in favour of an individual. 119 I.C. 695. As to a proof of customary rights, see 90 I.C. 976; 1943 Oudh 83 (Village pathway); 1945 Pat. 118; 18 Luck. 632. Proof of a customary easement is immensely more difficult than proof of an easement under sec. 26 of the Limitation Act. The persons who rely on custom must prove that it was ancient, continuous, peaceable, certain and compulsory. Indiscriminate miscellaneous user of village land cannot establish the fact that such user had become a customary law of the place in respect of the persons and things which it concerned. The enjoyment is of too fugitive and patently permissive a kind to afford any support to it. Hence the taking of rubbish by some villagers over certain plots in their carts cannot make it a village pathway. 1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 356 (3)=1942 O.W.N. 725. A Court should not decide that a local custom, such as cutting wood from a jungle exists, unless the Court is satisfied of its reasonableness and its certainty as to extent and application, and is further satisfied by the evidence that the enjoyment of the right was not by leave granted or by stealth or by force, and that it had been openly enjoyed for such a length of time as suggested that originally by agreement or otherwise the usage had become a customary law of the place in respect of the persons and things which it concerned. 123 I.C. 377=1930 A. 338. A customary right is not an easement

(a) By the custom of a certain village every cultivator of village land is entitled, as such, to graze his cattle on the common pasture. A having become the tenant of a plot of uncultivated land in the village breaks up and cultivates that plot. He thereby acquires an easement to graze his cattle in accordance with the custom.

(b) By the custom of a certain town no owner or occupier of a house can open a new window therein so as substantially to invade his neighbour's privacy. A builds a house in the town near B's house. A thereupon acquires an easement that B shall not open new windows in his house so as to command a view of the portions of A's house which are ordinarily excluded from observation, and B acquires a like easement with respect to A's house.

in the legal sense of that term. Customary rights have their origin in grant or prescription but it is not necessary that in every case, there should be evidence from which a lost grant may be presumed. Nor is it necessary that the custom should be traced back for the whole time necessary to make it immemorial. 36 C.L.J. 280=1923. C. 200; I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 460. What may suffice to establish a customary easement may be wholly insufficient to establish an easement by prescription and vice versa. The two rights are different, although the result may be the same. Consequently, where a claim of easement is based on a prescriptive title, it is not open to the appellate Court to treat the cases as one based on custom. 1924 L. 275. Nature to customary easement. Customary easement—Tenant's claim to take water from well for irrigation—Maintainability as against landlord, see 113 I.C. 729. One or more inhabitants of a village taking wood from the landlord's jungle without the latter's knowledge cannot by so doing for any length of time acquire a right to cut and appropriate wood contrary to the wishes of the latter. Similar acts done with the permission or acquiescence of the owner being referable to a licence express or implied cannot likewise confer a right as against him. 123 I.C. 377=1930 A. 338. Illustrative Cases.—Zamindars in U.P. cannot arbitrarily close a right of way used by occupancy tenants for more than thirty years. 1924 A. 159. In the case of a right of public way over a person's private property claimed by the members of the public at large or a right of a limited class such as the inhabitants of a particular village, the customary period of the public right to the village path must be proved by evidence where the interests claimed conflict with those of a private owner. They must be proved by such degree of evidence as is representative of either the public at large or of the particular village or the smaller community alleged to have the right of user. To call three partisan witnesses who can in no sense be said to be representative of either the larger community of a general public or the smaller community of a particular village is no evidence whatever upon which a finding of public right or village custom can be found. 148 I.C. 498 (1)=1934 P. 30. Where it is alleged that there is a public pathway which has been infringed by the defendant, before the plaintiff can maintain an action for avoidance of the infringement, special damage must be proved. But where it is more or less a village pathway, wherein the residents on either side of the pathway and round about, may be considered to have a right acquired by long user of passing to and fro and this right is referable to a grant or agreement on the part of the zamindar, it is not necessary to prove any special damage and the residents of the neighbourhood can maintain an action for the avoidance of the obstruction without proving any special damage. Even if a proof of special damage is necessary a very small amount of inconvenience will entitle the plaintiff to the relief claimed. 1933 A. 919. A right of pasturage by virtue of a lost grant cannot be established by the inhabitants of a village as they are a variable number of persons. Such a right cannot also be established by prescription under sec. 26 of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as to establish such a right it must be shown that it has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by the persons claiming it without interruption for 20 years. That might be so with regard to some of the villagers but could not be so in the case of all the inhabitants. The only right of easement which can be claimed in a case like this is the right of easement by custom. 42 C.W.N. 1102. Where the residents of a particular locality claimed a customary right of easement to go over the land of the defendant, to collect firewood and burn Holi and perform some ceremonies, there and where such right is proved to have been exercised from time immemorial, it was held that the easement was not unreasonable and could be recognized by the Courts. 180 I.C. 233=1938 A.L.J. 1243=1939 All. 165. See also 1939 All. 387=1939 A.L.J. 391. A customary right of burial can exist, apart from provisions of this Act; hence where it is found that a certain family used a place as a burial ground customarily it was held not an easement but a customary right in the nature of an easement. 31 I.C. 805=13 A.L.J. 1094. A right to bury a dead body is not an easement as contemplated by the Easements Act. Such a right cannot be acquired by prescription, though it can be acquired by grant or custom. When the origin of the right is peaceful, the Court can presume either a dedication on the part of the owners or a grant on their part, the origin of which is lost in antiquity. The right of privacy is an easement attached to land and not to a person. CHAPTER III.

THE INCIDENTS OF EASEMENTS.

20. The rules contained in this chapter are controlled by any contract between the dominant and servient owners relating to the servient heritage, and by the provisions of the instrument or decree, if any, by which the easement referred to was imposed.

And when any incident of any customary easement is inconsistent with such rules nothing in this chapter shall affect such incident.

a long period dedication to the public can be inferred. See 91 I.C. 712=1926 C. 507; 1937 Pat. 388=16 Pat. 389=18 Pat.L.T. 348. (Tank attached to Hindu temple and enclosed—Rights of Mahomedans in general to bathe—No presumption of such customary right can arise from cause of bath of individual Mahomedans). A person who is entitled to put up a dam of turf and loose stones, is not necessarily entitled to substitute a tighter and stronger dam. 9 I.C. 636=9 M.L.T. 375. As to right to take water from another well, see 2 M.L.J. 290. A right to graze cattle in a jungle area of the village can be the subject of a customary right. 20 I.C. 467. See also 19 A. 172. The customary right of grazing is not recognised to an unlimited extent; the possessors of grazing right have no right to object, if a part of the waste land is brought under cultivation provided that the remaining waste lands are sufficient for grazing purposes. 1944 M.L.R. 111 (Civil). A custom by which earth is taken from a piece of waste land to repair houses in a village after inundations is not unreasonable. 1924 P. 303. On the contrary, it seems to be an eminently reasonable custom that the people of the village should take earth from a ditch which serves no other purpose, in order to repair their houses. 1924 P. 303. The enjoyment of a right claimed to exist under an alleged custom must be enjoyed as of right, that is to say, all acts must be done under or by virtue of the custom. In order to establish the custom all acts must have been done without violence, without stealth or secrecy, or without leave or licence asked for or given, either expressly or impliedly from time to time. No act which can be ascribed to a licence can ever support a claim of custom. A zamindar is the owner of the forest and of the waste land lying within his zamindari, and as proprietor can permit his tenants to graze their cattle on land which is not the communal land of the village, and to take dead wood, etc., from the forest or waste land on payment of certain charges prescribed by him. But that is purely a matter of contract between the zamindar and the tenants. A right which can be so acquired on payment of fees or charges can hardly be regarded as a customary right though it may be exercised for a long series of years. 20 N.L.J. 131. A haveli is not like property held jointly in co-ownership in the sense that all the rules and incidents of joint property are applicable to it, where any co-owner may alienate his rights therein, for such a power of alienation would immediately defeat the very object of maintaining a haveli. The law of easements as such cannot be applied to a haveli, for an easement predicates a dominant and servient tenement vested in different persons. The rights of the owners over the haveli partake of the character of easements. They are quasi easements though not easements proper, the nature and extent of such rights being regulated by custom. Such rights can in law and in the nature of things only be attached to immovable property and can only be enjoyed by the owners of such property qua owners. 176 I.C. 966=1938 Sind 145. See also 1939 Nag. 193; 42 C.W.N. 1102.

SEC. 19.—See 14 S.L.R. 132; 18 B. 382. In a severance of tenements, easements used as of necessity or in their nature continuous will pass by implication of law without any words of grant, but easements which are used from time to time only, do not pass unless the owner by appropriate language shows an intention that they should pass. (Polden v. Bastair, 1 Q.B. 156, Rel. on.) 1930 P. 7.

SEC. 20.—See 25 C. 576; 76 P.R. 1900. There can be no question of easement as regards light and air in the case of joint property. See 28 Bom.L.R. 1000=97 I.C. 691=1926 B. 545.

SECS. 20 AND 23.—An owner of a large piece of land divided it into plots for building purposes and sold them to different persons reserving one part for himself and in each sale-deed, there was a covenant by which Bar to use unconnected with enjoyment. 21. An easement must not be used for any purpose not connected with the enjoyment of the dominant heritage.

Illustrations.

(a) A as owner, of a farm X, has a right of way over B's land to Y. Lying beyond Y, A has another farm Z, the beneficial enjoyment of which is not necessary for the beneficial enjoyment of X. He must not use the easement for the purpose of passing to and from Z.

(b) A, as owner of a certain house, has a right of way to and from it. For the purpose of passing to and from the house, the right may be used, not only by A, but only by the members of his family, his guests, lodgers, servants, workmen, visitors and customers; for this is a purpose connected with the enjoyment of the dominant heritage. So if A lets the house, he may use the right of way for the purpose of collecting the rent and seeing that the house is kept in repair.

22. The dominant owner must exercise his right in the mode which is least onerous to the servient owner; and—when the exercise of an easement can without detriment to the dominant owner be confined to a determinate part of the servient heritage, such exercise shall, at the request of the servient owner, be so confined.

every purchaser bound himself to keep open a passage 15 feet wide for the common use of the other plot-holders. The defendants erected posts in the passage and reduced its width to 7 feet. In a suit by one of the other plot-holders, the lower Court applied sec. 22 of the Act, considered 10 feet width sufficient and granted a decree accordingly. Held, an easement of way over another's land by virtue of an agreement is governed by sec. 20 and not sec. 22, the rights in this case were governed by the contract between the vendor and the purchaser which should be given full effect to. English cases dealing with restrictive covenants held inapplicable to the present case where the right of way was defined both as to dimensions and direction. 55 B. 138=32 Bom.L.R. 1425=1931 B. 87.

SEC. 21.—Legal user cannot be restrained because it is prompted by improper motive. 18 O.W.N. 1296=20 O.L.J. 97. Grant of way in general terms includes right of passage for scavenger who cleans the privy. See 34 Bom.L.R. 1150=1932 B. 574.

SECS. 22 AND 23.—Easement confined to a particular purpose ought not to be extended to any other. 19 I.C. 984. As to extent of right of way, see 7 O. 145; (1891) Bom.P. J. 244; 15 W.R. 496; (1893) Bom.P.J. 53; 87 I.C. 899=1925 N. 389; 41 O.L.J. 379=87 I.C. 19=1925 C. 788; 20 N.L.J. 99. The general rule is that a right of way once defined cannot be altered and the dominant owner is entitled to exercise his strict rights unless he can be induced to consent to a deviation. 46 B. 910=24 Bom.L.R. 437. Sec. 22 does not deal with the question whether the servient owner, when once the right of way has been defined, can substitute a new way and recourse must therefore be had to the common law. 46 B. 910. The owner of a private right of way is entitled to enter the way at one and the same place only, and not at any other. 42 O. 164=20 O.L.J. 97=18 O.W.N. 1296. A back-door of a house which was occasionally used by the sweepers or the ladies of the house cannot be converted into a main entrance to be used by males.

19 I.C. 984. Under sec. 22 the dominant owner must exercise his right in the mode which is least onerous to the servient tenement and cannot impose any additional burden on it. Where the easement right is only to use a roof as an open space, the holder cannot build over that portion. 1924 L. 287. See also 44 I.C. 500=1918 M.W.N. 167.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—No man can impose a new or increased restriction or burden on his neighbour by his own act, and an owner of an easement cannot, by altering his dominant tenement, increase his right. 24 O.W.N. 896=32 O.L.J. 27; 97 I.C. 169=24 A.L.J. 810. Every man may open any number of windows in his house looking over his neighbour's land. This right is a continuing one and a man can open new windows from time to time, provided no additional burden is imposed on the servient tenement. Even if the owner of the servient tenement has a technical grievance courts have a discretion to refuse an injunction. In the way a man has a right to open new outlets for drains and new spouts for leading rain water from the terrace of his building to his neighbour's land the Court will not grant an injunction, when it is found that no additional burden is caused to the land of the servient owner. What amounts to an additional burden is a question of fact. 20 N.L.J. 99.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Defendant who had a right to discharge water from his thatched roof to the plaintiff's roof pulled down his house and built a three-storied house with spouts, to discharge water on the plaintiff's land. Held, that the burden on the plaintiff's land was increased within the meaning of section. 30 I.C. 941=13 A.L.J. 791. A person is not entitled to enlarge his right of easement by increasing the volume of water flowing through a drain through which he was entitled to discharge only the main water and the ordinary waste water. 102 P.L.R. 1917=42 I.C. 284. Where the defendant blocked a water channel of the plaintiff by building a wall, the Court directed the opening of another channel through the defendant's land.

Illustrations.

(a) A has a right of way over B's fields. A must enter the way at either end, and not at any intermediate point.

(b) A has a right annexed to his house to cut thatching-grass in B's swamp. A, when exercising his easement, must cut the grass so that the plants may not be destroyed.

23. Subject to the provisions of section twenty-two, the dominant owner may, from time to time, alter the mode and place of enjoying the easement, provided that he does not thereby impose any additional burden on the servient heritage.

Right to alter mode of enjoyment.

Exception.—The dominant owner of a right of way cannot vary his line of passage at pleasure, even though he does not thereby impose any additional burden on the servient heritage.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the owner of a saw-mill, has a right to a flow of water sufficient to work the mill. He may convert the saw-mill into a corn-mill provided that it can be worked by the same amount of water.

(b) A has a right to discharge on B's land the rain-water from the eaves of A's house. This does not entitle A to advance his eaves if, by so doing, he imposes a greater burden on B's land.

(c) A, as the owner of a paper-mill, acquires a right to pollute a stream by pouring in the refuse-liquor produced by making in the mill paper from rags. He may pollute the stream by pouring in similar liquor produced by making in the mill paper by a new process from bamboos, provided that he does not substantially increase the amount, or injuriously change the nature of the pollution.

(d) A, riparian owner, acquires as against the lower riparian owners, a prescriptive right to pollute a stream by throwing sawdust into it. This does not entitle A to pollute the stream by discharging into it poisonous liquor.

24. The dominant owner is entitled, as against the servient owner, to do all acts necessary to secure the full enjoyment of the easement; but such acts must be done at such time and in such manner as, without detriment to the dominant without demolishing the wall. 29 I.C. 1002 = 13 A.L.J. 637. The extension of the projection of cornice beyond its original breadth and the consequent increase in the flow of rain water on the land of the servient owner or both constitute an addition to the burden of the servient owner. 24 O.W.N. 896 = 32 C.L.J. 27. The owner of the dominant tenement may raise the height of the eaves so long as he does not throw an increase burden on the servient tenement, but the projection of the new roof should not exceed that of the old, though at an increased height. 28 I.C. 169. But see also 138 I.C. 458 = 34 Bom.L.R. 395 = 1932 B. 224. Though the projection of eaves resulting in discharge of rain water is an easement according to sec. 23, III. (b) of the Easements Act, the mere projection of the eaves alone is not. The column of air occupied by a projection is not immovable property or any interest therein within the meaning of Art. 144, capable of being acquired by adverse possession. (37 B. 491 and 24 Bom.L.R. 305, Ref.) 34 Bom.L.R. 395 = 1932 B. 224. Re-construction of a house by the dominant owner involving a change in the situation of the roshandans does not mean a fresh easement requiring a fresh period of twenty years for its acquisition. 45 I.C. 985. Where the plaintiff's right of way is proved over a defined track, occasional deviation therefrom does not affect his right. 18 I.C. 85; 1926 N. 221. The prohibition of the user of a track, during particular season does not negative the claim of a general right of way, but is presumptive proof of a restricted right. 13 I.C. 85. Right of way for sweeper to go to privy of a house and clean it declared by a decree—Privy removed to a different spot in the same house under orders of Municipality—No additional burden is imposed on the servient heritage, if sweeper entered and left the servient heritage land at the same point as before. 33 Bom.L.R. 1114 = 1931 B. 490. In the above case, the dominant heritage was not the privy, but the house within which it was enclosed, and so, the removal of it to another spot or re-building of it would not extinguish the easement under sec. 45. 1931 B. 490 = 33 Bom.L.R. 1114. See also 15 Bom.L.R. 876 (Projecting eaves); 24 B. 188 (Right to draw water); (1893) Bom.P.J. 143 (Discharging water); 23 B. 595 (Right of way).

PROCEDURE.—If the dominant owner exceeds the right, injunction and not damages is the proper remedy. 28 I.C. 169.

SEC. 23.—Whether any particular user of the passage by the dominant owner does not impose any additional burden upon the servient heritage, is essentially a question of fact (23 B. 595 and 50 B. 635, Rel. on.) 34 L.W. 369 = 1931 M. 128 = 61 M.L.J. 58. Where a house formerly used for residential purposes is used as godown for storing, the use of bullock-carts over the passage leading to the godown for carrying goods will throw additional burden on the servient tenement. 13 C. 136, Dist. (Ibid.) The right of flow of rain water does not include in law the flow of all kinds of water, e.g., sullage water. Passing of such water constitutes a nuisance and the servient owner has a cause of action against the dominant owner. 11 O.W.N. 657 = 1934 O. 237.

SEC. 24: PRINCIPLE OF SECTION AND ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—The dominant owner has a right to do everything requisite to se-owner, to cause the servient owner as little inconvenience as possible; and the dominant owner must repair, as far as practicable, the damage (if any) caused by the act to the servient heritage.

Accessory rights.

Rights to do acts necessary to secure the full enjoyment of an easement are called accessory rights.

Illustrations.

(a) A has an easement to lay pipes in B's land to convey water to A's cistern. A may enter and dig the land in order to mend the pipes, but he must restore the surface to its original state.

(b) A has an easement of a drain through B's land. The sewer with which the drain communicates is altered. A may enter upon B's land and alter the drain to adapt it to the new sewer, provided that he does not thereby impose any additional burden on B's land.

(c) A, as owner of a certain house, has a right of way over B's land. The way is out of repair, or a tree is blown down and falls across it. A may enter on B's land and repair the way or remove the tree from it.

(d) A, as owner of a certain field, has a right of way over B's land. B renders the way impassable. A may deviate from the way and pass over the adjoining land of B, provided that the deviation is reasonable.

(e) A, as owner of a certain house, has a right of way over B's field. A may remove rocks to make the way.

(f) A has an easement of support from B's wall. The wall gives way. A may enter upon B's land and repair the wall.

(g) A has an easement to have his land flooded by means of a dam in B's stream. The dam is half swept away by an inundation. A may enter upon B's land and repair the dam.

25. The expenses incurred in constructing works, or making repairs, or doing any other act necessary for the use or preservation of an easement, must be defrayed by the dominant owner.

26. Where an easement is enjoyed by means of an artificial work, the dominant owner is liable to make compensation for any damage to the servient heritage arising from the want of repair of such work.¹

cure to himself the fullest advantage of his servitude but thereby he should not impose any additional burden on the servient tenement. 39 I.O. 590 (2)=18 P.W.R. 1917. Repairing pipes on another's land. 23 C. 525. See also I.L.R. (1937) N. 21 (Right to enter on another's land in order to repair one's own wall standing on the land). Repairing roof. See 15 M. 286. On this section, see also 20 Bom.L.R. 403. The accessory rights mentioned in sec. 24 are not intended to deprive the servient owner of his rights of property unless such a result is absolutely essential. 42 B. 529=45 I.O. 422=20 Bom.L.R. 403. (Right to repair walls and eaves through which rain water was discharged). A person can also enter the neighbour's house or land to protect his eaves which project over the neighbour's house. 16 I.O. 893. Where the repair of the wall is reasonably necessary for its enjoyment the right to go to the neighbour's side of the premises to repair the wall is a necessary easement. 16 I.O. 893. See also 42 B. 529. The right does not allow going over the defendant's roof. 16 I.O. 893. Where the legal effect of one of the alternative adjudication in an award is to invest the owner of an estate with the right to claim an "easement" of necessity over the road leading from the public street to the parent estate, this right must be claimed and established in appropriate legal proceedings against the owner of the servient tenement. It cannot be incorporated in the award by order of the Court purporting to act under G.P. Code, Sch. II, para. 12; 1930 L. 26.

SEC. 24, ILL. (d).—Public rights of way are not easements but arise from a dedication to the public evidenced by a deed or implied from custom and user. There can be no right of easement in favour of an indeterminate body of persons. 44 I.C. 868=14 N.L. R. 78. Where the owner of lands renders a way impassable, a person having a right to use the way may deviate from it and pass over adjoining land of the owner provided the deviation is reasonable. (Ibid.) Reading III. (d) along with sec. 24 it seems clear that the dominant power is only entitled to deviate from the original way and pass over the adjoining land of the servient owner to such extent as may be really necessary to secure the full enjoyment of his easement. Where the original way is blocked only in its northern portion, there is no justification for any deviation in the southern portion, as a distance of over hundred feet from the original way. Such a diversion can hardly be considered reasonable. 149 I.O. 949 (2)=1943 L. 199.

27. The servient owner is not bound to do anything for the benefit of the dominant heritage, and he is entitled, as against the

(a) A, as owner of a house, has a right to lead water and send sewage through B's land. B is not bound, as servient owner to clear the watercourse or scour the sewer.

(b) A grants a right of way through his land to B as owner of a field. A may feed his cattle on grass growing on the way, provided that B's right of way is not thereby obstructed : but he must not build a wall at the end of his land so as to prevent B from going beyond it, nor must he narrow the way so as to render the exercise of the right less easy than it was at the date of the grant.

(c) A, in respect of his house, is entitled to an easement of support from B's wall. B is not bound as servient owner to keep the wall standing and in repair. But he must not pull down or weaken the wall so as to make it incapable of rendering the necessary support.

(d) A, in respect of his mill, is entitled to a watercourse through B's land. B must not drive stakes so as to obstruct the watercourse.

(e) A, in respect of his house, is entitled to a certain quantity of light passing over B's land. B must not plant trees so as to obstruct the passage to A's widows of that quantity of light.

28. With respect to the extent of easements and the mode of their enjoyment, the following provisions shall take effect :—

fixed with reference to the probable intention of the parties, and the purpose for which the right was imposed or acquired.

SEC. 27: PRINCIPLE OF SECTION.—See 85 I.C. 608=1925 A. 348; 87 I.C. 899=1925 N. 389; I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 21. Where water flowing underground in a defined subterranean channel which forms the source of supply for the plaintiff's springs is abstracted by the defendants by digging a channel on their own land very near the springs. Held, that plaintiff could restrain by injunction any attempt to divert the underground channel or diminish his water-supply. 25 Bom.L.R. 789=47 B. 809=1923 B. 305. On this section, see also 20 B. 788; 13 A.L.J. 637.

SEC. 28 (a).—A right of way imports the right of passing in a particular line and not the right of varying it at pleasure. A right of way of any one kind does not include a right of way of any other kind. The right of way appurtenant to the enclosure of a mosque can be used only for the purpose of passing to and from that enclosure, and the managers of the mosque cannot impose any additional burden on the adjoining lands by removing boundary walls or opening new passages from the enclosure of the mosque. If a man has power to make a way across another person's land he must exercise his power in a reasonable manner and have due regard to the convenience of the servient owner as to avoid inflicting on him needless and unreasonable injury. 7 Luck. 540=1932 O. 274. A right of way of one kind, e.g., for persons, cattle and carts, etc., does not include a right of way of another kind; e.g., for sweepers removing nightsoil, in the absence of evidence as to the probable intention of parties, and the purpose for which the right was imposed or acquired. 59 I.C. 426=22 Bom.L.R. 1131. See also 90 I.C. 149=26 Cr.L.J. 1493. But see 34 Bom.L.R. 1150, where the grant of right of way was unrestricted. Where an easement is claimed over another's property, the servient tenement should not be saddled with a heavier burden than what the plaintiff has succeeded in proving. But when a particular mode of user is not heavier than the mode of user proved, the plaintiff may be allowed to use it in that particular way, e.g., the user of a way for horses may include the right to lead smaller animals as well, but not larger animals or loads. 65 I.C. 579. The user of a path for the passage of men, carts and palanquins, may also entitle the dominant owner to take cattle, processions and corpses along the path. 65 I.C. 579.

ROAD AND HIGHWAY—DISTINCTION.—A road or path over which individuals or a limited class of public have a right of passage is not a highway. An owner of land adjoining a highway is entitled to such highway at any point at which his land actually touches it, but he has no such right in the case of land adjoining a road not subject to the public right of passage. 7 Luck. 540=1932 O. 274.

SEC. 28 (b), (c) AND (d).—As regards an easement of light, there is no rule defining the measure of the dominant owner's right or requiring an angle of 45 degrees through which rays of the sun are to be received. 1923 A. 542. To sustain an action, there must be substantial privation of light enough to

- Right to light or air acquired by grant. (c) the extent of a prescriptive right to the passage of light or air to a certain window, door or other opening is that quantity of light or air which has been accustomed to enter that opening during the whole of the prescriptive period irrespectively of the purposes for which it has been used :

render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to ordinary notions. 1923 A. 542. See also 20 M.L.J. 29=7 M.L.T. 245; 7 Bom.L.R. 352; 7 Bom.L.R. 73; 173 I.C. 380=1938 Sind 37; 29 B. 157; 35 C. 661; 18 C.W.N. 933=27 M.L.J. 117=42 C. 46 (P.C.); 131 I.C. 104=1931 L. 443. The dominant owner is not entitled to the full amount of light enjoyed during the prescriptive period, but only to so much as is necessary for habitation or business according to the ordinary notions of mankind. There is no infringement of the right unless the obstruction amounts to a nuisance. 42 C. 46=27 M.L.J. 117=41 I.A. 180 (P.C.). The owner of a dominant heritage has no absolute right to the access of light and air to windows and apertures, and is not entitled to compensation by way of injunction or otherwise for the disturbance of an easement, unless he has sustained substantial damage; that substantial damage must be a diminution of the value of the dominant heritage, or of the utility thereof, material interference with the physical comfort of persons using the dominant heritage, a material interference with the use of the dominant heritage in as beneficial a manner as it had been used before such interference. An owner of ancient lights is entitled to sufficient light according to the ordinary notions of mankind for the comfortable use and enjoyment of his house as a dwelling-house, if it is a dwelling-house, or for the beneficial use and occupation of the house if it is a warehouse, a shop or other place of business. So also, to constitute an infringement of an easement of light and air, there must be a substantial privation of light and air enough to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind and (in the case of business premises) to prevent the plaintiff from carrying on his business as beneficially as before. 179 I.C. 884=1939 Sind 39. In the case of a suit relating to an easement of light and air, reference to reported cases is necessarily of little value because, whether or not the disturbance of an easement of light and air amounts to a nuisance, depends entirely on the facts and circumstances of each particular case. So also, as the law relating to easements in British India is governed very largely, if not entirely, by the Easements Act in those provinces to which it has been made applicable, it is of little practical use to refer to the provisions of the English statute and decisions in English cases, in a matter relating to easements. 179 I.C. 884=1939 Sind 39. See also 1941 Sind 211.

SEC. 28 (e).—If a grazing area is larger

Save as aforesaid, no easement is affected by any change in the extent of the dominant or the servient heritage.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the owner of a mill, has acquired a prescriptive right to divert to his mill part of the water of a stream. A alters the machinery of his mill. He cannot thereby increase his right to divert water.

(b) A has acquired an easement to pollute a stream by carrying on a manufacture on its banks by which a certain quantity of foul matter is discharged into it. A extends his works and thereby increases the quantity discharged. He is responsible to the lower riparian owners for injury done by such increase.

(c) A, as the owner of a farm, has a right to take, for the purpose of manuring his farm, leaves which have fallen from the trees on B's land. A buys a field and unites it to his farm. A is not thereby entitled to take leaves to manure the field.

than that required by the persons, a proprietor may use the excess for his own purposes. The persons having grazing rights cannot prevent him from developing any excess area and using it to its best purposes. 67 I.C. 306. Exclusive fishery rights do not give occupancy right, but lease of holding part of which is under water will give a right to acquisition of occupancy in the whole. 3 P.L.T. 53=1922 P. 9.

SECS. 28, 33 AND 35: ACTION FOR DAMAGES OR INJUNCTION—ELEMENTS TO BE PROVED.—In considering the question about the easement for light, secs. 28, 33 and 35 have to be read together. In such cases it is clear that damages may only be recovered if there has been substantial interference as described in Expl. 2, sec. 33 and that an injunction can only be granted when compensation might be allowed under that section, that is, that both in the case of an action for damages or for an injunction simpliciter, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show conclusively, that there has been substantial interference with physical comfort, etc. 55 A. 711=1933 A.L.J. 1006=1933 A. 492. See also 163 I.C. 843=1936 A.L.J. 712=1936 All. 517.

SEC. 29.—The height of the roof in the dominant tenement which had an easement of letting down rain water on another's roof, was raised from 7 feet to 21 feet and instead of allowing the dripping of water along the eaves, it was poured down through pipes: held, that burden on the servient tenement was increased thereby and therefore the easement was extinguished. 58 I.C. 967. Plaintiff altered the gabled roof of his house to a pucca flat roof. Formerly there was a right to sprinkle water on the whole length of the eaves on one side of the house. The right to that easement was established. After the alteration the water of the whole roof was discharged through one hole on to the defendant's land. Held, that change of his character completely destroyed the original easement, and it could not be said that there was any prescriptive right for the new condition of affairs and the burden had not been increased substantially. 55 All. 711=1933 A.L.J. 1006=1933 All. 492. The imposition of an additional burden does not have the effect of extinguishing the right of easement altogether, when the additional burden is separable from the original burden. 40 P.L.R. 298=1933 Lah. 751. A right to use the water of a tank of a particular depth is not enlarged in consequence of excavation and increase in the depth of the tank made by the servient owner. When the water falls below the level of the original depth of the tank as it was before the excavation, the dominant owner cannot take water out of the tank, because that will be increasing the burden of the subservient tenement. 155 I.C. 719=60 C.L.J. 321=1935 Cal. 253. Where drain water has been passing through a drain over another's lands and from there on to the public way, from the putting up of a pipe in a well in the dominant owner's land, it could not be inferred as a matter of law that there has been so much increase in the burden of easement as to destroy the easement. 1941 A.L.J. 282=1941 All. 289. On this section, see also 6 M.H.C. 112; 20 N.L.J. 99; 13 C.136=13 I.A. 77 (P.C.) as to what amounts to increase of easements. (b) A house to which is annexed the right of drawing water from a well to the extent of fifty buckets a day is divided into two distinct heritages, one of which is granted to A, the other to B. A and B are each entitled, in respect of his heritage, to draw from the well fifty buckets a day; but the amount drawn by both must not exceed fifty buckets a day.

(c) A, having in respect of his house an easement of light, divides the house into three distinct heritages. Each of these continues to have the right to have its windows unobstructed.

obstructed when the obstruction would interfere with the lawful enjoyment of the easement.

A, having a right to the free passage over B's land of light to four windows six feet by four, increases their size and number. It is impossible to obstruct the passage of light to the new windows without also obstructing the passage of light to the ancient windows. B cannot obstruct the excessive user.

THE DISTURBANCE OF EASEMENTS.

SEC. 31.—If a person cannot obstruct the new user without obstructing the old, he must submit to the new burden. See 11 M.L.J. 290; 7 O. 453; Bom.P.J. (1889) 310.

SEC. 32.—Right of co-owner to put up eaves and insert beams in a party wall. See 6 Bom. L.R. 682. The law takes no notice of an obstruction which has its origin in the caprice of sentiment of the aggrieved party. It does not concern itself with an obstruction which is trivial or immaterial. In order to amount to disturbance the act complained of must have caused substantial damage, i.e., it must materially affect the comfortable or beneficial enjoyment of the dominant tenement or lessen its selling or letting value. 133 I.C. 214=53 O.L.J. 504.

SECS. 32 AND 33: LIGHT AND AIR—ACCESS TO WINDOWS—RIGHT OF DOMINANT OWNER.—The owner of a dominant heritage has no absolute right to the access of light and air to windows and apertures. To constitute an infringement of an easement of light and air there must be a substantial privation of light and air enough to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind and (in the case of business premises) to prevent the plaintiff from carrying on his business as beneficially as before. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 225. As to light and air, see also 1943 Cal. 35; 1945 Cal. 438; 1942 Sind 17.

SEC. 33: PRINCIPLES AND ILLUSTRATIONS.—The law does not concern itself with a disturbance which is trivial or immaterial. Where the plaintiff comes into Court at once, when the disturbance is threatened and the Explanation I.—The doing of any act likely to injure the plaintiff by affecting the evidence of the easement, or by materially diminishing the value of the dominant heritage is substantial damage within the meaning of this section and section thirty-four.

Explanation II.—Where the easement disturbed is a right to the free passage of light passing to the openings in a house, no damage is substantial within the meaning of this section, unless it falls within the first Explanation, or interferes materially with the physical comfort of the plaintiff or prevents him from carrying on his accustomed business in the dominant heritage as beneficially as he had done previous to instituting the suit.

Explanation III.—Where the easement disturbed is a right to the free passage of air to the openings in a house, damage is substantial within the meaning of this section if it interferes materially with the physical comfort of the plaintiff, though it is not injurious to his health.

defendant completes his structures pending the suit, he does so at his own peril. 28 I.O. 962=13 A.L.J. 385. As to what amounts to disturbance, see also 7 Bom.L.R. 825; Ibid. 73; 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M.L.J. 563; 133 I.C. 214=53 O.L.J. 604; 5 A. 369; 8 B. 95; 39 O. 59; Bom.P.J. (1895) 272; 3 N.L.R. 114. Under sec. 33 any act of the defendant which affects the evidence of easement is enough to sustain an action by the plaintiff, though the plaintiff does not suffer actual damage. In other words there is a wrongful act for which an action lies. In a suit by the plaintiff for an injunction in respect of alleged obstruction to light and air, it was found that there were three windows in the plaintiff's wall which were in existence for over the statutory period and that obstruction was caused to one of them by the defendants raising a wall; but it was also found that the plaintiff was receiving sufficient light and air from other resources. Held, that the closing up of one of the windows of the plaintiff's did constitute an invasion of the plaintiff's easement though it did not cause actual damage to the plaintiff and therefore the plaintiff had a cause of action against the defendant. 52 L.W. 383=1940 Mad. 952=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 381. Extent of damage depends on mode of life and place of living. 97 I.O. 500=1926 A. 764. The test of interference with the right to light and air is whether the obstruction amounts to a nuisance. 23 I.O. 959; 152 I. C. 1060=1935 L. 79=37 P.L.R. 34. See also 97 I.C. 500=1926 A. 764. There is no actionable wrong unless there is a material interference with the physical comfort of the plaintiff or other substantial damage. 33 I. C. 615=9 S.L.R. 101 (33 M. 327 and Coll's case, 1904 A.C. 179 Foll.). If in spite of an obstruction being created by the servient owner, the same quantity of light still penetrates the ancient windows of a dominant owner the latter has no remedy in equity. 33 I.C. 615=9 S.L.R. 101. Where the plaintiff has a right to pass his rain and sewage water across the defendant's land to the public drain, the diversion of the old route taken by the water in former days and passing it by another route does not constitute an obstruction to the exercise of plaintiff's right. 30 I.O.

PARTIES.—As a general rule, where a person claims a right of easement on a servient tenement all the owners of the servient tenement ought to be made parties, as any decree in the absence of a necessary party declaring a right of easement would be infructuous. 1924 C. 369. But there are cases which may well be taken as exceptions to the general rule, such as where any of the co-sharers took no part in obstructing the plaintiff's right. 1924 C. 369.

REMEDY.—Where an easement has been disturbed, plaintiff is entitled to an injunction rather than damages. 28 I.O. 962=13 A.L.J. 385. Sec. 33 allows compensation to be recovered provided that the disturbance has actually caused a substantial damage to the plaintiff. 28 I.O. 962. In case of interference with water supply, the injured party may, under certain circumstances, have a cause of action apart from proof of actual damage and sue for injunction, if he establishes prospective probable damage. 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M.L.J. 563 (7 M.H.C.B. 60, Rel. on; 31 M. 171, Ref.). The plaintiff sued for a mandatory injunction requiring the defendant to demolish his house so as not to block the windows in his rooms. The plaintiff relied on a mutual agreement which however merely stated that the defendant was not to close the windows in question and the other circumstances indicated that the parties could not have intended that the defendant would not erect any building at all. Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to the injunction as prayed for. Held, further, that the plaintiff would not be entitled to damages unless on proof of such diminution of light and air as would be ordinarily necessary and in this connection the Court may take into account the other sources of light and air. 15 L. 320=1934 L. 240.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—In an action for an injunction to restrain infringement of the right to light and air, the plaintiff, in order to succeed, must prove an invasion of his legal right to the easement, sufficient to amount to a nuisance. The easement has not to be measured

Illustrations.

(a) A places a permanent obstruction in a path over which B, as tenant of C's house, has a right of way. This is substantial damage to C, for it may affect the evidence of his reversionary right to the easement.

(b) A, as owner of a house, has a right to walk along one side of B's house. B builds a verandah overhanging the way about ten feet from the ground, and so as not to occasion any inconvenience to foot-passengers using the way. This is not substantial damage to A.

Injunction to restrain disturbance.

35. Subject to the provisions of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, sections 52 to 57 (both inclusive) an injunction may be granted to restrain the disturbance of an easement—by the amount of light and air that had been enjoyed. There is no infringement unless that which has been done amounts to a nuisance. A finding that the place still remained a well-lighted and well-ventilated place, in spite of the alleged infringement, would be fatal to the plaintiff's case. The quantity of light to which a right can be acquired is what is required for the ordinary purposes of habitation or business of the tenement according to ordinary notions. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 381 = 1941 Sind 211. In order, to establish substantial damage under sec. 33, the plaintiff must prove material diminution in the value of his heritage or material interference with his physical comfort which can be ascribed to the interruption of the free passage of light and air. The state of the property at the time of the alleged disturbance of the easement has to be looked to, not as it was before, or as it might be at a future date. The plaintiff cannot claim that sources of light and air alleged to be liable to obstruction at a later date, should be excluded from consideration. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 381 = 1941 Sind 211.

SECS. 33 AND 35.—See 55 A. 711 = 1933 A. 492; 152 I.C. 1060 = 37 P.L.R. 34 = 1935 L. 79. SECS. 33 AND 35 make it clear that a plaintiff is not entitled to an injunction in every case of an interference with an easement of light and air. An injunction cannot be granted in the case of an actual interference unless there is an actionable interference with the easement. Under Expls. 2 and 3 of sec. 33, no interference with the free passage of light and air is actionable unless such interference is of a substantial character. 163 I.C. 843 = 1936 A.L.J. 712 = 1936 A. 517. In cases of dispute about interference of light, light acquired by grant or prescription and not light which has not yet been acquired by prescription but was only in process of being so acquired, can be taken into account. Light coming in sufficient amount from sources other than those in dispute should be taken into account. 17 L. 599 = 165 I.C. 291 = 1936 Lah. 792.

SEC. 34: RIGHT OF SUPPORT.—Every land owner has a right to the support of his land in its natural state. It is not an easement; it is a right of property. In a suit for injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with plaintiff's right of support, it is not necessary to show that the plaintiff has sustained actual damage. It is sufficient to show that the injury is imminent and certain to result from the defendant's acts. 59 C. 363 = 1932 C. 542. The right to the support of land in its natural state vertically by the subjacent strata and laterally by the adjacent soil, is a right to which the owner of the surface is of common right prima facie entitled. The right of an owner of land to the support from adjacent or subjacent soil is not that the substance supporting soil shall not be removed, but that the enjoyment of his land be not disturbed by the removal of its support. 11 R. 47 = 1933 R. 18. Where an act threatening danger to a person's land is such that injury will inevitably follow, a Court may grant a perpetual injunction restraining the continuance of that act, even though no damage has actually occurred before institution of suit. [Pattison v. Gilford, (1874) 18 Eq. 259 and 24 C. 260, Rel. on. 11 R. 47 = 1933 R. 18. A suit for perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from removing the necessary lateral support to which the plaintiff's land is entitled is a suit in the nature of a quia timet action and the plaintiff, in order to succeed, must prove imminent danger of a substantial kind, or that the apprehended injury, if it does occur, will be irreparable. Therefore, excavation and removal of the earth on his own land a defendant without leaving sufficient support to the adjoining plaintiff's land to enable it to remain in its natural state, does not inter se constitute an actionable invasion of the latter's right; and such an act to constitute a valid foundation for a claim by the adjoining plaintiff for damages must be coupled with actual damage or injury to his property. 11 R. 47 = 1933 R. 18.

SEC. 35.—[See also Notes under sec. 33.] As to the principles on which Courts will grant injunction in respect of easements, see Specific Relief Act, secs. 52-57, and notes thereunder and O.P. Code, O. 39 and notes thereunder. Court has got discretion to grant injunction or not—Different considerations govern Indian Courts and English Courts—Courts must have consideration for both parties. See 3 R. 230 = 87 I.C. 800 = 1925 R. 327. An injunction is only an alternative within the discretion of the Court and is not an independent form of relief. 117 I.C. 618=1929 A. 430. It is not granted where pecuniary compensation would afford adequate relief. 165 I.C. 94=1936 N. 274. An injunction to restrain the disturbance of an easement of light can only be granted where substantial damage is proved to have been caused. 117 I.C. 618=1929 A. 430. The word “when” in sec. 35 (a) must be construed to mean “when and where” because it would be useless to prescribe that an injunction could be granted when damages can be claimed under sec. 33, if damages under sec. 33 could not be claimed. 117 I.C. 618=1929 A. 430.

(a) if the easement is actually disturbed,—when compensation for such disturbance might be recovered under this chapter ;

(b) if the disturbance is only threatened or intended—when the act threatened or intended must necessarily, if performed, disturb the easement.

36. Notwithstanding the provisions of section twenty-four, the dominant owner cannot himself abate a wrongful obstruction of an easement.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—LIGHT AND AIR.—The owner of the dominant tenement is entitled to the uninterrupted access through his ancient windows of a quantity of light, the measure of which is what is required for the ordinary purposes of inhabitancy or business of the tenement according to the ordinary notions of mankind. The single question in these cases is whether the obstruction complained of is a nuisance. Where in a suit for a mandatory injunction against the defendant prohibiting him from obstructing the light and air passing through certain ventilators, it was found that even if those ventilators were closed, the courtyard and the plaintiff's house would receive plenty of light and air, there is no question of any nuisance being caused by the obstruction and the plaintiff is not entitled to any injunction. 152 I.C. 1060 (2)=37 P.L.R. 34=1935 I.L. 79. The decree issuing injunction about obstruction to light and air should be given in general terms. 25 Bom.L.R. 239=1923 B. 196. The dominant owner acquires by prescription so much light as is sufficient for the ordinary purposes of inhabitancy or business according to the ordinary notions of mankind with reference to the locality and surroundings concerned; and the amount received during the period of prescription is immaterial. 57 I.C. 706. It is only substantial privation of light enough to make the occupation of the house uncomfortable, or unfit for business according to the ordinary notions of mankind which gives rise to an actionable claim. The mere fact that light received has become less, gives no right. 42 C. 46=41 I.A. 180=27 M.L.J. 117 (P. C.). See also 97 I.C. 500=1926 A. 764. (As to test of nuisance, see 96 I.C. 546=9 N.L.J. 136=1926 N. 474.) In India the right to air is more important than the right to light; damage will be awarded even when the injury is not detrimental to the existence and use of the property. 57 I.C. 706; 19 I.C. 843=

WINDOWS AND SHUTTERS.—The right to open and shut windows and shutters into adjoining land can be acquired as an easement. The owner of such an easement is entitled to restrain the servient owner by an injunction from interfering with his rights by erecting a wall or building close to the boundaries. 45 I.C. 435=7 L.W. 332. The Court should issue a mandatory injunction directing defendant to lower the roof of his house so as to enable plaintiff to shut and open the window freely. (Ibid.) As to when injunction will be granted in respect of prospective damage to water-supply, see 54 M. 793=1931 M. 284=61 M.L.J. 563.

VENTILATORS.—When by the closing of certain ventilators in a house a thorough draught for the house is not allowed, the injury is so serious that the house will be substantially useless. 19 I.C. 843=6 S.L.R. 255.

RIGHT OF PRIVACY.—To succeed in an action to restrain any interference with a right of privacy, a plaintiff must show not only that such a right of privacy exists by custom in the district in which the premises are situated but also that he has in fact enjoyed such a right and that it has been substantially or materially affected by the acts of the defendant. A contention that the opening of window overlooking other premises cannot be restrained if such other premises are already overlooked from any parts of adjoining or neighbouring premises such as roofs is not sound. 1935 A.L.J. 482=1935 A.W.R. 322.

COMPOUND WALL.—Where the raising of a compound wall makes the habitation of a neighbour's room uncomfortable, so much of the wall as produced this effect will be removed. 57 I.C. 706. See also 1926 M.W. N. 195=51 M.L.J. 804.

RIGHT OF WAY.—It is only the inconvenience to the public that justifies restriction of right of way. 2 L.L.J. 499.

WATER RIGHTS.—An occupier of abutting lands cannot be restrained in his exercise of his natural rights, simply because he becomes a lessee of other lands not abutting. 24 I.C. 685=1914 M.W.N. 481. Where the water of a stream has been used for irrigating only abutting lands, the owner of abutting lands cannot be restrained from using more than a reasonable quantity by another to whom no material diminution in supply is caused. 24 I.C. 685. The actual and not a mere threatened use of the water flowing through a natural stream to irrigate lands other than those abutting on the stream gives a right to sue. 24 I.C. 685.

nant owner releases it, expressly or impliedly, to the servient owner.

Such release can be made only in the circumstances and to the extent in and to which the dominant owner can alienate the dominant heritage.

An easement may be released as to part only of the servient heritage.

Explanation I.—An easement is impliedly released—

(a) where the dominant owner expressly authorizes an act of a permanent nature to be done on the servient heritage, the necessary consequence of which is to prevent his future enjoyment of the easement, and such act is done in pursuance of such authority :

(b) where any permanent alteration is made in the dominant heritage of such a nature as to show that the dominant owner intended to cease to enjoy the easement in future.

Explanation II.—Mere non-user of an easement is not an implied release within the meaning of this section.

owners of a dominant tenement to effect a release of an easement is not effectual against

Sec. 38, Expl. II.—Where the proprietor of an estate comprising a tank owned an easement of storing water and inundating the lands near by, the mere fact that the predecessors of the defendant in charge of the estate did not think it profitable to repair the tank bund and store water for over 30 years would not amount to an abandonment or implied release of the easement, so as to preclude the defendant from repairing the tank and storing water. 1931 M. 561 (2)=60 M.L.J. 662.

(c) A, having the right to discharge his eavesdroppings into B's yard, expressly authorizes B to build over this yard to a height which will interfere with the discharge. B builds accordingly. A's easement is extinguished to the extent of the interference.

(d) A, having an easement of light to a window, builds up that window with bricks and mortar so as to manifest an intention to abandon the easement permanently. The easement is impliedly released.

(e) A, having a projecting roof by means of which he enjoys an easement to discharge eavesdroppings on B's land permanently alters the roof, so as to direct the rain-water into a different channel and discharge it on C's land. The easement is impliedly released.

39. An easement is extinguished when the servient owner in exercise of a power reserved in this behalf, revokes the easement.

Extinction by revocation.

40. An easement is extinguished where it has been imposed for a limited period, or acquired on condition, that it shall become void on the performance or non-performance of a specified act, and the period expires or the condition is fulfilled.

Extinction on expiration of limited period or happening of dissolving condition.

Extinction on termination of necessity.

41. An easement of necessity is extinguished when the necessity comes to an end.

Illustration.

A grants B a field inaccessible except by passing over A's adjoining land. B afterwards purchases a part of that land over which he can pass to his field. The right of way over A's land which B had acquired is extinguished.

42. An easement is extinguished when it becomes incapable of being at any time and under any circumstances beneficial to the dominant owner.

Extinction of useless easement.

43. Where, by any permanent change in the dominant heritage, the burden on the servient heritage is materially increased and cannot be reduced by the servient owner without interfering with the lawful enjoyment of the easement, the easement is extinguished, unless—

Extinction by permanent change in dominant heritage.

(a) it was intended for the beneficial enjoyment of the dominant heritage, to whatever extent the easement should be used; or

(b) the injury caused to the servient owner by the change is so slight that no reasonable person would complain of it; or

(c) the easement is an easement of necessity.

SEC. 39.—Where a person grants an easement of a right of way over his land to another and expressly reserves to himself the right to revoke it under certain conditions within a definite period and on payment of a particular amount, it is a reservation made for the beneficial enjoyment of his land. It is in the nature of covenant running with the land and is capable of assignment, and a transferee of the land could enforce it. 1939 N.L.J. 27=1939 Nag. 65.

SEC. 41.—An easement once extinguished cannot be revived by any act on the part of the dominant owner. 1930 M.W.N. 120.

SEC. 42.—See also notes under sec. 13 supra. An easement which ceases to be beneficial to the dominant owner might become extinguished. 50 I.O. 756. (33 A. 461, Ref.).

SEC. 43.—Where an additional burden alleged to have been imposed on the servient tenement could be reduced without difficulty to its original limit by the construction or alteration of a structure, the easement is not extinguished. 44 A. 343=20 A.L.J. 202=1922 A. 28. An easement of light and air for windows is not extinguished on demolition of a wall which is re-built without delay, and practically with same dimensions. 24 Bom. L.R. 83=46 B. 443=1922 B. 3; 131 I.C. 429=1931 N. 80 (20 W.R. 185, Diss.; 7 C. 145; 33 M. 327, Ref.) See also 1937 Lah. 839 (Replacing of windows—Increase of burden). The owner of an easement is precluded from increasing his right on the alteration of his dominant tenement. In a case where by change of height, eaves discharge water with increased force, additional burden is put upon the plaintiff's land. 32 C.L.J. 27=58 I.O. 854=24 C.W.N. 896 (Burden of proof that no additional burden is imposed lies on dominant owner). An owner of the dominant tenement had a right to drop water from his eaves at a distance of seven feet height. He increased the height three times and allowed water to drop through pipes. Held, that his easement was extinguished by the increase of burden. 58 I.C. 967. Dominant owner increasing height of water spout dropping water on servient tenement by four feet—Easement is not destroyed. 102 I.O. 447=1927 L. 492. On this section, see also 7 C. 453.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to an easement entitling the dominant owner to support of the dominant heritage.

44. An easement is extinguished where the servient heritage is by superior force so permanently altered that the dominant owner can no longer enjoy such easement :

Extinction on permanent alteration of servient heritage by superior force.

Provided that, where a way of necessity is destroyed by superior force, the dominant owner has a right to another way over the servient heritage ; and the provisions of section fourteen apply to such way.

(a) A grants to B, as the owner of a certain house, a right to fish in a river running through A's land. The river changes its course permanently and runs through C's land. B's easement is extinguished.

(b) Access to a path over which A has a right of way is permanently cut off by an earthquake. A's right is extinguished.

Extinction by destruction of either heritage.

45. An easement is extinguished when either the dominant or the servient heritage is completely destroyed.

Illustration.

A has a right of way over a road running along the foot of a seacliff. The road is washed away by a permanent encroachment of the sea. A's easement is extinguished.

46. An easement is extinguished when the same person becomes entitled to the absolute ownership of the whole of the dominant and servient heritages.

Extinction by unity of ownership.

Illustrations.

(a) A, as the owner of a house, has a right of way over B's field. A mortgages his house, and B mortgages his field to C. Then C forecloses both mortgages and becomes thereby absolute owner of both house and field. The right of way is extinguished.

SEC. 45.—See 7 Bom.L.R. 352. Even if a door and a part of the house have collapsed, a right of easement already acquired by the plaintiff to use the adjoining lane, as a passage to the site of his house, cannot be extinguished. 27 N.L.R. 213=1931 N. 189. The plaintiff obtained a decree declaring that his sweeper was at liberty to go through the lane on the defendant's land in order to clear the latrine situated in the plaintiff's premises. The privy was subsequently removed by orders of the Municipality, to a different place on the plaintiff's land and the defendant contended that the plaintiff's easement was extinguished by the fact, that the dominant heritage had been destroyed and rebuilt on a different site. Held, (i) that dominant heritage was not the privy, but the plaintiff's house within which it was enclosed; (ii) so the rebuilding of the privy had not the effect of extinguishing the easement under secs. 45; (iii) the case was governed by sec. 23 and as there was no additional burden imposed on the servient heritage and the sweeper entered and left the defendant's land at the same point as before, the rebuilding of the privy did not make the prior decree incapable of execution. 33 Bom.L.R. 1114=1931 B. 490.

SEC. 46.—As to extinction of easements by merger, see 1926 C. 92. The unity of the dominant and servient estates in the same person extinguishes the easement appurtenant to the dominant estate. But unity of title will not extinguish an easement, unless the ownership of the two estates be co-extensive, equal in validity, quality and other circumstances. If there has been unity of possession merely and not unity of seisin for estates in fee simple, an easement which has been thereby suspended will revive on severance of the union, but if there has been unity of seisin for estates in fee simple and not unity of possession merely, all easements are absolutely extinguished and will not revive unless they are recreated on severance of the former dominant and servient estates. 50 C. 356=36 C.L.J. 161=1923 C. 8. See also A.W.N. (1887) 260. Where the ownership of the two estates is not co-existent and equal in validity—the dominant tenement being held for a term of years only and the servient tenement in full right of ownership—the acquisition of a right of way is not extinguished but is only suspended by unity of possession of the dominant and servient tenements. (50 Cal. 356, Rel. on.) 1939 Rang. 421=1940 Rang.L.R. 93. See also 1941 Cal. 289. Right of ownership and easement are incompatible. A.W.N. (1883) 68. Before there can be any extinguishment of an easement, there must be a merger of the servient and dominant tenements so as to result in the single ownership of both. Where the owner of the dominant tenement acquires the right of a co-sharer in the servient tenement, the ownership of the two tenements does not merge into one and therefore there is no extinguishment but merely a suspension of the easement (right of way) which can revive after a partition decree. 1941 Cal. 289=199 I.C. 689.

(b) The dominant owner acquires only part of the servient heritage : the easement is not extinguished, except in the case illustrated in section forty-one.

(c) The servient owner acquires the dominant heritage in connection with a third person : the easement is not extinguished.

(d) The separate owners of two separate dominant heritages jointly acquire the heritage which is servient to the two separate heritages : the easements are not extinguished.

(e) The joint owners of the dominant heritage jointly acquire the servient heritage : the easement is extinguished.

(f) A single right of way exists over two servient heritages for the beneficial enjoyment of a single dominant heritage. The dominant owner acquires one only of the servient heritages. The easement is not extinguished.

(g) A has a right of way over B's road. B dedicates the road to the public. A's right of way is not extinguished.

47. A continuous easement is extinguished when it totally ceases to be enjoyed as such for an unbroken period of twenty years.

A discontinuous easement is extinguished when for a like period, it has not been enjoyed as such.

Such period shall be reckoned, in the case of a continuous easement, from the day on which its enjoyment was obstructed by the servient owner, or rendered impossible by the dominant owner ; and, in the case of a discontinuous easement, from the day on which it was last enjoyed by any person as dominant owner :

Provided that if in the case of a discontinuous easement, the dominant owner, within such period, registers, under the Indian Registration Act, 1877,¹ a declaration of his intention to retain such easement, it shall not be extinguished until a period of twenty years has elapsed from the date of the registration.

Where an easement can be legally enjoyed only at a certain place, or at certain times, or between certain hours, or for a particular purpose, its enjoyment during the said period at another place, or at other times, or between other hours, or for another purpose, does not prevent its extinction under this section.

The circumstance that, during the said period, no one was in possession of the servient heritage, or that the easement could not be enjoyed, or that a right accessory thereto was enjoyed, or that the dominant owner was not aware of its existence, or that he enjoyed it in ignorance of his right to do so, does not prevent its extinction under this section.

(a) where the cessation is in pursuance of contract between the dominant and servient owners ;

(b) where the dominant heritage is held in co-ownership, and one of the co-owners enjoys the easement within the said period ; or

SEC. 47: PRINCIPLE OF SECTION.—See 45 B. 80=57 I.C. 143=22 Bom.L.R. 415. An easement is not extinguished where its user is suspended in pursuance of a contract between the dominant and the servient owners. A person who purchases the servient tenement in an execution sale with knowledge of the easement is bound thereby. 45 I.C. 618=34 P.L.R. 1918. A right of easement acquired by the plaintiff to use the adjoining lane as a passage to his door is not extinguished by temporary non-user not amounting to abandonment. Where the door to which he had a right of way collapsed a few years before but was re-opened before the date of obstruction by the defendant, the plaintiff has a right of action. 134 I.C. 673=1931 N. 189.

WATER.—Flowing of water continuously through a rill, cuttā and another water-course may form a natural stream in which easement rights may be acquired as against Government. 31 I.C. 982. If the Government wished to claim right to water flowing through pattah land they can do it only when classifying the bed separately as poramboke; otherwise the ryot can retain it as his property. 31 I.C. 982. Whether a prescriptive right to light and air is lost through abandonment, depends on the intention of the parties to be gathered from the circumstances and the interval of non-user. 49 I.C. 752. It is not necessary for the building to enjoy the light that it should be identical with that which acquired the right either in structure or the purposes for which it is to be used. 49 I.C. 752. On this section, see also 8 M.L.T. 292; 5 M.L.T. 216; 18 I.C. 85. An easement of light and air for windows is not extinguished on demolition of a wall which is re-built without delay. 24 Bom.L.R. 83=46 B. 448=1922 B. 3.

(c) where the easement is a necessary easement.

Where several heritages are respectively subject to rights of way for the benefit of a single heritage, and the ways are continuous, such rights shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a single easement.

Illustration.

A has, as annexed to his house, rights of way from the high road thither over the heritages X and Z and the intervening heritage Y. Before the twenty years expire, A exercises his right of way over X. His rights of way over Y and Z are not extinguished.

Extinction of accessory rights.

48. When an easement is extinguished, the rights (if any) accessory thereto are also extinguished.

A has an easement to draw water from B's well. As accessory thereto, he has a right of way over B's land to and from the well. The easement to draw water is extinguished under section forty-seven. The right of way is also extinguished.

to possession of the servient heritage for a limited interest therein, or when the servient owner becomes entitled to possession of the dominant heritage for a limited interest therein.

and, notwithstanding the provisions of section twenty-six, he is not entitled to compensation for damage caused to the servient heritage in consequence of the extinguishment or suspension of the easement, if the dominant owner has given to the servient owner such notice as will enable him, without unreasonable expense, to protect the servient heritage from such damage.

Where such notice has not been given, the servient owner is entitled to compensation for damage caused to the servient heritage in consequence of such extinguishment or suspension.

Illustration.

A, in exercise of an easement, diverts to his canal the water of B's stream. The diversion continues for many years, and during that time the bed of the stream partly fills up. A then abandons his easement, and restores the stream to its ancient course. B's land is consequently flooded. B sues A for compensation for the damage caused by the flooding. It is proved that A gave B a month's notice of his intention to abandon the easement, and that such notice was sufficient to enable B, without unreasonable expense, to have prevented the damage. The suit must be dismissed.

SEC. 49.—Where the dominant and servient tenements become vested in the same person, the easement remains suspended for the time being; after the vesting ceases or discontinues, the easement becomes revived. 118 I.C. 225=1929 A. 862. On this section, see also 16 I.C. 365=1913 M.W.N. 95.

SEC. 50.—The owner of a servient tenement over which the dominant owner had acquired a right to discharge his water, cannot insist that the water should be continued to be so discharged. 46 I.C. 24. See also 2 O.L.R. 141. An easement exists only for the benefit of the dominant tenement and a servient owner gets no right to insist on its continuance or to sue for damages on its abandonment. 17 C.W.N. 1066=20 I.C. 815=18 C.L.J. 131. As to the natural right to collect and retain surface water, or to allow it to flow on naturally to the lower lands, see 4 P.L.T. 81=2 P. 110. The owner of the servient tenement acquires no reciprocal rights as against the owner of the dominant tenement with regard to the flow of surface water, that is, water not passing through a defined channel. 4 P.L.T. 81=2 P. 110. The owner of the servient tenement cannot compel the owner of the dominant tenement to continue the exercise of his right even where that right has been exercised uninterruptedly for over 20 years and even if its exercise should be beneficial to the servient tenement. (Ibid.).

SEC. 51.—[See also notes under sec. 49.] When a dominant tenement is rebuilt, the dominant owner has no right to impose a greater burden on the servient tenement than the prescriptive quantity of the right enjoyed. 33 I.C. 615=9 S.L.R. 101. Blocking up an old window and building another of the same dimensions in another place is an imposition of a burden on the servient tenement, which was not existing till then. 33 I.C. 615. But the right of the dominant owner under the common law to free access of light and air through an ancient window is not lost by shifting the window backwards or forwards. 33 I.C. 615.

is rebuilt upon the same site; and (c) when the destroyed heritage is a dominant building and before twenty years have expired such building is rebuilt upon the same site and in such a manner as not to impose a greater burden on the servient heritage.

An easement extinguished under section forty-six revives when the grant or bequest by which the unity of ownership was produced is set aside by the decree of a competent Court. A necessary easement extinguished under the same section revives when the unity of ownership ceases from any other cause.

A suspended easement revives if the cause of suspension is removed before the right is extinguished under section forty-seven.

Illustration.

A, as the absolute owner of field Y, has a right of way thither over B's field Z. A obtains from B a lease of Z for twenty years. The easement is suspended so long as A remains lessee of Z. But when A assigns the lease to C, or surrenders it to B, the right of way revives.

CHAPTER VI.

LICENCES.

52. Where one person grants to another, or to a definite number of other persons, a right to do, or continue to do, in or upon the immovable property of the grantor, something which would in the absence of such right, be unlawful and such right does not amount to an easement or an interest in the property, the right is called a licence.

Sec. 52.—A licensee is a person without any title and has no interest in the land. 38 A. 178=14 A.L.J. 137. See also 132 I.C. 799=8 O.W.N. 714. Licence and easement distinguished. 7 Bom.L.R. 352; 23 B. 397; 4 M.H.C.R. 98; 16 M. 304; 8 Bom.L.R. 310 (Permission to use land as burial ground). The nomenclature used by the parties is not conclusive as to whether a particular transaction is a licence, lease or easement. 1933 A.L.J. 749=1933 A. 735 (F.B.); 16 M. 280 (Right to put up trap for elephants).

LICENCE OR LEASE.—Agreement to occupy portion of railway land for construction of petroleum installations signed by both parties—Restrictions on mode of enjoyment and against sub-letting—Agreement terminable by short notice—Nature of agreement. See 1933 A. 735=1933 A.L.J. 749 (F.B.). In deciding whether a document amounts to a lease or is only a licence, the recitals therein can never be conclusive; the Court has took to the substance of the terms agreed upon and not to the nomenclature given to the deed by the parties. 1933 A.L.J. 749=1933 A. 735 (F.B.). Licence, if transferable. See 84 I.C. 284=1924 A. 825. Licence may be implied from circumstances. See 1925 A. 203. Certain property was given by a person to a local body for the purposes of a school. The body was allowed to hold possession of the land so long as it was being used for the purpose of the school. There was however no transfer of ownership nor was there any evidence showing transfer of ownership, and there was also no relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties. Held, that the permission granted to the local body to hold the land and use it for the purposes of the school was in the nature of a licence. 186 I.C. 890=1940 Lah. 18. The use of land as a Shan does not justify the making of a structure on it for the purpose of protecting cattle. Where it is not established that the use of a Shan was an easement of necessity or that an easement had been acquired, it amounts to a mere licence under sec. 52. 1934 A. 836. A weighman in an old market allowed by Government to continue the same calling in the new market does not acquire any exclusive privilege and is only a licensee. 23 I.C. 922=12 A.L.J. 447. Validity of transfer by a holder of a licence to build. 1 Luck. C. 238=103 I.C. 681=1927 O. 314. A licensee having no interest in property cannot maintain a suit for possession. 103 I.C. 43=1927 A. 633. Licence to use privy as dwelling-house—If revocable. 51 B. 274=29 Bom.L.R. 78=1927 B. 115. As to whether a licence is revocable, see also 29 Bom.L.R. 312=100 I.C. 393=1927 B. 240.

REVOCATION—LICENCE COUPLED WITH INTEREST—LICENCE GRANTED FOR CONSIDERATION.—A mere licence is revocable at will. A licence coupled with a grant or interest is not revocable, except for sufficient cause, till the grant to which the licence is incident, is exhausted. A licence which would otherwise have been revocable is not revocable if there is a contract (which means an agreement for consideration) between the grantor and the licensee not to revoke the licence for a time or indefinitely till the period mentioned in the contract expires. The contract may either be express or may be implied. 49 O.W.N. 346=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 413. In the case of a bare licence which is not coupled with the grant of any interest in property, the licensee will no doubt not be entitled to maintain an action for possession in his name. But this rule cannot be extended to a case where there is definitely an interest in property created by the arrangement which is sought to be described as a licence. 75 O.L.J. 236=1943 Cal. 143.

DEMISE AND NOT MERELY LICENCE—GRANT OF EXCLUSIVE RIGHT OF OCCUPATION.—The effect of a deed which gives the holder an exclusive right of occupation of a shop, although subject to certain reservations and to

Who may grant license.
54. The grant of a license may be express or implied from the conduct of the grantor and an agreement which purports to create an easement, but is ineffectual for that purpose, may operate to create a license.
Grant may be express or implied.
55. All licenses necessary for the enjoyment of any interest, or the exercise of any right, are implied in the constitution of such interest or right. Such licenses are called accessory licenses.
Accessory licenses annexed by law.

a restriction of the purpose for which it may be used, amounts in law to a demise of the shop itself and not merely a licence. The main test in such cases is that of exclusive possession. 1933 A. 911. See also 1933 A. 785 (F.B.).

SECS. 52 AND 56.—A licence is not annexed to the property in respect of which it is enjoyed, nor is it a transferable or heritable right, but is a right purely personal between grantor and licensee. Unless a different intention appears, it cannot even be exercised by the licensee's servants or agents. So where, on the death of the original licensee, his heirs continue in occupation, they are on no greater footing than tenants at will. They are trespassers whose possession is adverse to the owner of the property. 54 M. 554=1931 M. 216=60 M.L.J. 709. See also 1941 Oudh 172.

SEC. 53.—See 7 B. 336.

SEC. 54.—A licence to live for generations must be presumed to permit all enjoyments for life of licensee without restriction. Eating meat or beef is such a reasonable enjoyment of life and it does not per se injure the rights of others. Held, that a licensee has a right to slaughter cows at his residence. 1930 A.L.J. 875=125 I.C. 14. Two companies engaged in cotton business owned adjoining lands. For many years they had a common agent. The common agent had allowed the defendant to erect superstructures on certain lands belonging to the plaintiff. In a suit by the plaintiff company to recover possession and for an injunction, held that from the conduct of the parties it would be inferred that there was the grant of a valid licence in favour of the defendant company, that the licence was irrevocable and that the licensor was only entitled to a fair rental of the premises which had been actually built upon, and that the defendant company could rely upon the principle in Ramsden v. Dyson, L.R. 1 H.L. 129, to the effect that the plaintiff having permitted the defendant to build upon the site, he was estopped from asserting his claim to the piece of land. 1930 B. 70=31 Bom.L. B. 1319. See also 136 I.C. 821=1932 A. 572. (Inference of grant or licence from conduct and acquiescence).

SECS. 55 AND 60 (b): LICENSEE—UNDERTAKING TO VACATE BY REMOVING STRUCTURE PUT UP—BINDING NATURE.—Where a person is permitted to occupy a site to build a shop and he makes a stipulation that he would vacate by removing the materials of the shop if he failed to pay the rent, it amounts to a licence and the licensee would be bound by the terms of the licence and cannot claim the benefit of sec. 60 (b) of the Act, even if the Act applied to the case. 1944 A.L.W. 61.

SEC. 56.—Validity of transfer by a holder of a licence to build. 1 Luck. C. 238=103 I.C. 681=1927 O. 314. As to transfer by one licensor, to his co-licensor, see 1927 A. 197. A transfer by a licensee in favour of a third person which contravenes the provisions of sec. 56 makes the transferee who is not in possession a trespasser as against his transferor, a rank trespasser as against the original grantor who will at once have a right to eject the transferee. 1940 O.W.N. 1318=1941 Oudh 172.

HOUSE IN CITY ON SITE OF LANDLORD—TENANT'S OR LICENSEE'S RIGHT TO TRANSFER—PRESUMPTION.—In cases of houses built in cities on the land belonging to landlord, there can be no presumption that the tenants or licensees have no power of transfer. If the landlord contends that the tenant had no right to transfer the building which he had built and which he was occupying, it is for him to show that under the terms of the licence the right of the tenant was limited and it was expressly agreed that he would be incompetent to make a transfer or it was open to him to prove the existence of a custom prohibiting the right of transfer. So far as houses built by tenant in villages are concerned, the rights between the parties are different. A tenant building a house in a village site has only a right to occupy so long as the tenancy

58. The grantor of a license is bound not to do anything likely to render the property affected by the license dangerous to the person or property of the licensee.

59. When the grantor of the license transfers the property affected thereby, the transferee is not as such bound by the license.

License when revocable.

60. A license may be revoked by the grantor unless—lasts or so long as he does not abandon the village. But the same principle cannot apply to houses built in a city. 1934 A.L.J. 728 = 1934 A. 386.

SECS. 56 AND 60.—In case of riyayas occupying houses in cities and towns, it is to be presumed that they have a right of transfer, unlike those who inhabit agricultural areas, and so if a licensor sues to eject the transferee of a riyaya he has to prove not only his ownership but also the existence of custom or terms of the grant under which the house in dispute was built. 117 I.C. 365 = 13 R.C. 615 = 1929 A. 494. On this section, see also 54 M. 554, cited under sec. 52.

SECS. 57 AND 58.—Per Curiam.—It is necessary that the legislature in India especially in view of conditions prevalent in Bombay should undertake legislation on the lines of the Housing of Working Classes Act of 1890 in England. 51 B. 274 = 101 I.C. 210 = 29 Bom.L.R. 78 = 1927 B. 115.

SEC. 59.—Enjoyment under a licence for a long time does not constitute adverse possession. 44 A. 726 = 20 A.L.J. 608 = 1923 A. 140 (1). Sec. 59 has no application to a case in which one of two joint licensors transfers his interest in the property with respect to which the licence has been granted in favour of his co-licensor. The transferee contemplated by the section must be a person who was not the licensor himself. 98 I.C. 814 = 1927 A. 197. Under sec. 59 the transferee is not as such bound by the term of a licence granted by the vendor, such as, one permitting the use of the land as a wrestling ground. The transfer extinguishes the licence and the recital in the deed of transfer that the transferee should respect the licence has no legal effect. 7 O.W.N. 468 = 1930 O. 203. Sec. 59 cannot be interpreted so as to give the transferee a right of revocation of a licence which would not be exercisable by the transferor himself. 102 I.C. 26 = 1927 O. 206. The use of the words "as such in sec. 59 seems clearly to be intended to indicate that the transferee would not be in any worse position than the transferor. The result of the proviso is that if the grantor of the licence does not revoke it, it does not mean that the transferee cannot do so, but the section cannot be construed as giving the transferee any better rights than were possessed by his transferor much less to hold that the effect of the transfer is ipso facto to put an end to all previous licences. The rule laid down by sec. 59 is not independent of that laid down by sec. 60. Transferee held bound by licence previously granted by transferor. 132 I.C. 536 = 1931 O. 364. The transferee of a licensor cannot revoke a licence, when the licensee has effected a work of permanent character and incurred expenses. 37 A. 91 = 26 I.C. 445 = 13 A.L.J. 1. If the licence has become irrevocable in the time of the licensor, the mere fact that he transfers his interest in the land would not extinguish the licence. 149 I.C. 389 = 1934 A.L.J. 698 = 1934 A. 517. See also 91 I.C. 1031 = 13 O.L.J. 170; 97 I.C. 337 = 1926 A. 714; 84 I.C. 264 = 1924 A. 750.

SECS. 59 AND 60.—The rule laid down by sec. 59 is not independent of that laid down by sec. 60 and does not confer upon the transferee any higher rights than those possessed by the transferor. 1931 O. 364 = 132 I.C. 536.

SEC. 60.—As the Easements Act is not in force in Bengal, decisions of the Bengal Courts are not binding authorities in provinces where the Easements Act is in force. 9 O.W.N. 986. Sec. 60 is inapplicable where the defendant's house was not built acting on the licence. 139 I.C. 365 = 1932 O. 264. The grantor of a licence is under an obligation to place the licensee in a position to enjoy the licence. 36 Q.L.J. 271 = 1923 O. 49. Where a licence coupled with a transfer of property is granted, the transferee of the licensor is not entitled to revoke such licence. 30 I.C. 581 = 13 A.L.J. 886. See also 4 M. H.C.R. 98. The principle of sec. 60 (b) is that the licensee acting upon the licence should execute work of a permanent character soon after the grant of a licence or within a reasonable time. It is a principle dictated by justice, equity and good conscience and does not require that in order to prevent revocation of the licence the work of a permanent character must be a costly one. Nor does the section impose a duty upon the licensee who has already complied with the terms of the licence to maintain work of a permanent character up to any particular standard of repair. Where the licensee has carried out the terms of the licence for building purposes and has incurred expenses in its execution the licence becomes irrevocable under sec. 60 (b), Easements Act, and the licensee can be evicted from the premises only when the purpose of the licence is abandoned within the meaning of cl. (f) of sec. 62, in other words the licensee has actually abandoned the house whatever the state of repair might be. 17 Luck. 472=1941 O.W.N. 1340=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 180. An appropriation of the land licensed to any use inconsistent with the enjoyment of the licence works a revocation and the licensee may maintain an action for damages against the licensor for breach of contract in unlawfully revoking it. 72 I.C. 270=36 C.L.J. 271=1923 C. 49. A licence to catch elephants for consideration is not revocable, for it is a licence coupled with an interest. (Ibid.) Where there is a grant of an exclusive right to catch elephants within a specified area for a specified period it does not follow as a matter of course that the grantee would be entitled to exclusive occupation of the entire territory during that time. 36 C.L.J. 271=1923 C. 49. Building licence—Effect of revocation. 19 I.C. 853=19 C.L.J. 321. See also 3 A.L.J. 760; 29 A. 133; 34 I.C. 471=12 N.L.R. 75. A licensee permitted to build a house and reside therein is entitled to be indemnified if evicted by the licensor's successor. A bare licence may be revoked at the grantor's will and on reasonable notice, but a licence coupled with grant is irrevocable. 19 I.C. 853=19 C.L.J. 321; 22 N.L.R. 162. Where a site has been granted to an occupier for building a house, the case is governed in the absence of terms to the contrary by sec. 60. 132 I.C. 565=1931 A.L.J. 649. Where a licence is granted to building houses on site and the licensee erects a work of a permanent nature, the licence cannot be revoked. 106 I.C. 479=1927 A. 342. See also 1940 Lah. 509; 1937 A.L.J. 1297=1938 All. 32. Sec. 60 (b) of the Easements Act cannot be availed of by the licensee when there has been no acting on the licence in the execution of works by him; but if the licensee establishes that the conduct of the licensor has been such as to justify the legal inference that he had by plain implication contracted that the licence would be perpetual; he can rely on the equitable doctrine and call upon the Court to intervene for his protection. The contract sought to be inferred does not mean that the real consensus of mind between the two parties must be inferred to have existed, but that the conduct of the parties has been such that equity will presume the existence of such a contract as a matter of plain implication.

- (a) it is coupled with a transfer of property and such transfer is in force :
 (b) the licensee, acting upon the licence, has executed a work of a permanent character and incurred expenses in the execution.

The onus of establishing such equity is on the licensee. 63 I.A. 140=160 I.C. 837=1936 P.C. 77=70 M.L.J. 190 (P.C.). The words "acting upon the licence" in sec. 60 (b) of the Easements Act must mean acting upon a right granted to do upon the land of the grantor something which would be unlawful in the absence of such right. A man does not "act upon a licence" if he does work and incurs expenses upon his own property. Works done by the licensee on his own land may be done without the knowledge of the licensor, and it is impossible to hold that the alleged licensor's land is bound in perpetuity (subject to sec. 62) as the result of some works done by the alleged licensee on his own property, of which the former has been unaware. Sec. 60 is not dealing with the effect of an express contract between the parties, but with the consequences to follow from a certain conduct on the part of the licensee which if done on the land of the licensor might well give the licensee rights against him. 63 I.A. 140=160 I.C. 837=1936 P.C. 77=70 M.L.J. 194 (P.C.). Where a person who has given his land to the licensee for certain purposes has given him an undertaking that he would not claim the land so long as it was required for that purpose and on acting on that promise the licensee has erected works of permanent nature, the grantor of the licence is not entitled to recover the land even on payment of compensation because sec. 60 does not recognize any such exception. 1940 Lah. 18. The principle of this section is also applicable to Berar. See 94 I.C. 923=1926 N. 376. Where a person by a registered Kiryanama executed by himself alone agrees that the landlord would have the right to get the site vacated whenever he so chose, it would disentitle him from deriving advantage conferred by sec. 60 of the Act. 1942 A.L.J. 386=A.I.R. 1942 All. 330. Section also applies to transferee of property. 97 I.C. 337=1926 A. 714. A licence cannot be revoked even when part only of a work of a permanent character has been executed by the licensee. 117 I.C. 224=1929 N. 141. If a person constructs a permanent building on a portion of the site belonging to another under an implied licence from him, the licence cannot be revoked and the licensee cannot be ejected from the building. The irrevocability of the licence in such a case applies to that portion of the site which is covered by the building and not to any other open portion of the site. 118 I.C. 676=1929 N. 269. Where a landlord permits a person wishing to settle on his land to erect a building meant for permanent residence, the fact that it was built with mud would not make it a temporary building. The words of a "permanent character" are used in sec. 60 to distinguish it from works of a temporary nature. The question whether a particular work is of a temporary or permanent character is one of fact. 113 I. C. 757. See also 1930 B. 70; I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 413=43 P.L.R. 544. Whether a structure is of a permanent character has to be decided on two considerations: (1) the material used and (2) the purpose for which the building is erected. The material used may be granite stone, marble, cement, concrete, bricks, or clay or mud. There can be no absolute standard as regards the material for judging whether the structure is permanent or temporary. The mere fact that a structure has mud walls would not be conclusive to prove its temporary character. Whether a structure is of a permanent character or not is not a pure inference of fact but is partly an inference of law. 203 I.C. 540=1942 N.L.J. 145=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 226=1943 Nag. 77. Residential house is a work of permanent character, though it has a tiled roof which has to be renewed from time to time. 9 O.W.N. 986 (28 A. 741, Foll.). So also erection of an upper wall at a cost of Rs. 25. 136 I.C. 821=1932 A. 572. Sinking a well and erecting compound wall can be considered to be works of a permanent character within the meaning of sec. 60. 186 I.C. 890=1940 Lah. 18. It cannot be said that because the building has not been completed, therefore the work already executed is not of a permanent character. 132 I.C. 536=1931 O. 364. A licence to use the land of another, unless coupled with a transfer of the property, is revocable, subject to the right of the licensee for damages if revoked contrary to the terms of any express or implied contract. A mere licence if revocable at the will of the licensor unless it is coupled with a grant and in that case it will become a lease and would require compulsory registration. 120 I.C. 673 (1). Licence to use Railway siding—Contribution for expenses of upkeep by licensee—Licensee erecting structures on his land on basis of licence—Licensor cannot be permitted to revoke licence. 31 Bom.L.R. 1331; see also 31 Bom.L.R. 1310. A licensor cannot be allowed to revoke the licence on condition of his making compensation to the licensee for loss incurred by the revocation of the licence. 98 I.C. 814=1927 A. 197; 9 O.W.N. 986. Where the licensee has executed work of a permanent character, the licence becomes irrevocable. To such a case sec. 64 is inapplicable, and the grantor cannot revoke the licence by paying compensation. 1933 A.L.J. 1422=1933 A. 842. Buildings of mud walls and thatched roof built for the purpose of school, which were in existence and kept under regular repair for about 30 years, were held to be a work of a permanent character. 102 I.C. 26=1927 O. 206. See also 97 I.C. 337=1926 A. 714; 1925 A. 208; 1934 A.L.J. 1422=1933 A. 842. Buildings of mud permanent character, it is not necessary for the defendant to show that a large sum of money had been actually spent in order to bring the case within the scope of the principle underlying sec. 60. A licensee is entitled to damages for breach of any contract or for an improper revocation of his licence in a proper case; the Court will allow revocation only on payment. 49 I.C. 811=1918 M.W.N. 772. Under the Act a licence is of personal character not merely as regards the grantee, but also as regards the grantor. It ceases the moment the property passes to another from the grantor whether by inheritance or otherwise. 18 N.L.R. 76=1922 N. 162. The heirs of the licensor may treat that licensee as a trespasser and eject him without notice of revocation. 18 N.L.R. 76. A licence coupled with a void grant is revocable save: (1) when the licensee entered into occupation and paid rent and (2) when the licensee acting in the licence has executed a work of permanent character and incurred expense in so doing. 34 I.C. 471=12 N.L.R. 75 [21 Ch.D. 3; (1901) 2 Ch. 591; 8 A. 60, Ref. to]. A licence cannot be revoked during licensee's lifetime when the licensee had made no permanent improvements. 48 I.C. 723. When plaintiff allowed defendant to execute on plaintiff's land an irrigation scheme of considerable expense and permanent benefit to a very large number of villages, held, that the agreement created a licence which could not be revoked at the instance of the plaintiff. 47 I.C. 166. A licensee in possession does not, like the tenant, by denying title of the grantor of the licence forfeit the licence and become liable to ejectment. 1923 A. 408. See also 1925 A. 203. A licence is revoked by the transfer of property by the licensor. (108 R.R. 942; 150 E.R. 1543, Foll.) 54 M. 554=1931 M. 216=60 M.L.J. 709.

TREES PLANTED—IF GO WITH LAND.—Trees planted under a licence do not go with the land and the person who planted the trees is entitled to cut and remove them; but he should restore the land in the condition in which it was before the trees were planted. The principle applicable to removal of buildings on another man's land would also apply to trees. 53 L.W. 230=1941 Mad. 379= (1941) 1 M.L.J. 161.

LICENCE TO RESIDE IN HOUSE—REVOCATION BY LANDLORD.—Where the tenants are more licensees occupying the house as an appurtenant to the holding, the licence to reside must be deemed to be revoked under sec. 62 where the licence is granted for a specific purpose and the purpose is abandoned or has become impracticable. 8 L. 509=10 O.W. N. 398=1933 O. 302. Where certain persons were permitted only to reside in the rooms, any additions made by them would not be governed by the grant and hence sec. 60 of the Act will not come into operation. 176 I.C. 135=1938 A.L.J. 465=1938 All. 342.

A person who has got letters of administration to the estate of the deceased must be regarded as taking the place of that deceased. Therefore any person who on his own admission has entered upon the premises originally with leave and licence of the deceased must vacate the premises if the administrator so desires. For this purpose it is enough that the administrator has given some kind of notice. 151 I.C. 971=1934 R. 291.

Revocation express or implied.

61. The revocation of a license may be express or implied.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the owner of a field, grants a license to B to use a path across it. A, with intent to revoke the license, locks a gate across the path. The license is revoked.

(b) A, the owner of a field, grants a license to B to stack hay on the field. A lets or sells the field to C. The license is revoked.

License when deemed revoked.

62. A license is deemed to be revoked—

(a) when, from a cause preceding the grant of it, the grantor ceases to have any interest in the property affected by the license ;

(b) when the licensee releases it, expressly or impliedly to the grantor or his representative ;

(c) where it has been granted for a limited period, or acquired on condition that it shall become void on the performance or non-performance of a specified act, and the period expires, or the condition is fulfilled ;

(d) where the property affected by the license is destroyed or by superior force so permanently altered that the licensee can no longer exercise his right ;

(e) where the licensee becomes entitled to the absolute ownership of the property affected by the license ;

(f) where the license is granted for a specified purpose and the purpose is attained, or abandoned, or becomes impracticable ;

(g) where the license is granted to the licensee as holding a particular office, employment or character, and such office, employment or character ceases to exist ;

(h) where the license totally ceases to be used as such for an unbroken period of twenty years, and such cessation is not in pursuance of a contract between the grantor and the licensee ;

(i) in the case of an accessory license when the interest or right to which it is accessory ceases to exist.

63. Where a license is revoked, the licensee is entitled to a reasonable time

SECS. 60 AND 62: LICENSEE PUTTING UP BUILDING OF PERMANENT CHARACTER.—REVOCA-
TION OF LICENCE.—Even though the Easements Act does not expressly apply to cases of licences before the Act, the principles underlying Ch. 6 may well be applied. Hence, when an owner of land gives permission to another person to put up a building of a permanent character and he incurs expenses in the execution of such work, the licensor is by necessary implication estopped from revoking his permission so as to prejudice the licensee whose position has been comprised in consequence. It would be inequitable, unjust and unfair to allow a licensor to order that the licensee should forthwith remove the work of a permanent character which he has put up after incurring expenditure. In such an event, the transaction ceases to be a mere licence revocable at will, but may amount to a licence coupled with a transfer of interest or, at any rate a case where the licensee acting upon the licence has executed a work of a permanent character and has incurred expenses in the execution so as to make the licence irrevocable. 1934 A.L.J. 698=1934 A. 517.

Sec. 61.—Where it was with the plaintiff's permission that the defendant committee put up a thatch on the chabutra adjoining a mosque to afford accommodation for the growing needs of the school within one portion of the mosque. Held, that the position of the committee was no better than that of a licensee and that the defendant's attempt to build on the "chabutra", the plaintiff's protest, and the denial of his right followed by the institution of the suit, were circumstances which gave rise to the inference that the plaintiff revoked the licence originally granted by him. 1934 A. 732.

Sec. 62.—See 21 A.W.N. 175.

Sec. 62 (f).—See 185 I.C. 467. Where it is not shown that the defendant was holding the house in question under any licence for a specified purpose, the plaintiff proprietor is not entitled to re-enter upon the land on the ground that he has converted the residential house into a public temple. 1942 O.W.N. 351=1942 O.A. 255=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 427=18 Luck. 155. Where a tank ceases to exist, (by being silted up) the purpose for which a licence in respect of it was granted should be said to have been abandoned and the licence would be deemed to have been revoked. But the licensee would not lose every right by the mere abandonment of the purpose of the licence. It has to be followed up either by the licensee leaving the property or by the licensor suing the licensee for eviction on that ground. Till then the licensee being entitled to possession can also maintain an action for it. 1943 A. L.W. 404.

Sec. 62 (h).—See 1937 Nag. 338.

Sec. 63.—A licensee whose licence is revocable is entitled to reasonable notice of revocation. When the exercise of the rights conferred by the licence involves nothing beyond, it may be revoked at will. But where Licensee's rights on revocation. to leave the property affected thereby and to remove any goods which he has been allowed to place on such property.

64. Where a license has been granted for a consideration, and the licensee, without any fault of his own, is evicted by the grantor before he has fully enjoyed, under the license, the right for which he contracted, he is entitled to recover compensation from the grantor.

THE INDIAN ELECTRICITY ACT (IX OF 1910).¹

[18th March, 1910.

N.B.—This Act has been amended by Act X of 1937 in its application to British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas but excluding Burma (vide S. 2 of Act X of 1937). (The said amendments are noted under the respective sections).

An Act to amend the law relating to the supply and use of electrical energy.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the supply and use of electrical energy; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN ELECTRICITY ACT, 1910.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas; and

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, direct in this behalf.

2. In this Act, expressions defined in the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885, have the meanings assigned to them in that Act, and, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

Definitions.

(a) “aerial line” means any electric supply-line which is placed above ground and in the open air;

(b) “area of supply” means the area within which alone a licensee is for the time being authorized by his license to supply energy;

(c) “consumer” means any person who is supplied with energy by a licensee, or whose premises are for the time being connected for the purposes of a supply of energy with the works of a licensee;

(d) “daily fine” means a fine for each day on which an offence is continued after conviction therefor;

(e) “distributing main” means the portion of any main with which a service-line is, or is intended to be, immediately connected;

V, p. 39; and for Proceedings in Council, see ibid., 1909, Pt. VI, p. 152 and ibid., 1910, Pt. VI, pp. 12, 157 and 275, dated 5th February, 1910, 19th March, 1910, and 9th April, 1910, respectively. The Act was brought into force on the 1st January, 1911, see Gazette of India, 1910, Pt. I, p. 1286.

SEC. 2 (c): ‘CONSUMER’, MEANING OF.—In order to hold that a person is a “consumer” as defined by sec. 2 (c) of the Electricity Act, it would prima facie be enough to prove either that energy was supplied for the use of that person, or that that person was the owner or occupier of premises connected up with the licensee’s electric system. If either of these is proved that person is a consumer under rule 106 of the rule. 172 I.C. 940=39 Cr.L.J. 206=18 P.L.T. 986=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 15. Where the registered consumer and the person supplied with the energy is the proprietor of a company, the manager of the company cannot be held to be a ‘consumer’. The premises of the company are not the premises of the manager. The fact that the manager receives the electric bills, signs them and pays the bills cannot make him a consumer. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 248=1938 P.W.N. 182=19 P.L.T. 141. Where a consumer intended to substitute a motor of smaller horse power in the place of one with a higher horse power and wrote to the U.P. Electricity Supply Co., about it and asked them to make the necessary examination, it was held that the company was not entitled, under either Para. 9 (2) or Para. 11 of the conditions of supply to demand a testing fee for that purpose. 1939 A.W.R. (H.C.) 417=A.I.R. 1939 All. 498.

(f) "electric supply line" means a wire, conductor or other means used for conveying, transmitting or distributing energy together with any casing, coating, covering, tube, pipe or insulator enclosing, surrounding or supporting the same or any part thereof, or any apparatus connected therewith for the purpose of so conveying, transmitting or distributing, such energy :

(g) "energy" means electrical energy when generated, transmitted, supplied, or used for any purpose except the transmission of a message ;

(h) "licensee" means any person licensed under Part II to supply energy ;

(i) "main" means any electric supply-line through which energy is, or is intended to be, supplied by a licensee to the public ;

(j) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act ;

(k) "public lamp" means an electric lamp used for the lighting of any street ;

1[(l) "service-line" means any electric supply-line through which energy is, or is intended to be, supplied by a licensee—

(i) to a single consumer either from a distributing main or immediately from the licensee's premises, or

(ii) from a distributing main to a group of consumers on the same premises or on adjoining premises supplied from the same point of the distributing main.]

(m) "street" includes any way, road, lane, square, court, alley, passage or open space, whether a thoroughfare or not, over which the public have a right of way, and also the roadway and footway over any public bridge or causeway ; and

(n) "works" includes electric supply-lines and any buildings, machinery or apparatus required to supply energy and to carry into effect the objects of a license granted under Part II.

PART II.

SUPPLY OF ENERGY.

Licenses.

3. (1) The Provincial Government may, on application made in the prescribed form and on payment of the prescribed fee (if any), grant to any person a license to supply energy in any specified area, and also to lay down or place electric supply-lines for the conveyance and transmission of energy,—

(a) where the energy to be supplied is to be generated outside such area,

LEG. REF.

1 This clause was substituted by sec. 2 of the Indian Electricity (Amendment) Act (I of 1922).

Sec. 2 (n).—"Works" include electric supply lines. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 496=41 Bom.L.R. 878=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 480.

Sec. 3.—An assignment of a licence can be made by word of mouth and form part performance and acting on and an inference may be raised of the assignment. A formal document of assignment need not necessarily exist. I.L.R. (1943) All. 907=1944 A.L.J. 48=A.I.R. 1944 All. 66.

Secs. 3, 21, 22 AND 23.—A licence given by the Local Government to a person under this Act confers the right on the licensee to supply electric energy in a specified area. Certain statutory powers and duties are conferred and imposed on the licensee. These powers are given for the purpose of enabling licensee, who undertakes a public undertaking, to construct his work, his plant, service mains, etc., and to maintain them, and certain duties are also imposed on him for the safety of the public or individuals. 63 Cal. 1047=40 C.W.N. 789=A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 265. The undertaking being for public benefit, a duty is imposed on the licensee to supply energy to any person who wants to take a supply of energy subject to certain conditions laid down either in the Act or in the schedule which is incorporated in the licence, and subject to any addition or modification which the Local Government may make. (Ibid.) The licensee cannot show undue preference to any particular consumer in the matter of rates; subject to this he is empowered to regulate his relations by agreement with his consumers, but even here there are restrictions imposed. He cannot in his agreement with his consumers insert any condition whatever, but only such conditions as are consistent with the Act or his licence and to which previous sanction of the Local Government had been obtained. Subject to these restrictions, the Legislature has intended the rights between a licensee and a consumer to be regulated by contract. (Ibid.)

from a generating station situated outside such area to the boundary of such area, or

(b) where energy is to be conveyed or transmitted from any place in such area to any other place therein, across an intervening area not included therein, across such area.

(2) In respect of every such license and the grant thereof the following provisions shall have effect, namely :—

(a) any person applying for a license under this Part shall publish a notice of his application in the prescribed manner and with the prescribed particulars, and the license shall not be granted—

(i) until all objections received by the Provincial Government with reference thereto have been considered by it :

Provided that no objection shall be so considered unless it is received before the expiration of three months from the date of the first publication of such notice as aforesaid ; and

(ii) until, in the case of an application for a license for an area including the whole or any part of any cantonment, fortress, arsenal, dockyard or camp or of any building or place in the occupation of the Government for naval or military purposes, the Provincial Government has ascertained that there is no objection to the grant of the license on the part of the ¹[Engineer-in-Chief, Army Headquarters, India.] ;

(b) where an objection is received from any local authority concerned, the Provincial Government shall, if in its opinion the objection is insufficient, record in writing and communicate to such local authority its reasons for such opinion ;

(c) no application for a license under this Part shall be made by any local authority except in pursuance of a resolution passed at a meeting of such authority held after one month's previous notice of the same and of the purpose thereof has been given in the manner in which notices of meetings of such local authority are usually given :

(d) a license under this Part—

(i) may prescribe such terms as to the limits within which, and the conditions under which, the supply of energy is to be compulsory or permissive, and as to the limits of price to be charged in respect of the supply of energy, and generally as to such matters as the Provincial Government may think fit ; and

(ii) save in cases in which under section 10, clause (b) the provisions of sections 5 and 7, or either of them, have been declared not to apply, every such license shall declare whether any generating station to be used in connection with the undertaking shall or shall not form part of the undertaking for the purpose of purchase under section 5 or section 7 ;

(e) the grant of a license under this Part for any purpose shall not in any way hinder or restrict the grant of a license to another person within the same area of supply for a like purpose ;

(f) the provisions contained in the Schedule shall be deemed to be incorporated with, and to form part of, every license granted under this Part, save in so far as they are expressly added to, varied or excepted by the license, and shall, subject to any such additions, variations or exceptions which the Provincial Government is hereby empowered to make, apply to the undertaking authorised by the license :

Provided that, where a license is granted in accordance with the provisions of clause IX of the Schedule for the supply of energy to other licensees for distribution by them, then, in so far as such license relates to such supply, the provisions of clauses IV, V, VI, VII, VIII and XII of the Schedule shall not be deemed to be incorporated with the license.

² Sub-sec. (8) was omitted by sec. 2 and Sch. I of the Devolution Act (XXXVIII of 1920).

Revocation or amendment of licenses. 4. (1) The Provincial Government may, in its opinion the public interest so requires, revoke a license, in any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) where the licensee, in the opinion of the Provincial Government makes wilful and unreasonably prolonged default in doing anything required of him by or under this Act ;

(b) where the licensee breaks any of the terms or conditions of his license the breach of which is expressly declared by such license to render it liable to revocation ;

(c) where the licensee fails, within the period fixed in this behalf by his license or any longer period which the Provincial Government may substitute therefor by order under sub-section (3), clause (b) and before exercising any of the powers conferred on him thereby in relation to the execution of works,—

(i) to show, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government that he is in a position fully and efficiently to discharge the duties and obligations imposed on him by his license, or

(ii) to make the deposit or furnish the security required by his license ;

(d) where the licensee is, in the opinion of the Provincial Government, unable by reason of his insolvency, fully and efficiently to discharge the duties and obligations imposed on him by his license.

(2) Where the Provincial Government might, under sub-section (1), revoke a license, it may, instead of revoking the license, permit it to remain in force subject to such further terms and conditions as it thinks fit to impose, and any further terms or conditions so imposed shall be binding upon and be observed by, the licensee, and shall be of like force and effect as if they were contained in the license.

(3) Where in its opinion the public interest so permits, the Provincial Government may, on the application or with the consent of the licensee, and if the licensee is not a local authority, after consulting the local authority (if any) concerned,—

SEC. 4 (1) (c) : POWER OF GOVERNMENT TO REVOKE LICENSE—TIME LIMIT.—The conditions about satisfying the Government as to qualification and furnishing security in sec. 4 (1) (c) are subject to identical limitations; namely, that they have to be within a specified time and before the exercise of any of the powers conferred by the license. It is manifest that the licensee would be entitled to deposit his security up to the last hour of the last day fixed in the licence and if the licence is to be revoked on the ground of failure of deposit of the security, the revocation of necessity shall have to be made after the time for depositing the security had run out. It follows, therefore, that the time limit with regard to security operates only in favour of the licensee and against the licensee and it does not apply to Government which can make the revocation after time had run out. For a similar reason, the condition that satisfaction as to his qualification by the licensee shall be given before any powers are exercised and within the time fixed in the licence also operates in favour of and against the licensee and they do not apply to Government and it is open to Government to revoke the license even after powers had been exercised by the licensee and time fixed in the licence had run out. 1944 A. L.J. 43=1944 All. 66.

The Act nowhere prescribes the manner in which the Government would be satisfied and the evidence which is required for this satisfaction. It is also obvious that if once the Government has finally come to the conclusion that the licensee was qualified to discharge his duties it cannot change its mind subsequently and act under sec. 4 (1) (c) of the Act. Ordinarily, it will be in the interest of all parties that this decision should be reached before any powers under the licence are exercised. And after the supply had begun, or when the works had considerably advanced or when the power was exercised long after the time fixed for satisfaction in the licence, a presumption might arise that satisfaction in fact was given by the licensee and it might not be open to Government to revoke the licence on that ground. But it is also open under the Act to the Government to fix any period for the satisfaction and to make the period of completion of works and of satisfaction as to qualification synchronise and to judge the qualification of the licensee with reference to the progress of his work. In such a case no presumption can arise by the mere exercise of powers under the licence that the Government had, in fact, received satisfaction as to qualification of the licensee and it is for the licensee if he wants not to exercise the powers under the licence before giving satisfaction to Government to insist on a condition in the licence that the work shall not begin till the satisfaction is accepted and to insist on a short term for satisfaction of qualification and a long term for the completion of works. I.L. R. (1943) All. 907=1944 All. 66=1944 A. L.J. 43.

(a) revoke a license as to the whole or any part of the area of supply upon such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, or

(b) make such alterations or amendments in the terms and conditions of a license, including the provisions specified in section 3, sub-section (2), clause (f) as it thinks fit.

5. Where the Provincial Government revokes, under section 4, sub-section (1), the license of a licensee, not being a local authority, the following provisions shall have effect, namely:—

(a) the Provincial Government shall serve a notice of the revocation upon the licensee, and, where the whole of the area of supply is included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, upon that local authority also, and shall in the notice fix a date on which the revocation shall take effect; and on and with effect from that date all the powers and liabilities of the licensee under this Act shall absolutely cease and determine;

(b) where a notice has been served on a local authority under clause (a), the local authority may, within three months after the service of the notice, and with the written consent of the Provincial Government by notice in writing, require the licensee to sell, and thereupon the licensee shall sell, the undertaking to the local authority on payment of the value of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant of the licensee suitable to, and used by him for, the purposes of the undertaking, other than a generating station declared by the licensee not to form part of the undertaking for the purpose of purchase, such value to be, in case of difference or dispute, determined by arbitration:

Provided that the value of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant shall be deemed to be their fair market-value at the time of purchase, due regard being had to the nature and condition for the time being of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant, and to the state of repair thereof, and to the circumstances that they are in such a position as to be ready for immediate working, and to the suitability of the same for the purposes of the undertaking, but without any addition in respect of compulsory purchase or of goodwill or of any profits which may be or might have been made from the undertaking, or of any similar considerations;

SEC. 5: ORDER OF SALE OF UNDERTAKING—LICENSEE WRONGFULLY REFUSING TO COMPLETE SALE—PURCHASER'S RIGHT OF SUIT.—If after an order of sale of an undertaking under sec. 5 of the Act and determination of the sale price under sec. 5 read with sec. 52 of that Act and its tender by the purchaser, the licensee wrongfully refuses to complete the sale and to execute a conveyance or to give possession of the undertaking an action for declaration of title, for possession of the undertaking and for injunction restraining the defendant from interference will certainly lie. The relief of the execution of the sale cannot be refused if such a relief is also claimed in addition to or in substitution of the above reliefs simply because such a relief cannot be brought in within the four corners of Chap. II of the Act. The Specific Relief Act was enacted not to consolidate but only "to define and amend the law relating to certain kinds of specific relief" and though the Act may be exhaustive with regard to those matters which are specifically dealt with by it, there is no reason to hold that the entire law in relation to sec. 5 (b) of the Act was codified in Chap. II, and the relief for specific performance should be confined to contractual obligations or those arising under sec. 30 of the Act, and cannot be granted in relation to statutory obligations. Nor is there any valid reason for not following the English Law in this matter that the direction of sale followed by an award by which the sale price has been determined brings into existence an obligation which though ordinarily statutory, becomes also contractual and may be specifically enforced. I.L.R. (1943) All. 907=1944 A.L.J. 43=A.I.B. 1944 All. 66.

SEC. 5 (b): LANDS, BUILDINGS, WORKS MATERIALS AND PLANTS—IF MUST BE ALL ACQUIRED TOGETHER.—One possible construction of sec. 5 (b) of the Electricity Act is that lands, buildings, works, materials and plants must all co-exist and must all be acquired together. If so, the clause implies that an incomplete undertaking which has not substantially reached the stage of supplying electrical energy and comprises only of one or two or more of these things cannot be compulsorily ordered to be sold. But even if the other construction be accepted and it is possible to acquire one or more of them, provided it or they comprise the entire undertaking at the time there must be evidence to show that the property which is sought to be ordered to be sold

(c) where no purchase has been effected by the local authority under clause (b), and any other person is willing to purchase the undertaking, the Provincial Government may, if it thinks fit, with the consent of the licensee or without the consent of the licensee in case the price is not less than that for which the local authority might have purchased the same, require the licensee to sell, and thereupon the licensee shall sell, the undertaking to such other person ;

(d) where no purchase has been effected under clause (b) or clause (c) within such time as the Provincial Government may consider reasonable, or where the whole of the area of supply is not included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, the Provincial Government shall have the option of purchasing the undertaking and, if the Provincial Government elects to purchase, the licensee shall sell the undertaking to the Provincial Government upon terms and conditions similar to those set forth in clause (b) ;

(e) where a purchase has been effected under any of the preceding clauses,—

(i) the undertaking shall vest in the purchasers free from any debts, mortgages or similar obligations of the licensee or attaching to the undertaking :

Provided that any such debts, mortgages or similar obligations shall attach to the purchase-money in substitution for the undertaking ; and

(ii) the revocation of the license shall extend only to the revocation of the rights, powers, authorities, duties and obligations of the licensee from whom the undertaking is purchased, and, save as aforesaid, the license shall remain in full force, and the purchaser shall be deemed to be the licensee :

Provided that where the Provincial Government elects to purchase under clause (d), the license shall, after purchase, in so far as the Provincial Government is concerned, cease to have any further operation ;

(f) where no purchase has been effected under any of the foregoing clauses, the licensee shall have the option of disposing of all lands, buildings, works, materials, and plant belonging to the undertaking in such manner as he may think fit :

Provided that, if the licensee does not exercise such option within a period of six months from the date on which the same became exercisable, the Provincial Government may forthwith cause the works of the licensee in, under, over, along is suitable to, and is used for, the purpose of the undertaking. It is a question of fact in each case whether the particular property sought to be sold answers the description. I.L.R. (1943) All. 907=1944 A.L.J. 43 =A.I.R. 1944 All. 66.

SEC. 5 (b) AND (c) : UNDERTAKING AS IT EXISTS ON DATE OF SALE.—If can be ordered to be sold.—Under sec. 5 (b) and (c) of the Act, the undertaking which can be compulsorily ordered to be sold is the undertaking which existed on the date when the revocation of the licence took effect and not the undertaking which existed on the date of the order of sale. I.L.R. (1943) All. 907=1944 A.L.J. 43=A.I.R. 1944 All. 66.

SEC. 5 (c) : POWER OF GOVERNMENT.—Under sec. 5 (c), the Government has power to order the licensee to sell his undertaking to a particular person after the revocation of his licence takes effect and his liabilities under the Act have ceased. 1944 A.L.J. 43=A.I.R. 1944 All. 66. Under sec. 5(c), the Government can order the licensee to sell the undertaking to a third person although no price was fixed by mutual agreement or arbitration between the licensee and the local authority. Under this clause the Government can order an arbitration in case of difference or dispute as to price between the licensee and the purchaser. 1944 All. 66=(1943) All. 907=1944 A.L.J. 43.

SEC. 5 (d) authorises the Government to purchase the undertaking "upon terms and conditions similar to those set forth in cl. (b)". These words are wide enough to bring in the arbitration clause which is to be found in cl. (b). I.L.R. (1943) All. 907=1943 A.L.J. 43=A.I.R. 1944 All. 66.

SEC. 5 (f) : ATTACHMENT OF PROPERTY OF LICENSEE WHOSE LICENCE HAS BEEN REVOKED.—Where the judgment-debtor is a licensee whose licence under the Electricity Act has been revoked, the Court when it has to consider whether under sec. 60, C.P. Code, his property is or is not liable to attachment and sale in execution of the decree, has to bear in mind sec. 4, C.P. Code. As the Electricity Act is a special law, the provisions under the C.P. Code, are subject to any conditions regulating that procedure by the provisions of the Electricity Act. When a licence is revoked certain provisions laid down by sec. 5 of the Act have an imperative effect and under those provisions the licensee has the option of disposing the property of the undertaking in such manner as he thinks fit under cl. (f) only. That clause is more or less residuary and comes into operation only when the preceding provisions in the earlier clauses have been complied with. I.L.R. (1939) All. 901=1939 A.L.J. 983=1939 A.W.R. (H.C.) 848=A.I.R. 1940 All. 24.

or across any street to be removed and every such street to be reinstated, and recover the cost of such removal and reinstatement from the licensee ;

(g) if the licensee has been required to sell the undertaking, and if the sale has not been completed by the date fixed in the notice issued under clause (a), the purchaser may, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government, work the undertaking pending the completion of the sale.

6. (1) Where the Provincial Government revokes the license of a local authority under section 4, sub-section (1), and any person is willing to purchase the undertaking, the Provincial Government may, if it thinks fit, require the local authority to sell, and thereupon the local authority shall sell, the undertaking to such person on such terms as the Provincial Government thinks just.

(2) Where no purchase has been effected under sub-section (1), the licensee shall have the option of disposing of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant belonging to the undertaking in such manner as he may think fit :

Provided that, if the licensee does not exercise such option within a period of six months from the date on which the same became exercisable, the Provincial Government may forthwith cause the works of the licensee in, under, over, along or across any street to be removed and every such street to be reinstated, and recover the cost of such removal and reinstatement from the licensee.

7. (1) Where a license has been granted to any person not being a local authority, and the whole of the area of supply is included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, the local authority shall, on the expiration of such period, not exceeding fifty years, and of every such subsequent period not exceeding twenty years, as shall be specified in this behalf in the license, have the option of purchasing the undertaking, and, if the local authority, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government, elects to purchase, the licensee shall sell the undertaking to the local authority on payment of the value of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant of the licensee suitable to, and used by him for, the purposes of the undertaking, other than a generating station declared by the license not to form part of the undertaking for the purpose of purchase, such value to be, in case of difference or dispute determined by arbitration :

Provided that the value of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant shall be deemed to be their fair market-value at the time of purchase, due regard being had to the nature and condition for the time being of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant, and to the state of repair thereof, and to the circumstance that they are in such a position as to be ready for immediate working and to the suitability of the same for the purposes of the undertaking :

Provided also that there shall be added to such value as aforesaid such percentage, if any, not exceeding twenty per centum on that value as may be specified in the license, on account of compulsory purchase.

(2) Where—

(a) the local authority does not elect to purchase under sub-section (1), or

(b) the whole of the area of supply is not included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, or

(c) a licensee supplies energy from the same generating station to two or more areas of supply, each controlled by its own local authority, and has been granted a license in respect of each area of supply, the Provincial Government shall have the like option upon the like terms and conditions.

(3) Where a purchase has been effected under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2),—

(a) the undertaking shall vest in the purchasers free from any debts, mortgages or similar obligations of the licensee or attaching to the undertaking :

Sec. 5 (g) entitles the prospective transferee to take over charge at once and to 'work' the concern pending the completion of the sale as fully and completely as if the sale had been completed within the time fixed. 1943 N.L. J. 551=1944 Nag. 66.

Provided that any such debts, mortgages or similar obligations shall attach to the purchase-money in substitution for the undertaking; and

(b) save as aforesaid, the license shall remain in full force, and the purchaser shall be deemed to be the licensee:

Provided that where the Provincial Government elects to purchase under sub-section (2) the license shall, after purchase, in so far as the Provincial Government is concerned, cease to have any further operation.

(4) Not less than two years' notice in writing of any election to purchase under this section shall be served upon the licensee by the local authority or the Provincial Government as the case may be.

(5) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, a local authority may, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government waive its option to purchase and enter into an agreement with the licensee for the working by him of the undertaking until the expiration of the next subsequent period referred to in sub-section (1), upon such terms and conditions as may be stated in such agreement.

the licensee is, on the application or with the consent of the licensee, revoked, the licensee shall have the option of disposing of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant belonging to the undertaking in such manner as he may think fit.

Provided that, if the licensee does not exercise such option within a period of six months, the Provincial Government may proceed to take action as provided in section 5, clause (f), proviso.

purchase or otherwise, the license or the undertaking of, or associate himself so far as the business of supplying energy is concerned with, any person supplying, or intending to supply, energy under any other license, and, before applying for such consent, the licensee shall give not less than one month's notice of the application to every local authority, both in the licensee's area of supply, and also in the area or district in which such other person supplies, or intends to supply, energy:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be construed to require the consent of the Provincial Government for the supply of energy by one licensee to another in accordance with the provisions of clause IX of the Schedule.

(2) The licensee shall not at any time assign his license or transfer his undertaking, or any part thereof, by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise without the previous consent in writing of the Provincial Government.

(3) Any agreement relating to any transaction of the nature described in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), unless made with, or subject to, such consent as aforesaid, shall be void.

SEC. 9 (2): 'TRANSFER'—CREATION OF CHARGE.—A charge is a 'transfer' within the meaning of sub-sec. (2) of sec. 9 of the Indian Electricity Act. Even though a 'charge' may not be a 'transfer' within the meaning of the Transfer of Property Act, there is no adequate reason to give a restricted meaning to the word 'transfer' in the Electricity Act, the more so as the last mentioned Act is not in pari materia with the Transfer of Property Act. The word 'transfer' is used in sec. 9 (2) in a wide sense as embracing the transactions which either in present or in future may lead to the passing of the undertaking from one person to another. 196 I.C. 425=1941 A.L.J. 518 =A.I.R. 1941 All. 345 (F.B.).

SEC. 9 (2) & (3).—Where a licensee company for supply of electricity executed without the consent of Government, a debenture trust deed whereby the whole undertaking was transferred to trustees for debenture-holders and also purported to create a mortgage and a charge over the property in favour of the debenture-holders it was held that the deed so far as it intended to operate as a transfer of the properties to the trustees was void in view of the provisions of sec. 9 (2) of the Act and that it was similarly void in so far as it purported to create a mortgage but that it was General power for Government to vary terms of purchase.

10. Notwithstanding anything in sections 5, 7 and 8, the Provincial Government may, [* * *] in any license to be granted under this Act,—

(a) vary the terms and conditions upon which, and the periods on the expiration of which, the licensee shall be bound to sell his undertaking, or

(b) direct that, subject to such conditions and restrictions (if any) as it may think fit to impose, the provisions of the said sections or any of them shall not apply.

11. (1) Every licensee shall, unless expressly exempted from the liability by his license, or by order in writing of the Provincial Government, prepare and render to the Provincial Government or to such authority as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf on or before the prescribed date in each year, an annual statement of accounts of his undertaking made up to such date, in such form and containing such particulars, as may be prescribed in this behalf.

(2) The licensee shall keep copies of such annual statement at his office and sell the same to any applicant at a price not exceeding five rupees per copy.

or, when permitted by the terms of his license to lay down or place electric supply-lines without the area of supply without that area—

(a) open and break up the soil and pavement of any street, railway or tramway;

(b) open and break up any sewer, drain or tunnel in or under any street, railway or tramway;

(c) lay down and place electric supply lines and other works;

(d) repair, alter or remove the same; and valid in so far as it purported to create a charge which entitled the debenture-holders to rank as secured creditors in the winding up of the company. A charge could not be regarded as a transfer either in presenti or in futuro. I.L.R. (1940) All. 568=1940 A.L.J. 449=1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 412=A.I.R. 1940 All. 458. See also I.L.R. (1941) All. 691. Words 'transfer' and 'undertaking' are used in widest sense in this section. Where a licensee took in partners and the partnership-deed vested the buildings, machinery, books, papers and the licence of electricity in the partners, held, that it amounted to 'transfer of undertaking' under this section. 167 I.C. 707=A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 47.

SEC. 12.—The Act does not authorise a licensee to place any work on any private lands without the consent of the owner or occupier, except in the case provided for by the first proviso to sec. 12 (1). But in the case of lands dedicated to public use, the licensee would be able to place its works without the consent of the authorities in charge of such lands and without paying any compensation for the same. The Local Government might while granting the licence insert a term in it regarding rent or compensation for the use of such lands and in such cases undoubtedly a duty to pay rent or compensation will arise. I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 746=41 C.W.N. 1045=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 521. The ordinary rule of law is that whoever owns the site is the owner of everything up to the sky and down to the centre of the earth, and such owner can, therefore, object to the laying of electric wire on his land although the line may be laid, more than 30 feet above land. There is no law authorising the District Magistrate to grant permission to an electric company to erect a post over the land of a person. 114 I.C. 692=1929 L. 226. A post was erected on the land of a person. Permission from the District Magistrate for erecting it was obtained not before erecting but after institution of suit by the owner of land. Lower Court dismissed the suit. Held, that High Court could not interfere with the decision. 114 I.C. 692=1929 L. 226. The Civil Courts have no jurisdiction to decide as to whether a bracket should be fixed on a particular private wall or not by a licensee under the Electricity Act and whether the person whose wall is being used should be given any compensation for it. It is entirely for the District Magistrate to decide these questions. 196 I.C. 547=A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 72.

(2) Nothing contained in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to authorise or empower a licensee, without the consent of the local authority or of the owner and occupier, concerned, as the case may be, to lay down or place any electric supply-line, or other work in, through or against any building, or on, over or under any land not dedicated to public use whereon, wherever or whereunder any electric supply-line or work has not already been lawfully laid down or placed by such licensee :

Provided that any support of an aerial line or any stay or strut required for the sole purpose of securing in position any support of an aerial line may be fixed on any building or land or, having been so fixed, may be altered, notwithstanding the objection of the owner or occupier of such building or land, if the District Magistrate or, in a Presidency-town ¹[* *] the Commissioner of Police by order in writing so directs :

Provided, also, that, if at any time the owner or occupier of any building or land on which any such support, stay or strut has been fixed shows sufficient cause, the District Magistrate or, in a Presidency-town ¹[* *] the Commissioner of Police may by order in writing direct any such support, stay or strut to be removed or altered.

(3) When making an order under sub-section (2), the District Magistrate or the Commissioner of Police, as the case may be, shall fix the amount of compensation or of annual rent, or of both, which should in his opinion be paid by the licensee to the owner or occupier.

(4) Every order made by a District Magistrate or a Commissioner of Police under sub-section (2) shall be subject to revision by the Provincial Government.

(5) Nothing contained in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to authorise or empower any licensee to open or break up any street not repairable by ²[the Central Government or the Provincial Government] or a local authority, or any railway or tramway, except such streets, railways or tramways (if any), or such parts thereof, as he is specially authorised to break up by his license, without the written consent of the person by whom the street is repairable or of the person for the time being entitled to work the railway or tramway, unless with the written consent of the Provincial Government :

Provided that the Provincial Government shall not give any such consent as aforesaid, until the licensee has given notice by advertisement or otherwise as the Provincial Government may direct, and within such period as the Provincial Government may fix in this behalf, to the person above referred to, and until all representations or objections received in accordance with the notice have been considered by the Provincial Government.

(a) not less than one month before commencing the execution of the works (not being a service-line immediately attached, or intended to be immediately attached, to a distributing main, or the repair, renewal or amendment of existing works of which the character or position is not to be altered), the licensee shall serve upon the person responsible for the repair of the street or part of a street (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the repairing authority") or upon the person for the time being entitled to work the railway, tramway, canal or waterway (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the owner"), as the case may be, a notice in writing describing the proposed works, together with a section and plan thereof on a scale sufficiently large to show clearly the details of the proposed works, and not in any case smaller than one inch to eight feet vertically and sixteen inches to the mile horizontally, and intimating the manner in which, and the time at which, it is proposed to interfere with or alter any existing works, and shall upon being required to do so by the repairing authority or owner, as the case may be, from time to time give such further information in relation thereto as may be desired ;

(b) if the repairing authority intimates to the licensee that it disapproves of such works, section or plan, or approves thereof subject to amendment, the licensee may, within one week of receiving such intimation, appeal to the Provincial Government whose decision, after considering the reasons given by the repairing authority for its action, shall be final ;

(c) if the repairing authority fails to give notice in writing of its approval or disapproval to the licensee within one month, it shall be deemed to have approved of the works, section and plan, and the licensee, after giving not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing to the repairing authority, may proceed to carry out the works in accordance with the notice and the section and plan served under clause (a) ;

(d) if the owner disapproves of such works, section or plan, or approves thereof subject to amendment, he may, within three weeks after the service of the notice under clause (a) serve a requisition upon the licensee demanding that any question in relation to the works or to compensation, or to the obligations of the owner to others in respect thereof, shall be determined by arbitration, and thereupon the matter shall, unless settled by agreement, be determined by arbitration ;

(e) where no requisition has been served by the owner upon the licensee under clause (d), within the time named, the owner shall be deemed to have approved of the works, section and plan, and in that case, or where after a requisition for arbitration the matter has been determined by arbitration, the works may, upon payment or securing of compensation, be executed according to the notice and the section and plan, subject to such modifications as may have been determined by arbitration or agreed upon between the parties.

(f) where the works to be executed consist of the laying of any underground service-line immediately attached, or intended to be immediately attached, to a distributing main, the licensee shall give to the repairing authority or the owner, as the case may be, not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing of his intention to execute such works ;

(g) where the works to be executed consist of the repair, renewal or amendment of existing works of which the character or position is not to be altered, the licensee shall, except in cases of emergency, give to the repairing authority, or to the owner, as the case may be, not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing of his intention to execute such works, and, on the expiry of such notice, such works shall be commenced forthwith and shall be carried on with all reasonable despatch, and, if possible, both by day and by night until completed.

(2) Where the licensee makes default in complying with any of these provisions, he shall make full compensation for any loss or damage incurred by reason thereof, and, where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of such compensation, the matter shall be determined by arbitration.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this section, the licensee may, in case of emergency due to the breakdown of an underground of electric supply-line, after giving notice in writing to the repairing authority or the owner, as the case may be, of his intention to do so, place an aerial line without complying with the provisions of sub-section (1) :

Provided that such aerial line shall be used only until the defect in the underground electric supply-line can be made good, and in no case (unless with the written consent of the Provincial Government) for a period exceeding six weeks, and shall be removed as soon as may be after such defect is removed.

14. (1) Any licensee may alter the position of any pipe (not forming, in a case where the licensee is not a local authority, part of a local authority's main sewer), or of any wire under or over any place which he is authorised to open or break up, if such pipe or wire is likely to interfere with the exercise of his powers under this Act; and any person may alter the position of any electric supply-lines or works of a licensee under or over any such place as aforesaid, if such electric supply-lines or works are likely to interfere with the lawful exercise of any powers vested in him.

(2) In any such case as aforesaid the following provisions shall, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary between the parties concerned, apply, namely:—

(a) not less than one month before commencing any alteration, the licensee or other person desiring to make the same (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the operator") shall serve upon the person for the time being entitled to the pipe, wire, electric supply-lines or works, as the case may be (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the owner"), a notice in writing, describing the proposed alteration, together with a section and plan thereof on a scale sufficiently large to show clearly the details of the proposed works, and not in any case smaller than one inch to eight feet vertically and sixteen inches to the mile horizontally, and intimating the time when it is to be commenced, and shall subsequently give such further information in relation thereto as the owner may desire;

(b) within fourteen days after the service of the notice, section and plan upon the owner, the owner may serve upon the operator a requisition to the effect that any question arising upon the notice, section or plan shall be determined by arbitration, and thereupon the matter shall, unless settled by agreement, be determined by arbitration;

(c) every arbitrator to whom a reference is made under clause (b) shall have regard to any duties or obligations which the owner is under, and may require the operator to execute any temporary or other works so as to avoid as far as possible interference therewith;

(d) where no requisition is served upon the operator under clause (b) within the time named, or where such a requisition has been served and the matter has been settled by agreement or determined by arbitration, the alteration may, upon payment or securing of any compensation accepted or determined by arbitration, be executed in accordance with the notice, section and plan and subject to such modifications as may have been determined by arbitration or agreed upon between the parties;

(e) the owner may, at any time before the operator is entitled to commence the alteration, serve upon the operator a statement in writing to the effect that he desires to execute the alteration himself and requires the operator to give such security for the repayment of any expenses as may be agreed upon or, in default of agreement, determined by arbitration;

(f) where a statement is served upon the operator under clause (e), he shall, not less than forty-eight hours before the execution of the alteration is required to be commenced, furnish such security and serve upon the owner a notice in writing intimating the time when the alteration is required to be commenced, and

SECS. 14 AND 19.—An operator cannot claim damages for acts of his own or done on his behalf and at his expense by the owner. Where a gas company was cut off from reasonable access to its own property by acts done in the exercise of its powers by the Electric Supply Company and those acts caused damage, detriment and inconvenience, held, that the damage claimed to have been suffered could be compensated under sec. 19, and sec. 14 did not apply and the gas company could not be deprived of its remedies. 16 Bom.L.R. 964=26 I.C. 892=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 124.

the manner in which it is required to be made ; and thereupon the owner may proceed to execute the alteration as required by the operator ;

(g) where the owner declines to comply, or does not, within the time and in the manner prescribed by a notice served upon him under clause (f), comply with the notice, the operator may himself execute the alteration ;

(h) all expenses properly incurred by the owner in complying with a notice served upon him by the operator under clause (f) may be recovered by him from the operator.

(3) Where the licensee or other person desiring to make the alteration makes default in complying with any of these provisions, he shall make full compensation for any loss or damage incurred by reason thereof, and, where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of such compensation, the matter shall be determined by arbitration.

Laying of electric supply-lines or other works near sewers, pipes or other electric supply-lines or works.

15. (1) Where—

(a) the licensee requires to dig or sink any trench for laying down any new electric supply-lines or other works, near to which any sewer, drain, watercourse or work under the control of the Provincial Government or of any local authority, or any pipe, syphon, electric supply-line or other work belonging to any duly authorized person, has been lawfully placed, or

(b) any duly authorized person requires to dig or sink any trench for laying down or constructing any new pipes or other works, near to which any electric supply-lines or works of a licensee have been lawfully placed,

the licensee or such duly authorized person, as the case may be (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the operator") shall, unless it is otherwise agreed upon between the parties interested or in case of sudden emergency, give to the Provincial Government or local authority, or to such duly authorized person, or to the licensee, as the case may be (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the owner"), not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing before commencing to dig or sink the trench and the owner shall have the right to be present during the execution of the work, which shall be executed to the reasonable satisfaction of the owner.

(2) Where the operator finds it necessary to undermine, but not to alter, the position of any pipe, electric supply-line or work, he shall support it in position during the execution of the work, and before completion shall provide a suitable and proper foundation for it where so undermined.

(3) Where the operator (being the licensee) lays any electric supply-lines across, or so as to be liable to touch, any pipes, lines or service-pipes or service-lines belonging to any duly authorized person or to any person supplying, transmitting or using energy under this Act, he shall not, except with the written consent of such person and in accordance with section 34, sub-section (1), lay his electric supply-lines so as to come into contact with any such pipes, lines or service-pipes or service-lines.

(4) Where the operator makes default in complying with any of the provisions of this section, he shall make full compensation for any loss or damage incurred by reason thereof.

(5) Where any difference or dispute arises under this section, the matter shall be determined by arbitration.

(6) Where the licensee is a local authority, the references in this section to the local authority and to sewers, drains, water-courses or works under its control shall not apply.

Streets, railways, tramways, sewers, drains or tunnels broken up to be reinstated without delay.

16. (1) Where any person, in exercise of any of the powers conferred by or under this Act, opens or breaks up the soil or pavement of any street, railway or tramway, or any sewer, drain or tunnel, he shall—

(a) immediately cause the part opened or broken up to be fenced and guarded ;

(b) before sun-set cause a light or lights, sufficient for the warning of passengers to be set up and maintained until sunrise against or near the part opened or broken up ;

(c) with all reasonable speed fill in the ground and reinstate and make good the soil or pavement, or the sewer, drain or tunnel, opened or broken up, and carry away the rubbish occasioned by such opening or breaking up ; and,

(d) after reinstating and making good the soil or pavement, or the sewer, drain or tunnel, broken or opened up, keep the same in good rapir for three months and for any further period, not exceeding nine months, during which subsidence continues.

(2) Where any person fails to comply with any of the provisions of sub-section (1), the person having the control or management of the street, railway, tramway, sewer, drain or tunnel in respect of which the default has occurred, may cause to be executed the work which the defaulter has delayed or omitted to execute, and may recover from him the expenses incurred in such execution.

(3) Where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of the expenses incurred under sub-section (2), the matter shall be determined by arbitration.

17. (1) A licensee shall, before laying down or placing, within ten yards of any part of any telegraph-line, any electric supply-line or other words ¹[(not being either service lines) or electric-supply lines for the repair, renewal or amendment of existing works of which the character or position is not to be altered], give not less than ten days' notice in writing to the telegraph-authority, specifying—

(a) the course of the works or alterations proposed,

(b) the manner in which the works are to be utilized,

(c) the amount and nature of the energy to be transmitted, and

(d) the extend to, and manner in, which (if at all) earth returns are to be used ; and the licensee shall conform with such reasonable requirements, either general or special, as may be laid down by the telegraph-authority within that period for preventing any telegraph-line from being injuriously affected by such works or alterations :

Provided that, in case of emergency (which shall be stated by the licensee in writing to the telegraph-authority) arising from defects in any of the electric supply-lines or other works of the licensee, the licensee shall be required to give only such notice as may be possible after the necessity for the proposed new works or alterations has arisen.

(2) Where the works to be executed consist of the laying ²[or placing] of any ³[] service line ⁴[ * *] the licensee shall not less than forty-eight hours before commencing the work, serve upon the telegraph-authority a notice in writing of his intention to execute such works.

18. (1) Save as provided in section 13, sub-section (3), nothing in this Part shall be deemed to authorize or empower a licensee to place any aerial line along or across any street, railway, tramway, canal or waterway unless and until the Provincial Government has communicated to him a general approval in writing of the methods of construction which he proposes to adopt :

Provided that the communication of such approval shall in no way relieve the licensee of his obligations with respect to any other consent required by or under this Act.

SEC. 19.—See 16 Bom.L.R. 964=26 I.O. 892=39 B. 124 cited under sec. 14. Sec. 19 of the Act primarily prohibits the licensee from doing anything which may amount to a nuisance in the exercise of the powers given by the Act and by the licensee. Any infringement of any private right could only be justified on proof of the fact that without infringing those rights, the duties imposed by the licensee could not be carried out. Considerations of public welfare do not warrant an infringement of private rights, unless it is expressly or by necessary implication authorised by statute. The duty cast on the licensee by sec. 19 is enforceable at law. There is nothing in the Electricity Act to relieve the licensee from the liability to an action for injunction restraining him from infringing the rights of others. 1939 A.L.J. 19=I.L.R. (1939) All. 237=A.L.R. 1939 All. 280. The right of the Shia Mahomedans to carry tazias in a procession during moharrum is a normal user of the highway and does not originate in custom. Such a right is no more and no less than the right of any member of the public to take part in religious processions in the streets and can, therefore, be abridged where public rights may lawfully be abridged. Therefore, where an Electric Supply Company has been authorised under the Electricity Act to place wires across the streets in a certain place town at a height of 20 feet, the right of the Shia Mahomedans to carry through those streets tazias of a greater height is lawfully abridged. They cannot invoke sec. 19 of the Act to restrain

³[(3) Where a consumer refuses to allow a licensee or any person authorised as aforesaid to enter his premises in pursuance of the provisions of sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), or, when such licensee or person has so entered, refuses to allow him to perform any act which he is authorised by those sub-sections to perform, or fails to give reasonable facilities for such entry or performance, the licensee may after the expiry of twenty-four hours from the service of a notice in writing on the consumer, cut off the supply to the consumer for so long as such refusal or failure continues, but for no longer.]

21. (1) A licensee shall not be entitled to prescribe any special form of appliance for utilising energy supplied by him, or save as provided by section 23, sub-section (2), or by section 26, sub-section (7), in any way to control or interfere with the use of such energy:

Restrictions on licensee's controlling or interfering with use of energy. Provided that no person may adopt any form of appliance, or use the energy supplied to him so as unduly or improperly to interfere with the supply by the licensee of energy to any other person.

⁴[(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), a licensee may, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government given after consulting the local authority where the licensee is not the local authority, make conditions not inconsistent with this Act or with his license or with any rules made under this Act, to regulate his relations with persons who are or intend to become consumers, the lawful exercise of power by the company even if it necessarily causes inconvenience, as that section has no application to the case. 48 C.W.N. 307 (P.C.).

Sec. 21: SCOPE.—Sec. 21 which speaks of regulating the relations with consumers has nothing to do with the charges to be made for energy supplied. The section which deals with the matter is sec. 23. 35 C.W.N. 933.

Sec. 21 (2).—The rule made by Khattar Electric Engineering and General Supply Co., Ltd., Dera Ismail Khan, providing that every consumer shall pay a minimum charge of Rs. 25 per annum, had not been made with the approval of the Government. The fact that in 1936 the company had addressed a letter to the Chief Engineer on the subject and had received the reply that in the case of each consumer the recovery of the minimum charge was lawful from the date of the contract entered into by that consumer with the company is no approval of the rule and the rule is ultra vires. 181 I.C. 345 = A.I.R. 1939 Pesh. 8.

SECS. 21 AND 24.—Sec. 24 of the Electricity Act authorises the licensee to cut off supply only of that premises the charge of which is in arrear. It does not authorise the discontinuation of supply to premises the charge of which has been paid off. A clause in the agreement between the licensee and the consumer, empowering the licensee to discontinue the supply to certain premises for non-payment of charges of other premises of the consumer is inconsistent with sec. 24 and is ultra vires and unenforceable under sec. 21 (2). The previous sanction of the Local Government for the insertion of such a condition, under sec. 21 (2) of the Act, is invalid and unenforceable. 39 C.W.N. 526 = 61 C. L.J. 111 = A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 298.

and may with the like sanction given after the like consultation add to or alter or amend any such conditions; and any conditions made by a licensee without such sanction shall be null and void:

Provided that any such conditions made before the 23rd day of January, 1922, shall, if sanctioned by the Provincial Government on application made by the licensee before such date as the Provincial Government may, by general or special order, fix in this behalf, be deemed to have been made in accordance with the provisions of this sub-section.

²[(4)] Where any difference or dispute arises as to whether a licensee has prescribed any appliance or controlled or interfered with the use of energy in contravention of sub-section (1), the matter shall be either referred to an Electric Inspector and decided by him, or, if the licensee or consumer so desires, determined by arbitration.

22. Where energy is supplied by a licensee, every person within the area of supply shall, except in so far as is otherwise provided by the terms and conditions of the license, be entitled, on application, to a supply on the same terms as those on which any other person in the same area is entitled in similar circumstances to a corresponding supply:—

Provided that no person shall be entitled to demand, or to continue to receive, from a licensee a supply of energy for any premises having a separate supply unless he has agreed with the licensee to pay to him such minimum annual sum as will give him a reasonable return on the capital expenditure, and will cover other standing charges incurred by him in order to meet the possible maximum demand for those premises, the sum payable to be determined in case of difference or dispute by arbitration.

23. (1) A licensee shall not, in making any agreement for the supply of energy, show undue preference to any person, but may, save as aforesaid, make such charges for the supply of energy as may be agreed upon, not exceeding the limits imposed by his license.

Charges for energy to be made without undue preference.
